GREAT MEETING MARKED EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN OPENING

Rev. R. G. McBeth, M.A., and Rev. J. D. Morrow, Deliver Stirring Addresses to Immense Audience—The Object of the Campaign is to Improve Life in the Community

Sunday was a big day among the christian people of the city. It marked the opening of the two weeks' evangelistic campaign which is being carried on under the auspices of the Presbytery of Peterborough. There are three centers at which services are being held, viz, the three Presbyterian churches and yesterday afternoon the campaign was introduced to the general public by a mass meeting in the Opera House. This was held at a quarter past four and while the immense congregation was gathering a number of the Torrey-Alexander hymns were sung and joined heartily in by the congregation, with the St. Andrew's church choir and a small orchestra led

REV. MR. MACBETH.

Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M.A., of Orillia, formerly of Winnipeg and Vancouver, and at one time a lawyer and a soldier who served in the Riel rebellion, was the first speaker, and after a few preliminary remarks he launched into his subject. Rev. Mr. MacBeth is an eloquent, earnest and convincing speaker who talks in a quiet but forceful manner. He took as his subject the title of Tom Hughes Essays, viz. "The Manliness of Jesus Christ."

There is a feeling abroad nowadays that there is a weakness in the Christian life. If that is a fact then it is because those professing christianity are not living after the example of Christ. He was a perfect man, physically mentally and morally and to follow after him requires effort upon the part of the strongest in the land. Manliness not only represents physical strength and courage, but moral courage, a much higher and a grander courage, and chivalry. It is a fine thing to see a strong man do battle, but his efforts cannot be compared to those of a man who realizes his danger and his physical deficiency to conquer, but who does his task knowing it to be his duty to do so. As an instance of true moral courage he referred to the fatal effort of Miss Maxwell to save her pupils who were caught in the disastrous fire in the Montreal school.

REV J. D. MORROW.

Rev. J. D. Morrow of Toronto the athlete and preacher, was introduced to the audience and he made a deep impression upon his audience. He is a most able and interesting talker and one of those who refuses to take no for an answer. He has taken upon himself the work of saving the fallen and makes that his hobby, and his efforts have been met by a great degree of success. In opening his address he referred to the statement made by one of the speakers at a recent Bible class convention, viz, "A man cannot be an athlete and be decent." Rev. Mr. Morrow's version is that "A man is not an athlete in the true sense of the term, unless he is a christian to the very core." Those persons who appear in bare legs and bare arms and who lead lives of shame and worldliness are a disgrace to the word athlete.

The speaker was glad that he had donned the running suit and he was proud of the work that he had been permitted to do on the track and the athletic field in helping to save those lives for the work of Christ. To run a race and win a man must put forth every effort within him. Athletics train men to do that and fit their bodies for the battle. Athletics also strengthen a man's physical power and enables them to fight the better against the enemies of their lives.

Strong clean men are in demand in every walk in life. The business and professional men want them, and the church wants them, and there is no better way to get that class of men than by an athletic training. The Y.M.C.A. has discovered the secret of developing and holding young men and now the churches all over the country are providing clubs and game rooms for the benefit of the young men, and to keep them from the paths of sin and vice and the bar room.

Rev. Mr. Morrow said he loved young men and worked night and day for them. He referred to the crowd of young men found loafing on the street corners who were degrading themselves every day. Those fellows represent the best in the end and could find the highest positions if they but spent their time improving themselves. "Stay with the young men" was his closing remark. "Visit them and pray for them."

The meeting was brought to a close by Rev. Mr. Peacock who pronounced the benediction.

Ottawa, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Peter Larmonth, corresponding secretary of the National Council of Women, and Mrs. Adam Shortt, vice-president for Ontario, laid before the Hon. A. B. Aylesworth today, the appeals of the council for clemency in the case of Mrs. Robinson of Cobourg, sentenced to death for the murder of her daughter's children.

It is estimated that over 120,000 letters and post cards have been received by the justice department appealing for clemency.

TORONTO TO HELP

Maintain the county roads in York County.

Nothing that is going to aid to the business of the Queen City. At a recent meeting of the board representatives were presented from the various municipalities of York township. The topic discussed was good roads and the maintenance of them. The county men thought Toronto should help to pay for the maintenance as the farmer subsed the roads going to the city to spend their money. The Board of Control thought favorably of the scheme and will ask for legislation permitting the city to help pay the cost of the roads. Another meeting will be held shortly and Good Roads Commissioner Campbell will be invited to be present.

This is quite the opposite to the action taken a short time ago by Peterborough's citizens when the people of Otonabee came in and asked for assistance towards the road through the marsh leading into Peterborough. At that time the City Council said "No, we cannot help you." Toronto says, "Yes, we need the farm trade and we will keep up the country roads. There is a reason for this.

CANADIAN EATABLES.

A New Company Which Will Be One of the Largest is Canada.

Many inquiries are being made about the stock offer of the Canadian Eatables, Limited. The public recognize a good sound business proposition and from present indication there will be a good block of this stock sold right in Peterborough. The par value of the shares $1.00 and $50,000 8 per cent. cumulative preference shares are offered for sale. Everyone realizes the necessity of eatables and the tendency toward the prepared foods such as this company will produce. There are big profits in all lines and Canadian Eatables, Limited, was organized on sound business principles, and it will be conducted accordingly. See the big advertisement on another page and get your application for stock sent in at once as the first to come are the first served.

Sudden Death of Mrs. William A. Fife

The neighbors and friends of Mrs. Wm. A. Fife, 578 Division street, were shocked last evening to learn of the sudden death of that lady, which occurred about 6 o'clock. The deceased had been ill for a short time but was improving nicely and was able to be up Yesterday morning, however she took a turn for the worse and passed away at the close of the day. She was 32 years of age and her maiden name was Elizabeth Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fife of Otonabee. She was a native of this county and had lived here all her life. She is survived by her husband and three young children, the youngest being an infant only three weeks old, and to these will be extended the most heartfelt sympathy. The funeral will be held on Wednesday from the late residence and interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

Barton Murder May be Traced to Gebhardt

Hamilton, Oct. 31.—An effort is being made to connect Gebhardt, the self-confessed murderer and archbigamist, who is now in the toils of the New York police, with the Barton murder which was committed here just four years ago this month. Gebhardt resembles the description given of the Barton murderer and his method of killing women is the same. The Barton murder was committed in a hickory grove and the murder of the German girl was committed in a dense forest. There are several circumstances similar in the two cases and the attorney-general's department is investigating.

Peterborough Juniors Out of the Running

Peterborough Junior O.R.F.U. team is now out of the running for the championship. They went to Lindsay Saturday afternoon in the second game of the series and were defeated 22—11. This makes a total of 28 to 20 for the two games. Saturday's game was a good exhibition and was hard fought from beginning to end, and Lindsay did not win until the 2nd quarter when the score was 10 points while Peterborough tried to score. Lindsay fancy work on their wings and Mellalieu the Hurlbutlie of Toronto put out much touch down for them. He was a star, and Lindsay that the great boys could not touch him. Turn the grounds were just about as poor as any rugby grounds in the country.

OBITUARY NOTICE

Death removed an old and highly respected resident on Friday, Oct. 29, in the person of Caroline Crough, wife of Francis Young, jr., 6, con. 8, Ennismore. The deceased was a native of Peterborough county and has always lived here. She was married to her surviving husband 32 years ago, and for the first eight years they resided in Smith and then they moved to Ennismore where they have since lived. She is survived by her husband, five brothers, Philip, William, Patrick and Michael Crough, of Ennismore and John of Alberta, and one sister Mrs. Robt. Donohue of Ennismore. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at half-past two o'clock from St. Martin's church and interment took place in St. Martin's cemetery.

PARLIAMENT TO OPEN.

Dominion House Will Open on November 11.

The date of the opening of parliament has been definitely fixed for Thursday, November 11. The proclamation calling the members has been issued. The early assembling of the house should allow business to be well advanced by the Christmas recess, and is to be hoped that prorogation may be reached by Easter.

As yet the sessional legislative programme is in a somewhat tentative shape, but from now on cabinet meetings will be held almost daily.

The promised legislation providing for the creation of a Canadian navy and for full measure of co-operation with the mother country in the general scheme of Empire defence as evolved at the Imperial conference in London during the summer will probably be the feature of the government measure for the session. The details of this defence bill probably be the feature of the government measure for the session. The details of this defence bill are at ll to be worked out upon the lines agreed upon by the Canadian Ministers at the conference.

The insurance bill left over from last session, will be another important measure for the house to dispose of, and it is not improbable that the government will ask parliament to make some radical changes in the rules of the house looking to the expediting of public business.

ST. LUKE'S SERVICES.

His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto, visited St. Luke's church yesterday and addressed the children's service was held. A very large number of the little ones were present and his lordship gave them a very interesting and impressive talk.

Rev. Canon Greene of Orillia preached at both services in St. Luke's yesterday owing to the rector being indisposed with a severe cold.

This being All Saints' Day there will be a memorial service with holy communion at 10 o'clock this morning in St. Luke's church in commemoration of the departed.

CONFIRMATION SERVICES.

Thirty-five Candidates Received Into All Saints' Congregation.

Yesterday in All Saints' church the morning when his lordship the Bishop of Toronto, administered the rite of confirmation to thirty-five candidates as a much larger number than usual. The church was crowded with a congregation anxious to witness the very interesting and impressive ceremony and to hear the message his lordship had to deliver. At the communion his lordship took as his text: "Take up the cross and follow me." At 3 o'clock

Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer, Water street, have returned home after having spent a most enjoyable time with friends in Tremont and Cedar Bluffs, Nebraska.

Dedication Services at St. John's Church

Twenty-Seventh Dedication Festival at St. John's Church Yesterday—Bishop Sweeney Present

Yesterday saw the 27th dedication festival at St. John's church an annually recurring event in the commemoration of the reopening of this sacred edifice after its restoration on All Saints' Day 27 years ago. All the services were largely attended especially that in the evening when the building was crowded to the doors. Every available chair being brought into requisition. The parochial birthday of the parish of St. John's was graced by the presence of the Rt. Rev., the Lord Bishop of Toronto, who most of the parishioners met for the first time when his lordship preached an exceedingly eloquent and appropriate sermon which left his hearers with the impression that as Bishop Sweeney, newly elected to his high ecclesiastical office last spring, the diocese of Toronto have a powerful and aggressive executive under whose administration the spiritual welfare of a large American diocese of Ontario will be materially advanced.

The bishop chose for his text Psalm 26th "Lord I have loved the habitation of Thy house and the place where Thine honor dwelleth" and it is difficult to conceive of a text in the whole scriptures more suitable to the auspicious occasion. His lordship preached the sermon with graceful expressions of pleasure at being present with St. John's parishioners on the 27th anniversary of what they call their dedication festival. He looked forward with joy and satisfaction at all the manifold evidences of the good hand of God on this parish and his earnest prayer and hope will be that God, who has so richly blessed St. John's in the past, may continue to pour out in abundance his grace and benediction upon both priest and congregation so long as their relationship with each other exists. He urged his hearers to exercise even a more united and practical support of their rector from this on as the result of which they will have reaped more abundantly of God's blessing and mercies when the next dedication festival comes round. Turning to the subject of his sermon Bishop Sweeney said he found in Chronicles that King David was anxious that the Church of God should be appropriately ornate and orderly and rich in all its details and appointments. Asaph and David arranged the number and offices for the singers in God's house and their division into four and twenty orders. Again, David acting in his, for those days, unusual sense of godliness, looked forth and saw the tabernacle in which the ark rested was struck with the inappropriateness of Jehovah's habitation in contrast with his own. David then showed his love for the house of God by working to build a suitable temple for His worship, but was prohibited from using the work of his hands having been stained with blood. Before his death, however, David abundantly provided for the house of God. It came to pass when his son Solomon built the temple he found he had large stores of gold and silver and precious wood with which to embellish the glorious work David, continued his lordship is an illustration of the spirit he would like to see animating the ranks of all those who today call themselves christians in so far as the house of God is concerned. Like David, they should recognize a due proportion of finess between the house of God and the luxurious mansions of the weekly, and make provision appropriate to the needs of the habitation of God's house. They in their land caught the spirit of David when they traveled afar in Europe, Egypt and elsewhere in search of valuable marbles, timber and other precious material with which to construct those grand and splendid cathedrals from which went forth the various christian forces to bless the world at large. And on this occasion in Canada and the United States the spirit of David has also been caught in evidence of which we seen on every hand splendid edifices erected for God's service. Again his lordship in St. John's parish the Lord Bishop congratulated the congregation on what they had accomplished in the past. Catching the spirit of David he contended that they had done very well indeed. They should rejoice in their magnificent old church which stands like a glorious beacon on the hill pointing men heavenward. St. John's is admirably appointed in every way and is almost free from debt.

This is beautiful, indeed as evidence of this festival occasion when many of the decorations arranged for by King David and Asaph such as white robed priests, and choristers and minstrels enter into the worship of God. He warmly congratulated the congregations past and present who had evidently caught the spirit of David regarding this house of God and urged his hearers to continue the good work and ever keep the small amount of debt remaining on the property.

In connection Bishop Sweeny referred in touching terms to earnest members of St. John's who had gone to their rest, and whose voices could they be heard, would urge that the great work of Christ begun by them be taken up and inspired by the present congregation. But in order that the church shall be the church militant, the christian service and support must not be confined to its own parishioners but extend throughout the diocese, the country and abroad. There are $6,000,000 of people in all of our dominions and the shadows encroach and there will be found deep joy and satisfaction in whatever service we undertake to lessen Christ's kingdom upon earth.

DID THEY REFUSE?

Charge That Band Refused to Attend Funeral Unless Paid.

(To the Editor of The Times)

Sir,—It is not often that I express my opinion in the public press, but I must say I am surprised that no notice was made in your Saturday's columns about the absence of music at the military funeral on Friday of the late Mr. Ernest Hutchinson. Now this funeral, at which the deceased, for some eighteen years an active member of the local soldiery, and carried to his last resting place on a Canadian gun carriage, was taken to the cemetery without a sound of martial music. Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note, marked the footsteps of those of the 57th Regiment and the 20th Battery as they sadly carried the last remains of a departed comrade to his sepulchre. Many remarks could be heard from Georgy Arms to the end of the procession as they wended its way to the cemetery. I am given to understand, Sir, that the 57th Regiment band was asked to lead the way to the cemetery as customary in such cases and what the band refused point blank to turn out unless paid the sum of $40 for services rendered. If this is correct this splendid old military musical organization is supported in some measure by the taxpayers cannot but sympathize with the hands of heretofore ardent admirers. If the 57th Band do not refuse, as rumored, to turn out to the funeral of a deceased local soldier unless paid $40 they would gain sympathy by denying this rumor.

Yours truly,
THOS. RUTHERFORD.

In reference to the above Mr. Rutherford should not forget that while funds have been provided by the city for the support of the band it does not follow that the members are supposed to individually quit work and provide music for funerals. Most nearly all of our members are working men, and it is cheerfully given and they cannot afford to break away from their employment without remuneration.—Editor Times.

Will Ashburnham Get a Fire Hall All Its Own?

A second fire station to be located in Ashburnham is a scheme which is growing in favor and which will likely take actual form next year. Ald. Buller, chairman of the Fire, Water & Light Committee, is giving the matter considerable consideration just now. He believes that the city will save money by the move. Certainly a much more effective service will be afforded the ratepayers in that part of the city.

The central fire hall is all right and good results are being achieved, but the run to Ashburnham and especially to Auburn, is altogether too much for the horses, and a lot of valuable time is lost owing to the great distance to be travelled.

It is understood that the proposal when made, will be for a small hall in Ashburnham to accommodate a about three men and a team. The probability is that the men will be taken from the central station and that the old hose wagon and other equipment now at the central hall as an auxilliary plant will be moved over. In this way the whole expense will be greatly reduced. The city owns a central property in Ashburnham, so that the only expense would be the cost of the building, a team of horses and their keep, and a small increase in the pay of one of the firemen who will act as captain and have charge of the men and building.

If such a proposition be made to the Fire, Water & Light Committee and to the council it will meet with unanimous approval, especially in the eastern part of the city.

Trinity College Won from Collegiate Team

The boys from Trinity College Port Hope ran away from the local Collegiate Institute Rugby team in an exhibition game on the home grounds Saturday afternoon. The visitors were a fine lusky bunch and their weight advantage in scrimmage enabled them to do most of the playing in the first half. Towards the end of the first half after the Port Hope boys had scored seven points the locals braced and began to play off their feet. They were unable, however, to score only added four points to their score making it 29 to 4 in favor of Port Hope. The game was good in spite of the slipperiness of the field. Port Hope's weight told on the Collegiate team and they were defeated.

Full back—Parks.
Half backs—Rowe, Wickens, Stevenson.
Quarter back—Watson.
Middle wing—Hopkins and Rogers.
Inside wing—Hopkins and Rogers.
Scrimmage—Lewis, Aires, Laing.
3 Quarter—Roy Chamberlain.
Umpire—Harry Hall.

Next Saturday, the Grove School boys of Lakefield will play the P.C.I. at Riverside Park.

The P.C.I. officials are endeavoring to arrange a game with the Lindsay Collegiate Rugby team on any Collegiate team for a couple of weeks hence.

Invaluable to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable, has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of looking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of "Nerviline" on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. "To cure colic, in- RVILINE digestion and bad stomach in a horse URES or cow there is no remedy on earth in OLICKY the same class as "Nerviline." Last ORSES summer I had a $250 horse that got the ears, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, "Nerviline" is worth a dollar a bottle."

James E. McCullough,
Stock Breeder, etc.

You will not regret using Nerviline—but see you get it and not some thing else. 25c. per bottle, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE SINGLE TAX

The Single Tax Association of Ontario is evidently making itself felt throughout the Province in its intent to have the Assessment Act changed so as to obviate the tendency to discourage energy and improvement, and the granting of powers to municipalities to fix a lower rate upon the business and improvement values than upon the land values. Concerning taxation the Toronto Globe recently said editorially:—"Taxation may be so levied as to encourage and almost force industry and enterprise. It may, on the other hand, be so levied as to obstruct, retard and even destroy the source from which the revenue must be drawn. The French window tax led to the closing of many windows and a proportionate lessening of the value and usefulness of buildings. The Egyptain tax on date trees led to the cutting down of many trees. Larger amounts might have been raised by methods which would encourage the best and fullest use of the property from which the revenue were drawn. Similar influences can be discerned in the incidence to the value of buildings.

ARE PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEAK?

A prominent and well known Citizen called at The Times office yesterday to lodge a complaint against our Public School system. He says that pupils from the Separate Schools, as a rule, pass the entrance examinations a year in advance of those from the Public Schools. He accounts for this by the system of promotion examinations conducted by the teachers in the various forms. These examinations, he believes, are not sufficiently frequent to enable bright pupils to forge ahead. In other words the progress of the bright and brainy pupil is to a large extent controlled by the poorer student. As a sample, our informant cited the case of his own son, who is unquestionably a bright lad, and a neighbor boy. These lads are the same age exactly, and began school at the same time, one attending the Public and the other the Separate School. The Public School pupil passed almost at the top at each promotion examination, and has still another year to put in before he can try the entrance examination, while the other boy is now in the Institute.

The Times is of opinion that the statement above is of sufficient importance to warrant Inspector Mowat and the Board of Education looking into the matter.

About Marriage

Mothers Should Train Daughters

By REV. M. C. PETERS

NOTHING is more to be regretted in the present day than the blunder that kind-hearted but mistaken mothers are making in bringing up their daughters—fitting them for anything but the positions they are likely to occupy.

The mother slaves that the daughters may do nothing, with the result that when young women have homes of their own to manage they know positively nothing of the sciences of bake-ology, boil-ology, stitch-ology and mend-ology.

The average woman is not only kept in ignorance of all the details of household duties by which the beginning of many a woman's married life is often made a series of blunders and the result often not only mortifying and costly, but ludicrous.

One of the greatest defects in our social system is the aimless way in which our girls are brought up.

Few are prepared in either body or mind for the lofty duties and serious responsibilities which marriage implies, and marriage in consequence has been brought down to a low sensual plane.

Mothers, have your daughters get their hands into regular daily domestic duties, let idleness be forbidden them, and let every woman be crowned with the dignity of a useful life.

Even if a girl should never be required to do the work herself she ought to know whether the work is done in a proper manner or not. The rich of to-day are often to-morrow's poor. Croesus, whose name is a synonym for great wealth, was himself taken captive, stripped of all his treasures and in his old age supported by the charity of Cyrus.

Unless parents can give their daughter a fortune when she marries they perpetuate a fraud upon the young man if by her lack of domestic training they make her unfit for the position of wife in the home of the young man who has to make his way in the world.

May the day soon come when French will yield to fritters, poetry to pies, when the most studious will excel in stews, when more music teachers will play upon pots and pans, the female president will rule the roast and women be taught to be help-meets instead of merely help-eats.

Cash Capital of Stock Gambling

By FREDERICK U. ADAMS

I take it that no effective denial can be entered against the assertion that many of the superb buildings which are massed in the Wall street district of New York are largely devoted to housing concerns which draw their revenue from the speculative public. This same public partially paid for their erection. It continues to contribute the funds which make such investments profitable.

The reader will be appalled by the facts I am about to submit.

It is not alleged that what is known as the Wall street district is entirely devoted to the purposes of speculation. It includes hundreds, and possibly thousands, of firms which have no direct concern with the various exchanges; but it is possible to arrive at a reasonably close approximation to the total paid by those who defray the cost of the Wall street game.

The tax books of New York city show that the Wall street district is assessed at a figure between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000, the exact amount being dependent on what may properly be included in the term, "Wall street district." Within the most reasonable boundaries for this district must be included property worth at least the former figure; and it may be assumed that the real selling value is at least 20 per cent. in excess of that assessed against the owners.

It is ultra-conservative to assert that one-third of this capitalization is employed in catering to speculative enterprises and employments. This constitutes an item of $75,000,000 for New York city alone, and the nation will swell this to $100,000,000 and more.

We have taken no account of the cost of the fixtures in the thousands of offices in these buildings; neither has mention been made of many other items which properly belong in this calculation. The total amount of fixed capital invested in the speculative game in the United States is approximately indicated in the following table:

Invested in exchange buildings	$ 25,000,000
Value of membership tickets	100,000,000
Invested in office buildings	100,000,000
Fixtures and incidentals	25,000,000
Total	$250,000,000

What Is Really An Ideal Wife

By ELSIE GREELEY-SMITH

"It is the factory and shop and office worker and not the college-bred girl who makes the ideal wife," said Miss Mary E. Wooley, president of the Mount Holyoke College for Girls, the other day.

Miss Wooley argued that the girl who works for a living is more sincere in her love for a home than the college girl, and she declared that the former is, of the two, the more anxious to marry.

I do not see how Miss Wooley arrived at the second half of her conclusion. For since marriage constitutes the only business the woman who does not work for a living may engage in honorably, she must naturally be less difficult to please than the working woman.

It seems to me impossable to generalize concerning the superiority as wives of one class of women over another. Unquestionably the woman who has worked for money and who has had to strike a weekly balance between a fixed income and fixed expenses makes a more practical and perhaps a more considerate wife than the more sheltered and dependent girl who has lived at home.

She has greater responsibility, and for the man who is seeking for these qualities she would be the better helpmate. But not all men seek practical wives. Not all men even want sensible wives. Often the most silly, frivolous little creature of our acquaintance makes her husband happy by her very silliness and frivolity. A man loves a woman not for her points of similarity to him, but her points of difference.

Travel Via G. T. R.

Messrs. S. Tamura, R. Hara, I. Watasi and T. Minami, four Japanese gentlemen, composing part of the committee sent out officially from Japan to study commercial and other conditions in the United States and Canada arrived in Montreal Tuesday morning, October 19th, and immediately proceeded with W. T. R. Preston, the Canadian Trade Commissioner to Japan, to Ottawa at 8.30 A. M. on the Grand Trunk Railway System. At Ottawa they were met by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and he gave them a luncheon and they dined with Japanese Consul-General in the evening. The party left Ottawa in Grand Trunk Railway private car "Violet" at 8.30 A. M. Thursday, October 21st, for Ste. Anne de Bellevue for the purpose of inspecting the MacDonald Agricultural College, leaving Ste. Annes the same evening for Toronto where they spent Friday and left for Montreal same night via Grand Trunk for Montreal.

Don't Risk even a penny—until health returns. And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick, "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help!"

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere.

Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

When the stomach nerves, or the heart First nerves fail, or Kidney theseailments know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever.

They know that when health fails to return Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

But write me first for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not authorized to Then give the 30 day test. So please—for I have appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, everywhere, to issue my "no help, no pay," medicines to the sick.

Tell me also which book you need.

The books below will surely open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. Besides Pay you are perfectly free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely

A THANKSGIVING TRAGEDY

The turkey's look was stern and sad,
the turkey's eye was dim,
And darkly looked he at the man who had been feeding him;
What doth it profit me, he asked, to eat of grain a peck,
Since by the look of that there axe
I'll get it in the neck.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very, very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see! Sold by all dealers.

Something Better Now

THERE was a time when people were satisfied with any glasses with which they could read, regardless of weather they were using one eye more than the other, knowing nothing of how the eyes were strained by wrong lens powers, and careless of the frame fitting the face.

All this is changing now; a thorough examination by experienced men, lenses specially ground for each eye, and the neatest, most becoming are now required by discriminating people who realize that nothing is too good for the eyes.

We make appointments for eye examination by our phones, Bell 1221, Mach. 7; it saves waiting your turn.

CROOKS INVADE LONDON.

Old Time Tricks Still Worked on the Public.

Hundreds of the cleverest sharpers and crooks from various parts of the world have lately invaded London for the purpose of preying on those very innocent people—visitors mostly—who fondly imagine they are going to get something for nothing.

These criminals have the same old "game," the same old tricks, the same old bundles of flash notes, but they can always find new victims to fleece, of boarded wallets, and they manage to do their work so neatly and so frequently that at times even the "flats" themselves do not know they have been swindled.

"The police," says a well-known Scotland Yard detective, "do their best to protect those people who are not able to protect themselves from these rogues, but, of course, we cannot always succeed.

"One of the most astonishing things is that the older the swindle the more it seems to flourish. Take the purse trick, for instance. The sharper offers to sell three half crowns in a purse for one half crown.

His fellow victims do not stop to reason out the matter themselves. They think they are going to get something for nothing, and, naturally, they are trapped. They find only three pennies in the purse.

"Then there is the three-card trick, which is practiced in trains and on race-courses as often as ever it was. Here again the deluded folk who are lured into 'finding the lady,' imagine they are smart enough to trick the trickster, and that they will go home with pockets bulging with gold.

"West End hotels are the headquarters of the confidence trick gentleman. As a rule, they are well-educated men, and, of course, nimble-witted. They dress stylishly, talk 'big,' and show a considerable display of wealth while they mark down their victims.

"One of them 'tells the tale.' He has inherited a fortune, and in order to show his deep appreciation of his new friend's many acts of kindness he intends to intrust him with $250,000 to invest for him.

"Confederates—all apparent strangers to each other — sing the lucky heir's praises, and eventually the new friend consents to hand over just as much money as he possesses in order to show that he, too, has confidence in the honesty of the smooth-tongued swindler. And the fool and his money are parted—forever.

"Quite recently the police broke up a clever gang of Australians—one of whom was actually a member of the Automobile Club—who swindled a man of hundreds of pounds by the old trick of backing a horse after the result of the race was known; but in spite of the publicity given to the case this particular form of swindle will be practiced in the future with similar results."

Ending a Letter.

The simplicity of "Yours" as a letter ending would have astounded Jeremy Taylor, whose letters to John Evelyn often wind up with perfect triumphs of complexity in this respect. His best is, "Believe me that I am, in great heartiness and dearness of affection, dear sir, your obliged and most affectionate and endeared friend and servant," or "Your very affectionate friend and hearty servant." Even in his shortest perorations of the kind the "affectionate" and the "servant" are always the two indispensable words. Probably no man, woman or child would combine these two at the end of a letter today.—London Tatler.

An Excuse For a Pardon.

When the stern Duke of Wellington was prime minister under George IV. he managed the old monarch easily enough, but when he attempted the same tactics with the young Queen Victoria he met his match. She constantly outwitted him. One of his earliest official acts was to bring before her a court martial death sentence which he expected her to sign as a matter of course. A soldier was to be executed for desertion, and as the death warrant was placed before the queen by the duke she raised her eyes, full of tears, to his face, saying:

"Have you nothing to say in behalf of this poor man?"

"Nothing," said the duke, standing at attention like one of his own privates; "he has deserted three times."

"Oh, your grace, think again," pleaded the queen, as if she were asking for the life of her dearest friend.

"Well, your majesty, he certainly is a bad soldier, but there was somebody who spoke for his good character. He may be a tolerably good fellow in civil life."

"Oh, thank you," said the queen in heartfelt tones, and before the astonished duke could utter a word of protest she had written across the paper the word "Pardoned."

ANOTHER FLAG EPISODE

HOW A CANADIAN SHIP FARED IN AUSTRALIA.

Officials of Port Adelaide Failed to Recognize the Canadian Ensign and Ordered a British Flag In Its Place—After Heated Dispute With Handspikes Explanation of Affair Was Arrived At.

All the talk lately about an alleged insult to the British flag in Toronto, started one of the city's well-known wholesale merchants reminiscing the other day; and he told an interesting story of a flag episode in Port Adelaide, South Australia, in which he himself was a participant. Things became very lively for a while, but in the end, just as in the Toronto affair, it was found that the whole thing was due to a mistake. But let him tell it in his own words:

"In 1883 I was an able seaman on board the Canadian barque 'Lake Erie,' on a voyage from London, England, to Port Adelaide, South Australia, with general cargo. Our commander was Captain John Keay, our chief officer was George Pullam, and the second officer was Jack Bird, all Nova Scotia men, and two-thirds of the crew of 24 men were Nova Scotians or Canadians.

"We arrived in Port Adelaide one bright morning, and like all deep-water ships, we dressed ship when we moored alongside of our dock, and we were very proud to haul up the Canadian ensign at our peak. During the forenoon we were visited by a messenger from the deputy port warden's office, who came aboard and ordered our flag to be pulled down and the British ensign to be hoisted. Naturally, our mate being on his own ship, was not used to taking orders. A quick right and left—one between the eyes and the other in the neighborhood of the chin—put the messenger from the port warden's office out of business, and a few seconds later the bo'sun and the bo'sun's mate were busy piping 'All hands aft.' On our arrival aft we were told that the warden had ordered the Canadian flag to be hauled down, and the mate ordered that we line up alongside the ship, every man in fact everybody on the ship, including the cook—to handle a handspike.

"On the return of the messengers to the port warden's office a couple more messengers were sent down, and from the dock, without coming aboard the ship, they commanded that we haul down the flag that was flying; and on the mate still refusing to do so a detachment of police was sent for. Naturally, when the police came aboard, a bunch of sailors that had been six months at sea were ready for a rough-house, and for a few minutes it looked like an Irish wake. It did not last long; but while it lasted it was hot. During the fracas the commander, Captain Keay, came aboard, and by instructions from the office, or rather the shipowners' agents the commander was compelled to haul down the flag and substitute the red ensign.

"Now this happened to a British ship in a British port, and naturally enquiries were made as to why such a thing should occur. In fact, our commander threatened to haul his ship out into the offing and lay at anchor and fly his flag in spite of the South Australian Government; but when it was explained, it shows how easily mistakes can occur through the misinterpretation of instructions by an over-zealous officer, only anxious to carry out his interpretations of the instructions.

"It appears that at that time South Australia was inaugurating a navy of her own, consisting of a number of small coasting gunboats. The South Australian flag is a blue ensign, the same as the British Royal Navy Reserve, but which had a round, white disc on the lower wing with an aboriginal or nigger in the corner. When the navy was inaugurated, they adopted the blue ensign with the nigger for their naval flag, the same as the British Royal Navy adopted the white ensign with the red cross of St. Andrew, and in adopting this flag for the South Australian navy they prohibited all Australian vessels from flying anything but the red ensign or British ensign; but in making out their regulations, instead of using the words 'South Australian vessels,' it read, "all colonial vessels," consequently the ship I was in, hailing from a British colony, came under the regulations as a colonial vessel and consequently under the rules of the port a colonial vessel was compelled to fly the British flag instead of the colonial. Needless to say, the matter was quickly remedied, and a very short time afterward a deputation again visited our ship from the port warden's office with instructions for us to hoist the Canadian flag, which was done with great ceremony, resulting in a general piping aft of the watch for grog, and a half-holiday."

Writes From Arctic.

A letter has been received at the geological survey at Ottawa from V. Steffansson, who is far up in the Arctic circle, conducting natural research in conjunction with Dr. Anderson. The two gentlemen are living among the Eskimos, their principal diet being caribou.

Steffansson says that he has come in contact with many Eskimos who never before have seen a white man. The two explorers got along well during their long stay in the north, where they will remain for over a year more. They expect to spend next winter at the mouth of the Copper Mine River.

The letter was written on Feb. 18, taking five months to reach Ottawa.

The Flathead Indians.

In 1832 four Indians of the Flathead tribe, living on the Pacific coast, crossed the Rocky mountains and, traversing 3,000 miles of intervening wilderness, appeared at St. Louis. They had been sent by their nation to inquire about the white man's God.

Origin of the Postmark.

Great Britain claims the distinction of having originated the postmark. The first one, employed in London as long ago as 1660, was an extremely simple affair, consisting merely of a small circle divided into two parts. At the top there were two letters indicating the month, while in the lower half of the circle was shown the day of the month. No provision was made for indicating the year or the hour of the day. It is only by the date of the letters themselves whereon the mark was impressed that it is possible to fix the date of its use.—Sunday Magazine.

How the West Grows.

An idea of the methods used in colonizing western Canada may be gained from record of the Township of Hutton, where less than five weeks ago fertile soil was undisturbed by plow, but is now the home of no fewer than 56 hustling American families busy cultivating land and building homes.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea reverses in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

1-3 is a good deal better than 3-10.

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—18 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Clear Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 200,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 200,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $500. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 200,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the last opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

400 FOOT TUNNEL—140 FOOT SHAFT

Mines located near Valardena, Durango, Mexico only six miles by wagon road and three miles straight line from the property of the Guggenheims upon which they have recently erected a $2,000,000 smelter. Sample assays have averaged from $54 to $102 per ton.

Up to the present time, the Turquoise Copper Co., has been practically a close operation; an initial offering of 100,000 shares has just been made at 25 cents, par value $1.00, full paid and non-assessable. Proceeds will be used to further continue the development work already begun.

We have options on 50,000 shares of this stock and advise immediate purchase at 25 cents per share. It is the intention of The Board of Directors to list the stock on the New York Curb and it should sell at $1.00 per share by the first of the year.

White is the Siamese mourning color. Siamese babies, dogs and cats are dyed yellow. The dye keeps off fleas.

The favorite Siamese delicacy is putrid prawns saturated with very strong red pepper.

In the midsummer heat the Siamese always bathe with the clothes on. Thus afterward they keep cool longer.

Believing that it is unpardonable to take life, the Siamese strain insects out of their drinking water and do not bathe at night lest in the darkness they crush some few parasites in drying themselves.

Train and Track.

The world's railways have a total length of more than seventeen times the circumference of the earth at the equator.

In every mile of railroad there is seven feet four inches not covered by rails. This is the space left between the rails to allow for expansion in hot weather.

The railroads of the United States paid out $36,000,000 last year for crossties, an average of 50 cents for each tie. Electric lines used one-sixteenth of the whole.

Magnet vs. Dreadnought.

Naval Constructor Hollman, of the German navy, has taken out a patent for a device to destroy battleships of the Dreadnought class. Compared with this newest engine of war the Zeppelin dirigible airship, which aims, among other things, to drop explosives on an enemy's ships and towns, seems harmless. Hollman's device is an enormous dynamo-magnet capable of being charged up to 20,000 volts. With such a magnet, he says, he can attract by a magnetic power any battleship within a radius of seven miles. He believes that a magnet can be made powerful enough to attract a whole fleet of warships and draw them into shallow water, where they will run aground and be at the mercy of heavy artillery ashore. Hollman declares most seriously that the amount of metal in the battleships of to-day will only intensify the force of his magnets. Anchors and the ships' engines will be powerless, he says, against the magnet's attractive force. The magnet, or a battery of them, should be established, according to the ideas of Naval Constructor Hollman, at the mouth of a river or in some favorable submerged position along the coast where the enemy could not readily detect it. The rest is easy. Along comes a hostile fleet to blockade a port or bombard a town or even steam up the river. The moment the ships get within magnet-range the operator in charge of the station turns on the power and the ships are drawn to the shore, to be captured or demolished.

There are dynamo-magnets in several of the German shipyards capable of lifting a dead weight of 50,000 pounds. The Hollman magnet is designed to lift a battleship.

Your Canary.

Don't forget to give your canary the best of water and seed every day. See that he has a good fish bone. Clean his cage every day. Keep him out of the hot sun and the glare of night lights and yet let him have sunshine. Talk to him—talk to him with a kind voice. Let him out of the cage occasionally. Vary give crumbs of bread soaked in milk, lettuce, chickweed, a little piece of egg, sometimes a little fruit, a nut and lots of good things and let him eat or reject, as he pleases. The Patient Mule.

A kind-hearted woman was very [illegible]us about a certain mule belonging to Erastus Pinkley. The mule had a sad and heavy appearance and always looked more dejected than when the proprietor brought it up with a flourish at the front gate, says a writer in The Washington Star.

"Do you ever abuse that mule of yours?" she inquired one day.

"Lan' sakes, no'm," returned Mr. Erastus. "I should say not! Dat mule has had me on de defensive foh de las' six years."

Oiling the Streets.

It appears that Toronto has obtained very satisfactory results from oil sprinkling during the past season. After a two months trial there on the principal streets, the system bids fair to be adopted permanently. It was shown in Toronto that the oiling was 25 per cent. cheaper than watering would have been, and it was much more effective. The oil used was the same as tried in the Barrie experiment, referred to in these columns a few days ago, being a by-product of the distillation of petroleum. Owing to the small demand it is largely a waste product, hence its cheapness.

THE MOUND BUILDERS

RELICS OF A VANISHED RACE.

The Strangely Shaped Structures Are Thought to Be More Than Two Thousand Years Old—The Enigma of Those Who Reared Them.

Scattered through the middle west and in other parts of the United States are more than 10,000 monstrous, odd shaped "mounds." Some are built like forts, others in queer, sharp geometrical figures, others shaped like huge serpents, crocodiles, buffaloes, turtles, eagles, lizards, dragons with egys in their mouths, etc. Some of these mounds are a mile long, some much smaller. In Newark, O., stands a continuous mound, constructed in a perfect circle, more than 5,000 feet in circumference. The mounds are often covered with trees that are many centuries in age. These strangely shaped structures are thought to be more than 2,000 years old.

Certainly not the North American Indians. The Indians have ever been a lazy, roving race, making their livelihood chiefly by hunting and fishing, seldom remaining long in one neighborhood and using tents or the rudest huts as their dwelling places.

The mysterious people who built the mounds were not a race of rovers. An infinitely long time must have been required for erecting each huge earth shape. Nor were they ignorant savages, for the mounds show deep knowledge of geometry as well as of astronomy and of the principles of building. Carefully laid out military fortifications abound in the mound builders' country, indicating that the aborigines had martial lore and engineering skill and that they understood many modern principles of attack and defense.

There are also sepulchral mounds, some of them sixty feet high. These contain human bones, skulls, etc., as well as copper utensils and bits of pottery. The bones when exposed to air crumble at once to dust. As the bones of Europeans who died twenty centuries ago are often found intact and strong, many authorities believe the mound builders date back at least several centuries before the time of Julius Caesar.

Cleverly made pottery and copper or bronze implements of war and peace are found all through the mounds. Ancient abandoned copper mines on the banks of Lake Superior show that the mound builders well understood the art of mining. The workmanship of the copper bracelets, bronze knives, etc., prove their skill at the forge.

In one of the prehistoric Lake Superior mines has been found a mass of copper weighing eight tons, resting on a high platform, ready for removal to the upper earth. This implies the use of well constructed mine machinery. Pictures that have been found etched upon copper and ivory portray much artistic skill.

From all this it seems that in some remote age the central part of North America was inhabited by a race of warlike, industrious, decidedly civilized beings who had splendid skill at building, at the arts of mining, engineering and higher mathematics and who flourished apparently during numerous centuries. Yet so long ago did the mound builders cease to exist that in all Indian folklore there is no mention, no memory, of them.

None know where the Indians themselves came from. Yet they apparently settled in America long after the mound builders had vanished. The skulls discovered in the mounds are not shaped in the least like skulls of Indians nor even of Europeans. Some archaeologists claim to find strong resemblance between the mound builders' skulls and those of the ancient Egyptians. If there were any connection between the two, who can explain how an Egyptian race chanced to flourish in the middle west?

The fate of the mound builders is as mysterious as the strange people themselves. After reaching so high a civilization and thriving for so long a time it seems strange that they should have been completely destroyed. No satisfactory explanation has ever been offered. Perhaps the mound builders moved south and became merged with the Mexican Aztecs or Peruvians, or some savage race from the north may have swept down and utterly destroyed them, or a wholesale pestilence may have wiped out their nation.

The weird looking earthen monuments (the purpose of most of them a puzzle to the best archaeologists) are the sole remaining proof that this great lost American race ever existed.

How He Managed.

A man in an up state county owns a number of horses and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse owner's little boy and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill he gives it medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."

Troubles must come to all men, but those who are always looking for them will have the largest share.

Hard Luck.

Bob Footlite (actor)—Failure? I should think it was! The whole play was ruined. She—Gracious! How was that? Bob Footlite—Why, at the end of the last act a steam pipe burst and hissed me off the stage.

The Telegraph.

The first royal speech transmitted by telegraph was that delivered by the late Queen Victoria when she opened parliament on Nov. 15, 1837. The speed of transmission was fifty-five words a minute.

IRELAND.

George Meredith's plea for home rule is embodied in his last poem, "Ireland," which leads off "Scribner's" for July, accompanied by a hitherto unpublished portrait which was painted in 1867 for J. M. Barrie by Amy Draper Sumner. We quote three of the seven stanzas:

Fire in her ashes Ireland feels
To her the lost old time appeals
For resurrection, good to great;
Not as a shape to spectral eyes,
But humanly maternal, young
In all that quickens pride, and wise
To speak the best her bards have sung.

May she not call herself her own?
That is her cry, and thence her spite
Of fury, thence her graceless tone
At justice given in bits and bits.
The limbs once raw with gnawing chains
Will fret at silken when God's beams
Of freedom beckon o'er the plains
From mounts that show it more than dreams.

A nation she, and formed to charm,
With heart for heart and hands all round,
No longer England's broken arm,
Would England know where strength is found,
And strength to-day is England's need;
To-morrow it may be for both
Salvation: heed the portents, heed
The warnings, free the mind from sloth.

HUGO AS AN ARTIST.

When Victor Hugo's "Marion Delorme" was read before the troupe of the Porte-Saint-Martin theater the actor Laferriere, then a young man, protested against the insignificant role assigned him, in which he would have only ten lines to recite. Hugo promptly reduced him to silence by thundering, "Ten lines of Victor Hugo are something not to be refused for they endure." Hugo attached a similar exaggerated significance to everything he did and to every object that was in any way associated with him.

For instance, he considered his drawings which were, for the most part commonplace enough, of sufficient importance to make them the subject of a testamentary provision. In his will of Aug. 31, 1881, he wrote, "I give my drawings and everything which shall be drawn by me to the National Library of Paris, which will be one day the Library of the United States of Europe."

Hugo's drawings are said to have been produced more often than not in the following manner. If a blot of ink chanced to fall on his paper while he held his pen aloft in quest of a word or rhyme, he enlarged the spot admiringly and made additions to it instinctively under the influence of a species of subconscious direction until he had produced a sinister moonlight scene of a "venerable bourg dominating with its bristling ruins the shuddering waters of a river of legend." He elaborated with great care, however, during his irksome exile at Guernsey certain crude impressions he had transferred to his sketchbook during his journeys in the valley of the Rhine. Furthermore, being a great lover of children, he drew figures of the most extravagant sort for the amusement of the young people of his household. Alvan F. Sanborn in Book News.

DON'T KILL ALL YOUR TURKEYS FOR CHRISTMAS

But leave one or two for the Peterborough Poultry Show.

While turkeys usually fetch a good price at Christmas, farmers' wives would make no mistake in saving one or two for the Peterborough Poultry Show, to be held in the Market Hall, Peterborough, on January 4th, 5th and 6th, 1910. On that occasion three prizes of $6, $3, and $1, respectively—$10 in all—will be offered for the best three 1909 turkeys, dressed, exhibited. This is a special cash inducement offered by the directors, who are leaving no stone unturned to assure 1910's Poultry Show excelling, both in exhibits and attendance, all previous attempts in this direction. It is confidently expected that over 1200 birds will be exhibited at the coming show and the directors themselves are now busy building 250 new coops to accommodate the entries.

The Peterborough Poultry Show has gained the confidence of the public in Peterborough city and county, and also throughout a large district outside the county. Heretofore each year's show has surpassed that of the previous year, and 1910 will undoubtedly prove no exception to the rule. Energetic and enterprising members have given to Peterborough an annually recurring Poultry Show worthy the name, and which is productive of good results in encouraging the breeding of high class poultry, and in attracting hundreds of visitors to Peterborough city.

Farmers' wives will unquestionably be unusually interested in the Poultry Show next January, for a $6 prize for the best 1909 turkey, dressed, is worth bidding for, to say nothing of the $3 and $1 prizes. An expert from Guelph Agricultural College will judge these turkeys.

THE BELL'S FINE SERVICE.

Peterborough One of the Company's Best Customers.

From the Telephone Gazette we learn that during September Peterborough had 4270 "Out" and 2464 "In" calls over the company's wires. This is nearly double that of most of the surrounding towns and minor cities of the country, including Kingston, and seventh in the list in Canada. This is certainly gratifying as it shows Peterborough to be well up in business lines with much larger places.

The Bell Company is to be congratulated on the splendid service which it gives to its patrons. Peterborough in particular has reason to feel proud of this service, which has done so much to make our prosperous and rapidly growing city what it is today. Under the careful and popular management of Mr. Doan, the number of telephones has increased in the last year or so from about 385 to 1150. The local service has also been improved from time to time, until it is now well nigh perfect.

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 14th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,188 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be received at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent. on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products, also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulae for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 7000 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastorial portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and after careful consideration, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 50 per cent. dividend on both Preferences and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 25 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will ecessdily, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

HUBBY EFFECTED QUICK CURE.

Wife Aroused by Contemplation of Her Successor.

"William, dear," feebly called the invalid wife, who was supposed to be nearing the end of her earthly career.

"Yes, darling," answered the sorrowing husband. "What is it?"

"When I am gone," said she, "I feel that for the sake of the motherless little ones you should marry again."

"Yes, William, I really do," replied the invalid. "After a reasonable length of time you should seek the companionship of some good woman."

"Do you know, my dear," said the husband, "that you have lifted a great burden from my mind? Now, there is that charming widow Jones across the way. She has acted rather friendly toward me ever since you were taken ill. Of course, dear, she could never fill your place, but she is young, plump and pretty, and I'm sure she would do her best to lessen my grief."

"William Henry Brown!" exclaimed the female whose days were supposed to be numbered, as she partly raised herself upon the pillow, "if you ever dare install that red-headed, freckle-faced squint-eyed hussy in my shoes, I'll I'll—" And then she fainted.

But the next day Mrs. Brown was able to sit up, and two days later she was downstairs.

HAD HER LIKES AND DISLIKES.

Woman's Tastes Not Satisfied with What Was "Good for Her."

A young society matron who gives one day a week to philanthropic work undertook a class for training mothers under my direction. In reality it was a class in cooking, for the young matron is an enthusiast upon proper combinations of wholesome food. The women came and listened, and then I suggested that the homes should be visited to see what had been accomplished.

One day she sailed upon one of her class in the early morning. The woman was frying cakes in deep fat.

"Oh, dear," said the young matron, "why don't you cook oatmeal for the children, as I showed you? You know the cakes are not good for you."

"No'm," cheerfully agreed the woman, as she flapped the cakes upon a platter. "I know, I know. But I don't like what's good for me. I likes what I like."

And the society matron has started a sewing class.—New York Times.

Misapplying Music.

"I went to a fashionable wedding the other day," remarked a man who has little time for such things, "and I was decidedly impressed by the character of the music that was played while the assembled guests were waiting for the wedding party to arrive. The principal number played by the orchestra was an air from one of the most modern operas. It marks the entrance of the heroine of the piece, who is coming on the scene to take part in a wedding of complaisance with the hero, who is generally regarded as one of the greatest blackguards the world of opera knows. Every character on the stage knows that the Buddhistic wedding ceremony that is to take place is a sham and the marriage turns out to be a tragedy of the shabbiest sort. And yet that music was played in a church that stands for intelligence if any one congregation in this town does."—Exchange.

A Sad Case.

An Atchison man has lain in an unconscious state ever since ten o'clock last night. Everything has been done to arouse him, but all efforts are unavailing. His friends are greatly alarmed, they fear he may never regain consciousness. It seemed that yesterday evening right after dinner the man picked up his hat, put on his overcoat and, although his wife was sitting right in the room, she did not say, "Where are you going?" He walked out of the house. At ten o'clock in the evening the man returned. He walked into the room where his wife sat and took off his hat and overcoat. She smiled at him pleasantly and did not say, "Where have you been?" The man fell unconscious to the floor.—Atchison Globe.

Simple Arithmetic.

A Philadelphian of some scientific attainments was one evening poring over the wine list at his club, when his interest was excited by the prices shown.

"Barker," said he to the waiter, "I observe that the list offers some sherry at 75 cents and some at four dollars. Now, what is the difference between the brands?"

The waiter looked surprised. "Beg pardon, sir," said he, with that frankness permitted an old servant, "but it does seem remarkable that such a highly educated gentleman can't do a simple bit of arithmetic like that!"—Harper's Magazine.

A Weed That Steals Oysters.

A seaweed has invaded the oyster beds of France and carried off 400,000 oysters. It has carried them off bodily as a thief would do.

The minute seeds of this weed float up the English channel in the current of the Gulf stream, they settle on oysters in the Breton beds of Morbihan Quiberon and Belle-Isle, and they grow to the size of a duck's egg.

They are full of water, but as maturity the water evaporates, and air takes its place. The empty-headed seaweed is then a balloon, and like a balloon it lifts its oyster from the bottom and bears it out to sea.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error, "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggistdruggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

Sauce for the Goose

"Herbert," she said, abruptly, "I've made up my mind what I'm going to have you do after we're—after June."

"I happen to be a lawyer, already," he reminded her. "I trust your plans for me after we're married won't conflict with that fact."

"Oh, no, it isn't anything of that sort. It's the kind of man I intend you to be; the kind of a—husband I must have."

Just then he noticed a little button pinned to the front of her gown. The legend it bore was "Votes for Women."

"Where have you been today?" he asked, irrelevantly.

"At the club. We had a splendid program. Why?"

"What do you mean?"

"You won't like it if I tell you."

"I'll have to hear it now you've begun, whether I like it or not."

"Well, it's this, Florence, if you will have it. I'm afraid of the influence of these women's clubs. I always notice a different spirit after you've been there—a spirit of pursuing things independently."

"What things, for instance?"

"Well, me, for instance. Now, don't look that way. You made me tell you."

Herbert! As if my listening to a paper on the Canterbury Tales and then drinking a cup of tea with a lot of bright women could—I'm very sorry I impress you in that way, she broke off, with a sudden drop to freezing point. "It isn't at all necessary, however, for you to remain in my company."

Florence!"

"You're quite welcome to go, or, if you insist on staying, I can go upstairs."

"Nonsense! I'm not saying that I should wish you to give up your club after we're married."

"Indeed! How magnanimous!"

"Florence, you misunderstand—"

"On the contrary, I understand only too well. You want your wife to be a woman with no ideas except those you dictate."

"You know better!"

"I thought I did, but I find I'm mistaken. Of all the unreasonable, childish—it's just like a man, that's all I can say."

There, now, that's exactly what I mean. You see, I'm afraid you get that feeling of superiority to man at the woman's club."

"Oh! I've had that feeling of superiority to man all my life, whenever I saw a person of your sex act as you're acting tonight. When I think what started this whole thing"—her voice broke—"you'd better go!"

Now, Florence, listen to me. Don't be darling, don't! You know I do anything in reason you'd ask me, but a man doesn't like to be told what his wife is going to have him be, as if she meant to control him."

"But if you knew what it was I was starting to say!"

Well, come out of that sofa pillow and tell me."

Voice broken by sobs.

"Florence."

"No! Keep away!" More sobs.

"Won't you tell me?"

"Yes I will, just to let you see," she doubled, tearfully, half uncovering her face, but not letting him have it. "I've been noticing ever since I've noticed that some men start off to work in the morning without looking back at all, and others look up at the window and touch their hats or wave their hands, and I've thought a man would not feel like coming back at his wife unless she'd been nice to him gives him a good breakfast and all that and I just made up my mind that oh, I just can't tell you now."

I made up my mind that I'd be nice enough to you so that you'd be one of the husbands that looked back—but it's all spoiled, now!"

It was a brute" he declared, as soon as he felt that he could spare time to those words. "How could I ever think you'd want to interfere with my personal liberty! It was this ridiculous thing that made all the trouble." And he began to unfasten the huge

With a flash she caught his hand away.

Why, Florence," he protested, frankly. "Surely you're joking. I'm not going to have my little wife to be—"

You're not going to have me to be—"

Well, I mean—but can't you see a different that is?"

Hunters' Home Burned.

A hunter's lodge between Cold and Gold Lakes in Anstruther township, owned by Messrs. William Snowden, T. Rutherford and a number of local gentlemen, was burned down a few days ago. The lodge was a most comfortable and well built shanty and was occupied every year by men from the city who went back to hunt and fish.

HER SHARE IN THE OWNERSHIP.

Something Proud Young Father Seemed in Danger of Forgetting.

He picked up the baby, he hoped, just as if picking babies up were an every-day occurrence. In point of fact, he remembered that an elderly lady had told him in his youth that cats, when lifted, like to be supported with a hand held underneath, and he assumed that this principle would work with babies, and it did. And having greeted Louise, he handed her parcel to Constance, diffusing an air of competency, as though he were used to rear any number of children. At any rate, she was supported. Whether he knew much or little he stood back of her.

It may be that John's success as a father led him to seem vainglorious when he was not. He certainly put on airs about the baby. It was not long after this that he lured two old friends ostensibly to dinner. His invitation did not include a visit to Louise and, of course, it was merely an accident that she should have been awake at the time when they were there. As a matter of fact, she usually awoke at that hour, but the men didn't know this, or perhaps they wouldn't have come. Men have a becoming shyness about babies, and these were bachelors.

John had arrived at that state of arrogance when he actually went over to the crib and asking no one's permission picked Louise up and displayed her to the two men who were as embarrassed as a dog in the presence of a June bug. He laid her down again with an expert hand and ostentatiously changed the subject, to show that he was not among those fathers who pushed their children down over their throats. But his manner said:

"This is my baby; and when you fellows can show me anything as interesting you will be of value to society."

It was after they had gone that Constance came up, and put her hands on John's shoulders, and said:

"After all, you know, it's my baby, too."—Woman's Home Companion.

REASON FOR THIS SLANG TERM.

Medical Men Say One Really Sees Blue When Fainting.

The use of the word "blue" to denote melancholy or terror, as in the phrases to "feel blue," "blue devils," "blue funk," and so on, is not entirely figurative, if we are to credit a recent medical writer.

The class of phenomena that includes fainting, vertigo, nausea, etc., is controlled by certain brain centers that also bring about a sort of cramp of the external muscles of the eye. The resulting compression of the eyes causes objects to look gray or bluish, and ultimately produces apparent darkness.

The use of the word, having a physiological basis, is common to many languages. The French say, for instance, "I see blue." A writer says that the French word obscurcissement (giddiness) should be spelled obscurcissement, and has the same origin.

The Perforated Joke Sheet.

The joke-smith displayed a sheet of paper, perforated, like a sheet of postage stamps, into five-inch squares, and gummed, like stamps, on the back.

"This is my new perforated joke-smith's joke sheet," he said, "patent applied for. Each square has my name and address on it, and on each square I write a joke. Then I send the full sheet to my best-paying editor, and he tears out the jokes he wants and returns the sheet to me, when I send it out again. This is kept up till the last joke is sold.

"It's a good idea. The gum on the back? Oh, that allows the editor to affix each joke to a sheet of copy paper without troubling his own paste pot.

Germs.

"All our diseases are due to microscopic animals—germs," said a doctor. "Every man Jack of us is a living world, inhabited by millions of races of germs, some harmless, some deadly.

"Medicine used to be a crazy, guess-work trade. You gave a drug—it did this or it didn't do that—nobody knew why. But medicine is now as exact as gardening. As the gardener treats his plants, killing off this insect with a spray and that parasite with a powder, and generally keeping the garden healthy, so the doctor does with his patients, spraying them, so to say, and killing the harmful germ parasites that swarm in their blood."

College Foolishness Barred.

"John," said the farmer, "I've given you the best education the college had in the shop."

"Yes, sir."

"Never stood back for expenses?"

"Never."

"You speak six languages?"

"Perfectly."

"So far, so good. Now, Hatsut: Don't swear at the mule in Greek; don't use no Latin terms to him, an' fling no French big way. Use the Georgy dialect that you an' the mule was raised to; it's my opinion that that mule won't stand no college foolishness!"

The Secret of Success.

"Pinch," said the financier, "is the secret of success."

"Well," interrupted the shabby man, "I'll give you $10 if you'll teach me your method of pinching."

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. Revenue Too Big.

The revenue of Ontario is too big and the Provincial treasurer has been unable to spend $1,000,000 of this sum on behalf was received from Crown lands. The great surplus however, is largely due to the changing of the financial year. Hon. Mr. Matheson says that at the end of the calendar year he expects to come out about even.

Greene—Meldrum.

On Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at "Fairview," the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Meldrum, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when their daughter Miss Mary Harriet, (Mollie) became the bride of Mr. Ernest Alexander George Greene, eldest son of the Rev. Canon Greene of St. James church, Orillia. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father and assisted by the bride's pastor, Rev. Robt. Pogue, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, in the handsome drawing room, which was tastefully decorated with banks of palms, ferns, chrysanthemums and pink roses. The wedding marches by Lohengrin and Mendelssohn and the music from Valykrie were played during the ceremony by Miss Margery Brodie of Toronto, and Miss L. Shannon sang very sweetly "Because I is Merry" and "O'er Hill, O'er Dale and Hey."

Just as the [illegible] two o'clock pretty little Margery Boulter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Boulter, Toronto, as flower girl, dressed in a Kate Greenaway costume with a basket of [illegible] led the bridal procession, entered, strewing rose petals, followed by the two bridesmaids, Miss Marion Greene of Orillia, sister of the groom and Miss Marguerite Boulter, Toronto, cousin of the bride. Both looked enchanting, being handsomely gowned alike in pink marquisette with short veils of tulle and carrying large sheafs of pink roses.

Lastly, with her father, came the bride in all the beauty and bridalness of her young girlhood, wearing a graceful gown of white Duchess satin made en traine with handsome Bertha of Duchess and rose point lace, caught with silhouchons of pearls. Over this was arranged a filmy veil caught with a chaplet of orange blossoms.

A reception was held after the ceremony, at which many relatives and friends from Orillia, Hamilton, Toronto, Guelph and Toronto, and Mrs. Meldrum and Mrs. Lewis B. Stewart of Toronto, sister of the [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] very beautiful American [illegible]

COULDN'T GET STRONG.

Digestive and Liver Troubles Cured.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. La Pierre, wife of a well-known resident of Labeniene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow blood rich and red I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well—she told me her health had been made by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. They do good to parts in ways I need not mention in this letter, but I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used at regular intervals by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates a woman like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

WARKWORTH MINISTER.

Will go to Hull, Que., This Week to Accept a Charge.

Rev. John F. MacFarland, B.A., of Warkworth, was granted permission by the Peterborough Presbytery, on Saturday morning to go to Hull, Que., to which place he had received a call. His resignation of his Warkworth charge took effect yesterday and he will be inducted into his new charge on Nov. 6.

The Presbytery met in St. Paul's church and after the above business was concluded an interesting discussion on evangelistic work was indulged in.

Little Torturers

Cruelty to Squirrel Converted Actress

By EFFIE SHANNON
Actress.

THERE is always some incident which makes a vital impression upon one and awakens a latent thought. For example, for years and years I was able to look upon dumb animals as immaterial servants of men. I never realised the suffering of a whipped horse or the sorrow of an abandoned cat, or the shocking brutality of dog fighting. When last I was in New York I was walking in Central park, where my attention was attracted to two beautiful boys in costly ermine coats and escorted by two nurses in quaint bonnets and gray cloaks. It was an interesting exhibit of luxurious infancy. Presently the larger of the boys spied a squirrel mincing amid the dead leaves. He held out a candied chestnut and the animal, after considering the proposition, approached the little boy. When within reaching distance, the squirrel was seized by his bushy tail and shaken, while the two imps roared with laughter. This diversion proved so novel and charming, that the youngsters lured other squirrels to their tempting chestnuts, with more serious results. Finally one baby squirrel was caught tightly while the smaller boy yanked his tail almost free from the body.

Then I interfered with this festival of fun. I was greeted by a volley of protests in French from the nurses, and the little boys resented my picking up what remained of the squirrel. The injured animal I took to a veterinary with instructions to cure the animal, then turn it adrift in the park.

This episode is to my mind important, inasmuch as it shows that the untrained mind is prone to brutality and cruelty whenever there is no chance of a counter attack. It therefore seemed to me that all thinking men and women should heed the plight of dumb animals that are frequently the victims of inhuman persons. The various organizations for the purpose of curtailing this cruelty are growing in power and in wealth. These are needed no less sorely than hospitals and homes for human beings.

Fair Briton Criticises Our Eating

By JENNY BENN

Many Europeans go back home convinced that you have nothing to eat in the United States that is fit for the palate of a cultivated person, and they do not hesitate to express their opinion freely.

Did not Count de Witte pine for the land of cabbage soup, salt herrings and vodka when he was over here, and publicly express a belief that he would starve to death if he remained here? And it takes a truly great man to make a blunder like that!

Now I have found plenty to eat ever here, and, except for a few things, like having a mess of salt mixed up with your butter, I have found the food excellent. But I should like to assist at loading your blessed silver knives on a cargo boat, and help to dump them in the middle of the Atlantic.

At a dinner the other night a lady introduced me to a duck which you call the "redhead"—a duck that plays pirate and steals the celery from your much-praised canvasback, and is by many people considered superior to the latter. And I was supposed to cut my portion with a beautiful shiny silver knife that was as dull as Washington without the president. Cut? Why, the knife wouldn't cut cheese neatly, let alone the fibrous and somewhat stringy duck on my plate. I haggled it first with one side of that silver curio and then with the other, but without making any impression on it, and finally had to worry it with my fork in order to get a few bites to eat.

I do not know how the others managed, but I fancy they must have eaten it in lumps, or swallowed it whole, for cut it they couldn't.

And it is the same everywhere. I look in vain for a good steel knife with a plain ivory handle, a knife that will enable me to cut my meat into bits so that I can masticate it properly. But no one uses them, and I am told that "they went out years ago and are now only used in farm houses."

Your people give me beefsteaks an inch thick, beautifully cooked and sometimes tender, and sometimes tough. But always the eternal silver knife with which to cut them, and which won't cut anything.

And everywhere in your cities your men eat hurriedly, whether snatching a lunch near their business offices or at home or at the restaurant, and you claim that it is the hurry that wears them out and makes them seem old before they have fairly entered their prime.

Well, some of the trouble may be due to hurry, but still more is due to the silver knife that tears meat in chunks and does not cut it. The work that should be done by the knife is left to the stomach, and after a time nature rebels, and the thousand and one ills that are rooted in indigestion swoop down on a man and spoil his health and consequently his temper.

Control of Temper Is a Blessing

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

Being calm and unruffled at calm and unruffling times is all very well. But the woman who retains her equanimity in the midst of upheavals, especially the upheaval of moving or cleaning days, has herself so well in hand that she could govern a state or lead an army to battle with equal honor.

Excitability is an unfortunate trait. It is not a blessing to him who gives or him who takes, and in a woman it has even worse consequences than in a man. A woman is apt to empty the vials of her excitement on helpless individuals—her children, her servants, her friends, whoever is first at hand. When moving day begins to loom like a black cloud in the horizon her unsettled state of mind commences, and when the fatal hour arrives she is a changed woman. There are new wrinkles about her mouth, her complexion is a shade sallower and her voice a note harsher.

This is not an attractive picture, but a truthful one, nevertheless. Excitability is not beautifying. It brings about uncontrollable fits of temper and old age itself leaves no stronger mark on the face. The woman who can get tired without getting angry has achieved a self-control she will never regret. Temper and fatigue too often go hand in hand and one [illegible] the other until each becomes twice as acute.

City Council in Regular Session Last Night

Considerable Important Business Dealt with—Splendid Work Done by Dr. McPherson in Smallpox Cases

Although the aldermen had not a very long program last night they put through a lot of important business and also had considerable fun wrangling over different matters. It was the regular monthly meeting but only seven members and the mayor were present as follows:—Mayor Rush, Aldermen Phelan, Metheral, Gillespie, Buller, Duffus, Morgan and Duncan.

The minutes of the last meeting were taken as read.

AYLMER ST. EXTENSION.

The city clerk read the notice which had been published in The Times re the extension of Aylmer street south to Townsend street.

Ald. Buller said it was a mistake if the council appropriated that property without first endeavoring to settle with Mr. Harry Best through whose premises the road will pass. He did not think that Mr. Best was asking too much for his property as it was valuable. Mr. Best had done much for Peterborough, and had given a lot of property. If the thing goes to court it will be fought out and the city will likely pay a bigger price.

No one else wanted to be heard on the matter.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION.

Mr. Jos. Kelly representing the Peterborough Poultry Association, asked the city for some financial assistance towards their show this year. Last year the council granted $50. He asked that the grant this years be $75 if possible.

Ald. Phelan moved that the matter be referred to the Finance Committe.—This was carried.

A communication was read from a committee of the Board of Health which was appointed to look into Dr. A. W. McPherson's charges for care of the smallpox patients. They gave the doctor a very high recommendation for the splendid work he had done and how much expense he had saved the city. They recommended that he be paid $1,000.

The council thought it best to refer the account to the Finance Committee.

When the cement merger communication was read, Ald. Buller and Ald. Morgan moved that the clerk write the Union of Canadian Municipalities acquesing in their action and the motion carried.

Ald. Morgan succeeded last night in getting his pet scheme, viz., the return to the ward system, successfully put through the council. He has tried hard for a long time to get this bylaw carried, but was held up on a couple of occasions. Last night, however, he got the bylaw passed and it will be submitted to the people at the January elections.

When he introduced it he met a stiff opposition from Ald. Phelan, who wanted a full meeting of the council before it was passed. Ald. Morgan, however, stood to his guns and carried it through.

The bylaw means the reduction of the number of aldermen from 12 to ten, or two aldermen from each ward. If the people carry the bylaw it will go into force at the general elections on January 1st, 1911.

Ald. Morgan moved the first reading of a bylaw to provide for the return to the ward system of electing aldermen.

Ald. Phelan moved that it be given a three months' hoist.

There was no seconder.

Mayor Rush said that Aldermen Morrow and Bradburn were not opposed to the bylaw being put to the people.

Ald. Duffus then seconded the amendment and when it was put only the mover and seconder voted for it.

Ald- Morgan's motion was carried. Then the bylaw was carried and ordered to be advertised.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

Rev. Robt. Atkinson, M.A., of Chesley, at St. Andrew's Church.

The Rev. Robert Atkinson, M.A., of Chesley, arrived last night and began his work in connection with the Special Evangelistic Mission in St. Andrew's church. Mr. Atkinson is an exceedingly fluent and forceful speaker. In a most convincing manner he portrayed the fact of sin, its origin, development and fruitage, and by simile and apt illustration he carried conviction to every jeart. Mr. Atkinson sang with excellent effect, "I stand all amazed at the love Jesus offers me." The choir assisted in the chorus. During the evening exercises Mr. Gordon Wright sang with much sympathy, "I shall know Him by the print of the nails."

The meetings will be held in the church auditorium every night this week and all are very cordially invited to be present.

The Torrey and Alexander song book will be used. The song service will begin tonight at a quarter to eight.

A MAGISTRATE'S EVIDENCE IN FAVOR OF ZAM-BUK

Mr. Perry J.P.

Zam-Buk wins favor wherever tried! The Magistrate whose words are quoted below tried it thoroughly and now tells the result. If you suffer from any skin disease or injury mark well his words!

The Pavilion, Gold Fields, B.C.

After a very fair trial I have proved Zam-Buk eminently suitable here. It cured me of a skin rash of five years standing which no doctor had been able to do any good for. I do certainly encourage any person to keep Zam-Buk in their houses. It truly does more than you claim for it. Yours very truly,
ROGER P. PERRY, Justice of Peace for B.C.

Chronic Sore Quite Healed.

Mrs. M. A. Harris of 69 Chestnut St., St. Thomas, Ont., says:—"My husband had a running sore on his ankle for about two months. Zam-Buk showed satisfactory results from the first application (although other salves had failed), cleaning and healing the open wound. We have also found Zam-Buk unequalled for Cuts, Burns, Sores, etc., and have great confidence in recommending it to others."

ZAM-BUK CURES eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, ulcers, abscess, chronic sores or open wounds, barber's rash, blood-poisoning, cold-sores, cracked hands, cuts, scalds, salt rheum and all skin injuries and diseases. It is also a sure cure for piles. Of all stores and druggists 50c a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price in stamps.

TRAINS WHISTLING.

Residents are Complaining Again About the Nuisance.

Mr. Laplante addressed the council in reference to the whistling of trains in the city he said it was more than the people could put up with and it was extremely hard on children and nervous people. He wanted it stopped at once.

There was quite a discussion on the matter. Some wanted a bylaw passed at once prohibitaing the whistling. Others favored an interview with Mr. Tiffin first and finally these carried their point.

The mayor decided that he would write to Mr. Tiffin and ask for an interview in reference to the unnecessary whistling of engines in the city limits.

SUCCUMBED TO INJURIES.

Burney Wilson of Lindsay Meets With Fatal Accident.

Mr. Burney Wilson, the popular brakeman on the Port Hope mixed, was the victim of a distressing accident about eleven o'clock Saturday near Garden Hill.

In some unaccountable manner he fell from the train with the result that his left leg and arm were frightfully bruised and managled. His face and head also sustained injuries.

AMUSING MISTAKES.

Ministers Sometimes Go Wrong and Create a Laugh.

At the Ministerial Association yesterday morning, in dealing with the method prevailing in some parts of the United States in advertizing topics of sermons the Rev. Dr. Ryckman of Toronto, stated that preachers were guilty of extremes. He instanced one man who desired to preach about the conversion of the Philippian jailer, and announced his subject "The Turnkey's Conversion," by a printer's mistake—which will sometimes occur—the notice appeared, "The Turkey's Conversion."

11 a.m., "Where are the Nine?"
7 p.m., "Swallowing a Camel."

BURNING LEAVES.

Set Fire to a Fence and Barn at Mr. Ritchie's Home.

Burning leaves caused a fire yesterday afternoon just before four o'clock that threatened to have serious results. Youngsters set fire to a pile of leaves close to the fence around Mr. Ritchie's premises at the corner of Rubidge and Hunter street The fire spread until it caught onto the fence, along which it quickly ran until it reached the barn. The side and roof of the barn were burning briskly when the firemen arrived. A line of hose was soon laid and the fire was extinguished before much damage was done, although a good sized hole was burned in the roof.

WERE HEAVILY FINED.

Two Contribute $45 for Violating Game Laws.

Messrs. Christopher Wood, Roland Tivey and Albert Tivey, the three Peterborough men who were caught by Constable Jones of Fenelon Falls near the forks at Burnt River, setting nets and shooting partridges came up for trial at the Falls Friday.

Captain Hunter, game warden of Belleville, was the presiding magistrate. Wood was discharged. Albert Tivey was fined $30.00 and costs for fishing with a net, and Roland Tivey was fined $25.00 and costs for killing partridge.

MR. DENISON GRATEFUL.

(To the Editor of The Times)

Sir,—Through the medium of your paper I wish to tender my grateful heartfelt appreciation of the kindly assistance and sympathetic help I received at the hands of the citizens of Peterborough during the recent fire at the National Hotel. It is impossible to thank all individually, so I am asking the people to accept this method of thanks for all their kindness.

I also desire to pay marked tribute to our city fire brigade who performed their duties in a masterful and efficient manner. Chief Howard never at any time lost the key to the situation and mainly through his skilful direction and generalship prevented the total destruction of the hotel.

Also permit me to convey thanks to Chief Roszel in sb kindly placing his whole staff at my disposal, which contributed greatly to the reduction of my loss.

Yours, etc.,
D. B. DENISON.

Potatoes Cheap.

Potatoes are going begging this year. A wonderful crop has been harvested and the hucksters and peddlars have been filling the people up with them for some time. Now they are down to 50c a bag and no buyers. A merchant refused to buy potatoes because they cannot sell them. Those who bought their winter's supply at 75c a bag were easy marks.

REV. MR. MACBETH.

The evangelistic meeting in St. Paul's church last night was well attended and deep interest was manifested in the address by Rev. Mr. MacBeth who took as his subject "Break up Your Fallow Ground." The address was directed especially to church members. He urged them to the performances of the duties they may have been neglecting and indicated how they might be a help and a blessing during the mission.

Miss Davies rendered a solo in a most effective manner and the singing generally was bright.

Rev. Mr. MacBeth asked those who were interested in the meeting and who wished to help, to meet him in the guild room and the response was very gratifying.

VOTING TIME EXTENDED

Ald. Buller introduced a bylaw at last night's council meeting which provided for the extension of the time for receiving votes at the next January election for municipal offices.

The bylaw permits the polls to be opened from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., instead of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The bylaw was carried and will go into force this year.

Gity Market is Loosing Money---By-law Needs to be Amended

When the time comes for settling up the market receipts for the year there will be a big howl. The receipts will not be as large as some will expect, and as all have a right to expect. For this there are several reasons and the market committee would do well to look into and endeavor to rectify. In the first place there is altogether too much peddling from house to house every day in the week and even during the early hours of market day morning. Farmers and jobbers come to the city with the usual loads early Saturday morning and peddle around town until they sell out or nearly so. Then they go on the market withwhat is left. On the market they take orders for the following week and the same peddling is done again. Hence the city gets no toll fees.

For instance last Saturday a woman appeared on the market about 10.30 with two pounds of butter and three chickens. The market clerk said, "Oh, you are late today." "Indeed I'm not," replied the woman, "I have sold 15 pairs of chickens this morning and 28 pounds of butter before I came here."

Market gardners come into the city with big loads and peddle it around the streets and then go on the market with the leavings and stand there taking orders for next week. One of these men said, "I have sold one of the biggest loads I ever brought in and since I got on the market I have taken orders for two more such loads for next week."

The city loses the toll on all that stuff and maintains the market for the benefit of those cheap guys to meet the people and book orders.

The bylaw allows farmers to sell meat by the quarter, the meat to be their own produce. But jobbing butchers come on the market with a wagon load of meat and sell it, not at the market weight, but their own weight. Local butchers, however, have the meat weighed on the market before they will buy and they save money. The public, however, does not think of that.

PUBLIC SCALES.

Every load of hay is supposed to be weighed on the market scales. Such is not the case. A farmer the other day brought in a load and had it weighed. That load was sold and orders were taken for six other loads. Those were delivered and never saw the market scales. The farmer had the weight of his wagon from the first load and he had the rest of the hay weighed elsewhere. The city lost the toll on six loads.

There are scales in various parts of the city owned by private parties on which hay is weighed and fees collected. The scales in Chemong, Douro, and all other parts of the county are robbing the city market scales.

These are only a few instances noticed in the past few days. The same thing has long been going on, and the city is the loser. The bylaw needs amending and needs it badly.

By-laws that are not Enforced in the City

There are a whole lot of bylaws of the city being violated every day of the week by the residents and there is liable to be something serious happen. First is the bylaw prohibiting the burning of rubbish or any other material on the streets. There are scores of fires on nearly every street in the city. Leaves are being burned and the fires in many cases are right up against the cement walks. This is very injurious to the walks. It ie also dangerous to property as was the case at the Ritenie home yesterday.

Another bylaw that is grossly violated is the one governing traffic on the streets. All rights and vehicles are to keep to the right side of the street and to slow up at crossings and corners. They are liable for damages in case of accidents. In Peterborough not half of the people drive or ride on the right side of the street. The same law applies to the people walking.

Another bylaw was passed prohibiting spitting on the sidewalks. There is no attempt to enforce this bylaw.

Merchants and business men frequently have bon fires in their back yards in the business section and this is against several laws.

Blythe and Mrs. Turner are Now in Kingston

Blythe and Rodda were Shackled Together —Mrs. Turner Heavily Veiled

"Were it not for my mother and children I would rather be hanged right now."

Such are the various ways three criminals on their way to Kingston Penitentiary expressed themselves to the newspaper man as the train sped on its way from Toronto to the Limestone City Saturday.

The first speaker was Mrs. Mabel Turner, who strangled a babe and threw the remains out of a car window, near Niagara University a little over a month ago. Being a woman, the jury had not the heart to condemn her to the gallows, and by reason of her sex, Mr. Justice Magee was likewise lenient, so that while everyone else thought she would spend the rest of her days behind the grim prison walls, he sentenced her to but 15 years in the Penitentiary.

The second speaker was Walter Blythe, who brutally beat to death with a poker his wife Amelia, in their rented cottage at Agincourt on January 4 last. Once he was sentenced to be hanged, twice he was reprieved, then he was found guilty of manslaughter, and sentenced to 18 years in Kingston.

The last speaker was a beardless youth, William Rodda by name. He was caught in the act of burglarising a jewelry establishment on Front street, and as Magistrate Denison was convinced that he had set out on a career of crime he imposed a three-year sentence as a deterrent.

St. John's Congregation Tender a Reception to the Bishop

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Sweeney, Lord Bishop of Toronto, was tendered a hearty reception by St. John's congregation in the handsome and commodious new rectory last night. Advantage was also taken of his lordship's presence to make the occasion the formal opening of Canon's and Mrs. Davidson's new home, generously provided by the congregation.

The function proved a happy and enjoyable event in every way, and one and all expressed their appreciation of the rectory which forms a valuable asset to St. John's property. The congregation was received by Canon Davidson, assisted by the wardens' wives, Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Coulthard, and presented to the bishop. The Halpany orchestra supplemented by Mr. Roy Gowse, furnished very acceptable music during the evening's proceedings. Coleman Bros. catered to the guests, the refreshments being served by a number of young lady members of the congregation.

Expressions of regret were passed at Mrs. J. C. Davidson's absence in Montreal through ill-health and post cards, signed by a large number of the congregation were mailed her in evidence that she was not forgotten on this auspicious occasion.

The rector Rev. Canon Davidson, addressed his guests on behalf of Mrs. Davidson and himself, and graciously thanked the congregation for the splendid home they had provided for them.

THE ADDRESS.

The following address of welcome to Bishop Sweeney was read by Warden Mills:—

To the Right Reverend Dr. Sweeney, Lord Bishop of Toronto:

Right Reverend Sir,—As loyal churchmen and churchwomen, we desire to respectfully welcome you to this old parish of Peterborough, one of the few rectories originally set apart by the government to provide for the due observance of the christian faith.

It is our pleasure also to congratulate your lordship upon your elevation to the high office to which you have been called, feeling that as you are now in the prime of life the Diocese may confidently look forward to many years of progress under your der the policy which you have already inaugurated.

Although late in the history of the parish we have now provided for our rector a residence, which we trust is not only befitting the importance of his position, but also meets your approval; as this valuable property is vested in the same manner as the remainder of the church property it forms a substantial addition to the general assets of the Diocese.

At St. John's rectory, Peterborough, All Saints' Day, 1909.

J. C. DAVIDSON.
On behalf of the congregation.

A. E. COULTHARD,
Rector's Warden.

JOHN MILLS,
People's Warden.

Warden Coulthard here presented his lordship with a handsome picture of St. John's as a memento of his visit to the parish.

Thebishop replied in gracious term of acknowledgement and expressed his high appreciation of the beautiful rectory. which he characterized as a palace, in comparison with his (to use his lordship's own words) shack in Toronto. In fact so comfortable had he been made in the handsome guest chamber that he felt a strong inclination to stay with St. John's as curate. His lordship's remarks throughout were of a warm, happy, sympathetic nature and indicated that he will be found to be the people's bishop in the truest sense of the word.

The lord bishop's first official visit to St. John's has proved to be one of a most pleasant nature. he came as a stranger to most of the parishioners and he leaves behind him on his return to Toronto a host of admirers and loyal supporters.

PROF. VERNON.

At Brock Street Rink Makes a Big Hit in His Auto Act.

Prof. E. F. Vernon in his sensational and world famous auto act, made a big hit at the Brock street Roller Rink last night. There was a large crowd present and the professor was warmly applauded. He has automobile skates and when he goes on the floor all the lights are turned out and he becomes illuminated and does his stunt with light provided by a battery concelaed on his person. Prof. Vernon will appear again tonight and on Wednesday night.

RUNAWAY SUNDAY.

Mr. G. W. Hatton's Buggy Badly Damaged and He Was Hurt.

Mr. G. W. Hatton met with a nasty accident on Sunday while driving with Mrs. Hatton along Concession street. The corporation had been constructing a sidewalk on the street, and the cement mixer, bags of cement, piles of gravel, etc., were left on the road side and were covered over with the big white covering. Mr. Hatton's horse has considerable life in it, and in order to avoid an accident Mrs. Hatton got out while Mr. Hatton drove on. The horse became frightened and made a bolt for liberty and in the struggle managed to upset the buggy and smashed it badly and also the harness while Mr. Hatton was badly shaken up, but fortunately not seriously injured.

A Severe Affliction.

The many friends of Mrs. Harry Neil, Ashburnham, will regret to learn that she has been stricken with blindness. For some time Mrs. Neil has not been feeling well, and on Friday last complete paralysis of the eye nerves took place, following a severe billious attack. Dr. Boucher has been in attendance, and is doing all he can to relieve her suffering. Mr. and Mrs. Neil's many friends will sympathise with them in their affliction, and will join in the hope that a speedy recovery will soon take place.

Chest Inflamation

Suffered from a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing. "NERVILINE" CURED QUICKLY.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

NERVILINE CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

GOOD ADVICE.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, speaking at the laying of the corner stone of the new Technical School at Montreal, gave some splendid advice to those engaged in the great mission of education, when he said:

"If I had my way (speaking of the studies in the colleges of Quebec), I would change nothing — neither Greek, nor Latin, nor the scholastic philosophy. I would add, however, a more profound study of the living languages, English particularly. If Shakespeare, Milton and Macaulay were translated and studied with thoroughness; if the schools did for them what they do for Cicero, Tacitus and Ballust, I should cry aloud my satisfaction.

"Our system of classical education, it seems to me, does not sufficiently follow social changes. It has this merit and upon this the others rest, it produces good social qualities, but it does not enlarge the circle of knowledge we require in every day life. It is necessary to change our methods. We are discovering every day new forces; the elements air, fire and water, were never more submissive to man. That which characterizes our epoch is the knowledge of the fundamental laws of nature and their application to the needs of humanity."

Sir Lomer Gouin outlined a vigorous educational policy on the part of the Provincial Government. Of the Montreal institution he said:

"It is in order to give to the youth of this province an opportunity to educate themselves and put themselves on the same level as the technical men that we have had to draw from foreign lands up to the present that this school has begun. It is to afford them the advantage of a technical education that will enable them factories and the exploitation of our resources that we have started this to undertake the management of our institution."

UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING.

The Commonwealth of Australia has abandoned the old volunteer and militia system, as expensive and useless for all purposes of real defence, and will have every youth in the land trained to bear arms amd perform a soldier's duty. Thus every man will be ready, at short notice, to join the colors as an effective fighting man should an invading force threaten the country or land on its shores. The training will be beneficial to the boys. If Great Britain had such a system, every citizen having had good military training, we would not hear of the periodical scares about possible invasion that disturb the people now. All would realize that invasion would be easily repelled, and nobody would feel nervous on the subject. Canada is throwing away as much on its little army and its picnic militia camps as it would cost to make every youth a soldier, and war would find us thoroughly prepared. Compulsory service in youth, and conscription when an army for defence is needed, is the system that would be fairest to all and most effective for the national safety. Mercenaries and volunteers are good enough for foreign wars, but every man should be compelled to fight to repel invasion and should be ready to do so as a trained soldier

Modern Stage Needs More New Ideas

By HENRY MILLER

SEVERAL years ago one of the New York producing managers received the manuscript of a play from an utterly unknown author. It was crudely written and most of the situations were utterly impossible. Produced in the form in which it came from its creator's pen it could have been only a dismal failure. The manager was not for a moment tempted to produce the play he had received, but he saw possibilities in the author's plot. He sent for him and pointed out a few of the more glaring defects and suggested that the manuscript be turned over to a professional dramatist.

This was done, and the rewritten play, only faintly suggesting the original manuscript, was produced and immediately achieved success. The amateur playwright applied himself to a close study of practical playwriting, and is to-day the author of numerous successful dramas. He realizes now just how hopeless that first play must have appeared in the original form, and appreciates the patience and good judgment of the manager who discerned the dramatic nugget buried in a desert of dreary dialogue.

The search for embryo dramatists, is, in my opinion, the most intelligent and practicable method of unearthing latent talent ever suggested. In response to such an appeal for new ideas there are sure to be valuable returns, since the writing of a scenario is no great task even to the utterly inexperienced. And the great cry of the modern stage is for new ideas. Whoever comes forward with the germ of a good plot will find producing managers ready and eager to provide the means of having that plot developed into a play.

Chicago in particular and the middle west in general are more interested in serious drama than any other section of the United States. Combined with this widespread interest is an alert intelligence which responds in a most gratifying manner to plays that appeal to the intellect and not merely to the senses.

It is the hope of every one seriously interested in the American stage that the vogue of frivolous and indecent entertainments flourishing in many New York theaters will be extremely short lived. And in the inevitable reaction from such unwholesome fare there will be a great demand for clean, virile, intelligent American plays. Is it not reasonable to believe that creators of such drama will be found in the section of America which has shown the keenest appreciation for plays that are really worth while?

Wide Range for Weather Man

By EMERSON HOUGH

A fair day to the public means a day on which no rain falls. The weather bureau calls a fair-weather prediction verified though it rain all day, if the rainfall does not exceed .02 of an inch. A rainy-day prediction is considered verified and 100 per cent. is allowed the forecaster if the day is entirely fair save for a slight mist or a sprinkle of a few drops of rain. Can you beat that?

Furthermore, if "fair" is predicted for any territory and the day is rainy, but the rainfall measures less than .02 of an inch, the forecast of "fair" is considered verified and 100 per cent. is allowed the bureau. Stationary temperature gives the forecaster a range of six degrees above and six degrees below the temperature of the previous day at eight a. m.; in other words, a range of 13 degrees. Just try for yourself. You can't miss by using this method.

Moreover, the "total average" of verifications of forecasts is made up for the entire country, which includes easy guesses and hard guesses. It includes, say, New England and New Mexico. When the writer lived in New Mexico, many years ago, it was a staple amusement to bet with any tenderfoot during midsummer that it would rain before five o'clock in the afternoon. The bet was always made in the morning, when the sky was always cloudless. The tenderfoot invariably lost, because it always rained later in the day. In these parts anybody could tell absolutely what the weather would be without a weather bureau.

In New England, with a weather bureau, no one can tell approximately what the weather will be. It is between these two extremes of easy and hard guesses that you must figure out the value of the weather bureau's performances in guessing. If the bureau gains 35 per cent. over the natural 50 per cent. of the law of chance, what should be its credit, 85 or 35 per cent.?

Modern Girl Must Have Daring

By A. M. ROWE

The girl of the future is the one with ambition; who possesses go, has the spirit to fight and to hold her own, to rise up and battle with the woes and disappointments of life, not to sink under and fret and fume against them and her own sad lot.

The old-fashioned type of girl, whose place was by the fireside, who must be safely guarded and cherished, kept in ignorance of the ways of the world, so that the faintest breath or knowledge of evil is rigidly kept from her, does not prove a success nowadays. There is a great difference between making a girl too manly, too wise in her knowledge of things; and keeping her in continual ignorance, making her a prude, too straight-laced, and frightened of her own shadow.

A girl of the present must be strong-willed, able to judge and act for herself in time of necessity; for, if her eyes are not sufficiently open to know the world with its intrigues, its temptations, how is she to avoid the pitfalls? A girl should not be kept too ignorant of the darker side of life; otherwise how is she to know what to expect, and, not knowing, what but experience will open her eyes?

A girl who has to face the world and make her own living, although not physically the man's equal, needs his self-reliance and daring: she must conquer her own weakness, even in a way sink her individuality as a woman, overcome herself and her inclinations, stifle that portion of herself which entitles a woman to have nerves, and brace herself to the unequal conflict of paving a way for herself, shaping her own destiny.

THE BEST WAY.

In some quarters today it has apparently become the fashion to cry out without restraint against the maintenance of armies and navies by the powers of the world. People use the word Peace in such a way as almost to lead one to believe that they look upon the word itself as a guard against all that is harmful in the relations between the nations. Many of the so called protests against the continuance of armaments are unreasoning and childish and it is refreshing to find a paper of the stamp of the Montreal Witness expressing itself plainly on the subject.

The Witness points out that militarism and soldiership are two all together different things. Militarism it condemns as wasteful and demoralizing. Soldiership is pointed to as necessary in the present day when some measure of force is necessary to ensure the protection of some of the peoples. The world has not yet reached the time for total disarmament.

The maximum of protection with the minimum of militarism is the goal which should be sought. This goal, the Witness holds, can best be reached by the best possible training of the citizenship in the ways and means of national defence and not by the maintenance of a large standing force.

The Bank of England has caused a good deal of excitement in Germany by increasing its discount rate. Over here few people will permit the action of the Bank of England to disturb them in the least as long as the corner grocery refrains from making living any higher than it happens to be at present.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No help, No pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same—or else pass their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not dose the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. Years ago I cast away that mistaken idea in medicine. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its never-ending action or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys each have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize these weak or failing inside nerves. All of these facts tell why I am able to say, "It is free if it fails".

This is why I say "take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to issue my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So drop me a line plainly—and thus save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

Something Better Now

THERE was a time when people were satisfied with any glasses with which they could read, regardless of weathet they were using one eye more than the other, knowing nothing of how the eyes were strained by wrong lens powers, and careless of the frame fitting the face.

All this is changing now; a thorough examination by experienced men, lenses specially ground for each eye, and the neatest, most becoming are now required by discriminating people who realize that nothing is too good for the eyes.

Siamese Snapshots.

White is the Siamese mourning color.

The favorite Siamese delicacy is pickled prawns saturated with very strong red pepper.

In the midsummer heat the Siamese always bathe with the clothes on. Thus afterward they keep cool longer.

Believing that it is unpardonable to take life, the Siamese strain insects out of their drinking water and do not bathe at night lest in the darkness they crush some few parasites in drying themselves.

Train and Track.

The world's railways have a total length of more than seventeen times the circumference of the earth at the equator.

In every mile of railroad there is seven feet four inches not covered by rails. This is the space left between the rails to allow for expansion in hot weather.

The railroads of the United States paid out $56,000,000 last year for crossties, an average of 50 cents for each tie. Electric lines used one sixteenth of the whole.

The first stone of St. Petersburg was laid in 1703.

When it is carried to the northern limits of Manhattan, Riverside drive will be seven miles long. Five years ago the drive extended only a little beyond Grant's tomb.

[illegible] says a journal of that city, is north (possibly third) among the cities of the world, the others having exceeded from 285 to 1,000 [illegible] Chicago as a city, is [illegible] years of age.

Unreasonable.

"Your baby cries a great deal at night. Can't you do anything for it?"

"Your dog barks a good deal. Can't you do anything to stop him?"

"Confound it, such unreasonable people as you haven't any right to live in a flat!"

The Result the Same.

Magnet vs. Dreadnought.

Naval Constructor Hollman, of the German navy, has taken out a patent for a device to destroy battleships of the Dreadnought class. Compared with this newest engine of war the Zeppelin dirigible airship, which aims, among other things, to drop explosives on an enemy's ships and towns, seems harmless. Hollman's device is an enormous dynamo-magnet capable of being charged up to 20,000 volts. With such a magnet, he says, he can attract by a magnetic power any battleship within a radius of seven miles. He believes that a magnet can be made powerful enough to attract a whole fleet of warships and draw them into shallow water, where they will run aground and be at the mercy of heavy artillery ashore. Hollman declares most seriously that the amount of metal in the battleships of to-day will only intensify the force of his magnets. Anchors and the ships' engines will be powerless, he says, against the magnet's attractive force. The magnet, or a battery of them, should be established, according to the ideas of Naval Constructor Hollman, at the mouth of a river or in some favorable submerged position along the coast where the enemy could not readily detect it. The rest is easy. Along comes a hostile fleet to blockade a port or bombard a town or even steam up the river. The moment the ships get within magnet-range the operator in charge of the station turns on the power and the ships are drawn to the shore, to be captured or demolished.

There are dynamo-magnets in several of the German shipyards capable of lifting a dead weight of 50,000 pounds. The Hollman magnet is designed to lift a battleship.

Your Canary.

Don't forget to give your canary the best of water [illegible] every day. See that he has a good fish bone. Clean his cage every day. Keep him out of the hot sun and the glare of night lights and yet let him have sunshine. Talk to him—talk to him with a kind voice. Let him out of the cage occasionally. We give crumbs of bread soaked in milk, lettuce, chickweed, a little piece of egg, sometimes a little fruit, a nut and lots of good things and let him eat or reject, as he pleases. Remember he is a prisoner in confinement, dependent on you every day for health and life, and constantly strive to make him happy. A little ten cent looking glass will aid greatly to his happiness. Take care that neither [illegible] other light reflected shall dazzle him.

The Patient Mule.

[illegible]-hearted woman was very [illegible] about a certain mule belonging to Erastus Pinkley. The mule had a sad and heavy appearance and always looked more dejected than when its proprietor brought it up with a flourish at the front gate, says a writer in The Washington Star.

"Do you ever whoop that mule of your'n?" she inquired one day.

"Now, sakes alive," returned Mr. Erastus. "I reckon I may not! Dat mule has had mo' [illegible] defensive foh de las' six years."

Oiling the Streets.

It appears that Toronto has obtained very satisfactory results from oil sprinkling during the past season. After a two months trial there on the principal streets, the system bids fair to be adopted permanantly. It was shown in Toronto that the oilling was 25 per cent. cheaper than watering would have been, and it was much more effective. The oil used was the same as tried in the Barrie experiment, referred to in these columns a few days ago, being a by-product of the distillation of petroleum. Owing to the small demand it is largely a waste product, hence its cheapness.

THE MOUND BUILDERS

Mystery of the Great Monuments Found In This Country.

RELICS OF A VANISHED RACE.

The Strangely Shaped Structures Are Thought to Be More Than Two Thousand Years Old—The Enigma of Those Who Reared Them.

Scattered through the middle west and in other parts of the United States are more than 10,000 monstrous, odd shaped "mounds." Some are built like forts, others in queer, sharp geometrical figures, others shaped like huge serpents, crocodiles, buffaloes, turtles, eagles, lizards, dragons with eggs in their mouths, etc. Some of these mounds are a mile long, some much smaller. In Newark, O., stands a continuous mound, constructed in a perfect circle, more than 5,000 feet in circumference. The mounds are often covered with trees that are many centuries in age. These strangely shaped structures are thought to be more than 2,000 years old.

Certainly not the North American Indians. The Indians have ever been a lazy, roving race, making their livelihood chiefly by hunting and fishing, seldom remaining long in one neighborhood and using tents or the rudest huts as their dwelling places.

The mysterious people who built the mounds were not a race of rovers. An infinitely long time must have been required for erecting each huge earth shape. Nor were they ignorant savages, for the mounds show deep knowledge of geometry as well as of astronomy and of the principles of building. Carefully laid out military fortifications abound in the mound builders' country, indicating that the aborigines had martial lore and engineering skill and that they understood many modern principles of attack and defense.

There are also sepulchral mounds, some of them sixty feet high. These contain human bones, skulls, etc., as well as copper utensils and bits of pottery. The bones when exposed to air crumble at once to dust. As the bones of Europeans who died twenty centuries ago are often found intact and strong, many authorities believe the mound builders date back at least several centuries before the time of Julius Caesar.

Cleverly made pottery and copper or bronze implements of war and peace are found all through the mounds. Ancient abandoned copper mines on the banks of Lake Superior show that the mound builders well understood the art of mining. The workmanship of the copper bracelets, bronze knives, etc., prove their skill at the forge.

In one of the prehistoric Lake Superior mines has been found a mass of copper weighing eight tons, resting on a high platform, ready for removal to the upper earth. This implies the use of well constructed mine machinery. Pictures that have been found etched upon copper and ivory portray much artistic skill.

From all this it seems that in some remote age the central part of North America was inhabited by a race of warlike, industrious, decidedly civilized beings who had splendid skill at building, at the arts of mining, engineering and higher mathematics and who flourished apparently during numerous centuries. Yet so long ago did the mound builders cease to exist that in all Indian folklore there is no mention, no memory, of them.

None know where the Indians themselves came from. Yet they apparently settled in America long after the mound builders had vanished. The skulls discovered in the mounds are not shaped in the least like skulls of Indians nor even of Europeans. Some archaeologists claim to find strong resemblance between the mound builders' skulls and those of the ancient Egyptians. If there were any connection between the two, who can explain how an Egyptian race chanced to flourish in the middle west?

The fate of the mound builders is as mysterious as the strange people themselves. After reaching so high a civilization and thriving for so long a time it seems strange that they should have been completely destroyed. No satisfactory explanation has ever been offered. Perhaps the mound builders moved south and became merged with the Mexican Aztecs or Peruvians, or some savage race from the north may have swept down and utterly destroyed them, or a wholesale pestilence may have wiped out their nation.

The weird looking earthen monuments (the purpose of most of them a puzzle to the best archaeologists) are the sole remaining proof that this great lost American race ever existed.

How He Managed.

A man in an up state county owns a number of horses and has a great reputation for skill in the treatment of them. One day a farmer who wanted some valuable information approached the horse owner's little boy and said:

"Look here, my little man, when one of your father's horses is ill what does he do?"

"Do you mean slightly ill or seriously ill?" asked the boy cautiously.

"Oh, seriously ill," said the farmer.

"Because," said the child, "if a horse is only slightly ill he gives it medicine, but if it is seriously ill he sells it."

Troubles must come to all men, but those who are always looking for them will have the largest share.

Hard Luck.

Bob Footlite (actor)—Failure? I should think it was! The whole play was ruined. She—Gracious! How was that? Bob Footlite—Why, at the end of the last act a steam pipe burst and hissed me off the stage.

The Telegraph.

The first royal speech transmitted by telegraph was that delivered by the late Queen Victoria when she opened parliament on Nov. 15, 1837. The speed of transmission was fifty-five words a minute.

IRELAND.

George Meredith's plea for home rule is embodied in his last poem, "Ireland," which leads off "Scribner's" for July, accompanied by a hitherto unpublished portrait which was painted in 1905 for J. M. Barrie by Amy Draper Sumner. We quote three of the seven stanzas:

Fire in her ashes, Ireland feels
To her the lost of time appeals
For resurrection, good to great;
Not as a shape to spectral eyes,
But humanly maternal, young
In all that quickens pride, and wise
To speak the best her bards have sung.

May she not call herself her own?
That is her cry, and thence her spite
Of fury, thence her graceless tone
At justice given in bits and bits.
The limbs once raw with gnawing chains
Will fret at silken when God's beams
Of freedom beckon o'er the plains
From mounts that show it more than dreams.

A nation she, and formed to charm,
With heart for heart and hands all round,
No longer England's broken arm,
Would England know where strength is found,
And strength to-day is England's need;
To-morrow it may be for both
Salvation: heed the portents, heed
The warnings, free the mind from sloth.

HUGO AS AN ARTIST.

When Victor Hugo's "Marion Delorme" was read before the troupe of the Porte-Saint Martin theater, the actor Lafferriere, then a young man, protested against the insignificant role assigned him, in which he would have only ten lines to recite. Hugo promptly reduced him to silence by thundering, "Ten lines of Victor Hugo are something not to be refused for the future." Hugo attached a similar exaggerated significance to everything he did and to every object that was in any way associated with him.

For instance, he considered his drawings, which were for the most part commonplace enough, of sufficient importance to make them the subject of a testamentary provision. In his will of Aug. 31, 1881, he wrote, "I give my drawings and everything which shall be drawn by me to the National Library of Paris, which will be one day the Library of the United States of Europe."

Hugo's drawings are said to have been produced more often than not in the following manner: If a blot of ink chanced to fall on his paper while he held his pen aloft in quest of a word or rhyme he enlarged the spot absentmindedly and made additions to it instinctively under the influence of a species of subconscious direction until he had produced a sinister moonlight scene or a "venerable bourg dominating with its bristling ruins the shuddering waters of a river of legend." He elaborated with great care, however, during his irksome exile at Guernsey certain crude impressions he had transferred to his sketch-book during his journeys in the valley of the Rhine. Hugo, moreover, being a great lover of children, he drew figures of the most extraordinary sort for the amusement of the young people of his household. A set of 3. Soiers in Holy

But leave one or two for the Peterborough Poultry Show.

While turkeys usually fetch a good price at Christmas, farmers' wives would make no mistake in saving one or two for the Peterborough Poultry Show, to be held in the Market Hall, Peterborough, on January 4th, 5th and 6th, 1910. On that occasion three prizes of $5, $3, and $1, respectively—$10 in all—will be offered for the best three 1909 turkeys, dressed, exhibited. This is a special cash inducement offered by the directors, who are leaving no stone unturned to assure 1910's Poultry Show excelling, both in exhibits and attendance, all previous attempts in this direction. It is confidently expected that over 1200 birds will be exhibited at the coming show and the directors themselves are now busy building 250 new coops to accommodate the entries.

The Peterborough Poultry Show has gained the confidence of the public in Peterborough city and county, and also throughout a large district outside the county. Heretofore each year's show has surpassed that of the previous year, and 1910 will undoubtedly prove no exception to the rule. Energetic and enterprising members have given to Peterborough an annually recurring Poultry Show worthy the name, and which is productive of good results in encouraging the breeding of high class poultry, and in attracting hundreds of visitors to Peterborough city.

Farmers' wives will unquestionably be unusually interested in the Poultry Show next January, for a $5 prize for the best 1909 turkey, dressed, is worth bidding for, to say nothing of the $3 and $1 prizes. An expert from Guelph Agricultural College will judge these turkeys.

THE BELL'S FINE SERVICE.

Peterborough One of the Company's Best Customers.

From the Telephone Gazette we learn that during September Peterborough had 4270 "Out" and 2464 "In" calls over the company's wires. This is nearly double that of most of the surrounding towns and minor cities of the country, including Kingston, and seventh in the list in Canada. This is certainly gratifying as it shows Peterborough to be well up in business lines with much larger places.

The Bell Company is to be congratulated on the splendid service which it gives to its patrons. Peterborough in particular has reason to feel proud of this service, which has done so much to make our prosperous and rapidly growing city what it is today. Under the careful and popular management of Mr. Doan, the number of telephones has increased in the last year or so from about 865 to 1150. The local service has also been improved from time to time, until it is now well nigh perfect.

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 11th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,188 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be receivable at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent. on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

DEPARTMENT OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS, CANADA.

Trent Canal.
Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to Resolution passed at the Special General Meeting of Shareholders on 7th October, 1908, an issue of $30,000,000 additional Ordinary Capital Stock of the Company, or 300,000 Shares of $100 each, has been ordered by the Board of Directors.

The Stock will be offered to the Shareholders of record at 3 p. m. on MONDAY, the 15th Day of November, 1909, at the price of $125 per share, being at a premium of $25 over and above the par value thereof on the basis of 20 per cent., or one share in five of their respective holdings.

The right to subscribe will expire at 3 p.m. on WEDNESDAY, January 5th, 1910.

Payments will be received at the Bank of Montreal, London, New York or Montreal, as follows:—

20 per cent. or $25 per share, on subscription on or before January 5th, 1910.

20 p. c., or $25 per share, on March 9th, 1910.

20 p. c. or $25 per share, on May 9th 1910.

Interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum will be paid in July, 1910 from the due date of each instalments to June 30th, 1910, on instalments up to and including that of May 9th, 1910, which have been paid on or before due dates.

All shares of the issue on which instalments have been paid in full on the due dates will rank with the existing stock for the full dividend accruing for the half year ending December 31st, 1910.

A circular containing the terms of subscription and payment, and enclosing warrants of subscription, will be mailed to the shareholders on or about the 30th day of November, 1909.

By order of the Board.
W. R. BAKER,
Secretary.

Dated at Montreal, 20th October, 1909.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products, also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1200 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastorial portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard efforts of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and after careful consideration, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preferences and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 26 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will accordly, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to office, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

WILL LIE ABOUT THE WEATHER.

Something About Which Honesty Seems to Cut Little Figure.

The thing most lied about in the world is the weather. The weather can't sue for libel, so it is a safe thing to lie about, although it does strike back now and then.

Most people see no harm in stretching meteorological truth; in fact, they look with mistrust on the person who insists upon handing the man a square deal. If your neighbor says his thermometer registered 20 below, and you tell him that yours only shewed ten below, he despises you for a person without imagination. In the summer, likewise, when your mercury stands at 86 in the shade and he says his stands at 98, you are the one on whom popular doubt will rest.

Honesty is not the best policy when the weather is under discussion, unless you like to appear at a disadvantage.

There is a large and flourishing class of liars who even haughtily pretend to know what the weather is going to do, setting themselves up as intimate friends of the weather, when, as every one knows, their acquaintance is barely a passing one. Once in awhile a liar has an inning, for he will tell the truth in case of blizzard, or it is that with the weather they can't miss. They can't [illegible] for the weather [illegible].

Call on half a dozen of your wife friends and you will find them going to be [illegible] and disagree as widely as [illegible] in a murder trial, without [illegible] harm to their professional reputations.

BROUGHT FORTUNE TO FAMILY.

Gustavus Franklin Swift, the first of this commercial dynasty, was a Cape Cod Yankee who bought a steer now and then and peddled the meat from the back of a certain go-cart which has since become famous.

He moved to Albany and went deeper into meats, discarding one after another partners who had not the foresight and daring which he possessed. He located in Chicago at the beginning of those days of great possibilities in bringing into touch the new west and the older east.

It was he who invented the first refrigerator cars. This was the one revolutionary act which put his sons and a few other sons in very fair control of half of the meat of America.

He saw the market for dressed beef extended only after the hardest of fights. All great revolutions are fought against. All the east, all England, all Europe, fought the idea of dressed beef and then accepted it. I doubt if we could do without it now.—Cosmopolitan.

Grief Is an Illness.

Grief is an illness and must be treated as such. Sorrow, grief and the emotions caused by all great misfortunes should be regarded as akin to acute physical maladies. Recent medical observations show that the physical results of depressing emotions are similar to those caused by bodily accidents, fatigue, chills, partial starvation and loss of blood. Birds moles and dogs, which apparently die in consequence of capture and from conditions that correspond in human beings to broken heart, were examined after death as to the conditions of their internal organs. It was found that the nutrition of the tissues had been interfered with, and the substance proper of various vital organs had undergone degeneration.—From the Osteopath.

Plant Savings Banks.

All bulb plants have savings banks—storehouses that in fat seasons they fill with substance which in the lean days may be drawn upon.

The leaf buds on the bare winter branches of plants are savings banks full of the plant currency called starch. This currency, accumulated in the easy summer, makes life through the hard winter endurable.

Some plants—the beet, carrot and turnip—run particularly fine savings banks called tap roots. These plants have turned economy to parsimony. They are misers. Their banks, or taproots, are bigger and finer than themselves.

Scraping Along on $50,000.

We have heard it laid down by a thoughtful man, and a Scotchman to boot, that the most impossible of all positions is that of a man who has a wife and a large family and but a thousand pounds a year to keep up an appearance on. . . . Why not, for variation's sake, discuss the question as to what a man can manage to cut anything of a figure on? It was laid down by a former member for Sheffild that it was absolutely impossible to make any real show in public life with an income under ten thousand ($50,000) a year.—London Saturday Review.

Woman's Rights.

"Madam, do you [illegible] in woman's rights?" asked the man standing in the car.

"I do," she replied shortly.

"Excuse me," he went on. "I am but an ignorant male seeking light. May I ask you if you construe these rights to include the privilege of spreading your really becoming skirts over three seats?"

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

"SOCIETY" IN THE TENEMENTS.

Rules and Regulations for Conduct That Are Binding.

Fleming company, as interpreted by [illegible] involving an [illegible] one [illegible] Lexington Avenue [illegible] [illegible] those [illegible] [illegible] which may seek a new control the smash slaughter [illegible] more decorous. "He ain't no gentleman" cries Nellie [illegible] be penalized. Mr. McCafferty's [illegible] remain—those charges [illegible] noted on ten or [illegible] paper with an embossed [illegible] in the upper left hand corner, and [illegible] announcement is proper. "Friend Nellie [illegible] regards the verdict as [illegible] gifts down the air shaft [illegible] from the bunches, medal [illegible] ment of holidays, and supper [illegible] and badges inscribed. INSISTED ON SHAVING HIMSELF.

Two barbers were disengaged when a customer came in. Both got [illegible] chairs ready, but the newcomer waved them.

"I need a shave all right," he said to the proprietor, "but I [illegible] shave myself. Can you accommodate me, be—"

"Certainly," said the proprietor, "but I'll charge you the same as if one of my men shaved you."

"That's all right," said the man. "I'm not kicking about the price. All I want is a chance to do my own barbering."

A tonsorial outfit was speedily produced and the self-sufficient individual went to work, and apparently he knew his own business.

"Isn't that a new wrinkle?" asked another man, who had been an interested observer of the proceedings, and who had been through the barber's hands.

"Not at all," returned the proprietor. "Every once in awhile we run up against a fellow who prefers to shave himself, but hasn't the apparatus handy. We keep a lot of razors in stock for the accommodation of just such independent customers."

Stork Day.

At Haslach, in the Kinzig valley, in Germany, February 22 is a holiday and has been observed as one for hundreds of years. Once upon a time the story teller who explains its origin begins, Haslach was overrun with snakes, and no one knew how to drive them out. One day a great flock of storks appeared, and they were the saviors of the place. In recognition of this deliverance from the pest, which occurred on February 2, the day has been kept sacred and is known as "Stork day." An appointed official known as the "Stork Father" parades the streets, followed by as many children as care to join the procession. He wears his "Sunday clothes" and a high hat, decorated with two stuffed storks. Stops are made by this procession at houses along the line and the children receive gifts of sweets and small coins, every householder feeling pleased to show his gratitude to the stork.

Pat Broke the News.

Pat had been delegated by his fellow employes to tell Mrs. Casey the news of her husband's accidental death. On the way to the Casey home, Pat pondered on how to break the news to the widow. Finally he hit on what to him seemed a most humane way of preparing Mrs. Casey for the sad news.

Knowing the violent hatred which Mrs. Casey as well as all loyal Irishmen have for the A. P. A., he said on greeting the woman:

"Ah, Mrs. Casey, it is bad news I have to bring you. Your husband, Mike, has turned an A. P. A."

"Mike turned A. P. A.! The scoundrel, I hope he is dead."

"He is," answered Pat.—Milwaukee Free Press.

Phosphorus of the Sea.

The phosphorescent light that is often seen at sea, sometimes following the ship like a great streak of fire, is caused by a variety of small animals, chiefly crustacea. The globe-like lights often seen at sea in the nighttime are due to the Medusae, or jellyfish. But the most dazzling displays of phosphorescence come from the Pyrosoma, a jelly-like, cylindrical mass, measuring from two to ten inches. These bodies congregate in immense luminous shoals, floating near the surface and sometimes embracing the whole of the visible horizon.

Jane Was Sensitive.

"I see that Steer, the shoe man, is having a sale," said Jane's mother. "Perhaps you could find something there to suit you."

Jane frowned.

"I certainly shall not enter Steer's store," she said with much firmness.

"And why not?"

NO RATS

To be Worn by Ladies.

Kansas City, Oct. 29.—"On and after November first all lady clerks and employes must discontinue the wearing of 'rats' in their hair dress. Please govern yourself accordingly. "A. B. Richard, District Superintendent."

This order, issued from the office of the superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Company here, has become a matter of grave concern to the women clerks and operators in the employ of that company in this city. They declare that not only will the order compel them to appear out of date, but that the modern feminine hats cannot be worn without the universal 'rat.' The general opinion among the women affected is that Mr. Richards will find it difficult to enforce the ruling.

Rheumatism promptly driven from the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Don't waste time with common remedies. A test will surely tell. In tablet or liquid form. Sold by all dealers.

SOMETIMES FALL BACK ON

He stood irresolutely in front of the [illegible] counter for a few moments, then with a determined expression on his face he elbowed his way [illegible] the women shoppers and [illegible] the saleslady.

"You [illegible] are light blue stockings?"

"[illegible] third counter to [illegible]," scowled the girl, as she [illegible] for a box on the upper shelf.

"I don't want them for myself," [illegible] the man, getting red. "You see, my wife is in the country and she [illegible] me to get two pair of light blue stockings for her."

"Oh what size?" asked the girl, with a foolish smile.

"Well, that's what I have been trying to figure out," confessed the man, showing nervous. "Don't they all come in the same size? You see, she [illegible] me the size, but I can't recall it."

"Oh no; they run in half sizes, from 6 to 14," giggled the girl.

"Gosh," said the man; "well, I suppose I will have to do it," and he [illegible] in his [illegible] pocket and slowly drew out a dainty light blue stocking.

"She gave me this in case I forgot," he said, in confusion.

RESTFUL TO EYES AND NERVES.

Green Is One of Nature's Cures for Worry and Fatigue.

If the whole of London were [illegible] green it would have a wonderful effect upon the health and spirits of Londoners," said one of the leading [illegible] to a Mirror writer. "Nerves and health are most closely connected, and among town dwellers the [illegible] is steadily deteriorating. Green is one of nature's cures for worry and fatigue. Watch a man who is worrying or tired out and see how often he will wander to a window from which he can gaze on a tree in leaf. Instinctively his eyes seek the restful green of the foliage. A great deal of the good obtained from a visit to the country is from the incessant environment of the green fields and green leaves.

"A green room, too, is a splendid thing. I know of a case of a popular actress who could never understand why it was that in a certain room in her house she could always rest so much better than in any other one. She mentioned the fact to me one day, and I pointed out to her that the paper and furniture were entirely green."

See Dictionary and Get Light.

The chap who patronizes cheap restaurants picks up numerous incredible wrong notions which he persists in presenting to such acquaintances as will [illegible] at his feet and swallow his ipse dixit. "Now," he will spout, "everybody knows that 'rarebit' is vegetable, while rabbit might be either flesh or fowl. So we have Long Island rabbit—that is hare; and Long Island rarebit—of course a fowl. A restaurant man is lucid if not right." But he doesn't tell where the toast, the ale the cheese, the spice and the baking powder come in. Nor does he tell why this delectable dish is called "Welsh." There are famous Welsh hares, the finest of hunting; but why should cheese and toast, etc., make a Welsh rabbit? Why not a Scotch rabbit? Why not a Texas rabbit? Why not a jack rabbit, the noblest animal of his race? More light, more light! This thing is hazy.

Puzzle for Cupid.

A young man named Jamie had been calling quite often where there were two sisters of nearly the same age. It was a sort of joke to the girls as to which was the attraction, as he invariably asked for both and divided his attention impartially. One evening when he called only one of the girls was at home—by arrangement—but, as usual, he asked her to sing, as they were all fond of music. In a spirit of mischief she sang, "Take Me, Jamie, Dear," which left him rather breathless but smiling. A little later the other sister came in, bright and bewitching, and upon being requested to sing she sat down at the piano willingly and sang, "If Jamie Asks Me to Marry Him What Shall I Say?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Civility of Cornish Folk.

Here let me record how pleasant it is to travel about in the country districts in Cornwall. Few of the people you meet cross your path without passing the time of day. If you ask the way you are invariably answered civilly. You are not told to go straight on and then ask again. No, you are directed with great minuteness of detail as to the proper course you should take. As likely as not, so I have found it, your casually picked up friend will say after an elaborate explanation of the right way that you will never find it alone and set off with you to the point you wish to gain.—London Antiquary.

A "Perpetual" Lamp.

The "perpetual lamp" of Prof. Molisch is a glass flask of gelatine supporting a colony of phosphorescent bacteria. The light is less than that of a candle, but is sufficient for photography, and germinating peas and beans turn to it as a source of energy. Being without heat rays, it ranks as the much-sought cold light.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Clipping Horses.

The horses in the fire department are being clipped this week in preparation for the winter.

Mayoralty Contest.

The prospective candidates for the mayoralty this year are very backward and thus far there is nothing known as to who will be in the field.

Band tonight at Auditorium Roller Rink. 8 Ladies' Tickets $1.00 6 Gents' tickets $1.00.

Licenses Due.

License Inspector Stewart made his semi-annual call upon the nineteen hotels yesterday and collected the second installment of $250 from each.

Board of Education.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening at 7.45 o'clock.

Poultry Association.

The regular meeting of the Poultry Association will be held in their rooms tomorrow night and a full attendance is requested as the show date is drawing near.

Brock St. Roller Rink.

Band tonight.
The greatest professional skater in the world, Vernon, of New York, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Skating as usual and usual prizes. Band in attendance.

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes, and it has never disappointed them.16

Evangelistic Meetings.

The evangelistic meetings in the three Presbyterian churches are being well attended. Splendid addresses are given every night and it is worth while hearing them.

Bowling on the Green.

An unusual spectacle was witnessed on the bowling green yesterday afternoon, November 1st., when a large number of local bowlers had a game of bowls and they played in their shirt sleeves. There will not likely be many more games this year.

It is in time of sudden mishap, or accident that Chamberlain's Liniment can be relied on to take the place of the family doctor, who cannot always be found at the minute. Then it is that Chamberlain's Liniment is never found wanting. In cases of sprains, cuts, wounds and bruises Chamberlain's Liniment takes out the soreness and drives away the pain.

Expensive Hay.

The farmers who had hay on the market last Saturday asked $19 and $20 per ton for it. There is a lot of hay in the country but the farmers will not bring it in hence the high price. There should be a good opening for an enterprising person to import a few carloads.

Blames Nickle Shows.

A lady called at The Times office yesterday in regard to her young son, who is somewhat wayward. She wants to put her boy at a trade, and frankly admitted that he was unwilling to work. She blames the five cent shows for the trouble. He has become so infatuated with them that in order to find money to go, he steals articles from the house, which he somehow converts into money. She believes these forms of amusement are baneful to the young and should be prohibited.

Medical Examination in the Public Schools Is the Latest Move

Committee Appointed to Consider the Matter—Regular Session of the Board of Education Last Night

The Board of Education are taking up the question of medical examination in the schools. It is Mr. D. W. Dumble's idea and it is agreed with by all the members though there was a difference of opinion as to how it should come about. It is a large subject and will be thoroughly gone into by a special committee.

The Board is taking objection to the request of the department of education to pay the special grant of $780 made this year to the teachers. This matter will also be taken up by a committee.

Those present were: L. M. Hayes, K.C., chairman; Messrs. Hill, Acker erman, Crane, Dumble, Dr. Morrison, Dr. Burnham and Fair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

REPORTED FOR DUTY.

Public School Inspector Mowatt wrote a letter to the board to the effect that Miss Rankin of Stratford, reported for duty on Monday, Nov. 1, as kindergarten teacher, and that Miss Hall reported on Tuesday.

SUPERVISION COMMITTEE.

The Supervision Committee reported recommending that a new cloak rack be secured for the girls' cloak room at the Collegiate and that one large map of Ontario be secured. The report was adopted.

TEACHERS' GRANTS.

In reference to the letter from the deputy minister of education re the special grant for Public school teachers, Mr. W. H. Hill said that it was a matter which should go into very carefully and thoroughly as the salaries paid to teachers here were away ahead of all other towns and cities in Ontario except four. He thought if the department insisted upon the board paying the special grant to the teachers the board could reduce the salaries by these amounts. Before dealing with it he thought the inspector should get all the information he could from other boards.

Mr. D. W. Dumble thought that this board had complied with the spirit of the act by increasing the salaries and he did not think that the board should pay out this special grant.

Inspector Mowatt explained the position of the department in the matter of the special grant. He said the explicit request of the department was that the special grant must be divided among the teachers.

The matter was referred to the Committee on Appointments.

INSPECTING PUPILS.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said that at the last meeting of the Board he brought up the matter of examining the pupils in the schools for sanitary purposes, and for the purposes of classifying the pupils. He pointed out some of the advantages and disadvantages of his classifications. He thought that the comfort of the children should be looked after carefully. He thought it well to have the children examined by a physician. It would be a great benefit to all and especially to those whose parents are not in a position to give them the best of medical treatment. He thought the board should have an inspector, a well qualified man, to do this work.

Mr. Dumble then moved a motion that the medical health officer of the city be employed by the board and make a monthly examination of the children and report all deficiencies to the board.

Dr. Morrison said he entirely agreed with the spirit of Mr. Dumble's motion, but he did not agree with his method of arriving at the last part of the motion re selecting the examiner. He did not think, however, that in Peterborough there was very much necessity for medical examination. There were, he knew, several scholars in the schools who were suffering from troubles and these he thought should be placed in a position to be treated. Dr. Morrison thought the matter should be referred to a committee to thresh out.

Mr. Dumble moved that the matter be referred to a committee, composed of Dr. Burnham, Dr. Morrison and Dumble to work out.

The motion of Mr. Dumble was amended by referring the whole matter to the committee without stating what physican or whether any physician.

Prices too High on the Peterboro' Market

It is doubtful if the price of butter and eggs will go much higher in Peterborough than they are at present Last Saturday the farmers asked and got 27c. and 28c. for each. A few days a couple of merchants were asked the cause of this and they all replied that it was because the goods were not produced. The hens are not laying so well at this season of the year and the farmers are not making as much butter. 6

It was reported on the street that speculating buyers were going through the country buying all the butter and eggs to hold for top notch prices. These buyers got caught last year and had to unload in the winter at a big sacrifice. For that reason the local merchants are not inclined to believe the speculator story.

However 27c. for butter and 28c. for eggs in Peterborough is a big price, in fact it is too big. At no season of the year should the price exceed 25c. and at that the farmers are making a big profit. The local merchants are unable to cobtrol the price when the people will go on the market and pay any old price the farmers will ask. It must be remembered that the farmers are somewhat puzzled to know how much to ask. With them it is a question of "How much can I get?" With the buyers it should be "How little can I get it for?"

OBITUARY.

Patrick Flaherty.

After an illness extending over the past year, Patrick Flaherty, a well-known young man of this city, passed away at the residence of his grand mother, Mrs. MaDonough, 286 Rubidge street. The deceased was born in Ireland, and came with his mother to Peterborough seventeen years ago. He was for some time employed on the Canadian Pacific Railway as fireman, and was a member of the I.O.O.F. His mother alone survives.

The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

William Fitzgerald.

The sad news of the death of Mr. William Fitzgerald, a former resident of Peterborough, but who of late has been residing in Black Creek Wisconsin, was received here Monday afternoon. The late Mr. Fitzgerald was 75 years of age, and had been in ill health for some time. Forty years ago he left this place, but returned for a visit in 1907. Surviving him are his wife and family in Black Creek, and four sisters and one brother. The sisters are Mrs. Thos. Desantel, George street; Mrs. David McGrath of Ashburnham; Mrs. P. Hefferman of Indian River; and Miss Ellen Fitzgerald of this city. Mr. Michael Fitzgerald of Ashburnham, is a brother.

And I hereby call upon all voters to take immediate proceedings to have any errors or omissions corrected according to law.

Dated Peterborough, Nov. 1st 1909

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Clerk of City of Peterborough.

Rest Ward Auction Sale.

Yesterday afternoon a land and property sale was in evidence at 92 Hunter street, in the old blacksmith shop there. Mr. Chas. Stapleton, the veteran auctioneer conducted the sale or rather attempted sale, as the bids made did not come up to the reserved price. The first lot offered was the old Clancy homestead on Rogers street. The highest bid on this was $760. Mr. E. A. Peck, who was solicitor in charge of the property would not take that amount so the property was withdrawn. Then the property including the blacksmith shop and the wood and coal office on the corner was put on sale. Only $1500 was offered so this fine lot was withdrawn from sale.

At Queen Alexandria.

The North Ward boys had a bunch of fun on Hallowe'en night by tearing up the steps at the Queen Alexandria School, pulling down the flag and placing a box on top of the pole instead. On the whole, however, the boys did not do much damage about the city.

"A JOY RIDE

On the Water Wagon," is the Subject of Address to Be Given.

On Sunday, November 14th, Clinton N. Howard of Rochester, N. Y., will deliver his famous lecture, "A Joy Ride on a Water Wagon," before a mass meeting in the Grand Opera House. In speaking of Mr. Howard, Mr. John G. Woolly, the great temperance orator said. "There is no greater temperance lecturer on earth today."

BELLEVILLE GIRL A VICTIM.

Frederick Gebhardt Supposed to Have Married Miss Foot.

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 1f—People in this city who have seen the published picture of Frederick Gebhardt, the self-confessed Islip, L.I., wife murderer and bigamist, claim that he is the man who, in a United States city, married Miss Foot of this city, and deserted her after getting her money. He was with her here after they were married.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Angus McDonald will appear before Magistrate Dumble on Friday morning to receive the court's judgment in his case which was heard yesterday. McDonald was charged with assaulting Wm. P. Whitney on Thanksgiving night. Whitney was robbed of between $40 and $42, a gold watch and chain, a double-bladed jack knife and a bunch of keys.

Several witnesses were called and some strong evidence was produced against the prisoner. The case lasted until five o'clock in the afternoon and then the magistrate remanded the prisoner until Friday when he will give judgment.

VIOLENCE AND BLOODSHED.

Shown in Pictures at a Local Theater.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I trust it is generally conceded by all thoughtful people that it is exceedingly harmful for young persons to read such literature as the "Ordinary Dime Novel." Thousands of men and women today can look back perhaps twenty years or more and behold the mental searing effect of even a short course in such reading. The word pictures of subtle crime and its detection were so vividly portrayed that the young reader lived the scenes. They burned deep and the unreal life tainted the real for ever after.

Criminology shows that many of the greatest crimes of the century were indirectly caused by the dime novel. Many a convict has confessed his downfall due to such reading.

Then if this be so, what do you consider the probable outcome of the dime novel illustrated, enacted in moving pictures? During the past week in one of our local picture theaters I beheld crime and bloodshed in all its horrible phases, made ten times more real than words could possibly make it. The dime novel seems but a shadow in comparison.

I know not how often such scenes are enacted. But if they are common here in Peterborough surely the proper authorities will soon realize the necessity for action. We have stringent laws relative to the display of posters, etc., in which scenes of weapons and firearms are prominent.

To youthful minds no greater educative power exists than the motion pictures. Yet the good and the evil therein have equal chances. Surely over such there should be some supervision. Or is the evil to be allowed to prey unmolested upon the innocent mind of the children?

We frequently hear expressions of regret that youthful offenders of the law are sentenced to associate with hardened criminals. Their education is then soon completed. Yet here in our midst we have lessons in darkest crime given our children for a mere nickle. No details are omitted. In fifteen minutes the child's mind is burned deep with a never-to-be erased picture process of murder, of brutal treatment of women and children and a general disregard for law and morality. Then what are we to expect as a result? Can a child look upon such and not in some measure, obeying the great human law, imitate in a measure at least? Undeniably.

What is the remedy for this?

HERBERT B. COLLIER.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Coffee Usually Means Sickness But Postum Always Means Health.

Those who have never tried the experiment of leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place and in this way regaining health and happiness can learn much from the experience of others who have made the trial.

One who knows says: "I drank coffee for breakfast every morning until I had terrible attacks of indigestion producing days of discomfort and nights of sleeplessness. I tried to give up the use of coffee entirely but found it hard to go from hot coffee to a glass of water. Then I tried Postum.

"It was good and the effect was so pleasant that I soon learned to love it and have used it for several years. I improved immediately after I left off coffee and took on Postum and am now entirely cured of my indigestion and other troubles all of which were due to coffee. I am now well and contented and all because I changed from coffee to Postum.

"Postum is much easier to make right every time than coffee for it is so even and always reliable. We never use coffee now in our family. We use Postum and are always well."

"There's a reason" and it is proved by trial.

Look in pkgs. for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A Citizens' Meeting

A citizens' meeting will be held next Tuesday night for the purpose of discussing matters benficial to the city. This meeting will be held in the lecture hall of the Collegiate Institute, and will be under the auspices of the Board of Trade. The object is to get an expression of public opinion that will strengthen the hands of the Board of Trade and City Council in installing a vigorous campaign of advertising Peterborough and securing more industries. The country is growing and many new factories are coming to Canada. It is up to Peterborough to get busy and corral some of these. Every ratepayer in Peterborough is requested to be present and to take part in that meeting.

Charlotte St. Walk not to be Built This Year

There was another squabble over the failure of the Board of Works to construct the sidewalk on the south side of Charlotte street, west from Park street. Ald. Duncan has been particularly anxious to get this work done and had a resolution put through the council ordering it to done this fall. The Board of Works took their gang over to Ashburnham several weeks ago and are not yet finished there although the work has been stopped for the season on account of the lateness of the season and the danger from frost.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Phelan had some warm words on Monday night in the council meeting and again yesterday afternoon at the Board of Works meeting. Ald. Duncan blames the chairman of the committee for everything.

At yesterday's meeting City Engineer T.A.S. Hay was present and he stated that to build any more walks this year would be taking an unwarranted chance as the weather is very unreliable and there is liable to be a heavy frost at any time which would destroy the work.

That ended the discussion for this year. The Charlotte street walk will not be built.

HIGH WATER.

The chairman of the committee informed the committee that on account of the high water in the river the contractors on the Smith street bridge were being held back in their work. The blame seemed to be put on the Peterborough Light & Power Company, who control the flow of the river along that stretch and can raise or lower the water at their dam with stop logs as they see fit.

The committee, however, could do nothing. The city solicitor had written Mr. Larmouth about the matter but he will now lower the water it is a matter between him and the contractors, although the aldermen would like to see Messrs. Conroy get along with the work.

Gaynor Elected Mayor of New York

New York, Nov. 2.—Tammany wins again in the New York mayoralty contest by the election of Judge Gaynor by 75,000 majority. Gaynor was the favorite in the betting and won out easily. Bannard and Hearst brought up the rear. The vote was heavy and great excitement prevailed.

Warm Time at the Council Meeting over Sidewalks and Roads

Ald. Metheral lodged an objection at Monday night's council meeting to the city buying 10 feet of land from Mr. Fitzgerald on Benson street for the purpose of widening the street, as provided for in the Board of Works' report. He put up quite a stiff fight claiming that since the sidewalk was built on the inside of the tree line on the east side the west side did not need to be widened. He was overruled, however.

Later on several of the aldermen got into a warm discussion over the Charlotte street walk that has not been built but which should have been. This discussion livened up the meeting considerably.

Ald. Phelan read the report of the Board of Works Committee.

At this time Ald. Metheral asked for some information in reference to the clause which was as follows:

"That upon J. W. Fitzgerald giving a conveyance to the city of a strip of land 10 feet wide and the length of his property on the west side of Benson street and Benson avenue reaching from Smith street to plan No. 101, he be paid $500 for the property and that the city treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque for that sum to the city solicitor for that purpose."

He said that he understood that the land was going to be bought to widen the road so the walk could go outside the tree line.

Ald. Phelan said that the ratepayers had provided the money for this already.

Ald. Metheral said he thought it very foolish to buy land that was not needed not needed. It is not needed on that street now as the walk has been forced on the inside of the tree line. He moved that the clause be struckout.

Ald. Phelan and the mayor pointed out that the debentures had already been issued and the street was only 56 feet wide and now the city had a chance to widen it to thefullwidth for $500. The city could use all the earth to be taken out of it.

Ald. Metheral could not see it that way,however.

There was no seconder to the motion and so the report was carried.

Orillia will Vote Again on Local Option

Orillia, Nov. 2.—The people of Orillia, are to have an opportunity to give their opinion, on January 3rd, as to the success of local option. Last night a petition was filed with the town clerk, asking the council to submit a bylaw. Over 750 names, or over 50 per cent. of the names on the roll, were secured during the week. The vote last time was 558 for the bylaw to 383 against, 5 votes more for the bylaw than the required three-fifths.

INS AND OUTS.

It is said that Senator Cox is slated for knighthood on Nov. 7th, the King's birthday. We presume if he gets the Order of the Bath, he will also receive a shower of congratulations.

SPLENDID MEETING.

In St. Paul's Church Last Night.—Rev. Mr. MacBeth Spoke.

The evangelistic service in St. Paul's church was very well attended last night and those interested in the movement are very hopeful of great success. Rev. Mr. Pearson of George street Methodist church was on the platform and took part in the service. The singing was splendid and Miss Davies gave a splendid rendition of "Come Ye Disconsolate.

Rev. Mr. MacBeth took his text from Luke 14, "Come for all things are now ready." In opening he said Christ was the most approachable and most hospitable man the world had ever known. Regardless of station or race all were invited to come to Him. This invitation implied absence although it was not always so. But ever since the fall, men have been striving to find their way back to Christ. It was because they could not do this that he came to the world to open up theway. The greatnessof the Gospel offer from the different standpoints was dwelt upon and the address closed with the expression of the hope that no one would remain away when the invitation was given.

Bedfort Did Not Kill Miss Kinrade

Repudiates Confession and Says He Knews Nothing About It—Had Only Read of Case in Canadian Papers

London, Nov. 2.—Bedford, who confessed to murdering Ethel Kinrade at Hamilton, was today remanded for eight days at the Bow street police court.

Bedford, interviewed by the Canadian Press, said he did not remember ever having made any confession to having murdered Miss Kinrade. He had only read an account of the murder in Canadian newspapers.

Bedfort today told his sister that he did not remember his being in her house on the eleventh of October, before he gave himself up at Scotland Yard.

Bedfort's sister told the Canadian Press that she thought her brother had a strange look in his eyes and that he was insane.

Sergeant Cruchett, who has charge of the case, informed the magistrate that he had called today at Lord Strathcona's office and was informed that no papers had yet arrived from Canada.

The Ontario Government has sent a communication to the Scotland Yard authorities in connection with the Kinrade case, but declines to state the purport. It is known the Provincial detectives discredited Bedfort's story.

Football is a Game Suited for Small Boy

Boston, Mass., Nov. 2.—"Football is a game for little boys, not a pastime for powerful men. I think my views on the question of abolishing football at Harvard are very plainly stated in my annual reports while president of the university."

This was the reply of Dr. Chas. W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University today, when asked what effect if any, he felt that the death of Cadet Byrne would have on the sport of the eastern colleges, and more especially at Harvard

"Where boys are old enough to go to college they are too big and too strong to play football. There are a number of other athletic sports more suitable."

Dr. Eliot allowed it to be understood that he did not care to put himself in the position of criticising any possible action of the college authorities by prophesying in regard to the future status of the game at Harvard.

JASPER PARK

The New National Playground Set Aside by the Federal Government

The scenic beauties of a vast mountainous region stretching from North of the Yellowhead Pass to the watershed of the Saskatchewan, and from the foothills of the Rockies to their summit are to be preserved in perpetuity for the pleasure and delight of the people of Canada by the Federal Government.

This great national playground and pleasure and health resort is situated on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and will be known as Jasper Park, comprising nearly 5,000 square miles. From the data that has been received at the offices of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway it is learned that the scenic grandeur of the mountains in the vicinity of the Yellowhead Pass are sublimely beautiful surpassing anything on the American continent. The Engineers report that it is impossible to picture or portray the grandeur and stupendous magnificence of the natural wonders there. All is on a greater and a more beautiful scale than any other portion of the Rockies. Large rivers and beautiful lakelets are everywhere in evidence to refresh and charm the eye of the traveller from the time the Athabasca is encountered in the Pass. Historic spots such as the ruins of Henry House and Jasper House will be carefully safe guarded as soon as arrangements can be worked out which will include elaborate preparations for the developing of the Park where nature has been so lavish.

Within a compartively short distance from the Grand Trunk Pacific in this locality are found the great sulphur springs which will be utilized and developed according to the plans of the engineers. There are three sets of springs, one of which has a good flow of water with a temperature of 116, and those with stronger flow have a temperature of over 125.

"Greatest on Earth."

Clinton N. Howard, the now famous temperance orator, has wired his acceptance of the invitation to give two addresses in Peterborough on Sunday, November 14th, in the Grand Opera House. Concerning Clinton N. Howard, John G. Woolley the great temperance worker said. "He is the greatest temperance orator on earth today."

BACK-WEARY MEN.

The Helping Hand of Dr. Hamilton's Pills Will Care in a Few Weeks.

"Foundry work compels men to work in the winter in very cold shops," writes Tunis T. Bolter, a well-known mechanic in Hamilton. "I contracted a very severe cold a few months ago which settled in my back and kidneys. I suffered constant pain, and in bending over my work and in heavy lifting, the pain at times was excruciating. My digestion got all out of order, doubtless because the kidneys didn't work right My wife had used Dr. Hamilton's Pills as a family medicine and I took her advice and started them also. To my great delight a few doses helped me so much it was proof I was using a true remedy. Natural action of the kidneys was brought about, burning and aching ceased, and the back-lameness gradually disappeared. I no longer fear my work. I feel strong and robust, and with such a remedy as Dr. Hamilton's Pills at hand I will probably never again be sick. I advise every working man to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

No other medicine will regulate the system and maintain health like Dr. Hamilton's Pills—beware of the dealer who tries to induce you to take something else on which he makes more profit. Sold in yellow boxes 25c. Prepared by The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

VISITING DIVINES.

Will Join With Salvation Army in Open Air Service Saturday Night.

Staff-Captain Walton of the Salvation Army has very cordially approved of a union open air meeting on Saturday night next at half-past seven at the usual post of the Army corner Simcoe and George streets. The Revs. Messrs. MacBeth and Atkinson will give brief and bright gospel addresses. Mr. Atkinson who is a singer, will assist in the song service.

"NOW IS THE JUDGMENT."

A Scholarly and Masterly Plea for Present Choice.

The Rev. Robt. Atkinson, M.A., gave a most interesting and scholarly address last night in St. Andrew's church. Increased interest was quite manifested in the meeting and a congregation left the sacred edifice determined to influence many others to take a personal interest in the services.

COAL AND WOOD.

The coal and wood men are at the present time being rushed to death in an effort to keep up to the demands for fuel. This cool spell has caused everyone to feel the need of a fire and many are now wishing they had got their supply in last summer when the merchants had lots of time. The supply of coal, however, has been good up to the present and even though a strike in the mines was to occur, Peterborough people would not be cold as there is enough good hard wood in the city to last for a year.

PROF. VERNON.

At Brock Street Rink Makes a Big Hit in His Auto Act.

Prof. E. F. Vernon in his sensational and world famous auto act, made a big hit at the Brock street Roller Rink last night. There was a large crowd present and the professor was warmly applauded. He has automobile skates and when he goes on the floor all the lights are turned out and he becomes illuminated and does his stunt with light provided by a battery concealed on his person. Prof. Vernon will appear again tonight and on Wednesday night.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and a little cooler.

Mr. Alfred B. Owen, superintendent of Dr. Barnardo's Home was registered at the Oriental yesterday.

Publish My Letter the World over

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere, straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in The Montreal W i t n e s s about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

"Please publish my letter the world over. I want all to hear of Nerviline."

Don't be cajoled into receiving anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." Large bottles 25c.; five for $1 00. Sold everywhere or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont. 23

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1909

THE DIFFERENCE.

King Edward the Seventh can drive or walk about his cities unattended. He can go down into the midst of a Derby crowd and lead in his winning horse while workmen shake his hand and shout themselves hoarse around him. The president of the American republic goes about guarded by police and detectives to preserve him from possible assassins Which country is the more genuine democracy ?

Great Britain is about to lay down the keel of a new warship that is to be bigger, swifter and more heavily armed than any ship afloat. It is to have 70,000 horsepower engines, and to be capable of steaming at thirty knots an hour—more than thirty-four and a half miles.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very, very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the corative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see ! Sold by all dealers.

CANADIAN EATABLES.

Is One of the Most Promising Industries in Canada Today.

Canadian Eatables, Ltd. offer at par 50,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative value to the public. This offer is good only for a short time and judging from the way inquiries are being made regarding the stock the whole issue will be taken up before that time. The object of Canadian Eatables is to place on the market all kinds of prepared foods including beef. The company has 7000 acres of property on the Manitoulin Island which is well wooded and admirably suited for the breeding of export cattle which will be an important branch of the industry. Everyone knows of the fertility of the Manitoulin Island land and it is easy to see how cattle, pasturing there and being fed on the products of that land, thrive and make big profits for the company. The 7000 acres are beautifully situated and have a magnificent water front which is such a valuable asset to a farm.

The manufactured products of the company will consist of canned meats and fruits, cheese, confectionery, biscuits and kindred products. Look up their big advertisement on another page of this issue for full particulars and give the matter your serious consideration.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Tablets are wonderful wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. And Preventics are so safe and harmless. No Quinine, nothing harsh nor sickening. Fine for feverish restless children. Box of 48 at 25c. Sold by all dealers.

THE MAID OF HONOR.

What the Personal Attaches of Royalty Have to Do.

Probably the majority of the readers of the general public who study the social and [illegible] Hon. [illegible] was in attendance [illegible] honor," have only [illegible] duties of the [illegible] and many [illegible] be said to fully earn the $1,250 annual [illegible] which their services are rewarded.

Queen Alexandra, being a Queen Consort, has but three maids of honor, whereas Queen Victoria had eight, who were in attendance at court in couples for a month twice a year.

Applicants for these coveted positions at court are selected in accordance with the personal wishes of Her Majesty, and, needless to say, must possess excellent qualifications for the post.

Good birth and breeding are, of course, essential, and daughters of well-known peers are frequently glad to secure so comfortable a post at court. The title of "Honorable," however, which is always prefixed to the names of Her Majesty's maids of honor is quite irrespective of birth, being purely an honorary title, which is retained even after the office has been relinquished.

But, though good birth is a sine qua non, it is by no means the only qualification which the would-be maid of honor must possess. No one, however exalted her station, would be selected who did not possess certain accomplishments considerably above the average. Thus, a knowledge of French and German is always required; while a thorough acquaintance with public affairs is also desirable for a maid of honor, as she is almost constant attendance on her royal mistress has ingratiating to [illegible] with many distinguished [illegible] her conversational powers [illegible] acceptably to be considerable [illegible] talent for music and an ability to read aloud with clearness and expression are also qualities which are taken into account in filling up vacancies in the royal household. Most essential of all, perhaps, is it that a maid of honor should be guiltless of those essentially feminine vice of tittle-tattle, and any tendency to disclose court secrets would ensure severe rebuke and probable dismissal.

The everyday duties of a maid of honor are of such variety and multiplicity that any detailed enumeration of them would be impossible, but they may be described in general terms as those which in less exalted circles fall to the lot of "companions." Thus a maid of honor is expected to take an important part in helping to entertain the guests of her royal mistress, and at dinner she usually occupies a seat next to the gentleman who has the honor of sitting on the immediate right of the Queen. She has also to see that Her Majesty is provided with a bouquet, which is always placed at the right of her plate at dinner. Another duty which falls to her lot is that of accompanying the Queen when she walks or drives out and to assist her with some of her correspondence, although the bulk of this is, of course, turned over to other officials of the royal household.

The maids of honor are also expected, if called upon, to assist in amusing their Majesties' guests after dinner either by displaying their musical accomplishments or by taking a hand at cards.

He Followed the Advice.

Mr. Stephens Phillips, the dramatist and poet, whose financial misfortunes are so widely regretted, began life as a member of Mr. F. R. Benson's repertoire company. An amusing story is told of his debut. Mr. Benson had told him that the great thing for an actor is to act. "It does not matter," he continued, "so much what the words are which the actor speaks as the impression which he conveys to the audience by those words." Then he gave Mr. Phillips the part of Balthazar in "Romeo and Juliet." On the first night Balthazar managed the first line of his part, and then forgot the rest. Romeo, in the person of Mr Benson, had to go to his assistance, and speak the rest of the part for him, while Balthazar exhibited an agony of speechless grief. "What do you mean," Mr. Benson afterwards demanded, "by going on the stage without knowing your part?" "I was only doing what you told me. You said the great thing on the stage was not so much the words you speak as to act. Well, I was acting."

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita." She only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irrepressible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A chance remark, too, led to the title of "The Painting Finger," one of "Rita's" most dramatic stories, which has been added to the Newnes' Sixpenny Famous Novels. It is a book of interest to both sexes.

Australian Cities.

In Australia, as in England, people flock to the towns. F. A. W. Gisborne of Tasmania, in an article in The Empire Review, mentions that Melbourne, with its 538,000 inhabitants, contains no less than 43.11 per cent. of the population of Victoria; Adelaide 45.44 of that of South Australia. The six capital cities contain 1,5 0,681 people, or 39.21 of the whole population of the Commonwealth. If we include the other towns, numbering almost 20 each of which possesses more than 3,000 inhabitants, we find that 1 of the 4 1-4 million people in Australia nearly 2 1-2 million consist of townsdwellers.

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars?" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting or personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm, I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No motion was ever undertaken in the matter.

"These are but a few of many instances."

BEAUTY AND HEALTH.

Salt as a gargle will cure sore throat.

Tight clothes and indigestion cause red noses.

A little salt under the tongue will stop nose bleeding.

High heeled boots are known to cause spinal complaints.

Sleep with the window well open and you will awake brisk.

Salt on fingers when cleaning fowls, meat or fish will prevent slipping.

A little vinegar added to butter and sugar is an excellent remedy for hoarseness.

Too much food of any kind is never good for the complexion. Fruit is good, but it should be eaten in moderation.

Every night the housewife should rub cold cream into the base of her nails. To avoid the injurious effects of sweeping and dusting she should always wear gloves.

Wash the face in tepid water, rub the skin thoroughly with a Turkish towel and apply a solution of three ounces of cologne and half an ounce of liquor of potash. Follow this with a tepid soap bath.

The three "R's" of the worker should be regularity, rest and recreation. Spasmodic habits, never letting up and not knowing how and when to play have killed more business women than all their hard work.

Superintends a Railroad.

Mrs. Asher Richardson of Ashertown, Tex., holds the post of general superintendent of the Ashertown and Gulf railroad. This is a new line, about sixty miles long, that Mr. Richardson has built in connection with the development of his large land holdings. The new superintendent gives her personal attention to the construction of the road and has a large force of men under her.

Young Folks.

THE JONESES' VACATION.

A game that children of any age will enjoy and which takes little preparation is the Jones' vacation. One of the girls is selected as Mrs. Jones and one of the boys as Mr. Jones. You have ready a suit case, and at a given signal Mr. and Mrs. Jones must unlock it and put on the things they find inside. It is a good idea to have a hat, a long coat, a veil, scarf, gloves and pocketbook for Mrs. Jones and a coat, hat, collar (a large one), necktie and gloves for Mr. Jones. They must dress in these as quickly as possible, for some one is timing them, and then they must lock the suit case and rush off with it to the train. That must be the farthest point you can select, usually the front door. After they have hit the front door a good hard thump they must rush back again, take off the things and pack them again. Now it is the turn of another couple to be Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and when they all have tried the couple who made the trip in the shortest time are judged the winners.

It is well to use coats and hats that you do not need to treat carefully, for naturally they are apt to get rumpled in the excitement of the game. Don't forget the collar, in which you should put a large stud, for it always is interesting to see any one in a hurry struggle with a collar button.

The Hat Trick.

Practical joking, as a rule, is objectionable and not to be encouraged, but in the following no evil results can possibly happen, and the "victim" often enjoys the joke as much as those who planned it.

Take an old brush and saw off six inches of its handle. Into the shorter piece insert a needle headforemost and, placing your friend's hat centrally between the two pieces, press the needle well home. Now apparently the handle passes through the crown of the hat, the needle keeping all securely in position. Place the hat in a corner or elsewhere and wait results.

A Question of Age.

The great Napoleon, as you know, began his wonderful career when he was little more than a youth. When he was offered the command of the troops in Paris during the troubles that beset the directory some one objected to him on account of his youth. His answer to that objection is famous. "One grows old quickly on the field of battle." A ready witted lawyer made good use of that age question once after Napoleon became emperor. The lawyer had been recommended for appointment as the first judge of appeals, and some one presented him to the emperor. Napoleon seemed surprised at his youthful appearance and said: "You look quite young for such an office, monsieur. May I ask how old you are?" "The same age as that of your majesty when you won the battle of Marengo," answered the lawyer, and he got the appointment.—Chicago News.

The Game of Twilight.

To play the game called twilight each child takes the name of a flower, and seats are provided for all but one, who stands in the center and slowly spins a wooden plate, calling the name of a flower at the same time. The girl whose flower name is called leaps up to catch the plate before it falls, and the vacant chair is taken by the spinner. If the plate is not caught before it falls a forfeit is required from the one who fails to catch, unless it is plainly the fault of the spinner in not giving it a sufficient impetus, in which case she must try it over again.

If, instead of a flower, "twilight" is called, all change places and the one who fails to secure a seat becomes spinner. If "moonlight" is called all must sit still, and any one who jumps up is liable to forfeit. If "double twilight" is called a double change of seats is made.

Br'er Rabbit's Tail.

Have you ever noticed anything unusual about bunny's tail? Next time your mother is going to have rabbit for dinner if you will look you will discover on the end of bunny's very abbreviated brown tail a small tuft of white fur.

This white fur grows there, they say, so that when Mamma and Papa Rabbit are being pursued by hunters and are forced to run all the little bunnies can follow their elders by watching the little white spots. Most wild rabbits are a peculiar brown color, very near the color of the ground, and it is difficult to see them as they are being chased. And so that is the reason that small bunny, if he can't keep close to mother's side, keeps his eye on mother's tail.

Must Lie Still.

Every soldier knows that a horse will not step on a man intentionally. It is a standing order in the British cavalry that if a trooper should be dismounted he must lie still. If he does this the whole squadron is likely to pass over him without doing him injury.

For the Babies.

Although this advice is more directly for babies during the first year of life, the sense of it applies quite as well to other children.

Don't give them rich foods—meats, gravies, pastries, cake, etc.—nor a great variety. The simpler and plainer the better—plenty of milk, whole wheat bread, oatmeal, baked potatoes, baked apples and fresh fruits of all kinds, except bananas, in season, but be sure the fruit is ripe and fresh.

Keep them out in the open air as much as possible the whole year around and send them into the country whenever you can do so, but only to places where the water is pure.

Keep them cool.

Don't overdress them. The lighter and simpler the clothing the better.

Tribesmen Active.

The Indian Northwest frontier is presently in an unsettled state, owing to the activity of the Khostwal tribesmen. The border police have been strengthened as the Khostwal men recently made an attack on Batochki in the Kurram, and lost several men killed and wounded in the fray. Owing to their reverse they have apparently collected in some numbers, and are bent on revenge. The disturbed conditions in the neighborhood of Bannu still continue. As bands of the Khostwals hang about, the Tochi road to Miranshah has to be picketed, whenever officers are traveling to or from Bannu, and escorts have to be provided for officers of the militia journeying from post to post. A sense of insecurity is felt also in British territory since the mail tonga for Kohat was attacked fifteen miles from Bannu. On that occasion the Naib Tahsildar of Miranshah was carried off, but released by the raiders owing to the hot pursuit of the border military police. The tonga was carrying English mails, but fortunately none of the bags were taken. Only one bag of Indian letters was stolen, and this was recovered.

Getting Rich In Australia.

What thrift and energy may do, even for the farm laborer in Australia, is well illustrated by a case which recently came before the Wagga Land Board. One of the applicants for a selection was a lad between 18 and 19 years of age. It was shown in evidence that while working as a farm laborer the applicant had saved sufficient money to buy farm horses, costing in the aggregate $350, and that he still had $300 cash in hand. During harvest time he had received $9 per week and his keep for driving five horses in a stripper; while ploughing he received $6.25, and for the rest of the year $5 per week and keep. A member of the board remarked that if the Premier would have a report of this case printed and circulated in England, there would be no difficulty in securing desirable young men of the farm-laboring class as immigrants; the trouble would then be to keep them away. One resident of the district intimates that he could place at once ten young men of this type at $6.25 per week.

Her First Part.

Miss Wynne-Matthison, who is taking a leading part in the new Adelphi piece, "The Great Divide," found her first efforts to gain a footing on the ladder of theatrical fame in London far from encouraging. It is true that she recited and acted as an amateur in Shakespearian and other roles from the age of ten, but when she came to seek for professional engagements she found she could get nothing but a one-word part in a musical comedy; that was thirteen years ago. Since then Miss Matthison, who in private life is Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy, has achieved much, and holds the distinction of being Sir Henry Irving's last leading lady. She is probably the last woman to whom he ever spoke, for she was playing Fair Rosamond to his Becket on the night of his tragic death

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—18 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Cheer Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 300,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 200,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $600. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 200,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

Famous French Dressmakers Who Think Good Sewing Beneath Them.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It used to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that this defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

Wise women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her ambition is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The sirup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse than futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

Read the pain formula on a box of Pink Pain Tablets. Then ask your Doctor if there is a better one. Pain means congestion—blood pressure somewhere. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain anywhere. Try one, and see! 20 for 25c. Sold by all dealers.

A contemporary states that a baby near Lindsay has learned to talk fluently at the age of 9 months. No name is mentioned, but the sporting blood of this g. f. t. would tempt us to bet about $3,000,000 that it is a girl.

THE WAY OF IT.

A man and woman ride
Within a street car cooped,
But if she be not fair,
With age or toiling stooped,
We notice in the car
That thus they will be grouped:

Him. Her.

A married pair go out,
And in an auto race
He has no eye for aught
Save tearing holes through space,
And therefore we observe
'Tis thus each takes a place:
Him.
Her.

A youth and maiden ride
Upon a winter day.
Their sleigh skims lightly on,
And all with frost is gray.
And we observe they sit
In just about this way:
Him. Her.

—New York Times

An Old Story.

"Chesty says that his boy is wonderfully smart."

"Yes, but Chesty ought to know better than to build any experience on that. I can remember when Chesty's father said the same thing about him."

Such a Mean Trick.

"Come home with me to dinner tonight, Gormley."

"Delighted."

"I want you to hear my youngest daughter play the piano."

"By Jove, I'm awfully sorry, old chap, but I have forgotten a most important engagement. Some other night, dear boy."

"Sorry about the engagement, Gormley. The fact is, I have neither a youngest daughter nor a piano."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Larry Was Prepared.

"Well, Larry," said the genial manufacturer, "I hear that you are much interested in aerial sports these days."

"Yes, sor," responded the coachman with the big volume under his arm; "that is why I bought this book."

"Ah! You want to learn how to go up in an airship?"

"No; I want to learn how to come down. That is why I bought 'The Descent of Man,' sor."—Detroit Free Press.

Beating Mrs. Lot.

"It was not so very wonderful that when Lot's wife looked back she turned into a pillar of salt."

"Not a very wonderful thing to have happened in the age of miracles, perhaps, but nothing so wonderful happens in these prosaic days."

"Oh, I don't know. We were going out Main street last evening and when my chauffeur looked back he turned into a telegraph pole."—Houston Post.

A Crazy Clock.

Visiting an old mate, who had the misfortune to be confined in a Yorkshire asylum, a collier noticed that the large clock in the reception hall was ten minutes slow.

"That clock is not right," he exclaimed.

"No, lad!" was the lunatic's reply. "That's why it's here."—London Daily News.

The Village Romancer.

"Has that feller Pinkley returned home yet?"

"Nope. He's been gone two years now, and nobody knows a blessed thing about him."

"Well, derned if I shouldn't think you'd be afraid he'd come home some day an' claim he found the south pole."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The Lady (to hero who had risked his life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward)—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

No Worry.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

"Why, I thought you had no labor troubles there at all?"

"No more we have."

"But how, then, can all this striking be going on?"

"The clocks do it."—Baltimore American.

Lack of Judgment.

"Biggins is a most kind and considerate man."

"Yes, but he has an unfortunate way of showing it. He is the sort of person who will ring your doorbell at 6 a. m. to ask you whether the crowing of his rooster disturbs you."—Washington Star.

A Difference.

"Is she jolly?"

"No, but she does."—Lippincott's Magazine.

For Rough Fingers.

The bane of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realize that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

TO DISPOSE OF POSTCARDS.

NOVEL WAY TO USE PICTURE POSTCARDS.

An ordinary soap box is used for the receptacle, and on the bottom corners small unfilled spools of cotton are glued in place for supports. The postcards are then pasted on the box, the finished product being edged with galmpe, put on with fancy tacks.

What "Grass Widow" Means.

Your note on the Australian grasshopper suggests his relationship to the grass widow, writes a correspondent to the London Chronicle, who goes on to demand the derivation of this last expression. Some would merely have it as a slang expression, but its appearance in the marriage register of Halstead, Essex, as early as 1654 suggests a less vulgar origin. It is said to be a corruption of grace widow and dates from the days when divorces were granted only by the authority of the church. The woman who was so empowered to separate from her husband was commonly called a grace widow, and from this the expression gradually gained its present meaning and spelling.

The Men Chaperon.

London mothers are said to be trying the experiment of the man chaperon on the occasions upon which they are not able to take charge of their daughters. There are always a number of old bachelors or widowers ready to dance attendance upon young girls, and they would be much more satisfactory to the girl as a general thing than the elderly woman chaperon.

A Woman's Queer Will.

Dame Margaret Morell Mackenzie, widow of the English throat specialist, has forbidden her children by will to be dismal because she is dead. "When I die," she says in her will, which was recently proved, "I hope my children will wear as little black for mourning as possible. White or mauve I like, but not black. And I hope they will not shut themselves up but go out among their friends and to places of amusement. I am not afraid of them forgetting me, and I want them to be happy."

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 14th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,188 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be receivable at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent, on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has completed as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products, also brokers of canned goods for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulas for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1000 acres of land, well treeded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economics and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for the products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who has built up a business by hard efforts of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other careful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the former an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 50 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 25 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first to paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

POSTMAN'S PUZZLES.

Some folks appear to have a penchant for giving the postal officials unnecessary trouble, and among the worst in this category are those who delight in so addressing their letters that the sorters—who on all occasions have to work at high pressure—have to waste valuable time in trying to decipher the meaning of a none too clever verse, perhaps. It specially inconveniences the sorters and postmen that, with even the most attenuated clue to the addressee, the missive is almost sure of delivery.

From time to time the writer has noted these "curious" addresses, and gives here some of the most interesting examples from his collection.

This letter please take to the land of white ducks,
The beechy and beautiful county of Bucks;
And there, if your search on the map is most thorough,
You'll find a small township called Princes Risborough.
At the postoffice there will you then leave this letter.
My friends there are (W)right, so they couldn't be better.

Similar are the following examples. In February, 1880, "Uncle Toby," the conductor of the Children Corner of The Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, received a letter addressed

To Uncle Toby this missive is sent,
And I'm sure the penny is very well spent.
The weekly newspaper, The Chronicle named,
Is in Newcastle and through England famed.
Mr. Editor this to my Uncle will give,
And heartily hope that both may long live.

In the same year a gentleman at Ayr duly received an envelope bearing this superscription:

Awa' to auld Scotland, and speer for John Graeme;
It's a wide direction, but a well-knet name.
In the new town o' Ayr, at the auld Brig-en,
He sells a drap whusky, but the postman will ken.
And if ye should fin' him, as I've nae doot you will,

In 1821, Regent street, London, was known as Swallow street, and the following was sent to a lady there:

Dear honest postman, be so kind
To take this to a friend of mine.
She is a Fox—Lucy's her name,
In Swallow street you'll find the same;
She is a cruel little toad,
And lives not far from Oxford Road.

Here is another poetical effusion:

Midst corn and clover, grain and grass,
There lives and laughs one Mr. Vass;
'Tis not from Barnet very far—
Should you arrive while he about is,
Pray stop and ask him how the gout is,
And beg him (mind, the postage paid is)
To give this letter to the ladies.

A Canadian Grub In London.

By a log of wood riddled with tiny tunnels, says a London correspondent, stands an ordinary-looking beetle in the insect house at the London Zoo. It has just been born as a beetle from the grub which drove those tunnels. It belong to the Longicorn family of beetles.

The grub was sent from Canada in a small log of Vancouver pine to a lady eighteen months ago. When recently it turned into a beetle she sent it to the Zoo, and it has just emerged in its final state, but it may have been anywhere between twenty and fifty years in the wood, boring the tunnels through the log.

An official at the Gardens says that naturalists have not yet settled how long it takes beetles to accomplish this work of boring. There is the historic case of the Natural History Museum grub of the same species. For fourteen years it lived undiscovered in the boot tree constantly used by an Indian military officer and probably had lived in the wood itself before it was made into a boot tree.

When the officer first discovered the grub he handed the boot tree, grub and all, over to the museum. It was placed in a show case, where it lived ten years. About once annually the grub used to poke its head out into the daylight, when the curator promptly pushed it back into the wood and plugged up the hole so that it could dig its way out.

"The Weeping Counsel."

It was on account of his earnest and emotional pleading for Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, that Lord Halsbury, who recently celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday, was so christened. If his lordship believes in lucky numbers, he has reason to regard "5" as his own. He was born in 1825; he began his career at the Bar in 1850; he was made a Q.C. in 1875; he became Lord Chancellor in 1885; and he commenced his third term of office in 1895. An incident in his early days brought his career perilously near a close. While defending a prisoner at the Old Bailey he excited the animosity of an insane clergyman, who fired a revolver at him. This is the only instance on record of an attempt to assassinate an English advocate in the performance of his professional duties.

Keeping Busy.

Walking one day amongst his old parishioners in the East End of London, Dr. Lang (now Archbishop of York) stopped a parishioner who had married a man who enjoyed the reputation of being the laziest man in the East. "Well, Mrs. Brown," he said, "I hope your husband is proving a good provider." "Yes, sir, thank you, sir," she replied; "he's provided me with three new places to work at since we were married."

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error, "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

FIFTY YEARS A WRITER

HOW MISS BRADDON CAME TO WRITE NOVELS.

As a Girl, Popular Authoress Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 For First Novel—Wrote First Installment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight — Has Retained First Rank Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction; to have published a novel for every year of her long life; and to be able to entrance the readers of to-day as she entranced their grandparents in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-two seems still to possess the secret of perennial youth.

Much water has run under the bridges of her beloved Thames since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously wrote her first story by its banks at Chiswick in a child's round hand and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little one's blood; for her father, a London solicitor, had made "Rough Robin" famous in the world of sportsmen, and her mother was saturated with a passion for literature. And so Mary Elizabeth took to writing as naturally as a duck to the water.

As a schoolgirl, with her home still by the Thames at Barnes, she was always scribbling in her exercise books; and, under the eyes of her teachers, she furtively pencilled quite a long story, "The Old Armchair," which made her famous among her schoolfellows. But alas! for years she could not thaw the hard hearts of the editors. All the literary doves she sent out to them came back to her ark with the exasperating regularity of clockwork.

One day, however, when she was emancipated from the schoolroom, she awoke to find a letter awaiting her which revolutionized her world. It was from a Beverley printer, who had seen a sketch by her in a Yorkshire paper, and who offered her the sum of $50 to write a story for him, which should "combine the humor of Dickens with the plot-construction of G. W. M. Reynolds." It was a large order and a small guerdon, but the girl was transported with delight.

Before she wa many days older she had transported herself and her mother to a Beverley farmhouse, and was reeling off the masterpiece of Dickens cum Reynolds at a thousand words an hour, weaving her plot as she rode about the Yorkshire lanes. She boldly christened her story, "Three Times Dead; or The Secret of the Heath"; and it was a very proud moment in her life when she handed the last sheets of the manuscript to the printer's boy. The book certainly did not make the printer's fortune, but renamed "The Trail of the Serpent," it had a new and vigorous lease of life.

Still fame refused to knock at her door, but not for long. A little later Mr. Maxwell, a publisher, projected a new magazine, the great feature of which was to be a serial for a famous writer. To his dismay, however, the serial, which had been extensively advertised, was not forthcoming at the proper time. Mr. Maxwell was in despair, until a letter came, signed "M. E. Braddon," offering to write a serial. "Too late," was his answer to the young authoress when she called on him. "But what is the latest day you can give me?" she persisted. "Well," said Mr. Maxwell, "if the manuscript of the opening chapters is on my breakfast-table to-morrow morning that would be in time."

Next morning Mr. Maxwell found the first chapters of "Lady Audley's Secret" among his correspondence; his venture was saved, and Miss Braddon was on the high road to fame and fortune. Such was the romantic genesis of one of the most popular books ever written.

Then followed in quick succession "Aurora Floyd," "Eleanor's Victory," and "Henry Dunbar," all eagerly welcomed by thousands of admiring readers; and Miss Braddon took her place, which she has ever since retained, in the foremost rank of the writers of fiction. Since these early triumphs there has been scarcely a year when she has not given the world at least one of her fascinating novels; in some years she has published two and in others three; until her fiction-children now number more than her own years.

And Miss Braddon's life has been as happy as it has been busy. For nearly forty years her home has been in a fine old Georgian house, once the abode of the Bishop of Lichfield, at Richmond—for nothing can wean her from the river she loves so well. Here, surrounded by her birds and dogs, and her wonderful collection of china and books, she has led an ideal life, writing her books in the peace of her beautiful garden or in her study, entertaining her friends with a charming hospitality, and devoted to her home and her three sons, all of whom have made a name in the world of letters.

In her younger days she might be seen almost every morning cantering in Richmond Park on Kaiser, her white-footed bay, her eyes sparkling and face flushed with health and exercise; and even to-day there are few horsewomen in England more graceful or expert. For the rest, she spends her leisure in gardening, music, and study, of all of which she is passionately fond. A simple, gracious life, spent in womanly ways remote from the glare of the limelight—that is what Miss Braddon loves—and it is this that has preserved her youth and powers unimpaired into the seventies.

As for her methods of work, she carefully maps out her books to the smallest details before putting pen to paper; then, with her writing-pad on her knees, she fills sheet after sheet with her small handwriting, clear as print, with a wonderful rapidity, never pausing for a word and rarely making a correction. From a thousand to fifteen hundred words an hour is her normal rate of production. She stops work at luncheon-time.

Wonderful Jasper Park.

The Commissioner of Dominion Parks who has recently returned from Jasper Park and Pass in the Rocky Mountains on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is enthusiastic in his praises of the scenery in that district. The opening of this new wonderland by the construction of the railway will add another to the attractions of life in the Province of Alberta. Vigorous construction next summer will put the Grand Trunk Pacific steel into the new Park and Open its wonders to those who have the time, money and inclination for an outing. Switzerland has made perhaps as much from its scenery as it could have made from agricultural had its surface been more level, and the Province of Alberta in the Jasper region has a Switzerland declared by competent judges to be quite as attractive as that to which the wealthy of Europe and United States now flock, and built on a much larger scale.

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with "Punch's" joke concerning the son of the house who, as "in gallantly escorted the beauty of the evening to the carriage, gushingly remarked, "I have been dancing all the evening for the moment."

A similar one concerns the great novelist, Charles Dickens, was guilty of an embarrassing malapropism. "I was discussing," he says in two reports lately, "a matter to a friend, explaining the matter. 'I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's position in the matter of Mr. Cheese.' I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Fermoy generally conceiving him to be an Irish member on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife."

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harborside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beech at Woollahra Point.

For Jam Pots.

A peal of new bells was recently hung in the tower of the historic parish church of Fenny Drayton, Nuneaton, England, an old-world village hard-by the Roman highway, which, as the birthplace of George Fox, will ever be associated with memories of the founder of the Society of Friends.

This is the identical church in which Fox was christened, but the ancient stone font which did duty on that occasion was up to recent times knocked about in the churchyard in a derelict condition, being utilised at one period as a drinking trough. With the advent of a new incumbent, however, the old font has found a resting-place within the church.

That portion of the church register containing the entry of Fox's baptism was some years ago used by the wife of the then parish clerk to cover up jam pots in the fruit preserving season.

Half a Sovereign a Minute.

The Duke of Westminster owns about 30,000 acres in Cheshire and Flintshire, and 600 acres in London. Some years ago the late duke, when idle gossip put his income at a sovereign a minute, remarked that this was more than double his real income; but, allowing this, it still leaves about £250,000 a year.

The Duke of Westminster owns several racehorses, and the late duke was the owner of the famous Derby winners, Ormonde and Flying Fox, as well as two earlier winners Bend Or and Shotover.

It is related of the duke that on one occasion he was entertaining the King, but was not ready to receive His Majesty, his valet being unable to find his ducal breeches.

No host may now receive the King in the evening in trousers, breeches being insisted upon by His Majesty.

An Amphibious Watch.

Mr. John Norris, a former chief constable of Coventry, whose death is just announced, was the possessor of a watch on which was engraved a view of the Tay Bridge, and which bore the following inscription: "The Tay Bridge disaster, December, 1879. This watch lay in the River Tay for six weeks; it stopped at the time of the accident, remained silent many days, started again, and worked nine hours under water." The watch had been lent to Mr. Boynon, an artist, of Cheltenham, who was drowned in the disaster. A charge of dynamite was afterwards used to raise the bodies from the river, and this doubtless started the watch again.

What a Storm Costs.

It has been calculated that a rainy day makes a difference of over $5,000,000 to shopkeepers in the West End of London alone. While nearly all classes of tradesmen are grumbling and groaning, the tobacconist, however, cheerfully rubs his hands. The rain increases his takings by about 15 per cent.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Are Rebuilding.

Carpenters started work this week rebuilding E. F. Mason & Co's lower store which was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago, and it will be rushed ahead now.

Patrick Cranley Hurt.

Mr. Patrick Cranley was badly hurt on Monday night by falling on the street and injuring his spine. Yesterday morning he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Band tonight at Auditorium Boiler Rink. 3 Ladies' Tickets $1.00 3 Gents' tickets $1.00.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. J. Worden, Piano tuner, representing R. F. Wilks and Co. Toronto, is in Town. Orders left at the Times book store will be attended to at once.

A Presentation.

Mr. G. Telford, an employe of the G.N.W. Telegraph Co., was remembered by his fellow employes on Monday night. Mr. Telford left yesterday morning for Orillia, where he will be connected with the hospital there.

A Mean Prank.

A young man was made the victim of a Hallowe'en prank on Monday night, which was not at all pleasant While calling on a lady friend someone unhitched the horse and let him go. The annual went home, leaving the buggy where it stood.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. 7

Need Cold Weather.

The merchants are tired of this fine warm weather and are crying out for a cold snap. It requires a change of weather to boom the fall trade and start buying for the holiday season and winter weather. Just the same as it requires a change of government to boom trade in the country.

Mrs. Neil Improving.

Yesterday morning The Times referred to the illness of Mrs. Harry Neill, Ashburnham, and stated that she had been stricken with blindness. This was exaggerated. While Mrs. Neil is ill and one eye was slightly affected, we are pleased to say that she will be all right in a day or so.

Lame back comes on suddenly and is extremely painful. It is caused by rheumatism of the muscles. Quick relief is afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. 8

Work at a Standstill.

Mr. Parker Davis, of Bobcaygeon was in town yesterday on his way from Hastings. Mr. Davis is interested in work on that section of the canal, now under contract, which is at present at a standstill. Mr. Randolph MacDonald, the contractor, will start operations again in the spring with a large force of men. It is estimated that four years will be required to complete the work at this point.

A Novel Window.

Messrs. White & Gillespie have another novel window in their grocery store. It represents the fall pastime or a hunter's paradise. A pine tree sits in one corner with leaves covering the floor of the window. A number of rabbits are hopping about and a flock of beautiful white fantail pigeons are perched on roosts across the window. The display is attracting a lot of attention.

Pleasant Evening.

The boarders and ex-boarders at Miss McLaughlin's, Water street, gathered at her home last evening to bid her farewell as she will shortly give up house keeping. Miss McLaughlin was always very highly regarded by all who have found shelter there and last night the boarders took occasion to present her with an appreciative address and a purse. Afterwards a very pleasant evening was spent.

Goes to Ottawa.

Mr. F. G. Hazzard, secretary of the local Y.M.C.A., left last night for Ottawa to attend the 37th annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Ontario and Quebec. The convention which will be held in the Ottawa Y.M.C.A., will open on Thursday and conclude on Sunday.

Cheese Board.

The regular meeting of the Cheese Board will be held this morning in the Bank of Montreal chambers. The buyers expect the bidding to be brisk but the price will not likely go over 11c.

Customs Receipts.

The receipts at the local customs house for the past month of October were $28,797.73, being an increase of $14,113.30 over the same month of last year.

Receipts for Oct. 1909 .....$28,797.73
Receipts for Oct., 1908 .....$14,684.4
Receipts for Oct., 1906 .....$14,684.43

Increase for past month ...$14,113.30

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. 8

A New Grocery Opens Today.

Messrs. Graham & Co., this morning open their fine new grocery in the almost completed Leahy Block, on George street a few doors south of Charlotte street. Mr. Andrew Graham, head of the firm, has had a long experience in this line of trade. The firm's new store is about 75 feet deep and lighted by plate glass windows joined at the corner by brass. The ceiling is metallic and is very high. Mr. Graham was busily engaged until a late hour last night getting the stock onto his shelving.

Mr. Stanley Coon, proprietor of the Princess, Peterborough's latest five cent show, this week has changed the source of his picture service. This gentleman is now producing the splendid pictures furnished by the Kinograph Co., of Montreal. The first of this new series were shown yesterday including one film direct from the well-known Pathe Freres of Paris. The picture in question was one of that firm's colored films and was not only beautifully tinted but very clear. Mr. Coon's enterprise is sure of recognition by the public.

LeFevre—Tate.

A brilliant society wedding was solemnized at Lakefield yesterday afternoon when Miss Gwyneth Tudor Wallace Tate, only daughter of Mrs. F. J. Tate, of "Harborne," Lakefield, became the bride of Mr. Alfred George Tully LeFevre, son of the late Henry J. LeFevre of "Uplands," Lakefield. The ceremony was performed in the church of St. John the Baptist, by Rev. W. J. Creighton, late rector of St. John the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. F. J. Sawers, the newly appointed incumbent of the parish. Just at two o'clock, the bride, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. E. R. Tate, entered the sanctuary at the head of the wedding procession, while Mr. R. J. Devey of Petersborough gave a splendid rendition of "Cortege Nuptial."

The bride looked most charming in white satin en traine, trimmed with old Honiton lace, which belonged to her great grandmother, and seed pearl embroidery, tulle veil and orange blossoms. She wore a diamond and emerald ring, the gift of the groom, and a diamond and pearl pendant, the gift of Hon. J. C. Patterson, an old friend of the family. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and heather. The bridesmaids wore yellow broadcloth tunic dresses, black beaver hats, and carried bunches of deep red chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were Miss Gertrude Tate, of Toronto, cousin of the bride; Miss Yvonne Nordheimer, of Toronto, and Miss Adelaide Montimambert of Brantford. The gifts of the groom to the bridesmaids were gold bangles. Mr. Harold Morrow, of Peterborough, acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. George Hilliard of Lakefield, and Messrs. Otter Stewart and Gwyllym Dunn of Toronto.

The church was beautifully decorated by Mr. Francis Mason of Petborough, with palms and yellow chrysanthemums, and the sacred edifice was crowded with friends and relatives, including about 250 invited guests, many of whom were from out of town.

After the ceremony the bridal party with their guests returned to the home of Mrs. Tate, where a fine large marque had been erected by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, of Peterborough. Here the reception was held and the happy young couple were showered with congratulations and well wishes. The wedding breakfast was served by the Harry Webb Company of Toronto. The usual toasts were honored and Mr. and Mrs. LaFevre took their departure for a trip to Montreal, New York, and other places. They will reside in future in the State of Columbia, South America.

The bride was the receipient of a very large number of beautiful and costly gifts from her very large circle of friends from far and near.

At the wedding were a large number of Peterborough people, among whom were:— Mr., Mrs. and Miss Collins, Mr. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Travers, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. D. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, r. and Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mrs. Hamilton (Auburn), Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Hill, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Dela Foese Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Langfeldt, Miss Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell, Miss Dunlop, Miss Burritt, Dr., Mrs. and Miss Halliday, Mr. and Mrs. Hazen Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mr. H. Morrow, Miss Lundy.

Courayeo—Brion.

An interesting ceremony was performed yesterday morning by Rev. Father McColl in St. Peter's Cathedral, when Miss Matilda, daughter of Mr. Thos. Brion of Tweed, was united in marriage to Mr. Felix Cornyea. The bride was attended by Miss Irene Guerin, while Mr. David Brion supported the groom. The happy couple left on the C.P.R. for a short honeymoon trip and when they return they will reside here.

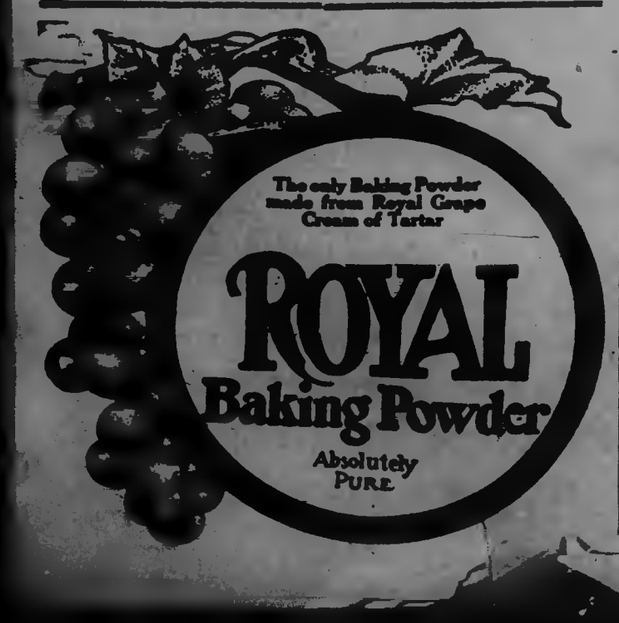
McDonnel—Berth.

At the Roman Catholic Church at Keene yesterday morning, Miss Ada Doris of Otonabee, was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. McDonell of Downer's Corners, by Rev. Father McFadden of Peterborough. They will reside in Toronto.

Graham—Jewett.

The wedding was quietly solemnized on Monday night at eight o'clock, of Mr. Thomas Graham and Miss Rose Jewett, both of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. C. Riddiford of the Park street Baptist church. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will reside on Bethune St., city.

Carpenters started work this week rebuilding E. F. Mason & Co's lower store which was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago, and it will be rushed ahead now.



A Dairy Instruction Meeting was Held in City Council Chamber

The Attendance was Small but the Addresses were Exceptionally Good and Very Instructive

The first of the fall and winter series of dairy instruction meetings was held in the City Council chamber yesterday afternoon. The attendance was small but the addresses were exceptionally good and instructive, and the farmers and cheese men deserve censure for being absent, as the meeting was of great importance.

Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie was elected for the fifth consecutive year to represent the Peterborough dairymen on the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association. He was the unanimous choice, and is recognized as the most competent man in the district.

Chairman Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie took occasion to refer to the small attendance of cheese buyers and sellers at the meeting. He said it was a shame that the cheese men, for whose benefit the meeting was chiefly called for that day, would not turn out in large numbers. The addresses were particularly interesting to cheese makers and if they were not expected to be present the meeting could easily have been held at some other time and a larger crowd secured.

Mr. Ward, dairy instructor for the district, presented the report of the season's work. Marked improvements in the dairy and cheese industry in the district had been made. The instructor had been given the assistance and co-operation of the people of the district. This year Mr. Ward had 36 cheese factories and creameries under his charge, and the quality of the milk had been the best of any season.

"The patrons are making more improvements on the whole than we are," said Mr. Wood," and we cannot sit down and rest on past laurels."

Mr. Ward gave some timely and valuable advice to both patrons and makers on the care and handling of milk.

MR. GLENDENNING.

Mr. Glendenning took up the question of farm help and pointed out the foolishness of the present policy employed by farmers to employ a man only a few months of the year, and lay him off during the fall and winter. By keeping the hired man on the farm the year around and feeding the stock and looking after the farm is much more profitable to both. It would do a great deal to solve the help problem, and the farmer would find that he would not pay any more for his help and at the same time his profits would increase.

Mr. Glendenning also took up the subject of feeding and earing for cattle for dairy purposes, and he pointed out the advantages of running the dairy farm the year round.

MR. SINCLAIR.

Mr. Sinclair took up the question of milk and its various constituents and the proportion of each. He had an exhibit of the apparatus used in testing milk and explained the method of testing. Fat was the chief constituent in milk so far as the cheese factories were concerned. He said he was glad that the number of cheese factories that pay by test, was increasing. By paying by test every person got exactly what their milk was worth. It induces the better care of milk and ice houses and cooling rooms are erected by farmers all over the district. and the quality of milk is therefore greatly improved. Then the speaker gave some information to the cheese makers as to the care of the samples of milk taken for test purposes. He described the style of the bottle to use and how to care for it. It was only necessary to test milk once a month if proper care was taken. He told them how to take care of the bottles and the samples. One important thing was to keep the samples well corked and in the dark. There are only 117 factories in Ontario paying by test. In the cheese districts of other countries the test method is universal and he could not see why it was not so in Ontario, unless it could be that one or two of the leading authorities in Ontario did not agree on the subject. A great advantage of the test method is that farmers who water or delute their milk will not get paid for it while by the other system they get credit for two per cent. on everything, and it also acts as an incentive to the farmer to improve his herd, and altogether the cheese is improved in every respect.

MR. DUFF.

Mr. Duff of Norwood, was present and was called upon for an address. He said he had been greatly interested in the addresses. He referred to the production of corn which he said was grown for the most part too thick. He found that the farmers in this district were sowing all the way from a half bushel to a bushel and a half of corn to the acre. The latter figure was altogether too thick. Mr. Duff then referred to the farmers' club which had been organized a week ago there. The first meeting for discussion will be held next Tuesday when a paper will be given on "The preparation of staples for the winter." Such subjects will be taken up from time to time and he anticipated great results as all the subjects taken up will be of local interest. In this way the farmers' club will be of greater benefit than the institute meetings. It was his intention to organize as many of these clubs as possible throughout the county this winter.

Mr. Cowan endorsed Mr. Duff's idea of farmers' club and he pointed out some of the advantages that were obtained.

Mr. Hawthorne, secretary of the Cheese Board, said he wished some of the speakers had gone into the creamery business.

Mr. Davy, secretary of the Ottawa Cheese Association, was present, and was called upon for a few words He expressed his pleasure at being present and he was glad to see that the dairying business here was being improved.

The Cheese Board will conduct meetings this winter at the annual meetings of the cheese factories and hope to reach a good many more farmers.

Mr. Riddell and Mr. Moyer moved a vote of thanks to the speakers, the press and the City Council.

Mrs. Robinson will not Hang

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Robinson, the unfortunate woman under sentence to be hanged at Sudbury three weeks hence for the murder of the infants of her daughters, will not have to suffer the death penalty.

This much has already been decided after a review of the evidence and the circumstances of the case by the minister of justice.

It is very doubtful if the Cabinet Council will see its way clear to grant a full pardon. There is no precedent for such a course in the history of the Dominion. In the only similar instance where sentence of death was commuted some years ago on a woman to a limited term of imprisonment, the term was made fourteen years, and she was liberated after serving seven years.

The case is clearly one of murder, and even though the circumstances all cry for mercy, it is doubtful if under the criminal code a full pardon can be granted. The matter will come before the cabinet this week for consideration.

Meanwhile the flood of petitions for clemency and pardon pouring into the department of Justice is unabated. It is estimated that over one hundred and fifty persons have already been heard from.

All sections of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are represented, and many letters are being received from the United States. Some of the petitioners couch their prayer for mercy in original poetry; others write essays or diatribes on the various aspects of the case.

Large Crowd Attend Services at St. Paul's

The largest congregation which has yet gathered at St. Paul's church since the special meetings began was present last night in spite of the inclemency of the weather and the several other attractions that were on. The singing as usual was very bright and hearty. Rev. Mr. MacBeth took his text from John 20. "On the first day of the week the disciples were assembled, the doors being closed for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in their midst, saying, 'Peace be unto you,' and when he had so said he showed them his hands and his side." Rev. Mr. MacBeth said that the assembling of the desciples in the upper room indicated fear and hopefulness in the midst of their enemies; but it also indicated their desire to cling together in their work. The coming of Jesus, the doors being shut, was both a warning and a comfort. This is the unavoidable Christ on the one hand as a warning, and, on the other hand, nothing can keep him away from those who need his presence. His appearance with his wounds of the cross proved His identity, His love for the desciples; His conquest over death and over the power of sin, and hence they could have the fullest courage in carrying on his work.

Barrie Man Awarded $30 by Judge Huycke

Yesterday his honor Judge Huycke gave decision on a case tried about a month ago and which at the trial created no inconsiderable interest. It will be remembered that about four weeks ago, a Mr. Guthrie, proprietor of a moving picture show at Barrie, Ont., sued Mr. W. A. Edwards, owner of the Crystal, on George street, for $100 damages. This suit was based on the sale of a second-hand Edison moving picture machine by Mr. Edwards to Mr. Guthrie. After having the machine for some weeks, Mr. Guthrie, through his attorneys, Messrs. O'Connell & Gordon, demanded that Mr. Edwards take back his machine and return the money to the complainant, claiming that the machine would not do the work required. Mr. Guthrie then sued Mr. Edwards for $100 damages, when the latter gentleman declined to take back a second-hand article, sold at about one-third its original value, as, when the machine was returned by Mr. Guthrie it was sent in a large partly open packing case, and thus might have been damaged in transit. The evidence for both prosecution and defense was so strong that Judge Huycke, before whom the trial was held, took about a month to arrive at a decision in the case. His honor's decision given yesterday gives Mr. Guthrie $30 damages.

South Africa Has No Wish for Secession

London, Nov. 3.—A Pietermaritzburg despatch, dated yesterday, says Col. Greene, Natal's delegate, speaking on behalf of the government, depreciated the desire for publicity in regard to the proceedings at the defence conference. He denied that the South African delegates had betrayed a tendency. He denied that the three South African republics eulogized the Imperial spirit of New Zealand and the other dominions. He declared that South Africa's contribution to the navy was inadequate. The motion for publication was withdrawn.

Inspector Greer on the Barton Murder

Toronto, Nov. 3.—The Barton murder mystery, which has defied investigation for a number of years, has been re-opened by the suspicion that Fred Gebhardt, alias Otto Mueller, who has admitted to the New York police that he murdered one wife, may be the stranger who was seen in company with the unknown woman before she was found murdered behind the Mountain in Barton township.

The similarity in the description of Gebhardt and the Barton murderer, has led the attorney-general's department to begin an investigation, and Inspector Greer, who was on the original inquiry, has been detailed on the case.

Speaking of the theory of the identity of the New York bluebeard, with the Hamilton murder, Mr. Greer said this morning, "There is a close similarity between the two men. I have written to New York for definite information, and will know in a few days definitely whether there is any connection. There may be a story in a day or two."

BACK-WEARY MEN.

"Foundry work compels men to work in the winter in very cold shops," writes Tanis T. Bolter, a well-known mechanic in Hamilton. "I contracted a very severe cold a few months ago which settled in my back and kidneys. I suffered constant pain, and in bending over my work and in heavy lifting, the pain at times was excruciating. My digestion got all out of order, doubtless because the kidneys didn't work right My wife had used Dr. Hamilton's Pills as a family medicine and I took her advice and started them also. To my great delight a few doses helped me so much it was proof I was using a true remedy. Natural action of the kidneys was brought about, burning and aching ceased, and the back-lameness gradually disappeared. I no longer fear my work. I feel strong and robust, and with such a remedy as Dr. Hamilton's Pills at hand I will probably never again be sick. I advise every working man to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

No other medicine will regulate the system and maintain health like Dr. Hamilton's Pills—beware of the dealer who tries to induce you to take something else on which he makes more profit. Sold in yellow boxes 25c. Prepared by The Catarrhosone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

The Nickle Shows.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—In your issue of Monday appeared an article entitled "Blames Nickle Shows." In this you tell a somewhat pathetic story of a wayward boy," who had stolen in order to get money to attend the five-cent shows. Now, Sir, I think you are hardly fair in casting a slur on these cheap and clean places of amusement because a silly boy steals to get the admission price. Whilst two wrongs do not make a right, there is no doubt but, for one boy that steals to attend the moving pictures there are fifty who steal to play pool. If a boy is stupid enough to steal which return for stolen money is best, the pool room with its gang of frequenters using foul language or the moving pictures from which everything of an obscene morbid or harmful influence is eliminated. There is no denying the fact that thousands of nickles go into the moving picture places that other wise would have enriched the pool rooms or the bars. These moving pictures are a great source of not only desireable entertainment, but are instructive from an historical and geographical standpoint. I can only say, Sir, I would personally ardently advocate the sustaining and patronage of these places even though one foolish boy steals money to attend them.

C. H. G.

The article referred to above does not mean any slur on the moving picture places as such. We understand that moving pictures are instructive and pleasing so long as undesirable kinds of vaudeville acts are eliminated. Such acts as include monologues, or dialogues containing an underlying "double entendre" or jokes not fit for ladies or children. —Ed. Times.

Four Hundred Men.

Lumbering operations during the coming winter will be carried on in our northern woods quite briskly. There will probably be in the neighborhood of 400 men employed, divided between the Dickson Company, the Cavendish Lumber Company and the MacDonald Lumber Company.

The prospective candidates for the mayorality this year are very backward and thus far there is nothing known as to who will be in the field.

Woman on Trial Charged with Dynamiting Her Family

Mrs. Mary Rumble Being Tried for Alleged Attempt to Blow Up Her Former Home—Had Burs in Her Hair

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 3.—In the absence of Judge Houston, Mrs. Mary Rumble, the woman accused of blowing up the home of her husband, John Rumble, in Chatham Township, while he and his family were in the house, appeared before W. J. Merritt, justice of the peace.

Mr. Aylesworth, a C.W. and L.E. conductor, was the first witness. He had seen the prisoner the morning after the explosion, a week ago Saturday. It was about 6.40 o'clock, at the third concession, Chatham township. She got ona car and went to Wallaceburg. She was covered with burdock burrs, which were in her hair. He had never seen Mrs. Rumble before.

Peter Ballaire told of seeing Mrs. Rumble on the third concession the morning after the Rumbles were blown up by dynamite. He did not know Mrs. Rumble previously.

Rose Baillargeon said she saw Mrs. Rumble in front of her home on the third concession the morning of the explosion. It was about 6.30. She was about twenty-five yards away from the prisoner at the time. She wouldn't swear the prisoner was the woman, but she was pretty sure she was.

STOPPED THE TRAIN.

Marsdon Whitely, conductor on the Pere Marquette, said he saw Mrs. Rumble running to catch a train at Sarnia the morning previous to the explosion. He stopped the train to allow here to get on. She had two parcels in her hand. Heidentified the paper found at the house after the explosion as being the same as that wrapped around the parcels she was carrying. She got off his train at Chatham, Friday evening, 22nd inst., at 6.15. The woman was quite nervous and acted queerly while on the train.

This concluded the evidence given today.

All the time the case was proceeding Mrs. Rumble sat in the prisoner's pen, her arms crossed and her eyes on the floor. She is a woman about forty years old, and rather stout. She was dressed plainly in black. Her husband took a chair near the pen and never took his eyes off her all during the trial. The case was enlarged for one week.

Four Brutally Murdered on the Prairie

Wynard, Sask., Nov. 3.—Constable Jarvis, of the Royal North-West Mounted Police, left last night in search of the Hungarian, who on Monday night shot George Thorburn aged 35, in the neighborhood of Clair, north of Little Quill Lake. Only meagre details are to hand, but it is believed that Mrs. Thorburn, her two-year-old child, and her mother, Mrs. McNiven, were all murdered A five-year-old boy was also badly clubbed, but when the neighbors visited the house on Tuesday, the lad was still unable to say who committed the deed. The neighbors' attention was attracted by the bawling of hungry cattle, and the absence of any stir around the place. A man was seen driving a heavy team of Thorburn's, apparently making no effort to conceal himself. He was going in the direction of the Touchwood Hills, and enquiring the road to Regina, claiming that his parents lived there.

A Triple Murder Near Gimil, Man.

Gimli, Man., Nov. 2.—At five o'clock tonight a Galician farmer came to town with the report that a woman and two children had been killed this afternoon in a fight at a farmhouse about six miles north of the town. A constable has gone out to the scene of the murder to investigate.

As far as can be learned at present a German who had been visiting at a Galacian house, got into a fight with the Galician and, after battering him up badly, chased him out of the house. The Galician stayed out in the bush until he saw the German leave, and on returning to the house, found that his wife and two children had been killed. The names of the parents are not known.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS.

BEFORE TREATMENT

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to bad habits and exposure in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night prevented me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurry, hair came out, memory poor, etc. Treatment in the papers set me to get the same and we found everything as claimed. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, were an electric belt for three months, went to St. Catharines for baths, but received little benefit. While at St. Catharines I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy a million bottle are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence and summer complaints. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains, and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there was never a time that our house was without "Nerviline.' In the summer time when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. My father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the home as Nerviline."

LETTER NO. 4762

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Butcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline. Get it today, keep it on hand for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. 25c. per bottle, or five for $1.00. All dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING.

The Commonwealth of Australia has abandoned the old volunteer and militia system, as expensive and useless for all purposes of real defence, and will have every youth in the land trained to bear arms amd perform a soldier's duty. Thus every man will be ready, at short notice, to join the colors as an effective fighting man should an invading force threaten the country or land on its shores. The training will be beneficial to the boys. If Great Britain had such a system, every citizen having had good military training, we would not hear of the periodical scares about possible invasion that disturb the people now. All would realize that invasion would be easily repelled, and nobody would feel nervous on the subject. Canada is throwing away as much on its little army and its picnic militia camps as it would cost to make every youth a soldier, and war would find us thoroughly prepared. Compulsory service in youth and conscription when an army for defence is needed, is the system that would be fairest to all and most effective for the national safety. Mercenaries and volunteers are good enough for foreign wars, but every man should be compelled to fight to repel invasion and should be ready to do so as a trained soldier

CANADIAN EATABLES.

Is One of the Most Promising Industries in Canada Today.

Canadian Eatables, Ltd. offer at par 50,000 shares of 8 per cent. cumulative value to the public. This offer is good only for a short time and judging from the way inquiries are being made regarding the stock the whole issue will be taken up before that time. The object of Canadian Eatables is to place on the market all kinds of prepared foods including beef. The company has 7000 acres of property on the Manitoulin Island which is well wooded and admirably suited for the breeding of export cattle which will be an important branch of the industry. Everyone knows of the fertility of the Manitoulin Island land and it is easy to see how cattle, pasturing there and being fed on the products of that land, thrive and make big prodite for the company. The 7000 acres are beautifully situated and have a magnificent water front which is such a valuable asset to a farm.

The manufactured products of the company will consist of canned meats and fruits, cheese, confectionery, biscuits and kindred products. Look up their big advertisement on another page of this issue for full particulars and give the matter your serious consideration.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. And Preventics are so safe and harmless. No Quinine, nothing harsh nor violent. Fine for feverish restless children. Box of 48 at 25c. Sold by all dealers.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

All Probable Future Events Arranged For in Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an excellent dinner, at which all members of both families were present, we repaired to the great drawing room, where the chairs had been arranged in a semicircle about two small, round tables. Presently two grave old gentlemen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the tables, and when we were all assembled the elder commenced to read a long memoir, which he announced he had compiled with the help of his colleague. Then, to my utter amazement, he began to name all the possessions of the future bride and bridegroom—so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, articles of personal adornment, furniture and jewels; the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de B——, whose great good sense had always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us Christians is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there to his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

Franklin as a Swimmer.

In 1726 Benjamin Franklin was working as a printer at Watts', near Lincoln Inn Fields, and taught two shopmates to swim "at twice going into the river." With them and some of their friends from the country he paid a visit by water to Chelsea, and "in our return," he recorded, "at the request of the company, whose curiosity Wygate had excited, I stripped and leaped into the river and swam from near Chelsea to Blackfriars, performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water, that surprised and pleased those to whom they were novelties."—London Tatler.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearances in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the accommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from slits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevator, were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine.

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I's had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

Very Controversial.

They were very controversial in those days.

First.—Bowles wrote a book about Pope.

Second.—Campbell abused Bowles' book on Pope.

Third.—Bowles replied to Campbell's abuse of Bowles on Pope.

Fourth.—Byron wrote as answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Fifth.—John Bull wrote a letter to Byron about Byron's answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Sixth.—Dr. Gerdet has a theory of the authorship of John Bull's letter to Byron about Byron's comments on Bowles' answer to—it is like "The House That Jack Built!"—Andrew Lang.

Bare Poles.

Farmer—Don't go on deck, madam. It is stormy, and we are running her with bare poles.

Aunt Polly—Well, I suppose that, coming from such a cold country as Poland, they can stand running round naked, but I think it's downright scandalous to let 'em.—London Telegraph.

Brainless.

Nell—Mr. Sapheddle has more money than brains. Belle—Why, I never knew he had much money. Nell—He hasn't.—Philadelphia Record.

Lucky Mamma Didn't Hear.

"Papa, what is a masked battery?"

Get Well First

Don't risk even a penny—until health first returns.

And I mean just exactly that.

I ask the one physician who says to the sick "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help."

And for 30 years Dr. Shoop's Restorative has been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere. Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines?

When the Stomach nerves, or the Heart or Kidney nerves fail, these sick ones know how quickly Dr. Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively believe no money risk whatsoever. They know that when health fails to return, Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted. Just write me first for an order

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line personally for I have appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community to whom my "no money risk" medicines go to the sick. Tell me which book you want. The books below will surely open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. Besides you are perfectly free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely yours for the asking. So write me now, while you have it fresh in mind, for "tomorrow never comes." Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

A PRELATE'S LOTTERY.

Archbishop of Canterbury Once Ran a Big Drawing.

A lottery run by an Archbishop of Canterbury is unthinkable at the present day, and yet in the reign of George II. the greatest lottery ever known in Britain was run by the Primate, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker of the House of Commons. The splendid library which that noted doctor and art collector, Sir Hans Sloane had gathered during his lifetime—Sloane street and Sloane square still keep his memory green—was offered by his executors to the nation for the nominal sum of £20,000. But the Treasury, as usual, pleaded poverty, and pretended it could not find that large sum! So the Archbishop of Canterbury, in conjunction with the two gentlemen named above, organised a state lottery, with the sanction of Parliament, in order to raise the required money.

A hundred thousand tickets at £3 each were issued, and no less than £300,000 was to be distributed in prizes to the lucky winners of the numbers drawn, the first being £10,000, and the lowest a £10 note. So successful was the venture that all the tickets were eagerly purchased by the public, and there was more than £100,000 left in the hands of the Archbishop, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker to dispose of. They made most excellent use of this money for the benefit of the nation, as the record of their expenditure easily proves. They built the first portion of the British Museum with it; they bought the Sloane collection mentioned above; they purchased those priceless treasures, the Harleian and Cottonian manuscripts; and they put by a goodly sum as an endowment fund for the new museum.

A lottery helped to beat the Spanish Armada in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It was the first state lottery to take place in this country, and it was arranged at the express desire of the astute Queen herself for a most noble purpose. Her order ran as follows: "Her Majesty wisheth it to the intente that such profits as may arise, after the charges borne, may be converted towards the repairs of havens and ships and strength of the Realme, and such other public good workes."

This lottery was a great success, and with its profits the very vessels with which Drake and Lord Howard beat the "Invincible Armada" were made seaworthy and fit; of that there can hardly be a doubt. In the year of Trafalgar a public lottery yielded over £300,000 to the state; and from 1709 to 1894 there was scarcely a single year in which the Government did not raise a large sum by lotteries sanctioned by Parliament.

Crossing the Channel.

By what means will man next attempt to cross the Channel? The question naturally arises as one reads of the many curious and novel methods by which men have tried of late years to cross from Dover to Calais. It was only a day or two after Blériot's successful flight across the Channel that a man named Westlake announced his intention of crossing on a plank, two feet wide, 18 feet long, and two inches thick, fitted with a mast and sail and two empty oil-drums to give it buoyancy. Westlake, however, was picked up more dead than alive off the Belgian coast, but still hopes to accomplish the feat.

A few days later Thomas Wakeroll set out to row across the Channel in a boat of his own construction, consisting of two planks, with sides a few inches high. He was ultimately picked up in the North Sea and landed at Rotterdam.

Some two or three years ago four old Etonians attempted to row from Dover to Calais in a four-oar pulling-boat, but before they got halfway across the Channel the boat was swamped and the crew nearly drowned.

Smuggling Opium.

All sorts of tricks and dodges are resorted to by the Chinese of Australia to evade the law prohibiting the importation of opium into the Commonwealth. At Sydney recently a Chinaman was noticed, when passing the customs officials, to have a very bulky pig-tail. On examination it was found to contain several pounds of the contraband drug. The profits from the traffic are so enormous as to encourage very desperate efforts to override the law, and the authorities believe that a regular system of importation is in operation, Europeans as well as Chinese being engaged in it. In fact, two custom officials and a water policeman are now awaiting trial in Sydney on a charge of conspiracy in smuggling. A coast line of 15,000 miles is all in favor of this nefarious traffic.

Suiting Her Convenience.

Count D'Orsay, on his first visit to England, chanced to be seated at dinner next to Lady Holland. That remarkable and many-sided woman was in one of her imperious humors. She dropped her napkin; the count picked it up gallantly. Then her fan, then her fork, then her glass and, as often, her neighbor stooped and restored the lost article.

At last, however, the patience of the youth gave way and on her dropping her napkin again he turned and called one of the footmen behind him:

"Put my plate on the floor," said he; "I will finish my dinner there; it will be so much more convenient to Lady Holland."

Tennyson's Love of the Wind.

Tennyson, it will be remembered, in [illegible] with the sound of the breeze. As a little child of four years old, he was blown along the garden path of Somersby, shouting to his brothers his first line of Tennysonian blank-verse—"I hear a voice that's calling in the wind." So the mother in "Rispah" hears Willy's voice in the wind, and so, again and again, in his poetry does he people the storm with the invisible voice of Nature. And it is so that he is best remembered in Freshwater, battling the wind upon the wintry ridge with his poet's cloak fluttering about him.—The Graphic.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Can't Be Cut Off With a Shilling.

French parents (or, at all events, those with more than 2 shillings to dispose of by will) are precluded from the gratification of cutting a mutinous child off with a shilling. A reserve is established by law which no testator can bequeath away from his offspring. A Frenchman with one child can dispose of half his property according to his pleasure; the other half must inevitably pass to the child. Those with two children can dispose of only one-third of their property, those with three children of one-fourth, and so on according to the size of the family. Stern parents occasionally seek to evade the law by subterfuge, but the disposal of property in France is hedged round with so many restrictions that family black sheep are rarely muicted of their legal inheritance.—London Mail.

Not the Same.

The new minister was making a duty call at the home of one of his flock, and, taking a little six-year-old miss upon his knee, he said, "Now, my dear, you want to be a Christian, like mamma, don't you?"

"No, sir," was the unexpected reply. "I would rather sing in the choir."—Chicago News.

THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Bihar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschitt" as inculcated by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without invoking the Supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the routines of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

THE MARIENBAD WORLD.

Taking the Cure at the Salt Springs of Bohemia.

"Half past 5! Time to get up!"

"All right!" you growl in reply, railing while you slowly get out of bed against the absurd tyranny of medicinal waters that insist on being taken so early in the day.

Sallying forth, you find the Marienbad world already astir. Water drinkers are converging from all sides to the spring. Each one on arrival provides himself with a glass and goes forward to receive his daily dose. You join the waiting file. Soon it is your turn, and the attendant maiden for a modest coin fills you a bumper. You take it aside and eye it keenly, holding it to the light. Then, surreptitiously sniffing, you taste it cautiously. The flavor, it appears, is not unpleasant. You are reassured, and, assuming a resigned air, you drain the glass.

Elated by this proof of your courage, you walk out. The band is playing, the promenade crowded. Here you may see the crowned heads, millionaires, great singers and all the other celebrities who frequent Marienbad.

There is a peculiarity of the place that will quickly strike you—the stoutness of many of the visitors. As the Baron von Seidsplitz, himself a man of girth, remarked to an English friend, "There are many thick people in Marienbad."

Hunger by this time probably possesses you, for it is 8 o'clock, but do not expect a hearty breakfast. Crisp rolls or toast and fragrant coffee will be enough, served in the open air. To a favored few an egg or a small plate of cold meat is permitted.

Curious morning tasks are prescribed for some of the patients. Mr. X., for instance, is ordered a piping hot mud bath, while Mr. Z. follows the "terrain" cure. This consists in walking an increased distance each day, so as gradually to strengthen the organs of which the functions are impaired. Most people, however, spend their time in reading, writing or lounging.

The welcome call to dinner draws all together about 1 o'clock. Again the fare is simple, the motto being, "Nothing very sour, nothing very sweet, nothing very salt, nothing very fat." Even the restaurants are not allowed to provide dishes harmful to the "cure." So you make yourself content with fish, roast meat or chicken, green vegetables and stewed fruit, and, as for drink, water, diluted claret or Pilsener beer must suffice. Woe to him whose choice strays to made dishes, pastry, cheese or spirits, for these he must abjure as long as he stays at Marienbad.

To rest awhile without taking "forty winks" is the patient's next problem, and when he has worked through it he will probably stroll along to a concert or make an excursion among the delightful pine clad hills that inclose the Marienbad valley.

When evening approaches the gardens and promenades fill with people. They sit about at small tables and sip their coffee while listening to the band.

Your last meal is a light supper at 7 o'clock, and by 9 you should be in bed.

The normal length of the "cure" is four weeks. It is said, however, that Americans, with characteristic energy, have been known to compress it into something like half that time.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Clearing House Operations.

A clearing house is an agency established by the banks of a city to which all checks drawn upon one city bank and deposited in another are sent for payment. Every morning there is a clearance, or settlement, of accounts, in which the checks deposited in each bank and the checks drawn upon each bank are separately summed up and compared. If there is more deposited in a bank than there is drawn upon it the bank receives the difference in cash. If the reverse is the case the bank pays the balance instead of receiving it. The term clearance means either the act of settlement or the sum of all the checks presented for payment. The amount of business done by the clearing house is a pretty sure index of the general condition of business.—New York American.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—16 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Cripple Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 200,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 100,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $500. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 300,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the best opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

A DEAL IN DIAMONDS

The True Story of an Ingenious Swindle in London.

A CLEVERLY WORKED GAME.

Count Sacha Roubletsky was on his beam ends in London. To the world he was still a dashing young nobleman, son of an immensely wealthy Russian prince, but in point of fact he was financially at his last gasp.

He wanted a thousand or so for nothing. That was the problem he debated as he sat in his lodging smoking cigarette after cigarette. At last he rose with a satisfied smile. Next morning Count Sacha called on Messrs. Sparkle & Shine, the well known Bond street jewelers. He explained who he was and that he had come to select some jewelry for his sweetheart.

From the glittering tray he selected a beautiful stone, price £500. He then explained that, his remittances being delayed, he was not in a position to complete the purchase at the moment, and, in any case, he wished first to submit the stone to his sweetheart's approval.

He added suavely that as he was unknown to Messrs. Sparkle & Shine he could not expect them to part with the gem without making inquiries, but they were at liberty to apply to the Russian embassy for any information they desired concerning him. He would return the following day and, everything being satisfactory, take the diamond.

To this the jewelers agreed and, inquiring at the Russian embassy, were informed that Count Sacha was unquestionably the son of a wealthy prince and that they would probably be safe in giving him credit for even more than the amount mentioned.

They did not know at the embassy that Sacha had been disowned by his father, and they were agreeable to the count's own suggestion that a member of the embassy should attend at the jeweler's next day to identify him. This was done, and Count Sacha received the diamond. The same day he called at a big pawnbroker's and, mentioning airily that he was in temporary difficulties, pledged the diamond for the small sum of £50.

The next day found Count Sacha again at Messrs. Sparkle & Shine's. His sweetheart, he said, was enchanted with the diamond, but nothing would satisfy her now but that she should have another diamond absolutely matching the first.

The jewelers explained that to match such a stone would be a matter of great difficulty and the price of the second gem would be enormously increased—in short, for such a pair of twin diamonds they would have to charge £3,000. Count Sacha shrugged his shoulders. The price was stiff, but he could deny his sweetheart nothing. Would Messrs. Sparkle & Shine please at once set about procuring the second diamond?

The jewelers, being unable to match the diamond themselves, wrote to the leading dealers and pawnbrokers describing the stone they wanted and intimating that they were prepared to go as far as £2,000 for a perfect specimen. Among those they wrote to was the pawnbroker with whom Count Sacha had pledged the original diamond, which was just what that ingenious rascal expected.

A few days later Count Sacha called at the pawnbroker's to redeem his diamond. The pawnbroker had had Messrs. Sparkle & Shine's letter, and, remembering the beautiful diamond pledged with him a day or two before, he had examined it and found that it met all of Sparkle & Shine's requirements.

The count redeemed the stone, and then the pawnbroker inquired whether by any chance he would care to sell it.

That was a pity, said the pawnbroker. He had chanced to show the diamond to his wife, and she had taken a violent fancy to it—so much so that he was prepared to give a fancy price. He offered £800.

Count Sacha laughed and shook his head. One thousand pounds? Oh, no! He really did not want to sell it. An offer of £1,200, however, made him hesitate. At last, after prolonged chaffering, Count Sacha passed back the diamond to the pawnbroker and received £1,500 in exchange. Once outside he jumped into a cab and drove as fast as he could to Messrs. Sparkle & Shine's.

Arrived there, he explained, with many regrets, that his sweetheart had changed her mind. She no longer wanted the second diamond. Had the jewelers yet found it? No? Ah, that was well! Still, he feared he had put them to much trouble. However, he was glad to say his remittances had arrived and he had now much pleasure in handing over £500 in payment for the original diamond, which his sweetheart had decided to keep.

One thousand pounds to the good, Count Sacha left the shop, having brought off a most ingenious swindle. Yet can any one say where he is within reach of the law?—Pearson's Weekly.

It is a question which causes a mother the more worry—a boy so sick that he is good or so thoroughly well that he is bad.

JUST A HEADACHE.

You all know the woman who seems to think that she acquires merit by having a headache.

A headache is her constant companion, and, what's more, if she doesn't actually pride herself in it she cherishes much the same feeling toward it that a martyr does toward her martyr's crown. Martyrdom is not without its compensation of glory, you know, unless it chances to be a self imposed martyrdom or at least a martyrdom to an empty cause.

And there are such among the headache martyrs. The headache martyr is the one who has had headaches so often that she has a headache smile.

"It's just a headache," she says, with a wan smile, as if headaches with her were as much a part of the program as her meals.

If that is the case with this poor sufferer she is greatly to be pitied. There are numberless cases on record where people have had persistent headaches the cause of which has stubbornly baffled the physicians. Such a state of affairs is highly regrettable. But how many women have taken the pains to assure themselves that their headaches are inevitable? This spirit of meek submission to the inevitable, it must be remembered, is only commendable when the inevitable is actually not to be avoided, and a lot of things are called inevitable that have simply never been questioned.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, writing in the Delineator, says:

"Pain wherever found is nature's abrupt command 'Halt!'—her imperative order to stop. When you have taken that step you have taken the most important single step toward a cure.

"A headache always means something"—now mark some of the things he says it may mean—"overwork, underventilation, eye strain, underfeeding. Some error," he adds, "is being committed; some bad physical habit is being dropped into."

So what's the use of pitying the woman with the headache smile if she hasn't at least gone over this simple list of causes and made an effort to adjust the trouble?

"There are a dozen different remedies that will stop pain," says this author, "from opium and chloroform down to the coal tar remedies, but not one of them cures in the sense of doing anything toward removing the cause."

WISE MAN UNDERSTOOD.

A wise man once went to the market place of a town, where a lot of people were buying and selling things, and he called out in a loud voice: "Ho, ho, listen to me, all you people! I have been ordered by the king to collect all the clever people and take them to him, because he wishes to reward them."

All that heard him said they were clever, and they all gathered round, when he called out in a loud voice:

"Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! The king has just sent me word that he means to reward only those who are fools, so only those who are not clever must go with me to the palace."

All the people of the town looked at the wise man, and then one by one they joined him again because, so they said, they were fools.

The wise man shook his head sadly, and he sighed as he said: "Ah, the world goes as the wind blows! Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! You can all go back to the market place as quick as you can, for you first said you were clever and then you said you were not, and you can't be both."

The wise man knew quite well that the people only wanted the reward.

How Sarah Bernhardt Rests.

In a letter to a friend Sarah Bernhardt tells how she spends the days of her vacation in Belle-Isle-en-Mer. The actress says she "rests" by tiring herself. There is a daily schedule. At 5 in the morning she is awakened. After a cup of coffee she takes her gun and goes hunting for birds. At 8 she returns to the house, has a light breakfast and goes to the shore to fish for shrimps. This occupies two hours. At 11 she takes her bath, makes her toilet and is ready for luncheon at 12:30. After luncheon comes the hour for the siesta. This, she observes, is a sacred institution in the routine of her household. One need not necessarily sleep, but the command is to keep still for two hours. At 2:30 she goes to her studio, where she reads manuscripts, looks over her parts or works at her sculpture. The tennis hour is 5 o'clock. Dinner follows the game. After dinner there is music, and by 9 o'clock every one is in bed. In ending her letter Mme. Bernhardt says: "Thus pass my days in Belle Isle. They all are alike. They are charming and splendid. I have a divine sensation of being alive these days more than all the rest of the days of the year."

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

It Came Just at the Time He Wanted to Sell His Place.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore wisely decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some people in the proposition and appointed a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spicade situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking Them to the Yoke.

Edward Lisle, whose "Observations on Husbandry" was published in 1757, described the method employed by his "unkind" or cattleman to break cattle to the yoke: "He yoked two of the steers, being two yearlings, together and so suffered them to walk about the ground where there were no pits or ditches for them to receive hurt by. He also tied together the bushy parts of their tails, the reason of which was because they should not be able to turn their heads to each other so as to strike one another with their horns or by bending their necks too much by endeavoring to face one another and then striving break their necks." In this condition the oxkind let them go on the ground, if without holes or ditches, all night or also turned them into an empty open barn so yoked and then treated them two or three times before he worked them.

Consolation.

There was once a Billville citizen who could never rid himself of the chills, but went shivering through the hottest days of summer. When at last it seemed that all was up with him, his good wife to comfort him said:

"John, you've been a-chakin' an' a-chiverin' all yer life, but you'll get warm over there!"

"For the Lord's sake, Mary," said the shivering man, "don't talk so! Which way do you think I'm a-goin'?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Music Hath Charms.

"So you are fond of music?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "I have the highest regard for it. When you go home and meet a crowd of constituents there is nothing like a brass band to take their minds off the explanations they have been looking for."—Washington Star.

An Instance.

A Woman's Queer Will.

Dame Margaret Morell Mackenzie, widow of the English throat specialist, has forbidden her children by will to be dismal because she is dead. "When I die," she says in her will, which was recently proved, "I hope my children will wear as little black for mourning as possible. White or mauve I like, but not black. And I hope they will not shut themselves up but go out among their friends and to places of amusement. I am not afraid of them forgetting me, and I want them to be happy."

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 14th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,168 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be received at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent, on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Trent Canal.
Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract. Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products.Also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a Director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many recent and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Monora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1200 acres of land, well wooded and adpted to the purposes of the Company. On this land is found live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will concurrently commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water transport, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions,must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this selling is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other candid considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

The company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply continues the market prices, and the high point purchased proves the healthy of the manufacture to satisfy the needs of the markets. The profits are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has ordinary requisite on hand to warrant the distribution of a 8 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

By-law 9 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to office, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

BEGGARS AND TRAMPS.

More Numerous Now Than Ever Before In World's History.

The beggar and the tramp are more numerous now than probably ever before in the history of the civilized world, and in the United States the increase in their number has been so rapid in the last two decades as to raise serious questions in the minds of thoughtful persons as to what the outcome will be if this rate of increase continues, and if no better methods than those at present in operation are discovered to check the growth of this undesirable body of citizens. That there has been a remarkable increase in the number of these men scarcely needs demonstration.

A study has recently been made of the cases of 1,000 homeless men who applied to the Chicago bureau of charities for some form of charitable aid. These men were of the class so often referred to as "tramps," although only about one-fourth of them were found to be rightly so-called.

A number of interesting things were discovered about the group, as, for instance, that 50 of them were insane and almost as many more feebleminded or epileptic; that nearly 100 were tuberculous and that 253 were either temporarily or permanently crippled or maimed. The facts in relation to character in this latter group of men are of special interest. Less than two per cent. of these men had been crippled from birth; 34 per cent. were crippled by illness; almost all of the remaining 64 per cent. owed their handicaps to the railroads, to injuries while at work, or to some of the innumerable forms of accident which are of daily occurrence in great cities.

A little deeper study of the cases showed that a large proportion of the illness which crippled the men had been caused by drink or gross immorality; that more than half of the men who claimed industrial injuries had got received them, but were crippled from other causes; that the injuries of those who had met with industrial accidents were in many cases slight and the vagrancy of the men was due to entirely other causes; that several of the men who had met with general accidents had been drunk when they occurred, and, lastly, that a number of the men who were injured on the railroads had been tramps and vagrants long before they were hurt and had not been forced into vagrancy on account of their injuries. Three men who were in the main self-supporting and applied to the bureau of charities only for work or for very trifling assistance had lost both legs. Five men, who were crippled only by the loss of from one to three fingers, were chronic dependents and confirmed beggars.

What was found true of the crippled and maimed among the thousand was equally true of the remainder. Very rarely were industrial and social causes alone responsible for vagrancy, but equally rarely were individual causes alone responsible. In some cases one could say with fairness that the causes of vagrancy were mainly social; in others, that they were mainly individual, but in the great majority of instances social and individual causes had apparently acted and reacted upon each other until it was impossible to separate them or to decide which was the more responsible for the final vagrancy of the man. Moreover, what was clearly cause in one case was as clearly effect in another. One man took to tramping because he was crippled, the next was crippled because he took to tramping. One man became a beggar because he was diseased and unable to work; another was diseased and unable to work because of his unhygienic mode of life as a beggar. Insanity was the cause of vagrancy in some cases; vagrancy caused insanity in others. No generalization as to the causes of vagrancy can possibly be made which will apply to all the vagrants on the road or even to any [illegible] of them. For differences in nationality, inheritance, education, training, temperament, health, efficiency and morals exist among tramps and vagrants as among self-supporting business men, lawyers and farmers.

Santos-Dumont.

For some time Santos-Dumont has been out of the public eye. He was among the first to win fame as an aeronaut, but the Wrights, Curtiss, Blerlot and other aviators eclipsed him. Once more he is a bidder for public attention. During his retirement he has perfected a machine which occupies much less space than that of any of his rivals and which promises to be a great success. Recently he won a wager with another aeronaut as to which would first visit the other by the air route. Santos-Dumont made the flight from Saint Cyr to Buc, a distance of five miles, in five minutes. His aeroplane has only nine square yards of surface and weighs with the operator only 200 pounds.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a beccafico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

Drinking Water.

The quality of drinking water may be ascertained by filling a bottle half full, tightly cork it and then shaking it vigorously for a minute or two. On uncorking the bottle if the slightest disagreeable odor develops there is some kind of pollution in the water.

East and West.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who is back from the West, says that in the near future the double-tracking of the prairie section of the C.P.R. will be begun between Winnipeg and Brandon, as a starter, to be continued later on to the Rockies.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error, "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

HAS BRITAIN ONE, TOO?

RUBBER OUTRAGES ARE BEING TRACED TO LONDON.

"Truth" Publishes Charges Against Peruvian Amazon Rubber Co. With Headquarters In England — Tells Tales of Ghastly Cruelty to Indians In South America—Native Children Buried Alive Head Downward.

London "Truth" is publishing a narrative of the horrible atrocities which are said to have been practiced on the defenceless Indians in the Putumayo rubber country in Peru.

This rubber collecting business is carried on by the Peruvian Amazon Co., of Salisbury House, London Wall, registered at Somerset House. The secretary of the company, Mr. A. V. Smith, has written as follows in regard to the terrible allegations made against their employes:

"The directors have no reason to believe that the atrocities referred to have in fact taken place, and, indeed, have grounds for considering that they have been purposely mistated for indirect object. Whatever the facts, however, may be, the board of this company are under no responsibility for them, as they were not in office at the time of the alleged occurrences."

Then follows a series of formal statements made by people who declare they have seen the inhumanities practiced on the natives. Extracts are given below, though it should be borne in mind in view of the terrible nature of the allegations that this evidence may yet be controverted.

From a declaration made by a Brazilian citizen, Joao Baptista Braga, before a commandant of the Brazilian army: It would be an endless task to relate the innumerable crimes that I have seen committed during my stay in this section. Here, recently, in the month of July the tuchaua known as Tirsoshuaca and his wife were held prisoners in chains.

When Jimenes — who had been temporarily absent—arrived, he had them brought into his presence, and told them that if their tribe did not appear within the space of eight days he would show them what he would do with them.

The eight days passed, and as the tribe did not come he ordered a can of kerosene to be poured over them, and then, striking a match, he set fire to these unfortunates, who fled to the forest, uttering the most desperate cries.

Naturally, upon seeing such an awful crime committed, I expressed my horror at it to Jimenez, who replied that if there were anybody who wished to protest against the orders he gave he would be served in the same manner, and that if the company kept him as chief it was because he knew how to do his duty.

From a statement declared before a notary at Iquitos by Daniel Collantes: Martinengui ordered a commission to set out for the houses of some neighboring Indians and exterminate them, with their women and children, as they had not brought in the amount of rubber that he had ordered.

This order was strictly carried out, for the commission returned in four days, bringing along with them fingers, ears, and several heads of the unfortunate victims to prove to the chief that they had carried out his orders.

A Brazilian paper, The Journal do Commercio, published at Manaos, printed an account of a "barbarous deed" close to the Brazilian frontier. This was a narrative of a butchery of inoffensive Indians by a band of Peruvian rubber collectors.

Having killed twenty-five, they discharged their weapons at the Indians who were constructing the roof of the h[illegible] poor unfortunates, p[illegible] bullets, some dead, other[illegible] rolled off the roof and fell to the ground.

Not content with these cowardly murders, they took the Indian women of advanced age, threw them into the canoes of the Colombians, and conducted them to the middle of the river, and then discharged their rifles at them, killing them all.

What they did with the children was still more barbarous, for they jammed them head downwards into the holes that had been dug to receive the posts that were to support the house.

The Peruvians, after taking possession of the merchandise, conducted the Colombians, the tuchaua (Indian chief) of the Andoques, two Indians, and an Indian woman to Matanzas, the dwelling-place of Norman, the journey taking two days.

Here the prisoners were tied up with cords, and afterwards shut up in one of the houses, where they passed a night of torture. In the morning the tuchaua and the two Indians were taken out to a near-by knoll and clubbed to death.

These outrages took place prior to the formation of the Peruvian Amazon Co. "Truth" remarks that the company "only comes into the case as being responsible for the way the business is conducted at the present moment."

In reply to questions in the House of Commons concerning the alleged atrocities, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said he had asked for a report on the subject. He would inquire if the Belgian consul had made a report to his Government. The shareholders in the Peruvian Amazon Co. had made no request to the Foreign Office for an inquiry.

Must Be Careful.

One of the undeniable marks of a genius is the mark he leaves as a result of infinite labor on themes he loves. No famous poet was ever so great that he could neglect to leave one word that made his whole effort inharmonious. If Canadian writers are to reach the highest peaks in literature they must learn this lesson. They must free themselves from the criticism that attaches to hurriedly done work and to reckless versification.—Sunday World, Toronto.

Wonderful Jasper Park.

The Commissioner of Dominion Parks, who has recently returned from Jasper Park and Pass in the Rocky Mountains on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is enthusiastic in his praises of the scenery in that district. The opening of this new wonderland by the construction of the railway will add another to the attractions of life in the Province of Alberta. Vigorous construction next summer will put the Grand Trunk Pacific steel into the new Pass and Open its wonders to those who have the time, money and inclination for an outing. Switzerland has made perhaps as much from its scenery as it could have made from agricultural had its surface been more level, and the Province of Alberta in the Jasper region has a Switzerland declared by competent judges to be quite as attractive as that to which the wealthy of Europe and United States now flock, and built on a much larger scale.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life; in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes today have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such—the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting."

Flies and Bacteria.

A fly bacteriologically examined has been found to carry something like 100,000 bacteria.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Alumni Met.

The regular monthly meeting of the Nicholls Hospital alumni was held yesterday afternoon.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. J. Worden, Piano tuner, representing R. F. Wilks and Co. Toronto, is in Town, Orders left at the Times book store will be attended to at once.

Stanley Cup.

The Ottawa Hockey Club are organizing for the season and are preparing to defend the Stanley Cup.

To Play Professionals.

The old Montreal Wanderers will reorganize this week to play professional hockey. They will be known as the Montreal Professionals.

General Servant Wanted.

Beaver Arrived.

The steamer Beaver arrived last night with the last load of wood this season for the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company.

Here Hunters Go Out.

The remainder of the Gold Lake Hunt Club will leave Saturday morning for the trail. It is reported that the first party have already secured three deer.

Rubbers Goes Up.

The price of rubbers will very soon be doubled in price say the manufacturers, as the price of crude rubber has gone up 200 per cent. in the last few weeks. Now is the time to buy rubbers.

Fresh Strawberries.

In Sackville, N.B., the gardners have fresh strawberries which they gathered after clearing the snow away from the vines. That's going some for the Bluenoses. They are evidently getting some of the Western enthusiasm.

Bad Spelling.

The school inspector in Toronto complains of the poor spellers turned out of the Public schools in that city. The same fault can be found with the pupils turned out of the Peterborough schools.

Good Price Paid.

The last meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held yesterday and the top price reached was 11½c., a particularly high figure for this season. A total of 2345 boxes were sold.

O.H.A. Meeting.

The annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be held in the Temple Building, Toronto, on Saturday, Nov. 20, at 9 o'clock a.m. Peterborough will likely send a delegate. Dr. A. W. MacPherson is on the executive.

Poultry Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association will be held this evening when important business in connection with the annual show in January will be transacted. A full meeting is requested.

Offer a Reward.

The relatives of Burton Rapley of Belleville, who mysteriously disappeared from the Campbell Hotel at Napanee a few weeks ago are offering a reward of $500 for his discovery.

Cost of Street Lights.

Montreal is now about to close a contract for street lighting for five years at $75 per lamp per year. That is a pretty good price but Montreal council think it is cheap enough. They were asked to pay $100 per lamp this year.

Attempted Stabbing.

An arrest was made Tuesday night at the Bishop Construction Company's works, as a result of an Italian attempting to stab one of the foremen on the dam. The prisoner will get a hearing next Monday morning in the county police court

Cement Merger.

The directors of the Canada Cement Company, flatly deny that they have raised the price of cement, as is claimed by the Union of Canadian Municipalities. The Canada Cement Company have no control over the prices this year and have not considered prices for next year. The above was taken from the Montreal Star of Tuesday.

Club Smoker.

If the Peterborough Hockey Club wishes to make a success of the game next season they should organize now and the officers get busy gathering the material for a championship team. A lively campaign for raising finances should also be started and a good revenue producer would be "smokers," etc. Peterborough should carry off the championships this year.

Bridge Whist Stays.

The delegates to the sixteenth annual convention of the W.C.T.U. at Halifax, positively refused to interfere with the bridge whist players. Evidently the W.C.T.U. ladies delight in playing the very fascinating gambling game and it is therefore not a sinful pastime. A bet on the horse races is, however, gambling.

The Welsh Choir.

The Royal Welsh Choir which is now touring Canada gave a concert last night before a large audience. They came, they sang, they conquered. It is almost impossible to compliment sufficiently the ladies of this company individually or collectively to do justice to their singing. From the beginning to the end of their program they were applauded heartily. Their choral singing was well nigh perfect, while the solo work was a revelation and a model of clear enunciation, unaffected simplicity of manner and purity of tone.

ECZEMA AND PILES CURED.

Magistrate and School Commissioner Healed By Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk by its healing power has earned the praise of men and women in the highest stations of life. One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favor is Mr. C. E. Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S. Mr. Sanford is a Justice of the Peace for the county, and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed, throughout the county it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected.

Some time back he had occasion to test Zam-Buk, and here is his opinion of this great balm. He says: "I had a patch of eczema on my ankle, which had been there for over twenty years! Sometimes also the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had taken solution of arsenic, had applied various ointments, and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but in vain, Zam-Buk, unlike all else I tried, proved highly satisfactory, and cured the ailment.

"I have also used Zam-Buk for itching piles, and it has cured them completely also. I take comfort in helping my brother man, and if the publication of my experience of Zam-Buk will lead other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the cure of piles or skin diseases, I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk also cures burns, cuts, ulcers, blood porsoning, ringworm, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. Rubbed well on to the chest in cases of cold it relieves the tightness and aching. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

"The Soul's Awakening."

Never in the history of newspapers has there been such enthusiasm over a premium as "The Soul's Awakening" has created during the past two weeks. Almost every newspaper in Canada has published most flattering tributes to The Family Herald's enterprise. Clergymen of all denominations have written thanking the Publishers for giving the people of Canada an opportunity to possess such a picture. Every mail brings scores of letters from parents, fathers and mothers, expressing their sincere gratitude for furnishing the home with such an elevating influence. School Inspectors have written suggesting that every school room in Canada should have a copy of "The Soul's Awakening," believing that it will have a powerful, though silent, influence on the minds of the children. The Family Herald and Weekly Star alone is big value at one dollar, but with this picture as a premium it looks like giving away money. It is said the supply is limited and there is a big rush of subscriptions. No one should miss it.

A physician of Galion, O., says: "For the last few years I have been a sufferer from indigestion and although I have used various remedies and prepared foods with some benefit it was not until I tried Grape-Nuts that I was completely cured.

"As a food it is pleasant and agreeable, very nutritious and is digested and assimilated with very little effort on the part of the digestive organs.

As a nerve food and restorer it has no equal and, as such, is especially adapted to students and other brain workers. It contains the elements necessary for the building of nerve tissue and by so doing maintains an equilibrium of waste and repair.

"It also enriches the blood by giving an increased number of red blood corpuscules and in this way strengthens all the organs, providing a vital fluid made more nearly perfect. I take great pleasure in recommending its use to my patients for I value it as a food and know it will benefit all who use it."

VOL. XXXII NO. 258 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY NOVEMBER 5, 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

An Important Public Meeting is Called for Next Tuesday Night

Aggressive Action Should be Taken to Make Peterborough a Manufacturing City—Large Attendance Expected

A public meeting under the auspices of the Board of Trade and a number of business men will be held on Tuesday night in the Collegiate Institute assembly Hall.

To The Times a prominent citizen who is interested in the meeting said that the time is now opportune for an effort to be put forth by citizens to lay the foundation of Peterborough's future manufacturing prosperity. Canada is rapidly growing and during the next ten years or so manufacturing cities will have to spring up in Ontario as the result of its geographical position. Only those places which are making an effort to get factories will succeed. From its natural resources, its location, its position on the Trent Canal, its railway facilities, and its water power, Peterborough possesses advantages not equalled by any other municipality in Ontario. Aggressive action, therefore should be undertaken in the near future for the purpose of making Peterborough a manufacturing city. For this reason a citizens' meeting will be held when it is hoped means will be devised of having a compiled knowledge of the resources of Peterborough, and of placing the city in a position to offer favorable terms to manufacturers to locate here. The citizens will appreciate very much the importance of this meeting on Tuesday night next as the matters to be discussed are of general public interest and a large attendance is requested.

An effort is being made now by lecturers on farming and its kindred industries and by farm journals, to induce the farmer to engage his help by the year instead of for only a few months. The state of the help market is due entirely to the farmer who is too close to give a man employment and too near-sighted to see the benefit of a steady man on farm. The Canadian Farm; a weekly agricultural journal published in Toronto, has the following to say editorially:—

"This is the season when the hired man on most farms is dispensed with. He is paid off for his summer's work and asked to come around next spring when another seven or eight months' engagement will be entered into. Such a plan is neither good for the hired man nor for the farmer. Unless he has some special trade he cannot find steady employment during the winter and is forced to spend the cold months in idleness, using up what he has earned in the summer. The plan is not good for the farmer either. In nine cases out of ten he does not get his old help back again inthe spring, and has to begin all over again to train in a new man. A yearly engagement is the only safe course to follow. If the hired man has shown himself to be competent and trustworthy, it will pay the farmer to keep him through the winter, even if he has not much for him to do. He will thus become familiar with the plans for next season's crop and will be able to start right in as soon as spring opens up and push the work right along to a finish. Engaging farm help by the year is the thing to do. Both parties to the transaction will profit by it."

Simpson and Sellen Meet Tomorrow Night

Fred Simpson and Percy Sellen, two very fast distance runners will meet tomorrow night at the Brock street rink for a ten-mile go. This is the first time the Peterborough people have had an opportunity of witnessing an indoor distance race, and it is also the first time Fred Simpson has run here since he entered the professional ranks, and as he has a lot of friends here who believe that there is more speed in him than has yet been brought out, a crowded house is expected to see the race. The race will start at 8:30 o'clock and the track will be a good one. Simpson feels that he can beat Sellen, at least he is going to try hard. Sellen is a very good boy on his legs and he has run a lot of good races.

JOHNSTON CONFIDENT.

That He Will Put Jeffries Away in the Big Fight.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Jack Johnson, ambitious to get the pugilistic scalp of Alfalfa Jim Jeffries, returned to Chicago yesterday, making a noise like a champion. He started training for the fray by hustling to the Municipal Court, where he paid an appearance fee of $5 in the suit brought against him by his former trainer, Yank Kenney. The suit was filed last week and comes up next week before Judge Hume.

To say that the colored heavyweight is pleased with his success in getting the boilermaker's name to a set of articles is putting it mildly. The big black fighter grinned from ear to ear when asked if he would beat Jeffries when the pair meet.

"If I thought I could not beat Jeff," said Jack, "I'd have signed ar ticles."

Johnson will soon begin a short theatrical tour. He will be in New York again inside of a month, when the bids for the championship battle are opened. After the awarding of the battle Johnson intends to put in close to three months of solid training.

Since seeing Jim Jeffries in New York, when articles were signed for a heavyweight championship battle, Johnson is more confident than ever that he can whip the boilermaker.

"Jeffries did not speak to me at all, and I didn't expect him to. If what has been said about his feelings is true, then heavenly is ours, and as I didn't go into that meeting to make friends with him I am just as well satisfied.

"It will serve my purpose just as well to have him good and mad when he enters the ring. He will get a worse licking than ordinarily if that is the case. A man entering the ring with a grouch will not show good judgment at any time.

"There is one thing that I am delighted with. I have shown my sincerity in making this match and thereby unarmed all of the critics who have been berating me for cowardice and the like. The fact that I went clear across the continent when I should, by all that is right and just, have forced Jeffries to come to me, has disarmed all of those fellows who swore that I never would screw up the courage to face Jeffries, even for the purpose of signing articles. I found there was nothing so terrible about Jeffries at all.

"I will pick up a few theatrical dates probably and put in the time that way until I see where this battle is going to be and when and all about it. Then I will plan differently.

"I see my colored brother, Sam Langford, is getting upon his high horse and yelling for a match. He can have one, you bet, but as I have said before, he must post a forfeit of $10,000 to show me that he is not using my name to advertise himself and that he will go through with any contract, that we may sign. That's the only way in which Mr. Langford can get an audience with me."

Johnson did not have much to say about the story from Galveston to the effect that he is building his mother a $10,000 house there. He admitted that he was sending her about $200 a month for living expenses, and his press agent added: "it might just as well be admitted right at the start that Arthur is good to his folks. All fighters are supposed to be that."

Ducks are Late in Reaching Rice Lake

At Rice Lake old residents predict a late arrival of winter. One reason given is that the ducks are later than usual arriving in large numbers. One who has lived there forty-seven years, says he never knew this indication to fail. Winter will be some time yet in coming, he said.

Although this may afford poor comfort to the sportsmen, it is good news to the farmers, for there are large quantities of roots still in the ground.

ELOPED WITH GIRL.

Mr. Tuck has sworn out a warrant for Murray on a charge of abducting his daughter.

AIRESS' TRIAL.

Set For Tuesday Before His Honor Judge Huycke.

Jesse Airess, charged with the theft of a gold watch and a ring from the rooms at the National Hotel fire, appeared before his Honor Judge Huycke yesterday morning and elected to be tried summarily by the judge. Airess will therefore appear before his honor again on Tuesday next for trial. The defence in the case will be that the occupants of the rooms sent Airess along with other young fellows to their rooms to recover their valuables and bring them down. This course was followed by many and it will be shown that the accused had no intention whatever of stealing and that the charges are both groundless.

ARE LAYING CONCRETE.

On the New Water Works Dam on the East Side.

The first concrete was laid yesterday on the second or east half of the new waterworks dam. The Bishop Construction Company have accomplished a great deal this far and had it not been for the large amount of blasting required to be done on the second half to reach the proper depth for the foundation a large portion of the wall would now be up. The river bed was solid rock and they went down between two and three feet. At the present time, however, they have a gang of a hundred and forty men at work, and not a moment is being lost. The weather thus far has been favorable and if it only continues so for another two or three weeks the dam will be practically completed.

"FEEBLE STOMACH."

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble," writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such bodycleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for biliousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach or constitution that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c boxes. All dealers, or The Ctarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

REOPENING OF CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Webb Assisted in Reopening Services of Lindsay Baptist Church.

The Lindsay Post says:—The reopening tea and entertainment at the Baptist church last evening was a decided success, despite the inclement weather prevailing.

From six o'clock till nearly eight the appetizing viands were generously distributed among hungry crowds of diners in the school room. The people then assembled in the auditorium to hear the anticipated musical and oratorical treat.

Rev. Mr. Webb, of Peterboro, considered it an honor to be present at the opening of the church, and considered that the improvements showed life and vigor. He hoped that Mr. Welch and his congregation would have many years of joyous work in the present building, and finally in a larger one which they will require.

The reason that some have been making sacrifices and contributions is because they love God. If we love the Master we will want to build the house of the Lord Those of the rising generation will call us blessed because we built a synagogue.

Mr. Webb assured his hearers that there is no one outside of Lindsay more interested in the Lindsay Baptist church than himself.

Japan wants Canadian cattle. One of the Japanese commissioners who is in this country was greatly pleased with the quality of the stock he has seen here and he wants to see some of them in his own country. He said also that Japan would rather trade with Canada than any other nation.

Seven in a Family Sick and Starved, Baby Found Dead

Montreal, Nov. 4.—A terrible case of poverty and starvation was brought to light this morning by two police officers. In a lane off Richmond street a family was found, the mother ill and terribly emaciated, a nine-months' old infant lying dead beside her on the bed, and the other six children all far gone from starvation. Two weeks ago the father, a man called Joseph Cadieux had left for the Satates to take up a job he had secured, leaving his wife and seven children with forty cents to buy food. He was a heavy drinker, and it is thought that he may have gone on a spree and forgotten his family as he did once before. The three rooms they lived in were found in an indescribable state of filth and neglect.

Called Wife Names with His Fingers

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—A divorce was granted by Judge Withero yesterday in the Circuit Court to Mrs. Nannie Burns, a deaf mute, from Joseph Burns, of Granite City, Ill., also a deaf mute, on the testimony of deaf and dumb witnesses.

A woman interpreted the testimony. Mrs. Burns told, by word of hand, of an attack on her last Christmas Day by her husband because she had told him that he ought to go to work. She said, in the sign language, that Burns choked her and attacked her with a butcher knife.

Edward Schale and Mrs. Mart Boyers, mutes, testified that they witnessed the Christmas Day episode Mrs. Burns said her husband called her names with his fingers, but she did not specify the names. Her husband, she said, had a disposition that was incompatible with hers. She also charged desertion. They have three children, all of whom are vocally and orally normal. When the court announced that a decree was granted to Mrs. Burns, the interpreter informed her of the fact, and she signalled, "Thank you."

House of Providence Children were Moved Into Their New Home

The old Bradburn homestead on London street, was yesterday occupied by the children who have been at the House of Providence. This beautiful property was purchased by the Roman Catholic Church some few months ago as a home for the poor children who were being cared for at the House of Providence. The place has been fixed up and furnished throughout and everything is very comfortable and homelike. There are about forty little ones housed there and for the time being are under the direction of the mother of the House of Providence.

A name for the children's home has not yet been selected nor have the details of management been settled upon as his lordship the bishop has been away for some time. He will, however, return this week and the details will be completed at once

The House of Providence will now be devoted entirely to the care of the adults who come under charge of that institution. Much more room is available, and both the old and the young will be better away from each other.

Presbyterian Churches' Evangelistic Campaign

The evangelistic services in the three Presbyterian churches yesterday evening were very largely attended. All the churches were well filled and the people are manifesting a great interest and spirit. Those who are in charge of the meetings are delighted with the increased attendance and their hopes of success are being realized. The object of the meetings is being carried out and there is every reason to believe that a greater christian life will spring up within the city as a result.

IN ST. PAUL'S.

Rev. Mr. MacBeth took his text from David 12—13. "Go thy way till the end be for thou shalt rest and stand in my lot at the end of the day." After briefly discussing the character of Daniel a reference was made to his perplexity over some of the mysterious revelations made to him and which he did not fully understand. In answer God told him to go his way and do his work and wait for the solution of these mysteries hereafter. The text set forth life as a pilgrimage and the points emphasized were the inevitable changes in the scenery of life as we pass on. The end of life was to be held in view and the promise was held out that a lot or special place would be given to the faithful servants.

Rev. Mr. Webb of Murray street Baptist Church was present and took part in the meeting. The singing as usual was of a very high order.

AT ST. ANDREW'S.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson in St. Andrew's church took his text from Roman's 8, 1—23, and the subject of the sermon was "The First Fruits of the Spirit." This is a chapter in experimental christianity, and what was derived from actual experience. The first fruits were:—

Liberty—The law of the spirit of life in Christ has made me free from the law of sin and death.

Spirituality—They that are after the things of the spirit mind the things of the spirit.

A New Affinity—The spirit beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God.

Agony—We that have the first fruits of the spirit groan within ourselves waiting for the spirit of peace.

AT KNOX CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell at Knox church took as his text what Lord Tennyson said was the most pathetic utterance in history, "It is finished." These words signified to Jesus, who uttered them a sigh of relief that the work was done. He was a stranger on earth. He came to his own and His own received Him not Now the time had come for him to go back to His Father.

It was also a note of victory. He had conquered in the work he had come to do. He overcame temptations and now declared, "It is finished." It was a message to the Father, "I have finished the work Thou gavest me to do." It was a proclamation to the world that all necessary for salvation was done. It was a declaration flung out on the wings of Heaven on the trumpet to all regions of the universe declaring that the redemption promised by God, foretold by the prophets, watched for by the angles and undertaken by the Second Person of the Trinity, was an accomplished fact and now the herlads of the cross were able to say, "Come for all things are now ready!"

At the close the reverend gentleman made an appeal to the audience to accept this work Christ had accomplished for us. Already many have taken up the new life.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford of the Park street Baptist church was present and took part in the meeting.

Detectives Have Name of Man Who Gave Miss Kinrade the Flowers

Hamilton, Nov. 4. — A despatch from Norfolk, Va., says that the Pinkerton detectives have learned from Jimmy Baum, the name of the man whose name was attached to the bouquet handed over the footlights to Florence Kinrade at Portsmouth, when she was singing there, causing her great agitation. The name given is that of a Government official in a western Ontario town.

Says The "Red Widow" is Innocent of Crime

Great Sensation Sprung in the Steinheil Case —Jean Lefebvre says He Murdered Her Husband and Her Mother

Paris, Nov. 4.—Given permission to make a statement to the court during the trial of Mme. Marguerite Steinheil for the murder of her husband, Adolphe Steinheil, and Mme. Japy, today, Jean Lefebvre astounded the judges and threw the court into a scene of wild confusion by calmly stating that he had planned and executed the murders, and that Mme. Steinheil was innocent.

Lefebvre obtained permission to speak through M. Aubin, attorney for Mme. Steinheil. The latter received a letter from Lefebvre, asking that he be allowed to interrupt the case and make a statement. When the judges gave the permission he arose and made the confession.

Mme. Steinheil, the terrible ordeal of examination interrupted, sat breathless while the man made his admission. She scarcely appeared alive, as he concluded, and she collapsed in her chair.

Mme. Steinheil gained the sympathy of many of the spectators when, in answer to De Valles' accusations that her stories of the tragedy do not agree, she retorted:

The prisoner seemed to retain some of the charm that had won her position in Paris. But her famous beauty is no longer seen. A year's imprisonment, and her natural anxiety over the charges have had their affect. Her wondrous eyes alone tell of the beautiful woman who once played an important part in the politics of Paris.

TAUNTED THE GOVERNMENT.

Today she taunted the government for failing to confront her with her former lover, M. Borderel, who is the principal witness for the prosecution. He had been kept away from the court room. Mme. Steinheil told the court, under questioning, that "she had lovers, many of them—just as she supposed her husband had mistresses.

The spectators have watched closely for any reference in the story of Mme. Steinheil to Felix Faure, the dead president of France. The only statement that could in any way be construed in that connection was when she said

"My husband took me to the salon of a high dignitary, who was of the highest intelligence, and who later became my lover. He took an interest in my husband's painting. The only wrong he ever did was in dying and not taking me with him."

During her testimony Mme. Steinheil adheres closely to her story that the crime was committed by three men and a red-haired woman clad in long robes, who after killing the artist and Mme. Japy, bound and gagged the prisoner herself.

M. Valles, in his review of the case and throughout his questioning, assumes the attitude outlined in his statement, "Mme. Steinheil was a liar at the age of five. She never reformed."

Mesci, a Hungarian Laborer, Admits Triple Murder

Hungarian Laborer Who Killed Three on Lonely Homestead Caught and Jailed.

Mill Lake, Sask., Nov. 4.—Strongly guarded by constables of the Northwest Mounted Police, John Mesci, the Hungarian laborer, who murdered his employer, George Thorburn, and Mrs. Thorburn's mother, on the homestead near here last Sunday, has been taken to Prince Albert to stand his trial.

The neighbor Dixon, who discovered the terrible crime, says that when he was attracted by the roaring of the hungry cattle, he entered the house. The first sound he heard was the fretful wail of a four-year-old boy in the cellar, and, upon opening the door to go to its relief, he was confronted with the corpse of Thorn burn on the stairway, down which he had fallen head-first when death over took him. He had been dead about 48 hours, it is believed, and had been shot through the body at close range with a gun, the whole charge having struck him in the back just below the left shoulder, and passed through the lungs.

TWO CHILDREN LEFT

Proceeding into the cellar and opening the inner door, Mr. Dixon found a little boy there in a dazed condition from a blow on the head which Mesci had dealt him. The little chap informed Mr. Dixon that "John had shot papa," and afterwards struck him just before he went to sleep." Upstairs Mr. Dixon found a little baby girl hiding in the oven and weeping for her mother, whom she said Mesci had thrown into a hole outside, meaning the well, which is about fifteen feet deep. Horrified by his distressing discovery, Mr. Dixon alarmed the neighbors, and word was sent at once to the Mounted Police at Humbolt, while a search was instituted for the body of the murdered woman, and a body of officers also took the trail of the murderer. The alarm reached here, and every person almost promptly went to give assistance in running down the fugitive.

REMAINS OF WOMEN FOUND.

Today searchers found the body of Mrs. Thorburn in the well, where the baby had said it was thrown, while the remains of Mrs. McNiven, the mother, were found fully dressed with her throat cut, in a bluff about a quarter of a mile away. How they came to be there is not yet fully explained, but it is surmised that when Mesci began his murderous work she fled from the house and was pursued and killed.

This morning the little boy stated that John (the hired man) had shot papa, and hit him and put him to sleep.

It was a heartrending sight the coroner and homesteaders of the district were required to gaze upon, with the little orphans crying for their parents who were lying dead.

ARREST OF MESCI.

The police followed the trail of Mesci easily, as he had cooly stopped at several houses along the way to obtain meals and feed the horses. He was arrested early this evening beyond Wyny by the police after a short and swift chase.

Mesci explained the occurence as follows: "I wished to go to town on Monday morning to enter for a homestead. Mr. Thornburn objected. I went and got a gun and shot Thorburn twice."

Then he ran inside and the women came out and started to run for Mr. J. Morley's, a neighbor. He came on Mrs. Niven first, hit her with the gun, knocked her down, and cut her throat. He then proceeded to hunt Mrs. Thorburn, who had got into a small bluff to hide. He found her, knocked her down, cut her throat, and sat on her body till life was gone.

OBITUARY NOTICES.

After an illness extending over three months Mrs. J. H. Miller passed away at her home, 336 Water street, yesterday afternoon about a quarter to three o'clock. The deceased was born in Chisms Rapids some 55 years ago, and was married to Mr. Miller in 1876. For the past 23 years they have resided in this citywhere they are well known and have a large circle of friends. The late Mrs Miller leaves her husband, two daughters and two sons to mourn her loss. The sons are Harry and John and the daughters are Mrs. Pappas and Miss Christina, who lives at home. Two sisters, Mrs J. H. Bettes and Miss Annie Smith, both of the city, and two brothers, John Smith of Bewdly, and William Smith of Beaufort Bridge, also survive. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Joseph J. Carter.

It is with the most profound and universal sorrow that we chronicle the death of Joseph Julian, the beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Carter, Havelock, aged two years, 11 months and 23 days, after but a short illness. He was an exceptionally bright and winning child, which made him a favorite with all who knew him and his untimely death has cast a gloom over the entire village. Among the many beautiful tributes was a wreath from the Citizens' Band. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon. Service was held at the house of his parents, King street, by the Rev. Mr. Balfour of the Methodist church, after which they laid him to rest in the Maple Grove cemetery.

This lovely bud, so young, so fair,
Called hence by early doom,
Just came to show how sweet a flower
In Paradise would bloom.

No sin could harm or sorrow fade,
Death came with friendly care
The opening bud to heaven conveyed
And bade it blossom there.

THE WEATHER.

Moderate to fresh westerly winds; fair; no decided change in temperature.

Mr. G. L. Brock of Brighton, is in the city on business.

Sciatica

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY. Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored By "Nerviline."

We have all read and heard of the agonies of sciatica, but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 25 cents per bottle or five for $1.00 sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1909.

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with [illegible] of the famous men of the past who have made the [illegible] to be guilty of [illegible] person. "I have discontinued them in two respects lately," he wrote to a friend, explaining the matter. "I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Formoy - generally conceiving him to be an Irish member - on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife!"

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, is just your sentence he; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life; in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such - the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with the iron shavings and then subjected to pressure sufficient to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under shock or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions.'"

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George E. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects are alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Men Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said, "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to buy me one like it without a word, but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Crosby, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Crosby had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or——

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Menzel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

There Only by Inference.

An Englishman coming by train to Glasgow for the first time and passing Motherwell Junction said to a gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, 'Motherwell.' Is there a 'Fatherwell' next?"

"No," was the reply, 'but we come immediately to Bothwell."—London Tit-Bits.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?

Will you tell some sick friend of this my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments every where in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, faltering, inside or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician side to say to the suffering sick, "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "no help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some article ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember that tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 32, Racine, Wis.

A PRELATE'S LOTTERY.

Archbishop of Canterbury Once Ran a Big Drawing.

A lottery run by an Archbishop of Canterbury is unthinkable at the present day, and yet in the reign of George II. the greatest lottery ever known in Britain was run by the Primate, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker of the House of Commons. The splendid library which that noted doctor and art collector, Sir Hans Sloane had gathered during his lifetime—Sloane street and Sloane square still keep his memory green—was offered by his executors to the nation for the nominal sum of £20,000. But the Treasury, as usual, pleaded poverty, and pretended it could not find that large sum! So the Archbishop of Canterbury, in conjunction with the two gentlemen named above, organized a state lottery, with the sanction of Parliament, in order to raise the required money.

A hundred thousand tickets at £3 each were issued, and no less than £300,000 was to be distributed in prizes to the lucky winners of the numbers drawn, the first being £10,000, and the lowest a £10 note. So successful was the venture that all the tickets were eagerly purchased by the public, and there was more than £100,000 left in the hands of the Archbishop, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker to dispose of. They made most excellent use of this money for the benefit of the nation, as the record of their expenditure easily proves. They built the first portion of the British Museum with it; they bought the Sloane collection mentioned above; they purchased those priceless treasures, the Harleian and Cottonian manuscripts; and they put by a goodly sum as an endowment fund for the new museum.

A lottery helped to beat the Spanish Armada in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It was the first state lottery to take place in this country, and it was arranged at the express desire of the astute Queen herself for a most noble purpose. Her order ran as follows: "Her Majesty wisheth it to the intente that such profits as may arise, after the charges borne, may be converted towards the repaire of havens and ships and strength of the Realme, and such other public good workes."

This lottery was a great success, and with its profits the very vessels with which Drake and Lord Howard beat the "Invincible Armada" were made seaworthy and fit; of that there can hardly be a doubt. In the year of Trafalgar a public lottery yielded over £300,000 to the state; and from 1709 to 1824 there was scarcely a single year in which the Government did not raise a large sum by lotteries sanctioned by Parliament.

Crossing the Channel.

By what means will man next attempt to cross the Channel? The question naturally arises as one reads of the many curious and novel methods by which men have tried of late years to cross from Dover to Calais. It was only a day or two after Blériot's successful flight across the Channel that a man named Westlake announced his intention of crossing on a plank, two feet wide, 18 feet long, and two inches thick, fitted with a mast and sail and two empty oil-drums to give it buoyancy. Westlake, however, was picked up more dead than alive off the Belgian coast, but still hopes to accomplish the feat.

A few days later Thomas Walsrell set out to row across the Channel in a boat of his own construction, consisting of two planks, with sides a few inches high. He was ultimately picked up in the North Sea and landed at Rotterdam.

Some two or three years ago four old Etonians attempted to row from Dover to Calais in a four-oar pulling-boat, but before they got halfway across the Channel the boat was swamped and the crew nearly drowned.

Smuggling Opium.

All sorts of tricks and dodges are resorted to by the Chinese of Australia to evade the law prohibiting the importation of opium into the Commonwealth. At Sydney recently a Chinaman was noticed, when passing the customs officials, to carve a very bulky pig-tail. On examination it was found to contain several pounds of the contraband drug. The profits from the traffic are so enormous as to encourage very desperate efforts to override the law, and the authorities believe that a regular system of importation is in operation, Europeans as well as Chinese being engaged in it. In fact, two custom officials and a water policeman are now awaiting trial in Sydney on a charge of conspiracy in smuggling. A coast line of 10,000 miles is all in favor of this nefarious traffic

Suiting Her Convenience.

Count D'Orsay, on his first visit to England, chanced to be seated at dinner next to Lady Holland. That remarkable and many-sided woman was in one of her imperious humours. She dropped her napkin; the count picked it up gallantly. Then her fan, then her fork, then her glass and, as often, her neighbor stooped and restored the lost article.

At last, however, the patience of the youth gave way and on her dropping her napkin again he turned and called one of the footmen behind him:

"Put my plate on the floor," said he; "I will finish my dinner there; it will be so much more convenient to Lady Holland."

Tennyson's Love of the Wind.

Tennyson, it will be remembered, had an extraordinary sympathy with the sound of the breeze. As a little child of four years old, he was blown along the garden path of Somersby, shouting to his brothers his first line of Tennysonian blank-verse—"I hear a voice that's calling in the wind." So the mother in "Rizpah" hears Willy's voice in the wind, and so, again and again, in his poetry does he people the storm with the invisible voice of Nature. And it is so that he is best remembered in Freshwater, battling the wind upon the wintry ridge with his poet's cloak fluttering about him. —The Graphic.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves, the King's physician. Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, chuckling delightedly: "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

Can't Be Cut Off With a Shilling.

French parents (or, at all events, those with more than 2 shillings to dispose of by will) are precluded from the gratification of cutting a mutinous child off with a shilling. A reserve is established by law which no testator can bequeath away from his offspring. A Frenchman with one child can dispose of half his property according to his pleasure; the other half must inevitably pass to the child. Those with two children can dispose of only one-third of their property, those with three children of one-fourth, and so on according to the size of the family. Stern parents occasionally seek to evade the law by subterfuge, but the disposal of property in France is hedged round with so many restrictions that family black sheep are rarely muleted of their legal inheritance.—London Mail.

Not the Same.

The new minister was making a duty call at the home of one of his flock, and, taking a little six-year-old miss upon his knee, he said, "Now, my dear, you want to be a Christian like mamma, don't you?"

"No, sir," was the unexpected reply "I would rather sing in the choir."—Chicago News.

Indulgent.

"Her husband is very good to her."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; he does everything to please her, even to talking back when she's looking for an argument."—Detroit Free Press.

They Pass It.

"I suppose the deacons in your church pass the plate?"

"Yes; they even go so far as to cut it absolutely dead. I've never yet seen any of them put in a cent!"—Puck.

THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Behar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and [illegible] parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas receive in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschitt" as inculcated by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without invoking the Supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the routines of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

THE MARIENBAD WORLD.

Taking the Cure at the Salt Springs of Bohemia.

"Half past 5! Time to get up!"

"All right!" you growl in reply, railing while you slowly get out of bed against the absurd tyranny of medicinal waters that insist on being taken so early in the day.

Sallying forth, you find the Marienbad world already astir. Water drinkers are converging from all sides to the spring. Each one on arrival provides himself with a glass and goes forward to receive his daily dose. You join the waiting file. Soon it is your turn, and the attendant maiden for a modest coin fills you a bumper. You take it aside and eye it keenly, holding it to the light. Then, surreptitiously sniffing, you taste it cautiously. The flavor, it appears, is not unpleasant. You are reassured, and, assuming a resigned air, you drain the glass.

Elated by this proof of your courage, you walk out. The band is playing, the promenade crowded. Here you may see the crowned heads, millionaires, great singers and all the other celebrities who frequent Marienbad.

There is a peculiarity of the place that will quickly strike you—the stoutness of many of the visitors. As the Baron von Seidspitz, himself a man of girth, remarked to an English friend, "There are many thick people in Marienbad."

Hunger by this time probably possesses you, for it is 8 o'clock, but do not expect a hearty breakfast. Crisp rolls or toast and fragrant coffee will be enough, served in the open air. To a favored few an egg or a small plate of cold meat is permitted.

Curious morning tasks are prescribed for some of the patients. Mr. X., for instance, is ordered a piping hot mud bath, while Mr. Z. follows the "terrain" cure. This consists in walking an increased distance each day, so as gradually to strengthen the organs of which the functions are impaired. Most people, however, spend their time in reading, writing or lounging.

The welcome call to dinner draws all together about 1 o'clock. Again the fare is simple, the motto being, "Nothing very sour, nothing very sweet, nothing very salt, nothing very fat." Even the restaurants are not allowed to provide dishes harmful to the "cure." So you make yourself content with fish, roast meat or chicken, green vegetables and stewed fruit, and, as for drink, water, diluted claret or Pilsener beer must suffice. Woe to him whose choice strays to made dishes, pastry, cheese or spirits, for these he must abjure as long as he stays at Marienbad.

To rest awhile without taking "forty winks" is the patient's next problem, and when he has worked through it he will probably stroll along to a concert or make an excursion among the delightful pine clad hills that inclose the Marienbad valley.

When evening approaches the gardens and promenade fill with people. They sit about at small tables and sip their coffee while listening to the band.

Your last meal is a light supper at 7 o'clock, and by 9 you should be in bed.

The normal length of the "cure" is four weeks. It is said, however, that Americans, with characteristic energy, have been known to compress it into something like half that time.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Clearing House Operations.

A clearing house is an agency established by the banks of a city to which all checks drawn upon one city bank and deposited in another are sent for payment. Every morning there is a clearance, or settlement, of accounts, by which the checks deposited in each bank and the checks drawn upon each bank are separately summed up and compared. If there is more deposited in a bank than there is drawn upon it the bank receives the difference in cash. If the reverse is the case the bank pays the balance instead of receiving it. The term clearance means either the act of settlement or the sum of all the checks presented for payment. The amount of business done by the clearing house is a pretty sure index of the general condition of business.—New York American.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—16 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Cripple Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 200,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 200,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $500. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 200,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the last opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

An Probable Future Events Arranged For in Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an exchange of bows, at which all members of both families present, we retired to the great dressing room, where the ceremony was to be performed in a magnificent gilded cage, mostly mirrors. Presently the groom and groomsmen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the altar, and when we were all assembled the chief officiating, to read a long homily, which he afterward he had compiled with the help of his colleagues. Then, as my sister answered, as eager to escape all the ceremonies of the future bride and bridegroom, many bonds and mortgages, so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, portions of personal assessment, furniture and jewels, the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de R——, whose great good sense has always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us marriage is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there to his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

Franklin as a Swimmer.

In 1726 Benjamin Franklin was working as a printer at Watts', near Lincoln Inn Fields, and taught two shopmates to swim "at twice going into the river." With them and some of their friends from the country he paid a visit by water to Chelsea, and "in our return," he recorded, "at the request of the company, whose curiosity Wygate had excited, I stripped and leaped into the river and swam from near Chelsea to Blackfriars, performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water, that surprised and pleased those to whom they were novelties."—London Tatler.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

JUST A HEADACHE.

You all know the woman who seems to think that she acquires merit by having a headache.

A headache is her constant companion, and what's more, if she doesn't actually pride herself in it she cherishes much the same feeling toward it that a martyr does toward her martyr's crown. Martyrdom is not with out the compensation of glory. Any headache is reckoned to be a self imposed affliction or at least a martyrdom to an empty cause.

And there are such among the headache martyrs. The headache martyr is the one who has had headaches so often that she has a headache smile.

"It's just a headache," she says, with a wan smile, as if headaches with her were as much a part of the program as her meals.

If that is the case with this poor sufferer she is greatly to be pitied. There are numberless cases on record where people have had persistent headaches the cause of which has stubbornly baffled the physicians. Such a state of affairs is highly regrettable. But how many women have taken the pains to assure themselves that their headaches are inevitable? This spirit of meek submission to the inevitable, it must be remembered, is only commendable when the inevitable is actually not to be avoided, and a lot of things are called inevitable that have simply never been questioned.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, writing in the Delineator, says:

"Pain wherever found is nature's abrupt command 'Halt!'—her imperative order to stop. When you have taken that step you have taken the most important single step toward a cure.

"A headache always means something"—now mark some of the things he says it may mean—"overwork, underventilation, eye strain, underfeeding. Some error," he adds, "is being committed; some bad physical habit is being dropped into."

So what's the use of pitying the woman with the headache smile if she hasn't at least gone over this simple list of causes and made an effort to adjust the trouble?

"There are a dozen different remedies that will stop pain," says this author, "from opium and chloroform down to the coal tar remedies, but not one of them cures in the sense of doing anything toward removing the cause."

WISE MAN UNDERSTOOD.

A wise man once went to the market place of a town, where a lot of people were buying and selling things, and he called out in a loud voice: "Ho, ho, listen to me, all you people! I have been ordered by the king to collect all the clever people and take them to him, because he wishes to reward them."

All that heard him said they were clever, and they all gathered round, when he called out in a loud voice:

"Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! The king has just sent me word that he means to reward only those who are fools, so only those who are not clever must go with me to the palace."

All the people of the town looked at the wise man, and then one by one they joined him again because, so they said, they were fools.

The wise man shook his head sadly, and he sighed as he said: "Ah, the world goes as the wind blows! Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! You can all go back to the market place as quick as you can, for you first said you were clever and then you said you were not, and you can't be both."

The wise man knew quite well that the people only wanted the reward.

How Sarah Bernhardt Rests.

In a letter to a friend Sarah Bernhardt tells how she spends the days of her vacation in Belle-Isle-en-Mer. The actress says she "rests" by tiring herself. There is a daily schedule. At 5 in the morning she is awakened. After a cup of coffee she takes her gun and goes hunting for birds. At 8 she returns to the house, has a light breakfast and goes to the shore to fish for shrimps. This occupies two hours. At 11 she takes her bath, makes her toilet and is ready for luncheon at 12:30. After luncheon comes the hour for the siesta. This, she observes, is a sacred institution in the routine of her household. One need not necessarily sleep, but the command is to keep still for two hours. At 2:30 she goes to her studio, where she reads manuscripts, looks over her parts or works at her sculpture. The tennis hour is 5 o'clock. Dinner follows the game. After dinner there is music, and by 9 o'clock every one is in bed. In ending her letter Mme. Bernhardt says: "Thus pass my days in Belle Isle. They all are alike. They are charming and splendid. I have a divine sensation of being alive these days more than all the rest of the days of the year."

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

It Came Just at the Time He Wanted to Sell His Place.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore always decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some parties in the proposition and commenced a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spicade situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking Them to the Yoke.

Edward Lisle, whose "Observations on Husbandry" was published in 1757, described the method employed by his "oxhind" or cattleman to break cattle to the yoke: "He yoked two of the steers, being two yearlings, together and so suffered them to walk about the ground where there were no pits or ditches for them to receive hurt by. He also tied together the bushy parts of their tails, the reason of which was because they should not be able to turn their heads to each other so as to strike one another with their horns or by bending their necks too much by endeavoring to face one another and then striving break their necks." In this condition the oxhind let them go on the ground, if without holes or ditches, all night or else turned them into an empty open barn so yoked and thus treated them two or three times before he worked them.

Consolation.

There was once a Billville citizen who could never rid himself of the chills, but went shivering through the hottest days of summer. When at last it seemed that all was up with him, his good wife to comfort him said:

"John, you've been a-shakin' an' a-shiverin' all yer life, but you'll get warm over there!"

"For the Lord's sake, Mary," said the shivering man, "don't talk so! Which way do you think I'm a-goin'?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Music Hath Charms.

"So you are fond of music?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "I have the highest regard for it. When you go home and meet a crowd of constituents there is nothing like a brass band to take their minds off the explanations they have been looking for."—Washington Star.

An Instance.

Knicker—Time brings many strange changes. Bocker—Yes; the boy whose mother can't make him wash his neck grows up to be a rich man who goes abroad for baths.—Harper's Bazar.

It's folly to try deaf mutes as servants: they won't answer.

A Woman's Queer Will.

Dame Margaret Morell Mackenzie, widow of the English throat specialist, has forbidden her children by will to be dismal because she is dead. "When I die," she says in her will, which was recently proved, "I hope my children will wear as little black for mourning as possible. White or mauve I like, but not black. And I hope they will not shut themselves up but go out among their friends to places of amusement. I am not afraid of them forgetting me, and I want them to be happy."

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 11th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,188 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be receivable at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent. on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY PERSON WHO IS THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The application must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of an intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him, or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader quarter-section may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products, also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many exact and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 7000 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastorial portion of the Dominion, and is unsurpassed for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the business that has been brought success. For this reason, and other careful consideration, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the liability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 21 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

Distance of the Pleiades.

It was calculated some years ago by the leading astronomers of Europe that Alcyone, the star in the Pleiades around which the sun and the whole solar system are thought to be revolving, was about 944,000,000,000,000 miles from us, a distance that it would take light about 161 years to travel, going at the rate of 186 miles a second.

A COBBLER SHAKESPEARE.

Hans Sachs Is the Great German Dramatic Genius.

The stage in Germany is as much indebted to Hans Sachs as the English stage is to Shakespeare. This immortal was born in the year 1494, of lowly parentage, being the son of a tailor and apprenticed to a shoemaker.

In those days apprentices and masters of the craft wandered through the country, going from town to town, and were classed under the title of trade companies. On his journeys through the country he combined with cobbling the art of song, which was cultivated by these itinerant artisans, especially in South Germany and the Rhinelands.

Returning to Neuremberg, he threw himself heart and soul into the art of song, poetry and dramatic production, but at the same time continuing at his trade. Sachs had in his travels visited Frankfort, Wurzburg, Cologne, Munich, Vienna, Lubeck and many other places, and he learned things new, not only about boots and shoes, but about poetry, and when, at the age of twenty-two, he settled down in Neuremberg, he was able to stand up as a reformer of the German drama.

Sachs' life covered a period of eighty-two years, and his ability as a writer was nothing short of marvelous. It is said that there were years in which he wrote as many as eighteen plays. In fact, in 1556, he wrote eight tragedies and ten comedies.

As a heritage to posterity he left 198 dramatic works, 59 tragedies, 65 comedies, 64 Shrove-tide plays and 10 dramatic works, which the author termed "plays." Not alone was he famous as a dramatic writer, but 4,000 master songs were composed by him, besides an immense number of fables and epoch poems. Sachs got his subjects everywhere. The Biblical motives furnished him with such plays as "The Passion," "The Sacrifice of Isaac," "The Childhood of Moses," etc. The legends of the middle ages furnished him with "Tristan and Isolde," "Siegfried the Horny," "Oliver and Artus," and he also introduced a large number of classical subjects, including "Clytemnestra," "Alcestis," "The Destruction of Troy," "Ulysses," "Perseus," "Andromeda," and many others. Sachs particularly excelled with his Shrove-tide plays, the best known of which were, "The Wandering Scholar" and "The Exorcist." It was no doubt due to Hans Sachs that the first theatre of Germany was built in 1550 in Neuremberg.

Molten Wood.

"Molten Wood" is the latest production of the German chemical industry. The new substance seems almost as paradoxical as "wooden iron." Wood that can be melted is obtained by subjecting it to a special process of distillation at a temperature of 140 degrees Cel. in vacuum. The process eliminates all organic acids, phosphates, and the like, nothing remaining except the skeleton fibres of the wood that can be melted down at a temperature of 200 degrees.

The new product is said to possess many valuable qualities; it is close grained, especially adapted for engraving, extraordinarily hard and durable. Printers' ink and dyes make a good impression on the new substance.

A great future is claimed for "molten wood," more especially in the printing and engraving trades, as its qualities for reproduction are unsurpassed. During the process of distillation it can be impregnated with antiseptic material, thus being rendered proof against decay or the attacks of insects. Experiments are being made with it in the buildings trades, and it is generally believed that it will soon become a staple article of commerce.

Arming the Yeomanry.

I understand that Mr. Haldane and the Army Council are seriously considering the question of re-arming the Yeomanry. One of the many unwise deductions drawn from the South African war was that the sword as a weapon for cavalry was no longer useful. Since then the Yeomanry have been armed with rifles. Military experts are now returning to the "white weapon." During the recent manoeuvres the Yeomanry were more than once placed in a position when "the charge" was the only way out of an awkward and dangerous predicament. The fact that they had no weapon with which to charge naturally forbade "the order." I am assured the wise men of the War Office contemplate restoring the sabre to the Yeomanry cavalry.—Dundee Courier.

Shortest Street In London.

There can hardly be a shorter street in London than the one connecting Pall Mall with the southeastern corner of St. James' Square, from which the name John street has just been removed. It has only one house, which is No. 1; for, though there are two other doors in the street, one is numbered as belonging to Pall Mall and the other is the side-entrance of a public house. Presumably, therefore, the single house is now to be absorbed in St. James' Square, and the London Directory is to lose yet another of the slowly-diminishing total of John streets.

Get Rid of Smoke.

There is no need of smoke-belching chimneys. How to make a fire of bituminous coal consume its own smoke has been amply demonstrated by engineering science. The owners of mills are slow to adopt the improved furnaces and rational stacking. They need to be educated up to them, and where should they get their education more appropriately than from the universities;—Vancouver Daily Province.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the points to presented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very many things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and those two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehog is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

Wonderful Jasper Park.

The Commissioner of Dominion Parks who has recently returned from Jasper Park and Pass in the Rocky Mountains on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is enthusiastic in his praises of the scenery in that district. The opening of this new wonderland by the construction of the railway will add another to the attractions of life in the Province of Alberta. Vigorous construction next summer will put the Grand Trunk Pacific steel into the new Park and Open its wonders to those who have the time, money and inclination for an outing. Switzerland has made perhaps as much from its scenery as it could have made from agricultural had its surface been more level, and the Province of Alberta in the Jasper region has a Switzerland declared by competent judges to be quite as attractive as that to which the wealthy of Europe and United States now flock, and built on a much larger scale.

POSTMAN'S PUZZLES.

Ingenious Persons Manage to Give a Lot of Trouble.

Some folks appear to have a penchant for giving the postal officials unnecessary trouble, and among the worst in this category are those who delight in so addressing their letters that the sorters—who on all occasions have to work at high pressure—have to waste valuable time in trying to decipher the meaning of a none too clever verse, perhaps. It speaks volumes for the sorters and postmen that, with even the most attenuated clue to the addressee, the missive is almost sure of delivery.

From time to time the writer has noted these "curious" addresses, and gives here some of the most interesting examples from his collection.

This letter please take to the land of white ducks.
The beechy and beautiful county of Bucks;
And there, if your search on the map is most thorough,
You'll find a small township called Princes Risborough.
At the postoffice there will you then leave this letter.
My friends there are (W)right, so they couldn't be better.

Similar are the following examples. In February, 1880, "Uncle Toby," the conductor of the Children Corner of The Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, received a letter addressed:

To Uncle Toby this missive is sent,
And I'm sure the penny is very well spent.
The weekly newspaper, The Chronicle named,
Is in Newcastle and through England famed.
Mr. Editor this to my Uncle will give,
And heartily hope that both may long live.

In the same year a gentleman at Ayr duly received an envelope bearing this superscription:

Awa' to auld Scotland, and speer for John Graeme;
It's a wide direction, but a well-known name.
In the new town o' Ayr, at the auld Brig-en,
He sells a drap whusky, but the postman will ken.
And if ye should fin' him, as I've nae doot you will,

In 1831, Regent street, London, was known as Swallow street, and the following was sent to a lady there:

Dear honest postman, be so kind
To take this to a friend of mine.
She is a Fox—Lucy's her name,
In Swallow street you'll find the same;
She is a cruel little toad,
And lives not far from Oxford Road.

Here is another poetical effusion:

'Midst corn and clover, grain and grass,
There lives and laughs one Mr. Vass;
'Tis not from Barnet very far—
Should you arrive while he about is,
Pray stop and ask him how the goat is,
And beg him (mind, the postage paid is)
To give this letter to the ladies.

A Canadian Grub In London.

By a log of wood riddled with tiny tunnels, says a London correspondent, stands an ordinary-looking beetle in the insect house at the London Zoo. It has just been born as a beetle from the grub which drove those tunnels. It belong to the Longicorn family of beetles.

The grub was sent from Canada in a small log of Vancouver pine to a lady eighteen months ago. When recently it turned into a beetle she sent it to the Zoo, and it has just emerged in its final state, but it may have been anywhere between twenty and fifty years in the wood, boring the tunnels through the log.

An official at the Gardens says that naturalists have not yet settled how long it takes beetles to accomplish this work of boring. There is the historic case of the Natural History Museum grub of the same species. For fourteen years it lived undiscovered in the boot tree constantly used by an Indian military officer and probably had lived in the wood itself before it was made into a boot tree.

When the officer first discovered the grub he handed the boot tree, grub and all, over to the museum. It was placed in a show case, where it lived ten years. About once annually the grub used to poke its head out into the daylight, when the curator promptly pushed it back into the wood and plugged up the hole so that it could dig its way out.

"The Weeping Counsel."

It was on account of his earnest and emotional pleading for Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, that Lord Halsbury, who recently celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday, was so christened. If his lordship believes in lucky numbers, he has reason to regard "5" as his own. He was born in 1825; he began his career at the Bar in 1850; he was made a Q.C. in 1865; he was appointed Solicitor-General in 1875; he became Lord Chancellor in 1885; and he commenced his third term of office in 1895. An incident in his early days brought his career perilously near a close. While defending a prisoner at the Old Bailey he excited the animosity of an insane clergyman, who fired a revolver at him. This is the only instance on record of an attempt to assassinate an English advocate in the performance of his professional duties.

Keeping Busy.

Walking one day amongst his old parishioners in the East End of London, Dr. Lang (now Archbishop of York) stopped a parishioner who had married a man who enjoyed the reputation of being the laziest man in the East. "Well, Mrs. Brown," he said, "I hope your husband is proving a good provider." "Yes, sir, thank you, sir," she replied; "he's provided me with three new places to work at since we were married."

Repairs Started.

Carpenters have started to work on the National Hotel to get in shape for the re-opening since the big fire.

Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision met again last night and dealt with a number of appeals against the assessment The labors of the court will be comparatively light this year.

Rugby Practice.

There was a good turnout at Rugby practice last night. The seniors have been putting in some good work in preparation for their big game tomorrow with T.A.A.C. of Toronto.

Guy Fawkes' Day.

This is Guy Fawkes Day, and the Orangemen will celebrate it right royally tonight. The Foresters' Hall will be the scene of the entertainment and the addresses will be interesting and spirited. A very large gathering of Orangemen is assured.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. 10

Electric Wire Down.

An electric wire belonging to one of the power companies was down in the G.T.R. yards near the freight sheds yesterday. The authorities were notified and it was fixed at once. It is understood that this wire has been down a couple of times. If so it should be put where it would not get broken as it is dangerous to the public.

Cleaning the Streets.

The Board of Works department have a number of men cleaning up some of the residential streets. The work is essential and much appreciated by the citizens who are doing their share to keep the city clean and to make it the ideal city.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. 12

Mink Hides Expensive.

A man who has good luck trapping mink can make a small-sized fortune in a short time, as the hides are worth from $6 to $7 each. Jim Howard of Hiawatha, was in the city yesterday with three hides and he went home with $21, a pretty fair days' wages.

Veterans' Claims.

The South African Veterans' Association of Ottawa and elsewhere will probably apply for an extension of time for locating land grants. The present time limit is Dec. 30th, 1910. This will make all holders of script either sell or locate the land next summer thereby flooding the market, and it is to guard against this that the extension will be asked

New $60,000 Dam.

Tenders are being called for a new dam at Burleigh and must be received by Nov. 16. It will be 600 feet long and will be situated below the old dam, which it will replace. The estimated cost will be $60,000, and the work is to be completed by next summer. The new dam will increase the head of water by five feet and the maximum head will now be 26 feet.

Mr. Milton Worth DeThorbe, one of the directors of the Canadian Eatables, Limited has been a successful manufacturer of food products and has a thorough and practical knowledge of this business, and he is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulae for the preparation of food products, and his experience will be of the greatest value to the company.

Canadian Eatables owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. They will market the output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactured goods.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, realizing that the only way to raise money for permanent investment is by the sale of securities, have placed upon the market 50,000 shares of preferred stock with eight per cent cumulative value. These shares have a par value of $1.00 and they are on the market for a limited time only and they are being eagerly sought after. White Orpingtons.

The following will be of interest to the Peterborough Poultry Association:—A feature of the poultry show at the American Royal this year is the exhibit of Kellerstrass White Orpingtons. Birds of this Kellerstrass sold a pen of five birds and always suggest the highest prices ever paid for poultry. Mr. Strain are known all over the world to the wife of Paderewski, the famous pianist for $7,500 to go to Switzerland, and many others have been sold at proportionate prices. The "star" of the flock is Peggy, a famous hen valued at $10,000, but Mr Kellerstrass will not sell her for that as she is the mother of the finest Orpingtons in existence.

A FAMOUS SENTENCE.

Steele's "To Love Her Was a Liberal Education."

The remark which Steele made in reference, as is generally supposed, to Lady Elizabeth Hastings has often been quoted and almost as often quoted incorrectly. Steele wrote, "Though her mien carries much more invitation than command, to behold her is an immediate check to loose behavior; to love her was a liberal education." There are two curious misquotations of this bright and famous sentence, which Thackeray declared to be "the finest compliment to a woman that perhaps ever was offered." One is in the essay on Pope contained in James Russell Lowell's "My Study Windows." "Was it not in this age," says Mr. Lowell, "that loose Dick Steele paid to his wife the finest compliment ever paid to woman when he said 'that to know her was a liberal education?'" Here are two distinct errors committed by so careful a writer as Mr. Lowell. Yet he is not alone in this. Arthur Helps in his romance of "Realmah" has this sentence: "Steele also did not ill describe, though briefly, the charm of being with a woman whom he greatly admired when he said 'that to be much with her was in itself a liberal education.'" We are also told that Leigh Hunt once in quoting the remark incorrectly ascribed it to Congreve. Here, then, are three distinct writers of high rank who have shown how in a moment of careless composition they were led astray by an inaccurate remembrance. They had no desire to misquote their author, and they gave the substance. But they grievously failed in the words themselves and one of them at least in their application.—Argonaut.

A LESSON IN LOGIC.

Lord Erskine's Way With a Ruffianly Horse Beater.

It is only within the memory of living man that legislation has undertaken to protect domestic animals from the cruelty of their owners. Ownership was held to be absolute by most, but there was one man in England a hundred years ago who could demonstrate the untenable nature of this theory. This man was Thomas Erskine, one of the greatest lawyers and advocates of his age. A tradition survives at Hampstead, the residence of Lord Erskine, which Charles G. Harper has put into his book, "Rural Nooks Round London," and which shows how this legal authority would have administered more recent laws.

It is related that the celebrated Lord Erskine, walking one day on Hampstead heath, saw a ruffianly driver shamefully thrashing a miserably ill cared for horse.

My lord remonstrated with the driver on the cruelty of it, whereupon the fellow retorted: "It's my own. Mayn't I use it as I please?" Then he started whacking the wretched animal worse than ever

Erskine, greatly annoyed, laid his walking stick over the shoulders of the offender, who, crouching and grumbling, asked my lord—this is the drawing room version, not a verbatim report, which would read rather differently—what business he had to touch him with the stick.

"Why," said Erskine, "the stick's my own. Mayn't I use it as I please?"

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie. Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

Spaniards at Sydney.

Evidence of the supposed Spanish occupation of Sydney (N.S.W.) harbor may have been discovered by Mr. Lawrence Hargrave at Wollahra Point, which is now one of the choice harborside residential districts. The time at which the Spaniards are presumed to have been there is only 300 years ago. The evidences are in the form of carvings on flat rocks and ringbolts in the lower rocks. Mr. Hargrave contends that these carving were never made by black fellows. Kangaroos have, he says been cut on rock by metal tools, and the artists possessed a sense of perspective not noticed among true aboriginal carvings and drawings. There are also a figure of an armed man with a ruff and a chart of a vessel's course. Mr. Hargrave has arrived at the conclusion that some Spaniards from Peru careened their galleon on the beech at Woollahra Point.

"The Soul's Awakening"

A Beautiful Picture for The Home

Welcome news to readers of the weekly Times.

A most beautiful picture is that issued by The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, entitled "The Soul's Awakening," by James Sant, of the Royal Academy.

The publishers of The Family Herald have secured this picture at enormous cost for their 1910 subscribers, and we have concluded an arrangement by which our readers can secure a copy as well.

Here is Our Special Offer.

You may have both papers for a full year each, including a copy of the beautiful picture "The Soul's Awakening," for one dollar and fifty cents.

Send your order NOW or renew your subscription through The Times Printing, Peterborough, Ont.

P.S.—Don't overlook that we will be glad to renew your subscription for any paper or magazine. We will guarantee to be reasonable and these save you the trouble.

"The Soul's Awakening."

Never in the history of newspapers has there been such enthusiasm over a premium as "The Soul's Awakening" has created during the past two weeks. Almost every newspaper in Canada has published most flattering tributes to The Family Herald's enterprise. Clergymen of all denominations have written thanking the Publishers for giving the people of Canada an opportunity to possess such a picture. Every mail brings scores of letters from parents, fathers and mothers, expressing their sincere gratitude for furnishing the home with such an elevating influence. School Inspectors have written suggesting that every school room in Canada should have a copy of "The Soul's Awakening," believing that it will have a powerful, though silent, influence on the minds of the children. The Family Herald and Weekly Star alone is big value at one dollar, but with this picture as a premium it looks like giving away money. It is said the supply is limited and there is a big rush of subscriptions. No one should miss it.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY WILL MOVE FOR A PARK COMMISSION

Petition to Be Circulated to Ask the Council to Submit a By-law to the People.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT

Good Financial Statement Presented by the Secretary—Much Business Transacted.

The Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society have undertaken to have a permanent park commission appointed by the council to have full charge of the parks and the beautifying of the city. A committee has been appointed to circulate a petition asking the council to submit a bylaw to the people next January. The Horticultural Society has no authority over the people and the commission will be able to do a great deal more.

The society held its annual meeting last night and did a lot of business. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Mr. P. Campbell, president of the society, occupied the chair.

COMMUNICATION.

The following communication was received from J. Lockie Wilson, superintendent of the Ontario Horticultural Society;—

To the Secretary—

Dear Sir,—I wish to call attention of the directors of your society to the fact that the most important meeting of the year, dealing with questions of vital importance to all the horticultural societies of this Province, will convene in the City Hall, Toronto, on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 9 and 10. On the above dates the Ontario Horticultural Association will hold its annual convention, for which an excellent program has been prepared including a number of speakers from the American Civic Association. The question of an increased grant to the societies will also be brought up, and the directors are arranging for a strong delegation to wait on the government in this behalf. In order that your delegates may be in a position to take part in all the questions that may arise, it will be necessary for you to forward the membership fee for your society of $2, to Mr. H. B. Cowan of Peterborough, treasurer of the Ontario Horticultural Association, your society is entitled to send three delegates to this convention. Single fare rates can be obtained on all railways by procuring standard certificates from your station agent.

Trusting that your delagtes will be present and the good work will continue to prosper, I am.

Yours truly,
J. LOCKIE WILSON,
Superintendent.

n reference to the above communication Mr. A. P. Poussette moved that this society affiliate with the Provincial Society. Mr. Stalker seconded it and it carried.

Moved by Dr. Burnham, seconded by Mr. T. A. S. Hay, that the president, Mr. Stalker and Mr. Wise be delegates to attend the Provincial convention and their expenses be paid by the society.—Carried.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

President—P. Campbell.
1st Vice—D. W. Dumble.
2nd Vice—Dr. Geo. Burnham.
Secretary.treasurer—H. Beale.
Directors—Hon. J. R. Stratton, Jas. English, Walter Stalker, F. Wise, T. A. S. Hay, John Riddell, Wm. James, Henderson Nesbitt, B. Cooney, S. Jordan, Tucker, James Stevenson, Cowan, Jas. Edgar.
Park Committee—F. Wise, Walter Stalker, N. Nesbitt, Dr. Burnham, S. Jordan.
Auditors—T. A. S. Hay, Arthur Stevenson.

PARK COMMISSION.

Mr. P. Campbell said there was a demand now for a park commission to work in conjunction with the society in regards to parks boulevards trees, and especially dead trees, of which there are a number about the city at the present time.

Secretary Beale said he had written to the mayor on the sibject but his letter had never been placed before the cauncil. The mayor said that the council did not want to take the matter up this year on account of the lack of funds.

Mr. Poussette said that it was not for the council to say. If the Horticultural Society were prepared to give the matter over to the commission and presented a petition properly signed to the council, then that body had to act.

Mr. Dumble was very strongly in favor of a park commission. It was a very useful body and it would have authority to act while the Horticultural Society has no authority. There are a great many places in the city which could be beautified by a commission that the society cannot touch.

A motion was then moved that the society take steps now to have a by-law for a park commission submitted to the people. Mr. Dumble seconded the motion....Carried.

On motion of Mr. Walter Stalker, Messrs. A. P. Poussette, D. W. Dumble and Mr. Beale be appointed a commission to get up the petition to present to the council.—Carried.

It was proposed by Walter Stalker that the society have a show this year. There are a great many more interested in horticulture now than ever before and the exhibition should be a great success. Many members were in favor of that proposition and a committee will take it up in the near future. It is several years since a show was held here, and if the scheme is gone on with the prizes for the lawns will not be interfered with.

The whole Board of Directors were appointed a committee to wait upon the council with the Board of Education to secure a sidewalk through Central Park.

FINANCIAL REPORT.

Secretary-treasurer H. Beale presented the following financial statement which was adopted,—

Big Cargo of Meat in the City Yesterday

Yesterday at noon there was in Peterborough enough meat to give, every man and woman in our broad Dominion a good square meal. At 12 o'clock a solid train of meat cars passed through the city per C. P.R., en route to the seaboard. This train included or was composed of some thirty-five refrigerator cars belonging respectively to Armour & Co., Swift & Co., the Hammond Packing Co., Morris & Co., Fowler & Co., Cudahy & Co., and other Chicago packing houses. The cars averaged 50,000 pounds capacity each or a million and three quarter pounds of beef, pork and other meats. This is as much meat as has ever been within our walls below at one time. In conversation with the local C.P.R. agent the Times man ascertained that whilst yesterday's shipment of meat was perhaps a record one, there has not been a day lately but what a whole train load of western meat passes by that line through Peterborough for the seaboard.

Wild Rice from Rice Lake Goes to All Parts of American Continent

It is generally known probably that the wild rice crop, from which Rice Lake gets its name is by treaty the property of the Indian and no white man may gather it. It is not so generally known perhaps that applications are received for it from all parts of the continent. Mr. Charlies Gilchrist who for many years was fisheries overseer for Rice Lake and its tributaries, it is learned has secured this year about forty barrells of wild rice for seed and has shipped this season seed to Georgia, Milwaukee, Wis., Illinois, Nebraska, Ohio, Michigan and New York.

The wild rice does not mature evenly. On the same straw will be found ripe and green seeds and even blossoms. Primitive means are still used to harvest it. The Indians and squaws force their way in canoes through the rice beds, one paddles and the other bends the rice down and knocks it off into the canoe.

When the Indians desire to keep some of the wild rice for food, they may be seen cleaning it in the old way. They parch it to get rid of the hulls and then toss it in the air to separate the grain from the chaff. The Indians, however sell a large amount of the crop they harvest.

HOUSE BREAKERS.

Disturbed Mr. Beale's Brother in Toronto Recently.

Mr. Harry Beal's brother in Toronto, had an exciting experience last Saturday night in the small hours. He had returned home late from a trip to Buffalo, and went to bed. Everything about the house was all right then, but some time afterwards he heard a noise in his bedroom and awoke just in time to see a man getting out. He jumped out of bed immediately and followed the fellow downstairs and saw him climb out the parlor window. Upon investigation he found that the burglar had stripped the walls and house of everything moveable and piled it up in the center of the floor ready for removal. But as he had been disturbed he had to leave without anything but a small photograph of a child.

MASS MEETING

The mass meeting in the Grand Opera House tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock will be a most important one in the history of Peterborough. Mr. William J. Courson, for many years city clerk of West Toronto, who is also well known as an intensely interesting public speaker will give the story of the great transformation of the city in whose civic affairs he figured so largely.

The musical service will be supplied by George street Methodist church.

The Local Option Campaign

The Matter appearing in these columns is supplied by the City Temperance and Moral Reform League.

TOO LONG DUPED.

A bluff maintained for many years by the liquor traffic is at last exploded. Temperance reformers have been trying to hammer it into the heads of civic authorities that a community was better off in every way by the closing out of the saloon. The whole business world has had its monetary eyes open and now it transpires that the BANK IS A RIVAL.

The following is taken from the Toronto Star:—

Any person passing along Queen street west on Saturday evening about half-past seven might have witnessed a curious and instructive sight.

On one corner of a street he might have seen a bar-room closed and dark, while across the corner was a bank, brilliantly illuminated, and with men and women passing in and out.

Going along Queen a few blocks further he would have seen the same thing repeated— a saloon closed and dark, and next it a bank a-low with lights and busy taking in the weekly savings of work people, so that these funds may be secure, and may earn interest.

Perhaps the closing of the bars on Saturday evening is to a certain extent, an interference with the liberty of the individual, who likes to buy a drink, but to see a bar closed and dark while next door a savings bank bristles with an activity one seldom sees in connection with such an institution, is a sight worth seeing, and we recommend it to the reader as an instructive way of putting in an hour next Saturday evening. To see these rival institutions, the bar and the bank, under these circumstances—the one the most perfect of all machines for spending, the other the most perfect of all machines for saving; the one idle and shrouded in the gloom of night, the other alight and busy with cheerful customers—is worth taking a walk to have a look at. The blind saloon looks forbidding. It suffers by comparison. It cannot stand such rivalry as this.

And young workmen seem to be putting money away in these banks that keep open on Saturday evening. It is good business for them and the country of which they are citizens. If they learn how to use a bank they will not need to learn how to pawn. If they begin to earn interest they will develop a prejudice against paying usury. Altogether this subject is one that young men should think about.

GROWING INDIGNATION.

If there is in the whole of this business any single encouraging feature, it is to be found in the gathering impatience of the people at the burden they are bound to bear, and the growing indignation and sense of shame and disgrace which this imposes upon them. The fiery serpent of drink is destroying our people, and now they are awaiting with hoping the uplifting of the remedy.—Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain

Gentlemen, you need not give yourself any trouble about the revenue. The question of revenue must never stand in the way of needed reforms. But give me a sober population, not wasting their earnings in strong drink and I shall know where to obtain the revenue.—Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

A BOTTOMLESS WHIRLPOOL.

What heroic work has been done in this and other cities to save the young and old drinkers from their horrible peril and yet that yawning suction of an open angry whirlpool is gathering in the boys, and they whose business it is to stand at this awful gulf night and day, cry. Come on boys!! bring on the boys, and there seems to be the unending stream of many bright lads pledge in youth to the temperance pledge, yet now on the awful road to ruin and disgrace.

What will a city give in exchange for shattered and disgraced citizenship. This city might as well try to stamp out smallpox by treating known cases and at the same time scattering the horrid infection as to hope for a better city here and now by treating with the topers and allowing the boys and growing youth to be infected with the poison of strong drink.

THE WORDS OF A GREAT CATHOLIC.

Whites Must Ever Control the Blacks

London, Nov. 5.—Herr Dernburg, German secretary for the colonies, who has just returned here from an extended tour throughout the United States, today gave an interview in which he declared the negro race in America could never equal the white race, and the Aryans must ever "boss and lead the blacks."

"The object of my visit to America," he said, "was purely for economical research. I wanted to study the employment of black labor in the South, for the purpose of applying the same kind of labor to the cotton growing industry in German East Africa. Experience teaches me that cotton growing in any part of the world is esentially a black man's job."

EASY FAT REDUCTION.

When buttermilk and gymnastics were the only known cures for over-fatness many people preferred to stay fat—dreading the remedy worse than the disease.

Now these two grim lions on the road to slimness have been overcome and the loss of 20 to 50 pounds has become a very safe and pleasant affair. You can eat and drink and be merry and lazy and still lose 10 to 16 ounces of useless fat daily. Folks with double chins and stout abdomens can lose them in a month and yet not strain, bother or deny themselves a single blessed thing. It does not cost much, either—any druggist will fix you up—and there is no waiting; results begin when you do.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime of this simple, harmless mixture: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4½ oz. Peppermint Water, and, you will strip off evenly, without wrinkling, all the useless fat that now annoys and punishes you.

Niagara Falls, Nov. 5.—The sensational slugging of Cashier Dobson by robbers who secured $14,000 from the Canadian Express at five o'clock yesterday is the talk of the entire district.

The whole force of Provincial and city officers is trying to hunt down two men answering the description given by Dobson. Two such men were seen around town yesterday afternoon and were in Harry Pews' drug store on Erie avenue about 2 p.m., making purchase of some soap. A Mrs. Brookfield, of Victoria avenue, called at the express office about 4.50 p.m., and as she came out, remembers seeing two men going in but cannot describe them.

McLaughlin was Afraid of being Poisoned by His Wife

Uxbridge Husband Paid Attention to Young Lady and Said that He Would Elope with Her if She Would Go

Uxbridge, Nov. 5.—The inquest into the death of Mrs. McLaughlin and two of her children, who were burned in the fire that destroyed their home on Friday night last, was resumed this morning.

Mrs. Bant and Mrs. Morden testified that they thought that there was something wrong between Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin for some time, from what they had heard and seen. Mr. McLaughlin appeared to have taken little interest in his home, being there only for his meals and at night.

When told that the mother and two children were in the house, J. F Brownscombe, who was the fifth person at the fire, shouted, "For God's sake let us do something." And, with determination, he struck for the kitchen, but was driven back by smoke. Next he ascended the roof and broke the windows in east side of the house, but there was too much smoke for anyone to get in, much less for a person to live in.

C. E. Rainey testified that he had helped to take Mrs McLaughlin's body out of the room. The body was not rigid but limp. He saw Mr. McLaughlin at the bowling alley, and said that he was not sober, that his face was flushed, his feet were unsteady and eyes brilliant.

The evidence given by R. Parman, was like a bolt from the blue, and proved startling. He read part of a letter from an Uxbridge lady addressed to Mr. McLaughlin.

The Local Orangemen Celebrate Guy Fawkes' Day in Royal Style

A record crowd attended the fowl supper and entertainment in Foresters' Hall last night which was held under the auspices of the City District L.O.L. The event was in commemoration of Guy Fawkes' Day, and it was the greatest success ever attained by the Orangemen of Peterborough. Several long tables were laid in the banquet hall and supper was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, and the tables were filled all the time. Over 150 sat down and enjoyed the good things while the attention given the guests was of the best.

Certainly the committee which was in charge of the affair deserve great credit. They worked hard but their efforts were well repaid. After supper the big gathering adourned to the lodge room where Past County Master and Deputy Chaplain of the Grand Lodge, Bro. Joseph Batten was elected to the chair and the evening's program was started.

The chairman made a pleasing little speech in which he heartily welcomed the audience and hoped they would all feel that they were well repaid for their attendance.

A program was then rendered.

There are three lodges in the city district, viz. Duke of Manchester, No. 56, J. W. Bell Memorial, No. 1175 and Diamond No 80, and all of them were well represented at the entertainment. Orangeism in Peterborough is rapidly increasing in both numbers and influence. The members are all active and enthusiastic and they are working in harmony for the good of the cause. Such affairs as was held last night will do a great deal to increase the social benefits and no doubt more will be held in the near future.

"THINGS WE KNOW."

There were three large meetings in St. Paul's church yesterday. At three o'clock Rev. E. A. Mitchell of Hamilton, gave an address on the evangelistic services in the Kootenay Valley, B.C., last spring. He gave a very vivid and impressive story of the campaign and pointed out the discouragements met with and what was accomplished.

After four o'clock a song service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Atkinson, and then Mr. MacBeth addressed the boys and girls.

In the evening Rev. MacBeth gave a talk on "Things we Know."

Rev. Mr. MacBeth will conduct both services tomorrow.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cure

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again and all my color, spirits, vigor and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been troubled for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after continuing the medicine the symptoms would break out afresh, rotting sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, soreness of the bones, swellings of the glands, poison of the bowels making me a wreck of skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became cheerful. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, strong and well, is growing up healthy. I certainly owe my present good health to you, and will say so to all I meet, whether personally, but you can use this letter as you like." W. H. S.

PREPARE FOR LUMBAGO

If You Have "Nerviline" Handy One Rubbing Will Cure the Pain.

The "strike" of lumbago is like a bolt of lightning; you never know when it is coming or where it is going to strike. Probably the one certain thing about lumbago is the fact that it can be cured by Nerviline as the only liniment that penetrates deeply enough to reach the congested chords and muscles.

"Years ago I strained my back, and suffered considerably with weakness over the loins," writes Darius LETTER NO. 1875. P. Millan, a well-known farmer, residing near Kingsville. "Then lumbago attacked the weak spot, and for days at a time I would have to lie up in bed, unable to move or turn. Liniments, poultices and hot applications failed to bring the desired relief, and I was in despair of ever getting really well again. I at last decided to test "Nerviline." I got five bottles from the drug store and had it rubbed on three times a day. The stiffness and pain left my back quickly, and by continuing Nerviline I was completely cured of Lumbago.

This is similar testimony to that of nearly five thousand Canadians who have who have written unsolicited words of praise to the manufacturers of Nerviline. For the cure of lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia and rheumatism there is no liniment with one fifth the pain-relieving power of Nerviline.

Refuse any substitute. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, or five for $1.00 at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

There never has been so much public discussion of the "white slave" traffic as we hear today. Earnest and progressive women have thrown off all their natural reserve in speaking of such a subject, and make public utterances of the most uncompromising character regarding it. Social reform workers—especially those who go personally into the submerged portions of our great cities and work for the rescue of the "prisoners of poverty" of every sort—tell us appalling facts regarding the effrontery the brutality, the organized cruelty of this traffic. Arrests are made from time to time, and, while it cannot be pretented that the results of these trials are often satisfactory, facts come out and statements are made which sicken and enrage the entire community. The hideous business confronts us as a reality; and civilization is doing exceedingly little to stamp it out.

We have here no question of voluntary vice. So long as the vicious sought their own degradation or stumbled into it through their own mistakes, many good people felt that they could stand aside and keep their skirts clean. That was not the course of the Master nor of those who followed Him most devotedly; but there seemed some excuse for it in the minds of the fastidious and the self-centred. But slavery is another proposition. When ignorant girls, intending to live clean and industrious lives are trapped into slave pens from which they cannot escape, and suffer physical abuse when they try to do so, we have a condition of things that no decent man or woman can tolerate for a moment. If our modern consciences will not suffer the enslavement of the colored race, will they sleep through the far more cruel and murderous enslavement of bands of white women?

AWARDS HER BUT $40 A POUND.

She Asked $1,000 Per for Flesh Lost Through Being Jilted.

Pittsburg, Nov. 5.—The jury trying the case of Miss Luella Lowstetter, who sued Professor R. W. Reed of the Sheraden Public School for $35,000 damages, brought in a sealed verdict finding the defendant "guilty" and awarded Miss Lowstetter $1,000 damages.

Judge Thomas D. Carnahan advised the jurymen that in a civil court they could not find the defendant guilty or not guilty, but they would have to return a verdict finding in favor of the plaintiff. The jury took the papers back and followed out the judge's instructions.

Miss Lowstetter, a choir singer, prominent in educational and church circles of Sheraden, asserted in her bill against Professor Reed that he had refused, to marry her in 1905 after her, he had, promised to do so, and that she had lost twenty-five pounds in weight as a result, and prayed for $35,000 damages, or $1,000 a pound.

Attorney Thompson, for Professor Reed, said he would appeal the case.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the lofty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century. Its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House. Then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the discommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from slits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting bad-ly hurt however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I's had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

A DEAL IN DIAMONDS

The True Story of an Ingenious Swindle In London.

A CLEVERLY WORKED GAME.

Count Sacha Roubletsky was on his beam ends in London. To the world he was still a dashing young nobleman, son of an immensely wealthy Russian prince, but in point of fact he was financially at his last gasp.

He wanted a thousand or so for nothing. That was the problem he debated as he sat in his lodging smoking cigarette after cigarette. At last he rose with a satisfied smile. Next morning Count Sacha called on Messrs. Sparkle & Shine, the well known Bond street jewelers. He explained who he was and that he had come to select some jewelry for his sweetheart.

From the glittering tray he selected a beautiful stone, price £500. He then explained that, his remittances being delayed, he was not in a position to complete the purchase at the moment, and, in any case, he wished first to submit the stone to his sweetheart's approval.

He added suavely that as he was unknown to Messrs. Sparkle & Shine he could not expect them to part with the gem without making inquiries, but they were at liberty to apply to the Russian embassy for any information they desired concerning him. He would return the following day and, everything being satisfactory, take the diamond.

To this the jewelers agreed and, inquiring at the Russian embassy, were informed that Count Sacha was unquestionably the son of a wealthy prince and that they would probably be safe in giving him credit for even more than the amount mentioned.

They did not know at the embassy that Sacha had been disowned by his father, and they were agreeable to the count's own suggestion that a member of the embassy should attend at the jeweler's next day to identify him. This was done, and Count Sacha received the diamond. The same day he called at a big pawnbroker's and, mentioning airily that he was in temporary difficulties, pledged the diamond for the small sum of £50.

The next day found Count Sacha again at Messrs. Sparkle & Shine's. His sweetheart, he said, was enchanted with the diamond, but nothing would satisfy her now but that she should have another diamond absolutely matching the first.

The jewelers explained that to match such a stone would be a matter of great difficulty and the price of the second gem would be enormously increased—in short, for such a pair of twin diamonds they would have to charge £3,000. Count Sacha shrugged his shoulders. The price was stiff, but he could deny his sweetheart nothing. Would Messrs. Sparkle & Shine please at once set about procuring the second diamond?

The jewelers, being unable to match the diamond themselves, wrote to the leading dealers and pawnbrokers describing the stone they wanted and intimating that they were prepared to go as far as £2,000 for a perfect specimen. Among those they wrote to was the pawnbroker with whom Count Sacha had pledged the original diamond which was just what that ingenious rascal expected.

A few days later Count Sacha called at the pawnbroker's to redeem his diamond. The pawnbroker had had Messrs. Sparkle & Shine's letter, and, remembering the beautiful diamond pledged with him a day or two before, he had examined it and found that it met all of Sparkle & Shine's requirements.

The count redeemed the stone, and then the pawnbroker inquired whether by any chance he would care to sell it.

That was a pity, said the pawnbroker. He had chanced to show the diamond to his wife, and she had taken a violent fancy to it—so much so that he was prepared to give a fancy price. He offered £800.

Count Sacha laughed and shook his head. One thousand pounds? Oh, no! He really did not want to sell it. An offer of £1,200, however, made him hesitate. At last, after prolonged chaffering, Count Sacha passed back the diamond to the pawnbroker and received £1,500 in exchange. Once outside he jumped into a cab and drove as fast as he could to Messrs. Sparkle & Shine's.

Arrived there, he explained, with many regrets, that his sweetheart had changed her mind. She no longer wanted the second diamond. Had the jewelers yet found it? No? Ah, that was well! Still, he feared he had put them to much trouble. However, he was glad to say his remittances had arrived and he had now much pleasure in handing over £500 in payment for the original diamond, which his sweetheart had decided to keep.

One thousand pounds to the good, Count Sacha left the shop, having "brought off" a most ingenious swindle. Yet can any one say where he came within reach of the law?—Pearson's Weekly.

It is a question which causes a mother the more worry—a boy so sick that he is good or so thoroughly well that he is bad.

CHARGES FELL FLAT.

St. Catharines had a small-sized sensation caused by an irresponsible citizen charging graft on the part of the aldermen. The charges were made through the press of that city in letters signed by the citizen. An investigation was ordered but it fell flat and now the Star-Journal expresses the hope that the city's fair name will not be shamed by such charges again.

Would it not be better for the St. Catharines' press to investigate charges of that nature before they publish letters from irresponsible citizens? That is the easiest way to protect the good name of the city.

LOVERS' LEAP.

A Lesson In Matchmaking That Brought Double Results.

By NELLIE CRAVEY GILLMORE.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Miss Drusilla looked shrewdly across the reading table at Colonel Weyman. He gave no outward indication of having foolishly lost his passage, and the ominous clattering of scissors on the bare mahogany opposite caused him to glance up with an ostentatious display of surprise.

Miss Drusilla proceeded to divest herself of needle, thimble and yarn before framing her opening words with cool deliberation. "It appears to me, John, that the time for clinching matters between these young people is just about ripe."

Colonel Weyman received this announcement with a beaming face. "Exactly, Drusilla. I was thinking about putting a bug in the young scamp's ear no later than this very morning. You do the same in regard to Penelope. We'll just drop them a hint or two concerning our wishes in the matter; give them to understand that their union is a thing that was planned in their cradles; point out the various advantages that will accrue"—

Miss Drusilla broke in with a disdainful sniff and a quick toss of her shivering curls. "Good gracious, John Weyman! Do you want to ruin everything? Listen to me. There's but one course to pursue if we expect to succeed in our pet scheme."

"IT ISN'T ALWAYS SAFE TO BE SURE OF ANYTHING."

"Well?" The colonel glanced up bewilderingly and with a sort of meek deference into the animated face of his companion.

Miss Drusilla lifted her dainty, porcelain-like fingers and marked off her sentences upon them in a clear, duty voice. "Just this, you stupid man: They must be warned against each other. Every obstacle we can think of must be placed in their way. Sentiment must be tabooed. Cool down all their advances with cold water and plenty of it. There's nothing like it at this stage, mark my word. And failure after all these years would be a horrible disappointment to us both, John."

The colonel listened to his old friend's admonitions with unconcealed admiration. What a diplomat was Miss Drusilla! What an excellent life partner she would have made for a man! He heaved an involuntary sigh of regret for his squandered youth and reached across the table to press the porcelain fingers. There was a tacit smile, a hand pressure, and the colonel took his departure.

Half an hour later a fresh, sparkling face was framed in the doorway, and a musical voice addressed Miss Drusilla in tremulous accents. "May I come in, aunty, dear?" The question was finished upon a hassock at Miss Drusilla's little slippered feet.

"Where in the world have you been, Penelope?" she questioned very sternly, with a degrecatory glance at the young girl's vivid cheeks and the tumbled straw gold hair above them.

"Where haven't I been, rather? Oh, aunty, it was just the dearest, jolliest time in the world! We, Jack and I, rode—yes, actually rode—up that steep crag to Lovers' leap!"

"Lovers' leap!" echoed Miss Drusilla, with very grave brown. "And you not yet eighteen, Penelope!"

Penelope's blue eyes flashed a swift challenge to Miss Drusilla.

"And you went alone with young Mr. Weyman to the very top of a mountain, my child?" She paused in her stitching and looked seriously into the young face at her knee. "It was most indiscreet. Don't think of repeating it. And, by the way, Penelope, don't you think you are rather too familiar with this young man, calling him by his given name on a fortnight's acquaintance and scampering through the woods with him on all occasions? What do you know of"—

"Know! Why, why, I know that he's just splendid—that he—that I—that we—oh, aunty, you can never guess what a dear he is—that's all!"

Miss Drusilla's lips settled perceptibly. "Very well, my little one; he may be all that you say—and think. Naturally I am in no position to judge. However, I prefer to have my niece a little more circumspect and dignified. It is not always well to allow oneself too much intimacy with any—stranger. Remember, girls of your station are expected to submit with all grace and dutifulness to the arrangements which have been made for them by their guardians—matrimonial particularly. Let there be no foolishness, Penelope."

* * * * * * *

"But, father, am I not twenty-one years of age?"

"Twenty-two, to be more exact, young fellow. But remember also that I am forty-four and you are still in college. Penelope is a mere baby. She ought to be in school herself in short frocks. Recollect that you have a reputation to make in your profession; that you cannot afford to throw away your opportunities in any such absurd fashion, so don't fritter away your time over sentimental nonsense."

Young Weyman was silent a moment trying to down the vehement words that struggled to his lips. His face was flushed, and his eyes belied the calmness of the tone in which he replied:

"I have always respected your opinion, father, in everything, but in this case I fear that I cannot abide by it. There is one thing which is every man's privilege—the choice of his wife; consequently I mean to offer myself to Penelope this very evening."

"And if she refuses—if she is already betrothed to some one else?"

"Impossible! That is"—

The colonel smiled broadly. But his head was turned away. When he looked back again his face was decidedly stern. "It isn't always safe to be too sure of anything, my boy, especially anything of the feminine gender. Give her half a chance—say a couple of years—to change her mind in, and I'm certain you'll not regret it."

Jack bridled. "Obviously we need not discuss the question further, sir. Good morning." With an angry jerk of his head he stalked out of the room, and a second later Colonel Weyman was edified by hearing the front gate slam to with considerable force. He laughed heartily for a minute or two; then his face reflected his sudden seriousness. "Upon my word," he mused, "a fellow ought to be ashamed to call a woman like Drusilla his wife. By Jove, I'll write a note and ask her to walk with me to Lovers' leap this afternoon. I've been a blind man for twenty years, but I'm blamed if I don't believe I see light!"

* * * * * * *

Dearest Penelope—You must marry me immediately, and we can take the 5 o'clock train for New York. It is only rushing things about twelve months, but certain events have occurred which make it essential for us to take this step at once. If you love me enough and think you can trust me to this extent write back by messenger and don't fail to say "Yes." Devotedly. JACK.

Dear, Dear Jack—It shall be just as you say. I will marry you whenever and wherever you wish. I have been worried to death all day. Aunt Drusilla has been hinting about some sort of matrimonial arrangement for me and saying just dreadful things all around. Of course I love you, Jack, and am willing to trust you to the ends of all creation. Your own PENELOPE.

At breakfast the following morning Miss Drusilla opened a flabby yellow envelope and read:

We were married last night at my cousin's. A message of forgiveness and your blessing will reach us at the Guests, New York city. J. W.

A similar dispatch found Colonel Weyman over his coffee and chops. He chuckled as he thrust the envelope into his pocket, and his thoughts harked back to Lovers' leap.

That afternoon another telegram dashed over the wires between Plainfield and New York city:

You are forgiven since people must be fools. I know two more who are soon to turn one. Accept our blessing.

AUNT DRUSILLA.

The Noble Pike.

In size, in courage and in strength the pike rivals, in historic claim to nobility it exceeds, even the royal salmon itself. King Edward I., who fixed the price of fish then brought to market, rated the pike above the salmon and more than ten times higher than that of the best cod or turbot. In the reign of Henry VIII. a large one was sold for double the price of a house lamb in February and a small pickerel for more than a fat capon. Its greater reputation is probably to be explained by the old custom in the great houses and abbeys of England of having their private stew ponds, so that fresh water fish were the luxury of the rich, while the salmon could be caught in the sea and so never attained the rank and dignity of fashionable food. Today his artificial value is gone, and the salmon has taken the place upon the tables of the rich as much for the beauty of its pink flesh as for the superior flavor of the meat.—London Globe.

THE WAY OF IT.

A man and woman ride
Within a street car cooped,
But if she be not fair,
With age or toiling stooped,
We notice in the car
That thus they will be grouped:

Him.
Her.

A married pair go out,
And in an auto race
He has no eye for aught
Save tearing holes through space,
And therefore we observe
'Tis thus each takes a place:

Him.
Her.

A youth and maiden ride
Upon a winter day,
Their sleigh skims lightly on,
And all with frost is gay,
And we observe they sit
In just about this way:

Him. Her.

An Old Story.

"Chesty says that his boy is wonderfully smart."

"Yes, but Chesty ought to know better than to build any experience on that. I can remember when Chesty's father said the same thing about him."

Such a Mean Trick.

"Come home with me to dinner tonight, Gormley."

"Delighted."

"I want you to hear my youngest daughter play the piano."

"By Jove, I'm awfully sorry, old chap, but I have forgotten a most important engagement. Some other night, dear boy."

"Sorry about the engagement, Gormley. The fact is, I have neither a youngest daughter nor a piano."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Larry Was Prepared.

"Well, Larry," said the genial manufacturer, "I hear that you are much interested in aerial sports these days."

"Yes, sor," responded the coachman with the big volume under his arm; "that is why I bought this book."

"Ah! You want to learn how to go up in an airship?"

"No; I want to learn how to come down. That is why I bought 'The Descent of Man,' sor."—Detroit Free Press.

Beating Mrs. Lot.

"It was not so very wonderful that when Lot's wife looked back she turned into a pillar of salt."

"Not a very wonderful thing to have happened in the age of miracles, perhaps, but nothing so wonderful happens in these prosaic days."

"Oh, I don't know. We were going out Main street last evening and when my chauffeur looked back he turned into a telegraph pole."—Houston Post.

A Crazy Clock.

Visiting an old mate, who had the misfortune to be confined in a Yorkshire asylum, a collier noticed that the large clock in the reception hall was ten minutes slow.

"That clock is not right," he exclaimed.

"No, lad!" was the lunatic's reply. "That's why it's here."—London Daily News.

Just as Well.

"Statistics show that Japan has two earthquakes a day."

"Gee, a man might as well be married as to live in Japan!"—Houston Post.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—10 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Cripple Creek county. It is absolute owner of 10 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 200,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 100,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $500. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 300,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the last opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, in fact you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impossible.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realise that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner

So once you're found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

TO DISPOSE OF POSTCARDS.

BOXES, WAY TO USE PICTURE POSTCARDS.

An ordinary soap box is used for the receptacle, and on the bottom corners small unsilled spools of cotton are glued in place for supports. The postcards are then pasted on the box, the finished product being edged with guimpe, put on with fancy tacks.

What "Grass Widow" Means.

Your note on the Australian grasshopper suggests its relationship to the grass widow, writes a correspondent to the London Chronicle, who goes on to demand the derivation of this last expression. Some would merely have it as a slang expression, but its appearance in the marriage register of Halstead, Essex, as early as 1634 suggests a less vulgar origin. It is said to be a corruption of grace widow and dates from the days when divorces were granted only by the authority of the church. The woman who was so empowered to separate from her husband was commonly called a grace widow, and from this the expression gradually gained its present meaning and spelling.

The Man Chaperon.

London mothers are said to be trying the experiment of the man chaperon on the occasions upon which they are not able to take charge of their daughters. There are always a number of old bachelors or widowers ready to dance attendance upon young girls, and they would be much more satisfactory to the girl as a general thing than the elderly woman chaperon.

It isn't no difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is purely guessing! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

Famous French Dressmakers Who Think Good Sewing Beneath Them.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It used to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that this defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

When women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her ambition is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The syrup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse that futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

For Rough Fingers.

The hand of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

THE MAID OF HONOR

What the Personal Attaches of Royalty Have to Do.

Probably the majority of those members of the general public who study the Court Circular and are noted therein that "the Hon. So-and-So was in attendance as maid of Honor," have a very hazy idea as to the duties discharged by a maid of honor, and may perhaps imagine that these are limited to looking charming and beautiful at the various state functions which her royal mistress graces with her presence.

As a matter of fact, however, maids of honor enjoy by no means a sinecure, and may certainly be said to fully earn the $1,500 per annum with which their services are rewarded.

Queen Alexandra, being a Queen Consort, has but three maids of honor, whereas Queen Victoria had eight, who were in attendance at court in couples for a month twice a year.

Aspirants for these coveted positions at court are selected in accordance with the personal wishes of Her Majesty, and, needless to say, must possess excellent qualifications for the post.

Good birth and breeding are, of course, essential, and daughters of well-known peers are frequently glad to secure so comfortable a post at court. The title of "Honorable," however, which is always prefixed to the names of Her Majesty's maids of honor is quite irrespective of birth, being purely an honorary title, which is retained even after the office has been relinquished.

But, though good birth is a sine qua non, it is by no means the only qualification which the would-be maid of honor must possess. No one, however exalted her station, would be selected who did not possess personal accomplishments considerably above the average. Thus, a knowledge of French and German is always required; while a thorough acquaintance with public affairs is also desirable for a maid of honor, as one in almost constant attendance on her royal mistress has naturally to mix with many distinguished guests, and her conversational powers have necessarily to be considerable. A talent for music and an ability to read aloud with clearness and expression are also qualities which are taken into account in filling up vacancies in the royal household. Most essential of all, perhaps, is it that a maid of honor should be guiltless of the essentially feminine vice of tittle-tattle, and any tendency to disclose court secrets would ensure severe rebuke and probable dismissal.

The everyday duties of a maid of honor are of such variety and multiplicity that any detailed enumeration of them would be impossible, but they may be described in general terms as those which in less exalted circles fall to the lot of "companions." Thus a maid of honor is expected to take an important part in helping to entertain the guests of her royal mistress, and at dinner she usually occupies a seat next to the gentleman who has the honor of sitting on the immediate right of the Queen. She has also to see that Her Majesty is provided with a bouquet, which is always placed at the right of her plate at dinner. Another duty which falls to her lot is that of accompanying the Queen when she walks or drives out and to assist her with some of her correspondence, although the bulk of this is, of course, turned over to other officials of the royal household.

The maids of honor are also expected, if called upon, to assist in amusing their Majesties' guests after dinner either by displaying their musical accomplishments or by taking a hand at cards.

He Followed the Advice.

Mr. Stephens Phillips, the dramatist and poet, whose financial misfortunes are so widely regretted, began life as a member of Mr. F. R. Benson's repertoire company. An amusing story is told of his debut. Mr. Benson had told him that the great thing for an actor is to act. "It does not matter," he continued, "so much what the words are which the actor speaks as the impression which he conveys to the audience by those words." Then he gave Mr. Phillips the part of Balthazar in "Romeo and Juliet." On the first night Balthazar managed the first line of his part, and then forgot the rest. Romeo, in the person of Mr. Benson, had to go to his assistance, and speak the rest of the part for him, while Balthazar exhibited an agony of speechless grief. "What do you mean," Mr. Benson afterwards demanded, "by going on the stage without knowing your part?" "I was only doing what you told me. You said the great thing on the stage was not so much the words you speak as to act. Well, I was acting."

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita." She only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irrepressible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A chance remark, too, led to the title of "The Pointing Finger" — one of "Rita's" most dramatic stories, which has been added to the Newnes' Sixpenny Famous Novels. It is a book of rare interest to both sexes.

Australian Cities.

In Australia, as in England, people flock to the towns. F. A. W. Gisborne of Tasmania, in an article in The Empire Review, mentions that Melbourne, with its 538,000 inhabitants, contains no less than 43.11 per cent. of the population of Victoria; Adelaide 45.41 of that of South Australia. The six capital cities contain 1,519,241 people, or 36.21 of the whole population of the Commonwealth. If we include the other towns, numbering almost 80, each of which possesses more than 3,000 inhabitants, we find that out of the 4 1-4 million people in Australia nearly 2 1-2 million consist of town-dwellers.

A Woman's Queer Will.

Dame Margaret Morell Mackenzie, widow of the English throat specialist, has forbidden her children by will to be dismal because she is dead. "When I die," she says in her will, which was recently proved, "I hope my children will wear as little black for mourning as possible. White or mauve I like, but not black. And I hope they will not shut themselves up but go out among their friends and to places of amusement. I am not afraid of them forgetting me, and I want them to be happy."

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 14th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,188 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be received at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent., on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Trent Canal.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products also brokers of goods for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many recent and valuable formulas for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island comprises some 1000 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, on the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent scenic, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its extension and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business like this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who has built up a business by hard efforts of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sterling considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailing proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 15 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in case of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

BEGGARS AND TRAMPS.

More Numerous Now Than Ever Before In World's History.

The beggar and the tramp are more numerous now than probably ever before in the history of the civilized world, and in the United States the increase in their number has been so rapid in the last two decades as to give serious questions in the minds of thoughtful persons as to what the outcome will be if this rate of increase continues, and if no better methods than those at present in operation are discovered to check the growth of this undesirable body of citizens. That there has been a remarkable increase in the number of these men scarcely needs demonstration.

A study has recently been made of the cases of 1,000 homeless men who applied to the Chicago bureau of charities for some form of charitable aid. These men were of the class so often referred to as "tramps," although only about one-fourth of them were found to be rightly so-called.

A number of interesting things were discovered about the group, as, for instance, that 50 of them were insane and almost as many more feebleminded or epileptic; that nearly 100 were tuberculous and that 253 were either temporarily or permanently crippled or maimed. The facts in relation to character in this latter group of men are of special interest. Less than two per cent of these men had been crippled from birth; 34 per cent. were crippled by illness; almost all of the remaining 64 per cent. owned their handicaps to the railroads, to injuries while at work, or to some of the innumerable forms of accident which are of daily occurrence in great cities.

A little deeper study of the cases showed that a large proportion of the illness which crippled the men had been caused by drink or gross immorality; that more than half of the men who claimed industrial injuries had not received them, but were crippled from other causes; that the injuries of those who had met with industrial accidents were in many cases slight and the vagrancy of the men was due to entirely other causes; that several of the men who had met with general accidents had been drunk when they occurred, and, lastly, that a number of the men who were injured on the railroads had been tramps and vagrants long before they were hurt and had not been forced into vagrancy on account of their injuries. Three men who were in the main self-supporting and applied to the bureau of charities only for work or for very trifling assistance had lost both legs. Five men, who were crippled only by the loss of from one to three fingers, were chronic dependents and confirmed beggars.

What was found true of the crippled and maimed among the thousand was equally true of the remainder. Very rarely were industrial and social causes alone responsible for vagrancy, but equally rarely were individual causes alone responsible. In no case could one say with certainty that the causes of vagrancy were mainly social; in others, that they were mainly individual, but in the great majority of instances social and individual causes had apparently acted and reacted upon each other until it was impossible to separate them or to decide which was the more responsible for the final vagrancy of the man. Moreover, what was clearly cause in one case was as clearly effect in another. One man took to tramping because he was crippled, the next was crippled because he took to tramping. One man became a beggar because he was diseased and unable to work; another was diseased and unable to work because of his unhygienic mode of life as a beggar. Insanity was the cause of vagrancy in some cases, vagrancy caused insanity in others. No generalization as to the causes of vagrancy can possibly be made which will apply to all the men on the road or even to any one of them. For differences in nationality, inheritance, education, training, temperament, health, efficiency and morals exist among tramps and vagrants as among self-supporting business men, lawyers and farmers.

Santos-Dumont.

For some time Santos-Dumont has been out of the public eye. He was among the first to win fame as an aeronaut, but the Wrights, Curtiss, Bleriot and other aviators eclipsed him. Once more he is a bidder for public attention. During his retirement he has perfected a machine which occupies much less space than that of any of his rivals and which promises to be a great success. Recently he won a wager with another aeronaut as to which would first visit the other by the air route. Santos-Dumont made the flight from Saint Cyr to Buc, a distance of five miles, in five minutes. His aeroplane has only nine square yards of surface and weighs with the operator only 260 pounds.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a becafico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

Drinking Water.

The quality of drinking water may be ascertained by filling a bottle half full, tightly corking it and then shaking it vigorously for a minute or two. On uncorking the bottle if the slightest disagreeable odor develops there is some kind of pollution in the water.

East and West.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who is back from the West, says that in the near future the double-tracking of the prairie section of the C.P.R. will be begun between Winnipeg and Brandon, as a starter, to be continued later on to the Rockies.

A clergyman writes: "Prevention, those little Candy Cold Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Prevention surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. FIFTY YEARS A WRITER

HOW MISS BRADDON CAME TO WRITE NOVELS.

As a Girl, Popular Authoress Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 For First Novel—Wrote First Installment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight — Has Retained First Rank Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction; to have published a novel for every year of her long life; and to be able to entrance the readers of to-day as she entranced their grandparents in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-two seems still to possess the secret of perennial youth.

Much water has run under the bridges of her beloved Thames since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously wrote her first story by its banks at Chiswick in a child's round hand and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little one's blood; for her father, a London solicitor, had made "Rough Robin" famous in the world of sportsmen, and her mother was saturated with a passion for literature. And so Mary Elizabeth took to writing as naturally as a duck to the water.

As a schoolgirl, with her home still by the Thames at Barnes, she was always scribbling in her exercise books; and, under the eyes of her teachers, she furtively pencilled quite a long story, "The Old Armchair," which made her famous among her schoolfellows. But alas! for years she could not thaw the hard hearts of the editors. All the literary doves she sent out to them came back to her ark with the exasperating regularity of clockwork.

One day, however, when she was emancipated from the schoolroom, she awoke to find a letter awaiting her which revolutionised her world. It was from a Beverley printer, who had seen a sketch by her in a Yorkshire paper, and who offered her the sum of £30 to write a story for him, which should "combine the humor of Dickens with the plot-construction of G. W. M. Reynolds." It was a large order and a small guerdon, but the girl was transported with delight.

Before she was many days older she had transported herself and her mother to a Beverley farmhouse, and was reeling off the masterpiece of Dickens cum Reynolds at a thousand words an hour, weaving her plot as she rode about the Yorkshire lanes. She boldly christened her story, "Three Times Dead; or The Secret of the Heath"; and it was a very proud moment in her life when she handed the last sheets of the manuscript to the printer's boy. The book certainly did not make the printer's fortune, but renamed "The Trail of the Serpent," it had a new and vigorous lease of life.

Still fame refused to knock at her door, but not for long. A little later Mr. Maxwell, a publisher, projected a new magazine, the great feature of which was to be a serial for a famous writer. To his dismay, however, the serial, which had been extensively advertised, was not forthcoming at the proper time. Mr. Maxwell was in despair, until a letter came, signed "M. E. Braddon," offering to write a serial. "Too late," was his answer to the young authoress when she called on him. "But what is the latest day you can give me?" she persisted. "Well," said Mr. Maxwell, "if the manuscript of the opening chapters is on my breakfast-table to-morrow morning that would be in time."

Next morning Mr. Maxwell found the first chapters of "Lady Audley's Secret" among his correspondence; his venture was saved, and Miss Braddon was on the high road to fame and fortune. Such was the romantic genesis of one of the most popular books ever written.

Then followed in quick succession "Aurora Floyd," "Eleanor's Victory," and "Henry Dunbar," all eagerly welcomed by thousands of admiring readers; and Miss Braddon took her place, which she has ever since retained, in the foremost rank of the writers of fiction. Since these early triumphs there has been scarcely a year when she has not given the world at least one of her fascinating novels; in some years she has published two and in others three; until her fiction-children now number more than her own years.

And Miss Braddon's life has been as happy as it has been busy. For nearly forty years her home has been in a fine old Georgian house, once the abode of the Bishop of Lichfield, at Richmond—for nothing can wean her from the river she loves so well. Here, surrounded by her birds and dogs, and her wonderful collection of china and books, she has led an ideal life, writing her books in the peace of her beautiful garden or in her study, entertaining her friends with a charming hospitality, and devoted to her home and her three sons, all of whom have made a name in the world of letters.

In her younger days she might be seen almost every morning cantering in Richmond Park on Kaiser, her white-footed bay, her eyes sparkling and face flushed with health and exercise; and even to-day there are few horsewomen in England more graceful or expert. For the rest, she spends her leisure in gardening, music, and study, of all of which she is passionately fond. A simple, gracious life, spent in womanly ways remote from the glare of the limelight—that is what Miss Braddon loves, and it is this that has preserved her youth and powers unimpaired into the 'seventies.

As for her methods of work, she carefully maps out her books to the smallest details before putting pen to paper; then, with her writing-pad on her knees, she fills sheet after sheet with her small handwriting, clear as print, with a wonderful rapidity, never pausing for a word and rarely making a correction. From a thousand to fifteen hundred words an hour is her normal rate of production. She stops work at luncheon-time.

Wonderful Jasper Park.

The Commissioner of Dominion Parks who has recently returned from Jasper Park and Pass in the Rocky Mountains on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is enthusiastic in his praises of the scenery in that district. The opening of this new wonderland by the construction of the railway will add another to the attractions of life in the Province of Alberta. Vigorous construction next summer will put the Grand Trunk Pacific steel into the new Park and Open its wonders to those who have the time, money and inclination for an outing. Switzerland has made perhaps as much from its scenery as it could have made from agricultural had its surface been more level, and the Province of Alberta in the Jasper region has a Switzerland declared by competent judges to be quite as attractive as that to which the wealthy of Europe and United States now flock, and built on a much larger scale.

HAS BRITAIN ONE, TOO?

RUBBER OUTRAGES ARE BEING TRACED TO LONDON.

"Truth" Publishes Charges Against Peruvian Amazon Rubber Co. With Headquarters In England — Tells Tales of Ghastly Cruelty to Indians In South America—Native Children Buried Alive Head Downward.

London "Truth" is publishing a narrative of the horrible atrocities which are said to have been practised on the defenceless Indians in the Putumayo rubber country in Peru.

This rubber collecting business is carried on by the Peruvian Amazon Co., of Salisbury House, London Wall, registered at Somerset House. The secretary of the company, Mr. A. V. Smith, has written as follows in regard to the terrible allegations made against their employes:

"The directors have no reason to believe that the atrocities referred to have in fact taken place, and, indeed, have grounds for considering that they have been purposely mistated for indirect object. Whatever the facts, however, may be, the board of this company are under no responsibility for them, as they were not in office at the time of the alleged occurrences."

Then follows a series of formal statements made by people who declare they have seen the inhumanities practiced on the natives. Extracts are given below, though it should be borne in mind in view of the terrible nature of the allegations that this evidence may yet be controverted.

From a declaration made by a Brazilian citizen, Joao Baptista Braga, before a commandant of the Brazilian army: It would be an endless task to relate the innumerable crimes that I have seen committed during my stay in this section. Here, recently, in the month of July the tuchaua known as Tiracahuaca and his wife were held prisoners in chains.

When Jimenez — who had been temporarily absent—arrived, he had them brought into his presence, and told them that if their tribe did not appear within the space of eight days he would show them what he would do with them.

The eight days passed, and as the tribe did not come he ordered a can of kerosene to be poured over them, and then, striking a match, he set fire to these unfortunates, who fled to the forest, uttering the most desperate cries.

Naturally, upon seeing such an awful crime committed, I expressed my horror at it to Jimenez, who replied that if there were anybody who wished to protest against the orders he gave he would be served in the same manner, and that if the company kept him as chief it was because he knew how to do his duty.

From a statement declared before a notary at Iquitos by Daniel Collantes: Martinengui ordered a commission to set out for the houses of some neighboring Indians and exterminate them, with their women and children, as they had not brought in the amount of rubber that he had ordered.

This order was strictly carried out, for the commission returned in four days, bringing along with them fingers, ears, and several heads of the unfortunate victims to prove to the chief that they had carried out his orders.

A Brazilian paper, The Journal do Commercio, published at Manaos, printed an account of a "barbarous deed" close to the Brazilian frontier. This was a narrative of a butchery of inoffensive Indians by a band of Peruvian rubber collectors.

Having killed twenty-five, they discharged their weapons at the Indians who were constructing the roof of the h[illegible] poor unfortunates, p[illegible] bullets, some dead, others w[illegible] rolled off the roof and fell to the ground.

Not content with these cowardly murders, they took the Indian women of advanced age, threw them into the canoes of the Colombians, and conducted them to the middle of the river, and then discharged their rifles at them, killing them all.

What they did with the children was still more barbarous, for they jammed them head downwards into the holes that had been dug to receive the posts that were to support the house.

The Peruvians, after taking possession of the merchandise, conducted the Colombians, the tuchaua (Indian chief) of the Andoques, two Indians, and an Indian woman to Matanzas, the dwelling-place of Norman, the journey taking two days.

Here the prisoners were tied up with cords, and afterwards shut up in one of the houses, where they passed a night of torture. In the morning the tuchaua and the two Indians were taken out to a near-by knoll and clubbed to death.

These outrages took place prior to the formation of the Peruvian Amazon Co. "Truth" remarks that the company "only comes into the case as being responsible for the way the business is conducted at the present moment."

In reply to questions in the House of Commons concerning the alleged atrocities, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said he had asked for a report on the subject. He would inquire if the Belgian consul had made a report to his Government. The shareholders in the Peruvian Amazon Co. had made no request to the Foreign Office for an inquiry.

Must Be Careful.

One of the undeniable marks of a genius is the mark he leaves as a result of infinite labor on themes he loves. No famous poet was ever so great that he could neglect to leave one word that made his whole effort inharmonious. If Canadian writers are to reach the highest peaks in literature they must learn this lesson. They must free themselves from the criticism that attaches to hurriedly dope work and to reckless versification.—Sunday World, Toronto.

"The Soul's Awakening"

A Beautiful Picture for The Home

Welcome news to readers of the weekly Times.

A most beautiful picture is that issued by The Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, entitled "The Soul's Awakening," by James Sant, of the Royal Academy.

The publishers of The Family Herald have secured this picture at enormous cost for their 1910 subscribers, and we have concluded an arrangement by which our readers can secure a copy as well.

"The Soul's Awakening" is 19 x 24 inches, ready for framing.

Here is Our Special Offer.

You may have both papers for a full year each, including a copy of the beautiful picture "The Soul's Awakening, for one dollar and fifty cents.

Send your order NOW or renew your subscription through The Times Printing, Peterborough, Ont.

P.S.—Don't overlook that we will be glad to renew your subscription for any paper or magazine. We will guarantee to be responsible and thus save you the trouble.

Prescott Potatoes.

The farmers around Prescott report a yield of from 200 to 300 bushels of potatoes per acre. The crop all through eastern Ontario has been heavy this year. The price, however is from 18c. to 25c.

Taking Action.

All the people do not always believe that all magistrates are immune against mistakes. The Commercial Travellers' Association have appealed to the Minister of Justice in reference to the sentence passed upon J. C. Walker, the Montreal traveller, who a month ago was given 30 days for speaking to a girl on a Port Hope street. Sometimes even magistrates allowed themselves to be carried away.

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Saturday, November 5th

You can buy for nine cents 25 good envelopes and 25 sheets of paper to match at Times Bookstore.

Local Option.

The local option and the antis are busy on the Lindsay voters' lists and a big bunch of changes will be asked for.

Last Meeting.

Lindsay cheese board held its last meeting Thursday morning and Mr. George Fitzgerald took the whole boarding at 11½c. The total boarded was 696 boxes.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. 15

Want a Commission.

The Orillia people are now falling into line with the "Municipal Government by Commission," advocates. The mayor of that town believes such a system is necessary on account of the growth of municipal ownership.

Lindsay Pavement.

Lindsay is seriously considering the paving of Kent street. So seriously in fact that a depotation is going to Toronto to see about te material to use. The citizens are practically unanimous as to the necessity of the permanent work.

If you are suffering from biliousness constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card, send to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. 14

On the Trails.

Reports from the hunters are to the effect that deer are scarce this season but that there are hunters galore. Every suitable spot, almost, is used as a camping ground. When the 15th of November comes and is gone the deer will be even more scarce than at present. A few are already being shipped to the homes of the sports.

Murphy Hurt.

Jos. Murphy, a well-known character in this district, has been in the city for a few weeks undergoing repairs for the accident he met with in the Cavendish Lumber Company's camps. He says he had to walk 35 miles to reach Lakefield and the nearest doctor, but that he is going back as soon as he is able.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it becomes troublesome. 13.

Savings Banks.

Port Hope heads the list in the penny savings bank deposits, so far as the towns are concerned. They have $1,101.70 on deposit. Peterborough's Board of Education cannot yet see the advantage of teaching the pupils thrift. Saving is evidently not one of the subjects for modern education. It is all right for towns and behind the times cities like Toronto and Hamilton.

Art Association.

The Women's Art Association will hold its first meeting on Tuesday afternoon next, November 9th, at 4.30 o'clock, in the Bank of Montreal board room, when Miss McCrea of the Normal School, will give a talk on "Why Art is taught in the Public Schools."

A Big Yield.

A man near Cambray claims to have threshed 300 bushels of fall wheat from six acres. The wheat was grown on Mr. John Aldon's farm. After that record is there any young man in Ontario who can see anything in the North-West to induce him to leave home? Fifty bushels per acre is a heavy yield and if one Ontario farm can do it there is no reason why a great many more can not.

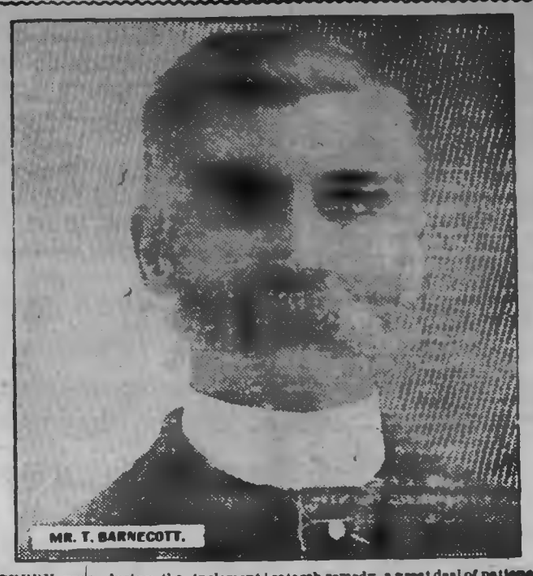
Pe-ru-na Promptly Relieves Severe Cold and La Grippe.

Mr. T. Barnecott, West Aylmer, Ontario, Can., writes:

"Last winter I was ill with pneumonia after having la grippe. I took Peruna for two months, when I became quite well, and I can say that any one can be cured by it in a reasonable time and at little expense. Every time I take a cold, I take some Peruna, which makes me well again.

"I also induced a young lady, who was all rundown and confined to the house, to take Peruna, and after taking Peruna for three months she is able to follow her trade of tailoring.

"I can recommend Peruna for all such who are ill and require a tonic."



MR. T. BARNECOTT.

EVERY year, during the inclement weather of winter, there is an epidemic of la grippe. The disease is really catarrhal in nature, but from the form it assumes, has been commonly termed the "grip."

Splendid Remedy for La Grippe.

Mr. Frank H. Fielder, 213 Pleasant Ave., Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe and a good tonic for building up the system."

La grippe is very tenacious when it once gets a firm hold upon the system, and in addition to a thorough, systemic catarrh remedy, a great deal of patience and persistence in the treatment are required to eradicate the disease.

Peruna, an internal catarrh remedy, is one of the best medicines ever devised to meet the exigencies of these cases. The large number of commendatory letters received by Dr. Hartman, the inventor of Peruna, in behalf of his remedy is proof sufficient of its value as a reliable medicine for the "grip."

Prompt Relief.

Mr. Frank Bauer, Minneiska, Minn., writes: "I suffered with la grippe. My lungs felt as if knives were sticking in them. I took Peruna and in four days I was able to go out."

Sellen Won by a Lap in a Ten Mile Race

Beat Fred Simpson, Covering the Distance in 54 Minutes and 55 Seconds—Good Crowd Present

Peterborough prople are good sports and they are willing to turn out and do turn out to see real sport and a good exhibition of athletic prowess. This was proven on Saturday night when a good crowd went to Brock strest rink to see the matched race between Fred Simpson and Percy Sellen, for ten miles. The race was pulled off and the crowd was there to see it, but it was hardly the exciting spectacle that was anticipated. Sellen proved himself the better man. He took the bkatthe lead at the start and kept it all the way except for two laps in the fourth mile, when Simpson went ahead. But Sellen came back again, and led all the way until the tenth mile when he made a final sprint, and lapped the Indian. The race ended that way, the time given out was 54 minutes and 55 seconds. The track being 13 laps to the mile.

To give the Indian his due he is too big to take the corners on a small track. Could he get out on the road or on a half mile track he would show up to better advantage. Sellenis a good little runner and he can beat Simpson any time on a small track.

Sellen's time was:—

1 mile	4.48
2 miles	10.41
3 miles	15.58
4 miles	21.00
5 miles	26.00
6 miles	31.05
7 miles	36.05
8 miles	42.05
9 miles	48.59
10 miles	54.55

Sellen won by one lap.

The running game in Peterborough would be good if there was a track available. For instance the Riverside Park people could make an ideal track on their park and the expense would be comparatively small. They have the grounds and all equipment, and there is no reason why it should not be made an up-to-date athletic field.

Peterboro' County Shows Up Well as a Farming Community

The annual report of the Bureau of Industries gives some valuable information to Peterborough County residents as follows:—

During the year 1908 Ontario had under cultivation on the farm 9,621,683 acres and the crop produced amounted to $164,077,282.

The value on live stock on hand on July 1st, 1908, was $186,014,758, and during the year proceeding that $62,975,648 worth had to be slaughtered.

Acres of assessed land	573,993
Acres cleared	131,075
Acres of wood land	131,075
Acres of slack land	95,079
Acres swamp, marsh or waste land	90,644
Percentage cleared	44.81

FALL WHEAT.

Peterborough County had 11,462 acres in fall wheat, which raised 373,942 bushels or 23.9 bushels per acre, at a total value of $255,040.

In spring wheat there were 21957 acres and 43,468 bushels were raised or 14.7 bushels per acre at a toeal value of $38,991.

In barley there were 11,560 acres which produced 289,000 bushels or 25 bushels per acre at a total value of $156,349.

In oats 58,484 acres produced 1,824,701 bushels, or 31.2 bushels per acre at a total value of $759,076.

All field crops in this county produced $2,860,605 for 169,290 acres under cultivation.

There were 22 counties in Ontario, which produced a larger total yield than did Peterborough. But there were 26 counties which had a larger acerage under cultivation.

Peterborough averaged $16.90 per acre. There were 23 counties which exceeded that amount per acre. The greatest value per acre was obtained in the Thunder Bay district where the average was $26.84 per acre. Kent was next with $21.35.

Arranging for Annual Meeting of Hockey Club

A meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club was held on Saturday night when the preliminary arrangements were made for the annual meeting. It is likely that meeting will be called about Thursday night next, the exact date and place to be arranged in a day or two. The purpose is for reorganization, the election of officers, etc. It is also likely that the sweaters will be presented to the two teams and a representative will be appointed to attend the annual meeting of the O.H.A. Nominations will also be received for a representative on the O.H.A. executive.

A citizen informed The Times yesterdat that he has discovered perpetual motion. This g.f.j. doubts it. Probably it was the machinery in the electric meter working.

Astronomers say that Mars is again trying to signal the earth. Probably wants to know the result of the West Peterborough election trial.

The Toronto Globe says that a bookkeeper in that city recently ran away with three thousand dollars of his employer's money, and stated that the item was promptly charged to profit and loss account in the books of the company. This g.f.j. thinks it should have been charged to running expenses.

No one knows what the next development in connection with West Peterborough politics is going to be, but the prevailing impression is that it will be something unpleasant.

"MARVELOUS RECOVERY."

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. Larose, of 338 Joliette Street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment, after having read your advertisement in the paper. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend them to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 338 Joliette St., Montreal, P.Q.

Let all who have weak stomachs, and those who suffer with indigestion headaches, biliousness, know they can be perfectly cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Successfully used for many years, mild and safe, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

New $60,000 Dam.

Tenders are being called for a new dam at Burleigh and must be received by Nov. 16. It will be 600 feet long and will be situated below the old dam, which it will replace. The estimated cost will be $60,000, and the work is to be completed by next summer. The new dam will increase the head of water by five feet and the maximum head will now be 26 feet.

WEATHER.

Unsettled: Not much change in temperature.

TABLET UNVEILED.

In St. John's Church in Memory of the late Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot.

A tablet was unveiled yesterday afternoon in St. John's church to the memory of the late Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmott who passed away early last spring. The late Mrs. Eardley-Wilmott, while a resident of this city, conducted St. John's choir for some time. Mr. Eardley-Wilmott was one of the wardens and the services of both were highly appreciated and greatly valued. The tablet is on the east side of the maze.

DEDICATION SERVICES.

Were Continued at St. John's Yesterday—Large Congregations.

St. John's church was crowded at both morning and evening services yesterday. The occasion was the continuation of the dedication services, and the music was suitable to the occasion. Rev. A. J. Fidler, M.A., rector of Grace church, Toronto, was the special preacher at both services. He is a most eloquent speaker and he gave two excellent sermons which were greatly appreciated.

CHRIST'S FRIENDSHIP.

Address to Boys and Young Men in the Y.M.C.A. Yesterday.

On Sunday afternoon after Sunday school Rev. Mr. Atkinson, who is conducting the evangelistic meetings in St. Andrew's church, addressed a meeting of boys and young men in the Y.M.C.A. There was a good attendance and great interest was manifested. The subject of the address was "The Friendship of Christ The speaker referred to the way in which boys formed their friendships at school and elsewhere and of the influence these friendships have upon their lives. He then went on to show how Christ had offered to be our friend according to a text taken from John. "Henceforth I call you friends." The speaker appealed to those present to avail themselves of the profered friendship of Christ and speak to Him often of their joys and sorrows.

"LOST 16 LBS. IN WEIGHT."

Was Kept Down by Bilious Indigestion, and When in Despair

DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS CURED.

In the following interesting letter Mrs. H. R. Plunkett, well known in her home town of Newtonville, tells how she conquered bilious indigestion: "I think it was drinking ice water on a very hot July day two years ago that caused an inflamed condition in my stomach, which gave me such repeated and weakening attacks of biliousness and stomach trouble. So severely did I suffer, that my strength was impaired, and I lost sixteen pounds in weight. My whole body was weakened, both kidneys and bowels failing to keep the system in natural condition. Food fermented, skin was dry and yellow. I had flushes of heat, and prickling sensations in various parts of the body. In the winter I had cold feet and clammy hands, and not until I commenced to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills did I obtain relief. In a short time Dr. Hamilton's Pills cured the bilious dyspepsia, and in a month I gained almost four pounds. The pain over the liver disappeared, the bowels acted regularly, and I kept on improving so rapidly that in three months I was vigorous and well. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills to every one in poor health."

To receive the same benefit as Mrs. Plunkett, commence Dr. Hamilton's Pills today, 25c per box. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

HE RETURNED

To Peterborough After an Absence of Over Half a Century.

Mr. Archibald Rankin, one of the early residents of this county, has returned to the city for a visit after an absence of over half a century. He at one time lived near Lakefield on Carnegie farm, and then moved to Springville where he went to school to the late John Wood of Peterborough, who taught in that neighborhood. He was christened by the late Rev. G. M. Roger, the first pastor of St. Paul's church, and father of Judge Roger of Cobourg. He left this neighborhood in 1857 and crossed over to California, at the close of the American war and before ever a railroad was built and had to make the trip by wagon. Some years ago he returned to Ontario and settled in Paisley, Bruce county, where he conducted a grocery store and where he now makes his home. The late Col. Rankin of Chatham, who is well known here, was a brother.

CAPABLE MEN.

Are at the Head of Canadian Estables, Limited.

Mr. Milton Worth DeThorbe, one of the directors of the Canadian Estables, Limited has been a successful manufacturer of food products and has a thorough and practical knowledge of this business, and he is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulas for the preparation of food products, and his experience will be of the greatest value to the company.

Canadian Estables owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. They will market the output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactured goods.

Canadian Estables, Limited, realizing that the only way to raise money for permanent investment is by the sale of securities, have placed upon the market 50,000 shares of preferred stock with eight per cent. cumulative value. These shares have a par value of $1.00 and they are on the market for a limited time only and they are being eagerly sought after. Look up the largeer advertisement on another page of this issue for full particulars.

A Policy for Peterborough

A policy for Peterborough to adopt a complete policy within the next few years should be something like the following:—

Appoint a power commission of three men with full power to prepare plans and after ratification by the council or ratepayers, to have full power to carry out the plans—the same as the water commission.

Purchase Burleigh Falls and any other good water power that is available.

Develop the power at once and have it ready for use.

The power commission to also be the electric railway commission to build electric roads from all surrounding towns to Peterborough.

Appoint a commissioner of industries with full power to advertise. Peterborough and to secure industries for the city. His plans first to be ratified by the council.

Peterborough Put Out of the Running Saturday

Peterborough Rugby season is now at an end. The seniors lost to the T.A.A.C. on Saturday by 10 to 5. It was a game that the locals should have won as they had the better team, but they did not wake up until the last quarter when it was too late. The whole game showed a lack of practise and the local boys deserved to lose as some of them had not been out for one practice all week. Only five or six were on the field since the previous game and those were the ones who played well on Saturday.

A fair sized crowd saw the game and it was hard for them to see the locals put up such a poor exhibition.

The teams lined up as follows:—

T.A.A.C.—Full back, Grant; halves, Reid, DeGruchy, McGiffin; quarter, Corg; scrimmage, Pete Haverson, Drummond, Robertson; outside wings, Burkhardt, Harcourt; middle Sheriff, Holden; inside; Veaband, orbes.

Peterborough —Full back, Craig, halves, McPherson., Cookery, O'Brien; quarter, Campbell; scrimmage Ecclestone, Giroux, Thornton; wings Staunton, Lundy; middle, O'Connor Dixon; Inside, Hickey, Turner.

Umpire—Dr. Wood.

Referee—Dr. Allen Brown.

Large Congregations In the Presbyterian Churches Yesterday

St. Andrew's church was filled at both services yesterday. In the evening a full male choir led the singing and they did exceptionally well. Mr. Downy, principal of the Central Public School, gave a beautiful rendidition of "My Mother's Prayer."

Rev. Mr. Atkinson took as his text: "Awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead and Christ shall give thee life." The illustration is a very natural and very effective one as sleep renders us unconscious to all around us. There are many people asleep when they should be awake because they are too lazy and slovenly to wake. Those people miss the beauties and joys of nature. They are dead to the world and dead to all around them. There is alsoaclass ofpeople who are spiritually asleep, who are dead to the joy and beauty af Christ and His life because they are slovenly and lazy. There are also people who are indifferent People who like to go to church to hear the preacher, but they are indefferent to the message from Christ and are dead to the happines to be derived from that message. They are in an indifferent slumber. There is also another class who become so engrossed in the work of the church, attending meetings, social functions, etc., that they see only the outside, and neglect the all important part, viz., to love Christ and to live in Him. This class was compared to the sleepers who use narcotics. The narcotise of the spiritual life are worldliness, and covetousness and there is no more dangerous thing in the world than narcotics. It is bound to end in death.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson concluded with an appeal to all to shake off the slumber and to come to Christ and live in Him.

Knox Church.

Knox church was taxed to its utmost capacity yesterday, both morning and evening and very impressive services were held. Rev. Mr. Farquharson was the special preacher and in the evening his subject was "The Downfall of Judas." He pointed out the many good qualities that must have been in Judas as he was a disciple of Christ, as he was offered nothing in the way of a worldly position or wealth and he started out in his work under great difficulties. One of the things which brought about his downfall was his growing avarce which found expression on several occasions in his life. Another cause was his ambition for which he was rebuked by Christ. When a man is rebuked he is either humbled or hardened, and in Judas case he was hardened, but Jesus' desire was to win him back through love. The life of Judas was an illustration of the possibilities of our own lives, and we are either being drawn to Christ or we are being steeled against him. To do the latter is to putourselves ona plain with Judas, which none of us desire. The only alternative is to accept Christ.

St. Paul's Church.

The services in St. Paul's church were unusually well attended yesterday and the results of the special evangelistic services are being felt. Rev. Mr. MacBeth of Paris, who is conducting services is accomplishing a great amount of good. His sermons are simple, convincing and to the point. They are bound to bear fruit. The church was crowded both morning and evening. The singing was excellent and at both services the elders distributed cards throughout the church and between 75 and 80 yesterday professed their belief and faith in Jesus Christ.

In the morning the subject of Rev. Mr. MacBeth's sermon was Matt. 10:32, "Confessing or Denying Christ." He said this seemed a harsh saying, but that it was spoken of by the most loving of men, Jesus himself, and therefore kindly meant to warn us aginst the impossibilities of a neutral life.

In the evening he took his text from John 8—22, "Is there no physician there? Why then is not the health of our people recovered?" The analogy was followed out between the sickness of the body and the sickness of the soul and an appeal was made to all to avail themselves of the help of Jesus the Great Physician.

Ruse to Throw Dust in the Eyes of England

London, Nov. 6.—Great interest is displayed here today in the speech of the German secretary for the colonies Dernberg last evening, in which he pleaded for an understanding between Germany and England, that would end all strife.

The peace party here welcomes the spech as an indication that the German-English war scarce is at an end, but others, pointing with suspicion to the feverish navy building activity of the German war lord, characterize the speech as a ruse to throw dust in the eyes of England.

The members of the cabinet have the speech as a genuine basis for a world agreement for the limitation of armaments.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

There never has been so much public discussion of the "white slave" traffic as we hear today. Earnest and progressive women have thrown off all their natural reserve in speaking of such a subject, and make public utterances of the most uncompromising character regarding it. Social reform workers—especially those who go personally into the submerged portions of our great cities and work for the rescue of the "prisoners of poverty" of every sort—tell us appalling facts regarding the diboratory the brutality, the organized cruelty of this traffic. Arrests are made from time to time; and, while it cannot be pretented that the results of these trials are often satisfactory, facts come out and statements are made which sicken and enrage the entire community. The hideous business confronts us as a reality; and civilization is doing exceedingly little to stamp it out.

Peterborough's Awakening

There is an opportunity offered to you business men and property owners and citizens of Peterborough to help make the city what it should be? Will you accept it? Will you show how much interest you have in the welfare of the town in which you live, in which you own property and in which you make your wages, by attending the citizens' meeting in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall?

The citizens' meeting is for the citizens. A few business men felt the time had come when a progressive policy should be adopted by Peterborough. Now the people of Peterborough are asked to meet and help form that policy.

Among some of the things to be discussed on Tuesday night are:—

The power question. Do we want municipal power? Will we buy Burleight What other power can we buy?

Industrial Commissioner— Do we want a commissioner of industries? A man who will devote his whole time and attention to advertising Peterborough and securing new industries for the city?

Railway Connections—Do we want the big main lines running through Peterborough? What are we prepared to pay for that privilage? Do we want radial connections with the smaller towns and the townships? What will we pay for that?

Other questions will also be talked of but the above are the most important.

Local Option in West Toronto a Good Thing Assessment Increased

Mr. W. J. Connor Addressed Special Temperance Meeting in the Grand Opera House Yesterday Afternoon

The special temperance meeting in the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon was largely attended. The ground floor was devoted to the men and the ladies occupied the gallery. Mr. McCann of the George street Methodist church choir conducted the singing and the George street choir was out in full force. A quartette also rendered several selections in which Miss Reesor took the solo parts.

Mr. W. J. Connor, for many years town clerk of West Toronto, delivered an admirable and timely speech, in which he dealt particulafirly with the points that had been urged against the local option movement. One after another he took jp these arguments and proved the groundlessness of them.

Two points in particular were depopulation and destruction of the assessment. In the case of West Toronto the population in 1902 was 6,178, in 1909, according to the assessors roll it is 12,355.

The value of property in West Toronto in 1902 was $2,700,000. in 1909 it is $9,400,000.

Mr. Connor took up point after point and showed how completely they were answered by West Toronto's experience with local option.

Wicked Tong War On in Chinatown

New York, Nov. 6.—Forty extra plain clothes men, in addition to a big squad of uniformed police, patrol the narrow lanes of Chinatown today watching the development of a Tong war that began last night and this morning. Torch and gun play markedthe opening of the new war, the cause of which was the eternal feud between the On Leong Tong and the Hip Sing Tong, augmented by the six months' trouble over the killing of Elsie Sigel, the 20-year-olll Chinatown missionary, and the execution at Boston recently of three members of the On Leong Tong, convicted, their fellow Tongmen say, by the perjured evidenre of Hip Sings.

The big blue steel revolver, with its ten-inch barrel, the typical Tong war gun, made its appearance last night, getting two victims, and while the quarter is still swarmed with police to prevent further shootings, the Chinese lodging house at 13 and 15 Doyers street was fired. More than a hundred frightened Celestials refused to leave the house while the fire crept through the place, sure that their enemies had started the fire, and waited in the street below to kill them.

The firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before any of the frightened Chinamen were injured. But none of them could be driven from the house.

After the fire the quietude that bodes ill for Chinatown settled over Mott, Pell and Doyers street, and Capt. Mike Galvin hastened to fill the empty streets with policemen. The Celestials keep to their houses or slink noiselessly through the narrow alleys and underground passages of the quarter. Not one appears in the streets.

Five Killed and 30 were Injured in a Railroad Disaster

Jersey City, N.Y., Nov. 6.— Five are dead and thirty injured in the wreck of a Philadelphia local on the Pennsylvania Railroad, which ran through an open switch at Brunswick street junction, crashed into a dead yard engine, and piled up four cars in a heap of tangled wreckage.

Every ambulance, police patrol and fire wagon available has been utilized to remove the injured, many of whom are seriously hurt.

The wreck took place upon the elevated structure upon which the Pennsylvania enters Jersey City, and the fire department was needed to get the injured to the street level, so that they might be hurried to the hospitals.

CROWD OF FOOTBALL FANS.

When the wreck occurred the Jersey City station was crowded with men and women about to leave for Princeton for the Princeton-Dartmouth football game there today. This crowd was thrown into great confusion until the officials informed them that they might proceed to their destination via the Jersey Central Railroad, the Pennsylvania being blocked.

At the hospitals it was reported later that none of those taken there were seriously hurt, and thatt all would recover. The bodies of the dead have been taken to Hughes' morgue, and the officials of the road are investigating the cause of the wreck.

That there were not half a hundred killed was due entirely to the equipemnt of the train. Every one of the cars was of steel, with reinforced steel beams and concrete flooring.

ELOPED WITH GIRL.

Mr. Tuck has sworn out a warrant for Murray on a charge of abducting his daughter.

Sciatica

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY.
Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored By "Nerviline."

We have all read and heard of the agonies of Sciatica, but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains Dampness, cold and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. THE LAWS OF CASTE.

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Bihar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayascitt" as inculcated by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without inviting the supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the customs of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you must live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry. And you have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves. The Rear-Admiral, after Lord Charles had finished the enumeration of his troubles to Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back, and cried, in a hale guy voice: "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky man, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

WAR SCARES.

The Ease With Which They Develop in European Nations.

Germany has just had a scare, and it appears that a British cruiser is the innocent cause. During the recent Baltic cruise of the Cornwall the captain intimated his intention of paying a visit to Kiel.

A dense mist prevailed at the time, and the harbor authorities did not expect her to put in an appearance before morning. When day broke, however, the official world of Kiel was staggered to find the Cornwall moored in her assigned position and apparently quite at home.

She had navigated the difficult Kiel fiord in the darkness and mist without a pilot on board, and not only that, but investigation showed that she had done the same thing at Danzig and Swinemunde.

A German newspaper immediately lashed its readers into a panic. "What would happen in the event of a sudden outbreak of war with England?" it screamed. "They would not have the slightest difficulty in bottling up the high seas in Kiel or elsewhere!"

One Belgian newspaper kept its readers awake for several nights on account of a discovery it made in a German geography book. The book, the use of which was said to be obligatory in most schools, contained this passage: "Belgium, Switzerland, Lichtenstein, Holland, Luxemburg and Denmark are considered as forming part of Germany, because they are mostly situated inside her natural boundaries." Then Denmark and Switzerland and the others began to scream.

Switzerland had another "scare" all on its own account. Not very long ago several battalions of Italian Alpine troops on skees appeared on the Theodule pass, above Zermatt, and had the town practically at their mercy.

The incident raised a storm of excitement in the Swiss press. Where, they demanded, were the twelve battalions of mountain troops and artillery for which money was voted in the Swiss parliament?

A few weeks ago the Parisian boulevard press bubbled over with excitement. Four German balloons had descended in France within forty-eight hours, and one of the papers complained, "It is raining German balloons."

One little country mayor wrote up in a state of great agitation. He had seen a balloon driven over his village by a violent wind, and he had mounted his horse and pursued it till it came to earth.

The occupants, he reported, three men and two ladies, had with them "elaborate photographic apparatus of military appearance." The minister of war received a string of frantic telegrams from various parts of the country.

Russian newspapers have been pouring oil on the troubled waters of England's German "scare" by getting up some excitement over the Austro-German entente. In some quarters it has actually been advocated that the official archives should be removed from St. Petersburg because the capital is too much exposed to the possibility of capture by the armies of her western neighbors.—Pearson's Weekly.

Courage.

For cool courage the deed of a Bendigo gold miner named Davis would be hard to beat. He and two others were sinking a shaft, and after putting in two charges of blasting powder they ascended to the plat above. One of them, Allen, slipped as he came to the surface and fell to the bottom. Instantly Davis rushed down after him, disregarding the fact that the charges were due to explode. He had dragged Allen about five feet before the first shot came. The debris luckily was carried in the opposite direction. Then he struggled on again and managed to reach a comparatively safe place for the second explosion. The two were found little the worse for their closeness to the bursting mass of rock, but Allen's leg had been broken by the fall. The Victorian government has recommended that Davis be awarded the Prince Albert medal for gallantry.—Melbourne Cor. San Francisco Bulletin.

Schoolboy Suicides.

Writing from Berlin, a correspondent of the Chicago News discusses the alarming number of child suicides in Germany. "Investigation proves that every week a schoolboy kills himself in Germany and that this average has been maintained for the last twenty-six years," says the correspondent. "Opinion is divided as to whether blame rests upon home conditions, such as the harshness and ambition of parents, or upon the school management. A case is cited in which a father said to his son on the eve of an examination, 'If you don't bring me your certificate of promotion I will not speak to you again.' The boy went into the examination more dead than alive and luckily got his certificate, but one investigator asks, 'What if he hadn't?'"

Kangaroo Money For Australians.

Suggestions and sketches depicting a kangaroo on one side and a probability of the early future. For a long time Australia has been clamoring for the right to coin silver and the Imperial mint authorities have at last consented. Sir Gerald Parsons, the numismatist, has been commissioned to design Australian coins, and it is said that the coins will have a kangaroo on one side and "Australia" on the other. Those who have seen the sketches say that they are quite as handsome as the coins of the mother country. Melbourne will also be glad to learn that their operation has been restricted to gold.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. And it is so very, very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform. Absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Those leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see! Sold by all dealers

THE SUPREME TEST.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice trembling with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the pazzix? Is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," reluctantly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously. "Is there any other guy that's got the lunkie track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snoozer with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Then why the Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego are you stalling me off? I may not be a pampered child of fashion, but I'm on the dead lev. I've never been caught with the goods. Girlie, ever since I was a kid you've been my one best bet, and you know it. I'm Old Faithful from Kleongonville. I've trailed along in your wake like a night police reporter on the track of a lovely holdup or a hog collector after a gorgeous butterfly. All my life I've been building bungalows in the air for you to move into some day. I'd rather look at your thumps than to eat four square meals. You are the niftiest, peachiest dream that ever"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not truly mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

"Geoffrey," she said, recovering herself, "we must not make a mistake that will wreck our whole lives! I must ask you one question."

"Well?"

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was hurled, dishevelled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Bah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Sketchy Bits.

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy boeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for boeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' ef I do," said the boy, "and hell ef I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Groucher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

Insuring Respect.

"Do you think a diamond on your hand ring really makes a girl more thought of by her chums?"

"Well, it certainly is a good thing to have on hand."

Business In Real Life.

"What are you doing with your wife's photograph?"

"I'm using it as a model after which to paint a picture of a beautiful girl for my wife's birthday present."—Kansas City Journal.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No help, No pay" contract.

I positively pledge to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same—or else pass their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvements.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. I do not dose the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. Years ago I cast away that delusion idea in medicine. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the Heart its power, its tone, its never-ending action or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the Stomach, and Kidneys reach here their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize these weak or failing inside nerves. All of them help tell why I am able to say, "If it fails it is paid".

This is why I say "take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to issue my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So drop me a line please—and thus save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

THE PANAMA HAT.

What Came of a Glimpse of the Initials on the Inside.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

As Genevieve came on deck the young man in the panama hat glanced over his shoulder in her direction. Then, with surprising alacrity, he whirled about, and the rapid removal of the panama revealed a well shaped head and close cropped dark hair, which clung through many vicissitudes to an unmistakable tendency to curl.

As the morning dew vanishes under the fierce rays of the midsummer sun, so the young man's expression of joyful animation disappeared when met by Genevieve's chilly stare. His lower jaw dropped. The color mounted from the top of his rather high collar to the roots of his hair. Genevieve went on her way well satisfied with herself.

"I imagine he thinks me not quite as unsophisticated as he supposed. Probably his intention was to surprise me into a bow and then to presume on that to join me. And by the time that I had explained that I really didn't know him we should be beginning to feel quite well acquainted." She smiled again with superior triumph as she reflected on the overthrow of the plot. She wished that Aunt Myra might have been an onlooker—Aunt Myra, who had questioned the propriety of her taking the short voyage unchaperoned.

On the opposite side of the steamer the wearer of the panama hat leaned upon the rail and darkly regarded the blue water. The attitude, suggestive of dejection, gave Genevieve the opportunity to steal furtive glances at the motionless offender. His clothes fitted well. As far as that was concerned, any tailor would be inspired to do his best by such a figure. "Adorable shoulders," said Genevieve, so nearly aloud that it was just as well that Aunt Myra was not present.

At the expiration of an hour Genevieve had come to the conclusion that the guilty young man who had addressed her when she came on deck was not an old offender. He had taken her rebuff too deeply to heart for that. His interest in the Chesapeake bay seemed to undergo no diminution after sixty minutes of incessant staring. Genevieve began to feel that possibly she had been too severe. A look of dignified perplexity might have been enough without any of the ruthless, annihilating scorn before which his self confidence had shriveled. Genevieve surprised herself in a pitying sigh.

It was now time for the panama to take a hand. As Genevieve's commiserating glance stole in the direction of the crushed and disheartened youth staring over the rail her challenge was accepted. With a birdlike motion the panama rose from its owner's head, evading his clutch with a dexterity that argued deliberate intention. It sailed across the steamer's bow, dodging various agile persons who attempted to intercept it, and continued in Genevieve's direction. On reaching her it surrendered at discretion. Tame and obedient as a pet dog, it dropped into her lap, and, though Genevieve clutched it by the brim, that was merely a matter of form. She was sure that the panama hat had no intention of going farther.

The hat's owner was not far behind his property. There was a redness about him that was not due to sunburn, but was not unbecoming. He bowed. Genevieve reflected, with a feeling of self congratulation, like a gentleman.

"I am very much in your debt," said the owner of the panama.

"Not at all, I'm sure," responded Genevieve. Her tone was calculated to a nicety—not friendly enough to encourage liberties in the presumptuous, not chilling enough to dishearten the timid and retiring.

"Perhaps," the young man hesitated, taking his property from her extended hand, "I might improve this opportunity to apologize for what must have seemed a piece of rudeness on my part."

Genevieve listened with an expression as nicely calculated as her tone had been. There was nothing about it on which one could presume, yet it was far from being frosty.

"As you came up the stairs," the young man continued, twirling the panama, "I glanced over my shoulder, and for some reason your face looked extraordinarily familiar. When I bowed I was under the impression that I knew you."

Genevieve's lips curled a little in spite of herself. He would have done better, she reflected, to stop with the apology, the explanation was so painfully weak; trite to start with, and, moreover—well, without vanity, Genevieve knew that her type was not common.

Certainly never was six foot one of manhood so easily disconcerted.

"Thank you again," said the owner of the panama in a low voice, and he turned on his heel.

But as he set his recovered hat upon his head Genevieve caught sight of something that made her start—three shining gilt letters fixed into the inner leather band. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" she cried impulsively.

The young man did not hear her, and a fellow passenger checked him in his return to his seat, seizing his coattails. "Lady ain't done with you yet," said the obliging passenger, and the owner of the panama looked back and saw that it was true.

He returned with an apparent reluctance Genevieve thought best not to notice. "Excuse me," she said breathlessly, "but those letters inside your hat—are they your initials?"

The young man stared and colored. "Why, yes."

"Like an algebra problem, aren't they?" Genevieve persisted.

Apparently the young man wished to show her that she was not the only person who could assume an air of hauteur. "The peculiarity of my name," said the owner of the panama, looking over Genevieve's head, "is a misfortune in which the general public"—

"The reason I asked," interrupted Genevieve, "is because I never heard of but one person whose initials were X. Y. Z., and he was one of my cousin's dearest friends."

The owner of the panama no longer looked haughty. Instead his expression suggested blissful incredulity.

"His name began," Genevieve continued, blushing under the young man's gaze, "with Xavier."

"Young," prompted the other delightedly.

"Zimmerman," Genevieve concluded, and she looked about her. "Isn't there an unoccupied chair? Oh, yes!"

The young man brought it and seated himself beside her. "I've always hated my name," he said meditatively. "It's a mixture of French and English and German, of the prosaic and the sentimental. It's fairly grotesque and indefensible from any standpoint. I've seriously contemplated having it changed by an act of the legislature. But from this day on I'll find no more fault with it. When you saw those letters X. Y. Z., of course you knew there couldn't be but one of us."

"I blame myself for waiting for that," said Genevieve demurely, "since I've seen your photograph at my cousin's, a number of photographs indeed."

Mr. Zimmerman drew a long breath. "And I was wondering why your face seemed so familiar." He made a motion toward an inside pocket, but then checked himself, reflecting that perhaps it would be wiser to wait a little for that. But by the middle of the next forenoon he felt it safe to exhibit the little kodak picture Jim had given him—a picture of Genevieve with a tennis racket over her shoulder and her hair ruffled by the breeze.

Genevieve pouted. "If he were going to give you any," she said, "he might have chosen one that—that flattered me more."

The sea voyage from Baltimore to Boston, though not a long one, affords considerable opportunity for progress in acquaintance. Mr. X. Y. Zimmerman might be suggestive of an algebraic problem, but in that case no one of his fellow passengers was in doubt as to the final solution.

The Psychology of Crowds.

Taste is a justification for a preventive censorship in the peculiar nature of the crowd. Collective psychology, or the psychology of crowds (mainly investigated so far by French and Italian inquirers), is a study still in its infancy. A completely satisfactory explanation of the peculiarities of the crowd is not yet forthcoming. But these peculiarities are matters of common knowledge.

Briefly, a crowd is a new entity, differing in mind and will from the individuals who compose it. Its intellectual pitch is lowered, its emotional pitch raised. It takes on something of the characteristics of a hypnotised "subject." It tends to be irrational, excitable, lacking in self control. Many Frenchmen under "the terror," gentle and humane as individuals, made up crowds guilty of horrible atrocities. Questioned afterward, they could not account for their actions. Some inexplicable change had taken place in them, and that inexplicable something was the peculiar influence of the crowd.

A theatrical audience has the peculiar psychology of the crowd. An offensive play performed before it has an entirely different effect from that which the play would have if read separately and privately by each individual. The crowd is the real controlling factor in the matter.—A. B. Walkley Before Stage Censorship Commission.

No Worry.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

"Why, I thought you had no labor troubles there at all?"

"No more we have."

"But how, then, can all this striking be going on?"

"The clocks do it."—Baltimore American.

Lack of Judgment.

"Biggins is a most kind and considerate man."

"Yes, but he has an unfortunate way of showing it. He is the sort of person who will ring your doorbell at 6 a. m. to ask you whether the crowing of his rooster disturbs you."—Washington Star.

A Difference.

"Is she jolly?"

"No, but she does."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Brave Answer.

There was sharp fighting between the English and French in the Windward islands in 1778 when General Meadows conquered St. Lucia not, however, without himself being severely wounded at the very beginning of the engagement. The general, though wounded, would not leave the field for a moment, and when the action was over he visited every wounded officer and man before he would receive the surgeon's attention himself. His heart was greatly cheered by an answer given to him by a young subaltern, Lieutenant Gomm of the Forty-sixth regiment, who in the heat of action was wounded in the eye.

"I hope you have not lost your eye, lieutenant," said the general.

"I believe I have sir," replied Gomm, "but with the other I shall see you victorious this day."

The brave young fellow had his wish.—London Scraps.

An Amphibious Watch.

Mr. John Norris, a former chief constable of Coventry, whose death is just announced, was the possessor of a watch on which was engraved a view of the Tay Bridge, and which bore the following inscription: "The Tay Bridge disaster, December, 1879. This watch lay in the River Tay for six weeks; it stopped at the time of the accident, remained silent many days, started again, and worked nine hours under water." The watch had been lent to Mr. Baynon, an artist, of Cheltenham, who was drowned in the disaster. A charge of dynamite was afterwards used to raise the bodies from the river, and this doubtless started the watch again.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—18 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Cripple Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 200,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 200,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $600. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 300,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the best opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world that makes them of great value. The black diamonds are pure carbon, and yet in no outward appearance resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George F. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Men Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or——

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Mensel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

There Only by Inference.

An Englishman coming by train to Glasgow for the first time and passing Motherwell Junction said to a gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, 'Motherwell.' Is there a 'Fatherwell' next?"

"No," was the reply, 'but we come immediately to Bothwell."—London Tit-Bits.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Sheop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discuss and recommend Dr. Sheop's Restorative. A few days' test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

Famous French Dressmakers Who Think Good Sewing Beneath Them.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It used to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that this defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

Wise women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her ambition is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The sirup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse that futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

For Rough Fingers.

The base of the average sewer or embroiderer is the roughened first finger. This is particularly trying when one is using embroidery silks, which catch and roughen easily.

To keep the hands in good condition wash them carefully before beginning work and rub off all roughness with a fine pumice stone. Then wash off with a little acetic acid, which can be bought at any drug store.

If this is not at hand a good cider vinegar answers the same purpose and makes the skin soft and smooth.

THE MAID OF HONOR.

What the Personal Attaches of Royalty Have to Do.

Probably the majority of those members of the general public who study the Court Circular and see noted therein that "the Hon. So-and-So was in attendance as maid of Honor," have a very hazy idea as to the duties discharged by a maid of honor, and may perhaps imagine that these are limited to looking charming and beautiful at the various state functions which her royal mistress graces with her presence.

As a matter of fact, however, maids of honor enjoy by no means a sinecure, and may certainly be said to fully earn the $1,500 per annum with which their services are rewarded.

Queen Alexandra, being a Queen Consort, has but three maids of honor, whereas Queen Victoria had eight, who were in attendance at court in couples for a month twice a year.

Aspirants for these coveted positions at court are selected in accordance with the personal wishes of Her Majesty, and, needless to say, must possess excellent qualifications for the post.

Good birth and breeding are, of course, essential, and daughters of well-known peers are frequently glad to secure so comfortable a post at court. The title of "Honorable," however, which is always prefixed to the names of Her Majesty's maids of honor is quite irrespective of birth, being purely an honorary title, which is retained even after the office has been relinquished.

But, though good birth is a sine qua non, it is by no means the only qualification which the would-be maid of honor must possess. No one, however exalted her station, would be selected who did not possess personal accomplishments considerably above the average. Thus, a knowledge of French and German is always required; while a thorough acquaintance with public affairs is also desirable for a maid of honor, as one in almost constant attendance on her royal mistress has naturally to mix with many distinguished guests, and her conversational powers have necessarily to be considerable. A talent for music and an ability to read aloud with clearness and expression are also qualities which are taken into account in filling up vacancies in the royal household. Most essential of all, perhaps, is it that a maid of honor should be guiltless of the essentially feminine vice of tittle-tattle, and any tendency to disclose court secrets would ensure severe rebuke and probable dismissal.

The everyday duties of a maid of honor are of such variety and multiplicity that any detailed enumeration of them would be impossible, but they may be described in general terms as those which in less exalted circles fall to the lot of "companions." Thus a maid of honor is expected to take an important part in helping to entertain the guests of her royal mistress, and at dinner she usually occupies a seat next to the gentleman who has the honor of sitting on the immediate right of the Queen. She has also to see that Her Majesty is provided with a bouquet, which is always placed at the right of her plate at dinner. Another duty which falls to her lot is that of accompanying the Queen when she walks or drives out and to assist her with some of her correspondence, although the bulk of this is, of course, turned over to other officials of the royal household.

The maids of honor are also expected, if called upon, to assist in amusing their Majesties' guests after dinner either by displaying their musical accomplishments or by taking a hand at cards.

He Followed the Advice.

Mr. Stephens Phillips, the dramatist and poet, whose financial misfortunes are so widely regretted, began life as a member of Mr. F. R. Benson's repertoire company. An amusing story is told of his debut. Mr. Benson had told him that the great thing for an actor is to act. "It does not matter," he continued, "so much what the words are which the actor speaks as the impression which he conveys to the audience by those words." Then he gave Mr. Phillips the part of Balthazar in "Romeo and Juliet." On the first night Balthazar managed the first line of his part, and then forgot the rest. Romeo, in the person of Mr. Benson, had to go to his assistance, and speak the rest of the part for him, while Balthazar exhibited an agony of speechless grief. "What do you mean," Mr. Benson afterwards demanded, "by going on the stage without knowing your part?" "I was only doing what you told me. You said the great thing on the stage was not so much the words you speak as to act. Well, I was acting."

"Rita's" Methods.

There is this curious feature regarding the work of that popular English novelist, Mrs. W. Desmond Humphreys, known to the world as "Rita." She only needs a title for a book, and that serves as a plot. The characters evolve themselves. "Peg the Rake" was suggested by a chance remark of her husband, who is an Irishman. "Rita" took the three little words to heart, and created the wild, irrepressible Peg, whose doings have entertained so many thousands. A chance remark, too, led to the title of "The Pointing Finger" — one of "Rita's" most dramatic stories, which has been added to the Newnes' Sixpenny Famous Novels. It is a book of rare interest to both sexes.

Australian Cities.

In Australia, as in England, people flock to the towns. F. A. W. Gisborne of Tasmania, in an article in The Empire Review, mentions that Melbourne, with its 538,000 inhabitants, contains no less than 43.11 per cent. of the population of Victoria; Adelaide 45.41 of that of South Australia. The six capital cities contain 1,519,841 people, or 36.21 of the whole population of the Commonwealth. If we include the other towns, numbering almost 80, each of which possesses more than 3,000 inhabitants, we find that out of the 4 1-4 million people in Australia nearly 2 1-2 million consist of town-dwellers.

A Woman's Queer Will.

Dame Margaret Morell Mackenzie, widow of the English throat specialist, has forbidden her children by will to be dismal because she is dead. "When I die," she says in her will, which was recently proved, "I hope my children will wear as little black for mourning as possible. White or mauve I like, but not black. And I hope they will not shut themselves up but go out among their friends and to places of amusement. I am not afraid of them forgetting me, and I want them to be happy."

SALE OF LANDS IN GILLIES LIMIT.

Under authority of an Order-in-Council, dated 14th October, 1909, a portion of that tract of land generally known as the Gillies Limit, in the District of Nipissing, and Province of Ontario, containing about 1,188 acres, and situated immediately south of the lands on the said Limit already sold, is offered for sale by tender in parcels or locations containing 20 acres each, or thereabouts such tenders to be addressed to the undersigned at the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, Toronto, plainly marked on the envelope "Tender Gillies Limit," and to be received at the said Department up to one o'clock p. m. on Monday, the 15th day of November, 1909.

Tenders are to be for each parcel separately, and to name a lump sum or bonus therefor. An accepted cheque for ten per cent. of this amount to accompany the tender, and the remainder to be paid in full within twenty days of acceptance of the same.

A royalty of ten per cent. on the gross proceeds (less freight and smelter charges) of all ores, minerals or concentrates taken from the lands will be payable to the Crown, and purchasers will be required to enter into a satisfactory agreement with regard to the same. Sales will also be subject to working and other conditions, full particulars of which, together with a map showing the said tract and the subdivisions thereof, may be obtained on application to the Department.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the offices of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, or fails to complete the works at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

Wordsof praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you.

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products, also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many secret and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1000 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by toil he sees in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and after careful consideration, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 50 per cent. dividend on both. Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By law 30 provides that a final 9 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 9 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

AN ANGEL UNAWARES.

The Ring She Sold and the Happiness That Came to Her.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

(Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

Mr. Kendall, building a bonfire on the back lot, grumbled. "What's the use?"

Mrs. Kendall came to the kitchen door. "Well, I don't see how we can help taking her in."

"One more mouth to feed," said Mr. Kendall as he piled boxes and papers on the flames.

"Well, I told her," said Mrs. Kendall anxiously, "that she'd have to take pot luck, and that you always had your chop or egg for breakfast because you worked so hard, and that the children and I ate the leftovers, and she said that was all right—that she'd eat the leftovers too."

"Humph!" said Mr. Kendall. "She'll get tired of that."

But she didn't get tired of it. She ate hash and warmed over potatoes and fried bread and mysterious culinary resurrections and said to Mrs. Kendall smilingly, "Everything tastes so good."

"I'm glad you think so, Miss Millicent," Sarah Kendall said. "You always have had everything so much nicer that I am almost ashamed to put these things before you."

Millicent looked thoughtful. She couldn't tell Sarah the story of the rigid economy that she had practiced during the last years of her residence in the old home. She couldn't tell how good the hot, substantial food tasted after the months of cold bread and coffee; of how Mrs. Kendall's savory Irish stews and ham and cabbage made her feel as if she had feasted royally when contrasted to the butterless bread and meatless hashes on which she had dined for over a year.

"MILLICENT," HE SAID SOFTLY.

To be sure, there had been cut glass and silver on the table. But these Miss Millicent's mother would never have allowed sold, so that the two lonely women, the last cent of their income swallowed up by bad investments, had sewed a little for intimate friends, who would not tell, and had thus managed to keep up the appearance of gentility.

But when old Mrs. Estabrook died it all had to come out. Everybody in Twining Town knew at last that Miss Millicent, whose family had for generations lorded it over the surrounding country, was left without a penny and except for the kindness of her old servant, Sarah Kendall, would have had to be dependent upon the charity of the town.

Miss Millicent bore her misfortunes with seeming calmness. It was so good to be filled once more with food, to sit by Sarah's warm fireside instead of shivering over a few coals in the great bare drawing room, that the little lady forgot pride, forgot everything but that she was comfortable.

She sewed for Sarah's seven children and earned her place in the household.

But Mr. Kendall grumbled. It was an extra mouth, he kept insisting.

"It's an extra help, too," Sarah told him, with flashing eyes. "You don't think how much her sewing lifts off me."

Miss Millicent was not blind to Kendall's attitude. But she endured patiently, for Sarah's loyalty and the love of the little children made up for many things. But the time came when even Sarah could not protect her from Amos' crustiness.

"It's hard enough to earn a living for your own," he flung out one Saturday night as he came in with a heaped basket of provisions. "Seven mouths to feed and one extra—it's enough to make a man break down—

Where are the Children?

An unmarried woman about 30 years of age, of the Township of Tyendinaga, is in the Belleville jail. She is known to have given birth to four children but only one is known to be alive. She will be asked to tell where the others are and how they came to be there. The Children's Aid Society has charge of the case.

Goes to the Bank.

Mr. Roy Wilson, who for some time past has been on the Bell Telephone Company's staff, has decided to take a banking career and has entered the Bank of Montreal at Fenelon Falls. Before his departure his fellow employes in the Bell Telephone Company, presented him with a pair of gold cuff links and an address.

OTHER TOWNS DOOR

Because Their Citizens and Councils are Doing Things.

Guelph, the Royal City, which for many years lay sleeping, satisfied with its royal name and the Ontario Agricultural College, has awakened, and for several years has been forging ahead. As for municipal ownership it leads Ontario and for tax rate it will soon lead the Dominion. Guelph pays over $30 per horse power for Niagara power, yet the council is applying to the legislature for permission to extend its radial railway through several small hamlets to Puslinch Lake, the summer resort of all that part of Ontario and then on to Hespeler where it will connect with the G.T.R. & H., and have radial connection with Hespeler, Preston, Galt, Brantford, Hamilton, etc., Berlin and Waterloo. Peterborough with power at $30 per horse power and thousands of horse powers going to waste at her very doors, has not a foot of railway outside the city; is not connected with any of the smaller towns and it does not look as if it would be either. Guelph owns quite a stretch of steam railway which was built when things were dark, and today the city is receiving a nice profit from it; Peterborough must awake up.

Death Penalty was Commuted to Sentence of 10 Ten Years

Executive Clemency Exercised in Mrs. Robinson's Case—First Time in Many Years Where a Commuted Sentence Has Not Meant Life Imprisonment

A special despatch from Ottawa says:

"The expected executive clemency has been exercised by the cabinet in the case of Mrs. Robinson, under sentence of death at Sudbury. In place of capital punishment she will go to the Kingston Penitentiary for a period of ten years. The case was considered at Saturday's meeting of the cabinet and on the unanimous decision was for commutation. The point of discussion, however, was on the question of a full pardon. It was decided that this could not be granted on the ground that it would be establishing a bad precedent, especially in a case where there was no doubt of guilt of murder in the first degree.

"The case is the first in many years where a sentence has been commuted to a specific term of imprisonment. It is usually for life.

"No criminal case in the history of the department, save that of Shortis, some years ago, has attracted so much public interest, and the petitions for commutation totalled over 150,000 signatures. The shocking domestic conditions underlying the tragedy and general pity for the unfortunate woman resulted in the universal demand for clemency, which has now been granted.

"There is a possibility that after a year or so the prisoner may be released on ticket-of-leave."

Crowd Wanted to Hang the Stanstead Ruffians

Sherbrook, Que., Nov. 8.—An angry crowd of four hundred tried to get the prisoners Wilson and Button away from the constables at Stanstead today. They had been committed for trial to Sherbrooke, and a rush was made as they left the station. The constable in charge fired in the air, and during the pause the prisoners were hurried into a room in the court house. Trouble is anticipated when the men are conveyed to the train.

These are the men arrested on a charge of assaulting a little girl aged seven at Stanstead on Friday night. The child was taken into a bush and left in a precarious condition. Eventually she dragged herself out to the street and attracted the attention of the passerbys. She is still in a precarious condition. Button was arrested in Vermont, and gave information which led to the arrest of the other man.

The neighborhood is thoroughly aroused. Several parties have been out searching for the men. Lynching was talked of.

The infuriated crowd of people made a movement towards the prisoners with the avowed intention of hanging them.

CANADIAN NORTHERN.

Has Purchased Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Ottawa is to have still another important branch line of railway running westerly within the near future. It is stated on good authority that Mackenzie and Mann, in pursuance of their steady policy of extension, have added another to their string of Ontario railway properties, by purchasing the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa railway. This line, which is now about fifty miles in length, runs easterly from Kinmount Junction, on the Grand Trunk's Lindsay—Haliburton branch, to within a few miles of Bancroft, in the northern part of Hastings County. It has been in operation about twenty years, and though originally its roadbed and equipment was so crude as to be a standing joke in the district, it has within the past ten years been greatly improved. Up to the present the line has not been considered much of a factor in the railway world of the province, but it will probably become the nucleus of an important link in the Canadian Northern. Its survey eastward from the present terminus to Ottawa runs through the only available valley route. An extension of one hundred miles to the East would reach Ottawa while by building fifty miles westward, the Canadian Northern's Toronto-Sudbury line would be tapped and the Georgian Bay would be reached, giving Mackenzie and Mann a road paralleling the Canada Atlantic from the Capital to the Upper Lakes, and forming a continuation of their Ottawa-Montreal Quebec line.

It was impossible to obtain confirmation of the conclusion of the sale, or details as to the price paid from the officials of either road, but none would deny that the transfer of the line had practically been decided upon.

TRENT RIVER DRY.

Water Was Shut Off at Crowe Bay Over Sunday.

For the first time in the experience of the oldest inhabitant of Campbellford, probably the first time it ever happened, the Trent River was dry on Sunday from Crowe Bay to Trenton.

The Seymour Power Company were making some repairs to their plant above the town and to accomplish the work they had to have the river free from water. This condition was secured by shutting off the water with stop-logs at Crowe Bay. The result was that the river was practically free from water all the way from Crowe Bay to the outlet at Trenton. A Peterborough man who was at Campbellford over Sunday describes the scene as remarkable. People were walking across the river, or rather the place where the river should have been. A large number of fish were left high and dry when the water went out, and many of the boys of the town and surrounding country took advantage of the opportunity to gather a "string." The bed of the river presented a strange sight with the numerous logs and other material that have gone to the bottom since the lumbering industry was commenced nearly a century ago.

The public school board of Port Hope, at its last meeting had presented to it a petition from eleven of the teachers in that town asking the Board to reconsider its action with regard to the salary system. No action was taken by the Board relative to this petition.

THE NEW DAM

At Horseshoe Lake is Being Rushed Along.

The work of building a new Government dam at Horseshoe Lake is progressing as rapidly as possible. The undertaking is quite a stupendous one, and necessitates the erection of a number of large buildings for the accommodation of the men, teams, tools, cement, etc. The work is being put in some ten rods down theriver from the old dam, and in one place the excavation is 16 feet deep, to reach the solid bed rock. There is therefore in that place 16 feet of cement work below the bottom of the sluiceway. Steam power is being used and also to hoist rocks or other heavy weights. The work is kept going both day and night, and Overseer Richardson says it will probably cost $10,000.—Minden Echo

WATER LILY DOWN.

Last Trip of the Season Brought Down Two Scow Loads.

The steamer Water Lily arrived in port yesterday with a scow load of wood for R. Hicks & Co. This is the last trip of the seasonand the steamer will now be tied up in their winter quarters. The Water Lily has been towing wood from Stony Lake and Ball Lake for R. Hicks & Co., ever since Sept. 10th, or the close of the passenger season and she has brought down a lot of fuel in that time. A scow load of heading and lumber for the Mann Lumber Company was also brought down yesterday. The Water Lily has had a very busy season with freight since the excursions stopped running. Every year sees a big increase in the freight business between Peterborough and points on the lakes.

MILLIONS OF FLOWERS.

Bloom on C.P.R. Property—Thousands of Bulbs Being Distributed.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has long been recognized as one of the leading railway systems of the world. The Canadian Pacific Railway does not devote its entire time to building cars and making money. It looks to the pleasure and comforts of its patrons and employes, and devotes time and money to the artistic. Some years ago this railway company conceived the idea of beautifying its property with lawns and flower beds. Believing the scheme to be feasible and of an uplifting and beneficial tendency upon its employes a floral department was established and given full control of this work.

As a result of the work of the floral department during the past thirteen years the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has practically a flower bed and lawn at every station and stopping point. These to the traveler appear as an oasis in the desert and they are just as welcome and as much appreciated. In a travel over the C.P.R. lines in the Dominion of Canada one will find over 1500 of these beauty spots and each year sees an increase in the number.

During 13 years of labor the floral department has worked up an enthusiasm among its employes that is good to see. Hundreds of barren and waste patches have been converted into grass plots and flower beds and a big improvement in these is noticed each year.

This beautifying plan is general and it is participated in by all classes of employes, agents, section men, round house men, and clerks. Anyone who will plant, cultivate and care for flowers are furnished with the material by the company. Last spring alone 50,000 packages of seeds, including 29 varieties, were distributed, and there were planted and they bloomed on the C.P.R. property all over the country.

This fall the floral department have sent out a half a million bulbs, including tulips, narcissus, hyacinths and lillies, and next spring there will be over a million early spring flowers in bloom.

The object of this work is to induce employes to beautify station grounds, round houses, office buildings, and to improve the surroundings of the employes themselves. The influence is tenfold for it spreads to whole communities and is an education itself. The C.P.R. furnishes an object lesson which is being acted upon by many large manufacturing concerns and business houses in the country and they are doing much to make Canada the ideal country in which to live and labor.

SUICIDE IN DUMMER.

Wm. Ellis, a Farm Hand, Took Paris Green Sunday Night.

Paris green intentionally taken was the cause of William Ellis' death on Mr. John Clysdale's farm near Warsaw early Monday morning. Ellis was an Englishman who had been out here for two years. He was about 24 years of age and regularly sent money home to his family in England. No reason is known for the suicide as he had no troubles in this country.

On Sunday night Ellis was left alone while the family went to church. When they returned Ellis was missing but was later found in the barn and was very ill. He was taken to the house and later on a doctor was sent for, but the unfortunate man had passed away before the physician arrived.

Coroner Dr. Grey did not consider an inquest necessary.

Died in Lansing.

Word was received in the city yesterday by Mr. James K. Moore, 195 Park street, of the death of his son, James Moore, who passed away yesterday morning in Lansing, Mich. The news came as a great shock to the family. They were not aware that he had been ill. He left here four years ago, and was 24 years of age.

Arrangements are being made to bring the remains here for interment.

THE WEATHER.

Record Cargo of Oats for Quaker Oats Co.

Midland, Nov. 8.—"Ofler," the largest grain boat on Canadian waters arrived in Midland harbor this morning from Fort William, with 527,000 bushels of oats, for Quaker Oats Company of Peterborough.

This is the largest cargo that has ever been unloaded at a Canadian port. The entire cargo will be taken to Peterborough by the Grand Trunk. This purchasing of this entire cargo of oats, gives the publiic some idea of the enormous output of the Quaker Oats Co.

The moving of this huge cargo will be commenced at once, which will necessitate the use of about 405 large grain cars and 32 engines, or 16 double-headers in all.

Large Crowds Attend Evangelistic Meetings

The second week of the evangelistic campaign was begun last night in the Presbyterian churches under the most favorable circumstances. Great interest has been awakened throughout the city and large numbers are attending the services.

In St. Paul's church Rev. Mr. MacBeth was the speaker and he took his sermon from III. John 2. "I wish above all things that thou may est prosper and be in good health even as thy soul prospereth." The opening words showed the transformation in John's character. In his early days he was called the Son of Thunder, but companionship of Christ transformed him into a disciple of God. This letter is written to a Gentile concerning whom John had been enquiring. John had found out that this convert was prospering in soul and hence found it safe to express the wish that he should also prosper in business and be in good health. This is putting first things first. The Philippines soul is the important thing and after that health of body and wealth will be properly used.

ST. ANDREWS.

In St. Andrew's church Rev. Mr. Atkinson delivered an eloquent address, taking the following as his subject, Act 16, "The story of Lydia and the Philippean jailer." Paul says in one of his letters that there are diversities of operations but the same God worketh. This story is an illustration of that principle. We see how the same God through the same spirit and by the same grace works on utterly diverse characters. Lydia a refined, cultured, and spiritual woman. The jailor a coarse, cruel and Godless man. The Church of Christ today should learn this lesson from this that Christ works the extremes of character. Mary of Bethany and Mary Magdala, Nicodemus and the dying thief.

Next was noted the diversity of operation by the spirit of God. Of Lydia we read her heart the Lord opened, Jesus says, "Behold I stand at the door and knock. If any man open the door I will come in." So simply and quietly he approaches the spirits of men. He holds out His hand and asks for our friendship. Can we refuse Him and exclude Him In 99 cases out of, 100 thus is conversion accomplished. On the other hand God sometimes departs from the ordinary and makes use of the exceptional. He uses the earthquake of a sudden temptation, of a great fall, of a severe trial, of a shattering blow to faith, so that in the midst of some catastrophy to hope, and love when all is darkness, men cry "What must I do to be saved?" and the answer comes, "Believe on Jesus Christ."

Redskins in the West May Cause Bloodshed

Vancouver, Nov. 8.—The Provincial police brought the Indian troubles near Hazelton to a climax at day light on Saturday. Government Agent Allison and Chief Constable Maitland Bougall swore in fifty special constables, and proceeded to Kispoix, the Indian village, eight milens north of Hazelton, under cover of the darkness. Crossing the Skeena River at 5 o'clock, they caught the Indians asleep. Six ringleaders of the agitation were arrested and brought to Hazelton in canoes.

There were lively times for an hour or more till the men wanted were put in irons. Several Indians showed fight, one endeavoring to wrench the rifle from the constable, but was knocked down by the butt end of a shotgun in the hands of a big Scotchman. The Indian, getting on his feet, made an attempt to escape. He was ordered to halt, but paid no attention. A shot fired over his head brought him to a stand.

There are two hundred able-bodied men in the village of Kispiox, fifty at Hazelton, and five hundred in the other villages. On Thursday the Siwashes ordered Hugh Taylor, Government telegraph operator, and family to vacate their house within thirty days or suffer the consequences. The same day the Indians seized supplies and the entire camp outfit including several cases of explosives, of the Provincial Government road gang, at present building the road through Kispiox valley. They threatened the lives of Foreman James McCully and members of the gang if they did not cease work forthwith.

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

Profits on Manufactured Food Products is Great and Steady.

Few people realize the golden opportunity which awaits them at their door in the offer of the Canadian Estables Limited, who have placed upon the market 50,000 shares of preferred 8 per cent. cumulative stock. Those who have looked into the prospectus of this company are convinced of the profits to be made. The company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and the supply dominates the market prices. The high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution af a 50 per cent. dividend on both preference and common stock. The preference stock gets the first 8 per cent. dividend and then shares equally what is left with the common stock holders. Send your subscriptions in at once as delay means a danger of being refunded your money.

Panic Among Women Smuggling Goods

Windsor, Nov. 8.—Returning from a free trip to Sandusky on the new steamer Alfred Clarke, 150 women, residents of Leamington, Kingsville and Pelee Island, were thrown into consternation Saturday, while in the middle of Lake Erie by the appearance of Canadian Customs officials. Cut glass, fancy leather goods, cotton, and household novelties were in the collection, on which the Customs officer collected duty.

One woman had three pairs of shoes and a suit of clothes.

The duty collected amounted to about $100.

THE MAYORALTY CONTEST

It is hard to say at this time who will enter the mayoralty contest this year. The chair will be vacant as his Worship Mayor Rush declares that he will not seek a third term. A lot of names have been mentioned and several have been suspected of trimming their sails for the big race. Up to the present, however, not one of the aldermen will give the slightest inkling of their thoughts. The Times asked Ald. Buller and Ald. Hicks if they had any intention of running but both replied that they had been and were now too busy to even think of any contest. Ald. Gillespis was asked a similar question, and his reply was that it was too early in the season yet. Most of the aldermen are of the same opinion, although it is known that considerable influence is being brought to bear upon some of those who have taken an active part in the council work the past year.

Every man has his friends who would like to see him occupy the seat of honor. There are a number of men in Peterborough who could fill the position with credit to the city and themselves. It is too often the case, however, that those are the hardest men to tear away from their business. Peterborough is now at one of the most critical periods in its history. It is a case of go forward or go backward. The mayor for 1910 will have to shoulder a lot of responsibility. He will have to be a man who is not only capable of carrying a load but who also is qualified to handle himself under the load. That means that the mayor for 1910 should be the most able and the hardest working man in Peterborough.

The citizens will do well to hunt for that man and get him out. The citizens' meeting tonight might formulate a policy and stir up the good men to a point of enthusiasm which would get them into the field.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Two firemen killed and three injured, together with several more or less cut and bruised as the result of the collapse of part of the building of Messrs. Rolland, fresh mattress and spring bed works at 11 Windsor street, during the progress of a fire this morning.

The dead men are:

Fireman Wm. Molloy, of St. Alexander street, aged 27, also married, leaves three little ones and a widow.

Captain Brunet of No. 12 Fire Station, Firemen Patrick Homel, and Fireman James Pare, also of No. 12 Station, were buried beneath the debris, but these two firemen got out with assistance and were taken to the hospital.

Captain Brunet was buried beneath the fallen wood fibre and timber and had to be dug out, but Firemen Holdbrook and Molloy were dead when they were finally dug out.

Two civilians, employes of the firm, E. Ferrier of 29 Workman St., and H. Martin, aged 45, of 46 Workman street, were also caught in the collapse, and both suffered minor injuries.

Nine Killed in Celluloid Fire in New York

New York, Nov. 8.—Eight workmen and one boy lost their lives and ten other workmen were badly injured by jumping from windows during a fire that today destroyed the celluloid factory of Wm. Morrison and Son, 152 Columbia street.

The fire started on the second floor from some unknown cause and fed on inflammable materials, spread rapidly through the building, cutting off the escape of the workmen who were at their benches.

There was a wild panic, and many jumped from the windows without stopping to raise the sashes, being cut by flying glass and being hurt by striking the ground.

Three alarms were sounded, bringing all the available fire apparatus in the district and Chief Croker from New York. The fire was a hard one to control, as the stored celluloid exploded as the flames hit it, driving the firemen back from the burning structure.

The work of getting the dead and injured out of the building called for desperate effort on the part of the firemen and several of them were burned while doing so. By orders of Chief Croker every effort was made to keep the flames in the four-storey building in which they started, but this seemed a hopeless task, as the adjoining structures were all old buildings of an inflammable character.

One of those who lost their lives is William Morrison, 24 years old, junior member of the firm of Morrison and Son. Two other members of the firm, Robert Morrison, sr., and Robert Morrison, jr., were badly burned.

"FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN."

Years of Ill Health Cured.

"Like many another woman," writes Mrs. J. H. Hilliard, of Ashland, N. Y., "continued weakness caused by poor stomach and constipation led me to believe I would always be sick. It was Mrs. Ryan, my neighbor, who advised me to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and it was the means of teaching me "It is never too late to mend." I am rather a small woman, always pale, except when my skin became a muddy yellow. I never had much of an appetite because my digestion was never very good and still worse my system was seldom regular. Mrs. Ryan had become healthy and well with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and kept telling me that they would fix my system so it would work well too. Certainly Dr. Hamilton's Pills must have made right all that was wrong, because I weigh ten pounds more than ever before and feel fine. If you could see my rosy color, and watch how quickly I do my housework, I am sure you would think just as much of Dr. Hamilton's Pills as I do. They are a real fine medicine lor woman and like as not would do a man just as much good too."

There is no remedy for general use in the home to make you well when sick, to keep you from getting sick—no medicine with half the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills—see you get nothing else, sold in 25c yellow boxes, all dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OBITUARY.

Ada Wallace Aldridge.

Miss Ada Wallace Aldridge, second daughter of Mr. Wm. Aldridge, 520 Weller street, passed away yesterday at the home of her parents. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoonat 3 p.m., and interment will take place in the Little Lake cemetery.

Zetta Agnes Hamilton.

A very sad death occurred last night about eight o'clock when Zetta Agnes Hamilton, wife of Mr. Richard Telford, passed away at her home, 250 Carlyle avenue. The deceased was born in Fenelon Falls, just 23 years ago, but has lived in this city most of her life where she was well known, and where she had a very large circle of friends. She is survived by her husband and to him is extended sincere sympathy. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Elizabeth Johnston.

The funeral of the late Elizabeth Johnston of 242 Westcott street, will be held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, and interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery. The deceased was the relict of the late James Duncan, and she died on Sunday night after a prolonged illness. She was 78 years of age, and was born in the County of Cavan, Ireland. Her marriage was celebrated in the old country, and with her husband she came to Canada about forty years ago, residing almost entirely in Peterborough. The surviving children are Mrs. T. G. Gillespie, Mrs. Frank Raines, of Peterborough; Mrs. Robert Stenton of Otona bee; James, of Winnipeg, and Misses Nellie and Rebecca, at home. The late Mrs. Duncan was a member of the Park street Baptist church.

Brooms will advance in price, it is said, owing to the scarcity of broom corn. The advance will mean that brooms sold heretofore at 30c. to 35c wholesale, will now be sold at 35c. to 50c., and even these prices are likely to be increased.

THE WAY OUT.

Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.

"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria.

grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair

"My food did not agree with me. I for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines.

"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had cases like mine and who were being cured by eating Grape-Nuts.

"I had little faith, but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger.

"I had a new feeling of peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease—of course using Grape-Nuts. I am the mistress of a happy home and the old weakness has never returned.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

PREPARE FOR LUMBAGO

If You Have "Nerviline" Handy One Rubbing Will Cure the Pain.

The "strike" of lumbago is like a bolt of lightning—you never know when it is coming or where it is going to strike. Probably the one certain thing about lumbago is the fact that it can be cured by Nerviline — the only liniment that penetrates deeply enough to reach the congested chords and muscles.

LETTER NO. 1875.

"Years ago I strained my back and suffered considerably with weakness over the spine," writes Darius P. Millan, a well-known farmer, residing near Kingsville. "Then lumbago attacked the weak spot, and for days at a time I would have to lie up in bed, unable to move or turn. Liniments, poultices and hot applications failed to bring the desired relief, and I was in despair of ever getting really well again. I at last decided to test "Nerviline." I got five bottles from the drug store and had it rubbed on three times a day. The stiffness and pain left my back quickly, and by continuing Nerviline I was completely cured of Lumbago.

This is similar testimony to that of nearly five thousand Canadians who have who have written unstinted words of praise to the manufacturers of Nerviline. For the cure of lumbago, sciatica, neuralgia and rheumatism there is no liniment with one fifth the pain-relieving power of Nerviline.

Refuse any substitute. Large 25c. bottles of Nerviline, or five for $1.00 at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

CANADIAN EXPORT BUREAU.

The Department of Trade and Commerce is launching an ambitious project for the furtherance of Canadian trade abroad, in what is known as the Export Bureau. The scheme in short contemplates the compilation of a complete index of Canadian manufacturers, exporters and producers, together with the articles manufactured or produced by them. To this end the department is enlisting the co-operation of representative organizations, boards of trade, newspapers and other bodies, and is sending out a circular with a view to reaching every manufacturer, merchant and producer in the Dominion. It is the hope of the department that the information thus obtained can be made the basis of a permanent list which will be immediately available at all times in the promotion of the foreign trade of Canada. The department desires to have the name of every exporter from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with a detailed list of the goods he is in a position to sell abroad. When this information is compiled, it will be placed on file, systematically indexed in the offices of all the Canadian Trade Commissioners abroad, that is to say, this information will be at once available in six offices in Great Britain, one in France, one in Holland, two in South Africa, two in Australia, one in China, one in Mexico, one in the West Indies and one in Newfoundland.

EARL GREY'S SUCCESSOR.

According to a cable despatches, the London Times intimates that when Earl Grey retires from the position of Governor-General of Canada, the office will be offered to a member of the British Cabinet. The fact that the Governor-Generalship is now so freely discussed suggests either that the British Government is going to the country and is disposed to name a successor before the general election comes on, or else, as has been whispered, that Earl Grey may be the first Governor-General of United South Africa. Canadians would be sorry to lose Lord Grey before his extended term of office expires, but there would be a certain satisfaction in his transfer to South Africa and in the general conviction that he would be an ideal Governor during the early stages of the Federal experiment. If, however, as has been hinted, Mr. Winston Churchill is the member of the British Cabinet who may be sent to Canada, it should be clearly understood that the appointment would not be generally acceptable if indeed it would not create a good deal of hostility and resentment amongst a great body of Canadian citizens. The present British Ministry contains a number of distinguished men, but it is difficult to fix on any member of it at all likely to undertake the responsibilities which would devolve on a Governor-General at the present time.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life, in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to-day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such—the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: 'They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide as a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, and, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinnest part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otolithe increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a missile marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

BEGGARS AND TRAMPS.

More Numerous Now Than Ever Before In World's History.

The beggar and the tramp are more numerous now than probably ever before in the history of the civilized world, and in the United States the increase in their number has been so rapid in the last two decades as to raise serious questions in the minds of thoughtful persons as to what the outcome will be if this rate of increase continues, and if no better methods than those at present in operation are discovered to check the growth of this undesirable body of citizens. That there has been a remarkable increase in the number of these men scarcely needs demonstration.

A study has recently been made of the cases of 1,000 homeless men who applied to the Chicago bureau of charities for some form of charitable aid. These men were of the class so often referred to as "tramps," although only about one-fourth of them were found to be rightly so-called.

A number of interesting things were discovered about the group, as, for instance, that 50 of them were insane and almost as many more feebleminded or epileptic; that nearly 100 were tuberculous and that 253 were either temporarily or permanently crippled or maimed. The facts in relation to character in this latter group of men are of special interest. Less than two per cent. of these men had been crippled from birth; 34 per cent. were crippled by illness; almost all of the remaining 64 per cent. owed their handicaps to the railroads, to injuries while at work, or to some of the innumerable forms of accident which are of daily occurrence in great cities.

A little deeper study of the cases showed that a large proportion of the illness which crippled the men had been caused by drink or gross immorality; that more than half of the men who claimed industrial injuries had not received them, but were crippled from other causes; that the injuries of those who had met with industrial accidents were in many cases slight and the vagrancy of the men was due to entirely other causes; that several of the men who had met with general accidents had been drunk when they occurred, and, lastly, that a number of the men who were injured on the railroads had been tramps and vagrants long before they were hurt and had not been forced into vagrancy on account of their injuries. Three men who were in the main self-supporting and applied to the bureau of charities only for work or for very trifling assistance had lost both legs. Five men, who were crippled only by the loss of from one to three fingers, were chronic dependents and confirmed beggars.

What was found true of the crippled and maimed among the thousand was equally true of the remainder. Very rarely were industrial and social causes alone responsible for vagrancy, but equally rarely were individual causes alone responsible. In some cases one could say with fairness that the causes of vagrancy were mainly social; in others, that they were mainly individual, but in the great majority of instances social and individual causes had apparently acted and reacted upon each other until it was impossible to separate them or to decide which was the more responsible for the final vagrancy of the man. Moreover, what was clearly cause in one case was as clearly effect in another. One man took to tramping because he was crippled, the next was crippled because he took to tramping. One man became a beggar because he was diseased and unable to work; another was diseased and unable to work because of his unhygienic mode of life as a beggar. Insanity was the cause of vagrancy in some cases; vagrancy caused insanity in others. No generalization as to the causes of vagrancy can possibly be made which will apply to all the vagrant[illegible] road or even to any [illegible]n of them. For differ[illegible] age, nationality, inheritance, education, training, temperament, health, efficiency and morals exist among tramps and vagrants as among self-supporting business men, lawyers and farmers.

Santos-Dumont.

For some time Santos-Dumont has been out of the public eye. He was among the first to win fame as an aeronaut, but the Wrights, Curtiss, Bleriot and other aviators eclipsed him. Once more he is a bidder for public attention. During his retirement he has perfected a machine which occupies much less space than that of any of his rivals and which promises to be a great success. Recently he won a wager with another aeronaut as to which would first visit the other by the air route. Santos-Dumont made the flight from Saint Cyr to Buc, a distance of five miles, in five minutes. His aeroplane has only nine square yards of surface and weighs with the operator only 220 pounds.

A Curious Dish.

The favorite dish at Egyptian harem feasts is a curious one. It appears to be a lamb roasted whole, and it is, but there is much more to it than appears on the outside, for inside the lamb is a turkey, and inside the turkey is a chicken; the chicken is stuffed with a pigeon, the pigeon with a quail, and a becafico, said to be the smallest bird known, except the humming bird, is at the heart of this curious roast.

Drinking Water.

The quality of drinking water may be ascertained by filling a bottle half full, tightly corking it and then shaking it vigorously for a minute or two. On uncorking the bottle if the slightest disagreeable odor develops there is some kind of pollution in the water.

East and West.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who is back from the West, says that in the near future the double-tracking of the prairie section of the C.P.R. will be begun between Winnipeg and Brandon, as a starter, to be continued later on to the Rockies.

The Village Romancer.

"Has that feller Pinkley returned home yet?"

"Nope. He's been gone two years now, and nobody knows a blessed thing about him."

"Well, derned if I shouldn't think you'd be afraid he'd come home some day an' claim he found the south pole."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The Lady (to hero who had risked his life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward)—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

No Worry.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

"Why, I thought you had no labor troubles there at all?"

"No more we have."

"But how, then, can all this striking be going on?"

"The clocks do it."—Baltimore American.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—19 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Otter Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $150,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $26 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 300,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 200,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $600. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 200,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the last opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products,also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many sweet and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns the factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1000 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as the manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES ARE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good line-prized article, and on sound, healthy conditions,must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other careful consideration, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalent proves the inability of the manufacturers to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 50 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 31 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to offices, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

WE CONFIDENTLY ADVISE FRIENDS, CLIENTS AND INVESTORS TO PURCHASE THESE SECURITIES.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Deer Licenses.

Mr F. J. Moore of Lakefield, reports that he has issued over fifty licenses to deer hunters this season.

Servant Girl Wanted.

Mission Band.

The Mission Band will conduct the song service in St. Andrew's church tonight before the evangelistic meeting is begun. Tomorrow night the male choir will lead the singing.

To Men of Forty.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson will preach a sermon especially for the benefit of men who are in or entering their forties. The sermon will also be of benefit to young men. This will be on Wednesday night.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. And Preventics are so safe and harmless. No Quinine, nothing harsh nor sickening. Fine for feverish restless children. Box of 48 at 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Not Signed Yet.

Bruce Stuart, nor any other player has not yet been signed by the Wanderers' Hockey club, other reports to the contrary.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. J. Worden, piano tuner, representing R. F. Wilks & Co., Toronto, is in town. Orders left at the Times Bookstore will be attended to at once.

Read the pain formula on a box of Pink Pain Tablets Tablets. Then ask your Doctor if there is a better one. Pain means congestion—blood pressure somewhere. Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets check head pains, womanly pains, pain anywhere. Try one, and see! 20 for 25c. Sold by all dealers.

Fell From Elevator.

Mr. Ernie Parker, 150 Oxford St., is improving nicely after his accident at the Quaker Oats Mill last week when he fell from an elevator and broke his leg.

Found $70.

An Otonabee farmer discovered a wad of $70 in bills in the pockets of a discarded pair of trousers. Lucky man. The police will no doubt be looking for a drunk and disorderly for a few days.

A Rainy Day.

An unusual sight was witnessed on the streets yesterday morning. A large number of laborers, masons, etc., were idle because of the rain. This is the first time for many weeks that the men have had to stop work.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

New Insurance Company.

A man's troubles never cease. Another insurance company has applied for a charter and in the course of time another batch of agents will worry you and your household with their wonderfully unselfish desire to protect your beneficiaries in case death over takes you.

Wakened the Residents.

About 11.30 last night a traction engine, under full steam, followed by a threshing machine, wakened the residents along George street, who ran to the nearest window to see what was the cause of the unusual rumbling noise made by the heavy machines as they passed over the stony roadbed.

Board of Trade.

Don't miss the citizens' meeting in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall tonight. Turn out and take your share of the responsibility of the city's welfare. The meeting is for you. Take the opportunity when it is offered.

Honors Next Year.

One of the enthusiastic and faithful Rugby players made the remark Sunday night that one of the O. R. F. U. championship would be landed in Peterborough next year. One or two would have been this year if all the boys had practiced like a few did.

Chance for Youth.

A new field for young men to distinguished themselves is being opened up by the adoption of the Canadian navy plan. It is understood that a training vessel or school will shortly be available for those who desire to fit themselves for positions of responsibility.

Sick of His Job.

King George of Greese, is sick of his job and wants to quit. He is tired of the continual grumbling of a dissatisfied people, and he prefers a quiet life, or anything, in fact, to the present. King George will find many sympathizers among the lay men who have a grouchy boss, who is never satisfied, and only sees mistakes.

Bridesmaids to Order.

A department store in London, Eng., has solved the wedding expense problem and will furnish at a moment's notice one, or any number of bridesmaids, at so much per. These professionals can come and go and there is no further trouble or expense. Anyone can have bridesmaids now and as many as they please.

Prosperity Returned.

The above heading is frequently seen in the press and the authority given for the statement is invariably the bulletins from Washington or Ottawa or London or some other centre of information. The press never have headings: "Industries Booming," "Wage Going Up" or such like. The prosperity has not returned to the layman, but only to the millionaires who are pinching the poor for every cent they have or can get.

Fell Down Stairs.

The many friends of Mr. Harry McLaughlin, physical director at the Y.M.C.A., will regret to hear that he met with a serious mishap Sunday evening, and as a result is confined to his room. Mr. McLaughlin was about to leave his room at his boarding house when he slipped and fell down the stairs, injuring his back in a painful manner.

Got Two Prizes.

Mr. Fred C. Petrie, window dresser for A. M. Laidlaw, Hunter street, has won two prizes offered by the Cluett, Peabody & Co., of Troy, N. Y., for the best window display of either Arrow Collars or Cluett Shirts or Arrow Collars and Cluett Shirts together. Mr. Petries submitted photographs of two windows, one for Arrow Collars alone, and of Arrow Collars and Cluett Shirts together. For the latter he was awarded second prize of fifty dollars, and for the other honorable mention, which went with a substantial cash prize.

Went Gunning for Singers.

Mr. W. A. Edwards, proprietor of the Chrystal, returned from Toronto on Saturday after a four days keen hunting trip in that city. Mr. Edwards was not gunning for partridges or deer but, with bank bills for ammunition, was hunting for a first class singer for the Chrystal. In conversation with the Times the gentleman gave an amusing account of the difficulty he had in getting a good, really good vocalist. He said that he had lots of applicants, young men with oiled hair, loud clothing and a "coffin nail" at an obliging angle in their mouths. These self satisfied young men were willing to go to the Chrystal at from $18 to $30 a week and sing when and how they wish. This kind of freak did not appeal to Mr. Edwards, however, says that he may go to Buffalo or Chicago for a singer as he declares nothing but the best will do for the Chrystal.

WORKER'S HAND SAVED

Mr. Wm. Burdett, of 198 Simcoe St. East, Hamilton, Ont., is employed at the works of the Canadian Westinghouse Co. He says:—"A heavy mould was being rolled over when it caught my hand. The result was a terrible crush, and by next morning my hand was black, and so stiffened, swollen and painful I could not use it. We applied liniment, and bandaged it, thinking it would soon be all right again—but it wasn't! For some time it showed no sign of getting better but on the contrary looked like turning to a very ugly injury.

"My wife persuaded me that Zam-Buk would do me more good than anything else, and I began to try it. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very core of the injured muscles and ligaments, taking healing and ease with it. It soothed the pain, reduced the swelling, and removed the discoloration. In a week's time it had so acted on the injury that the hand was nearly normal again and I could go to work once more. It is now quite cured."

HIS WIFE CURED OF DISFIGURING ECZEMA!

The above case is only one instance of the benefit which the Burdett family has reaped from Zam-Buk. Mr. Burdett's wife owes her cure of eczema to the same healing balm. She says: "The disease broke out on my face in the form of red pimples and blotches which itched terribly, and when rubbed, burned and smarted very much. The pustules then spread and formed sores. These were at times very painful, they itched until I could hardly bear, and when touched turned sore. I tried various things, one after another, as they were recommended to me, but seemed unable to get any relief. Ordinary ointments and salves were quite unequal to my case.

Then I tried Zam-Buk although at the time I hardly thought it could cure me. I thought it was just an ordinary balm. To my delight I was soon convinced otherwise. A few applications gave me considerable ease, and the burning, smarting pains grew less acute. As I persevered with the treatment the patches grew less in extent and the sores ceased to be so painful. In a week's time the eczema was well under control and healing splendidly, and to-day I am free from it entirely. Zam-Buk has effected a permanent cure, I feel sure, and I am very grateful for it."

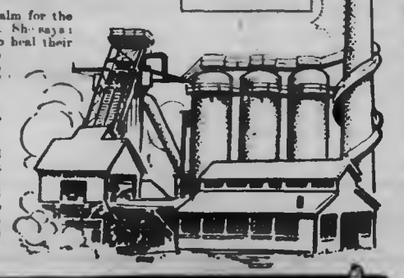
ZAM-BUK FOR CHILDREN'S HURTS.

Mrs. Burdett has a word to say on the value of Zam-Buk as a balm for the delicate and tender skin of children. Every mother should note this. She says: "Zam-Buk is especially useful where there are children. It seems to heal their cuts and wounds and scratches in wonderful form. Almost as soon as applied, it ends the pain and smarting and gives the little ones ease. I would not like to be without it in the house."



WHAT ZAM-BUK IS AND WHAT IT CURES.

Zam-Buk is a balm composed entirely of healing herbal essences. It is free from the rancid animal fats and poisonous mineral substances found in ordinary salves and ointments. Unlike these it never goes rancid, never stains, but is always sweet, pure and fresh. It cures cuts, burns and scalds; heals ulcers, abscesses, poisoned wounds, chapped hands, insect bite, cold sores, etc. Rubbed on to the chest in cases of cold it ends the feeling of tightness and aching. It is also a cure for piles. All stores and druggists sell at 50c a box or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

VOL. XXXII NO. 262 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 10. 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH IS AFTER MORE MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES

Citizens of All Classes Unite in Support of an Industrial Commissioner

And A More Progressive Campaign of Advertising—Peterborough's Advantages Must be Placed Before the World

PETERBOROUGH'S ADVANTAGES.

We are superior to other towns and cities in many things and equal in all others. Some of our advantages as pointed out by the speakers last night:—

Extensive water falls.
Cheap electric power.
Main lines of the C.P.R. and Grand Trunk railways.
Branch railways to main centers throughout Ontario.
Geographically situated so that the sources of raw material are of easy access.
Freight rates equal to any town or city.
Never a car shortage.
Superior service from the railways.
Direct water communication between Lake Superior and the Atlantic Ocean, via the Trent canal
Abundance of pure water for manufacturing purposes and for consumption.

The largest and most representative meeting of citizens held in this city for many years was the one in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall last night. Every class of the city's inhabitants was represented from the laboring man who owns a little house to the largest manufacturer and property holder, and the most satisfactory feature of the whole meeting was that all united in advocating a more progressive policy, or to use Ald. Hicks' words "To show our goods to the people of the world, with the object of inducing more manufacturers to locate here," or as Mr. Denham said, "To learn what we have to blow about, andthen blow, and blow so strongly that a breeze will be felt all over the American continent and even to the old countries across the seas."

The meeting was unanimous in the desire to secure a first-class commissioner of industries who will take charge of the city's interests in these matters. It is following the example of other places which have been meeting with great success. The people are now in the mood to support propositions for the development of more power and for securing more railways, because they realize that Peterborough's future rests in its manufacturing industries.

Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie, president of the Board of Trade, occupied the chair, and opened the meeting by explaining the object in calling the meeting, which was to formulate a forward policy for Peterborough. The people themselves have come to a realization that the city is now in a critical position and that a stronger policy must be adopted. The method employed in the past is no longer effective and something new must be presented to the world. The questions to be discussed are the power question and securing more industries for the city and for advertising the city more effectually.

There have been 55 concerns communicated with. Six are located in other place, six stayed where they were, 24 have not replied and 10 did nothing. Nine are still negotiating with the city. The workings of the Manufacturers' Committee have been along secret lines all this year.

SHIPPING FACILITIES.

W. H. DENHAM.

Mr. W. H. Denham was the first speaker, and he took up the subject of railway facilities and shipping. He was exceedingly pleased to think and sincerely believed that this meeting was the opening wedge of a rapid progress of Peterborough. We are like individuals. We think that all others have bigger advantages than we have, while if we made the best of what we have we would succeed. There are advantages Peterborough has over other towns which only need to be blown about all over Canada and the continent. Some of these are cheap power and excellent shipping facilities, viz. the C.P.R. and G.T.R. trunk lines. These two lines cover the whole of the Dominion. One line covers all the northern country and the other the westerg and eastern sections. We are on the direct lines and other cities in Western Ontario are on roundabout routes. When the Trent canal is finished we will also have a direct waterway, and no other city can surpass us. Last year $750,000 was paid out in freight charges by local manufacturers. The Quaker Oats Co. paid for freight $460,000. In the last 30 days they paid for grain the sum of $730,000. The reason they located here was because of the waterpower and railways.

Loaded cars going east on C.P.R. 100,000.

1000 people per day travel on the passenger trains through here.

If one road can give us such figures what can we expect whenthe Victoria Harbor and C.P.R. roads are here. Peterborough is a distributing point and is a superior city to any city west of Toronto. We have a much larger area for the distribution of our products.

There are practically only two things an industry wants when looking for a location, viz., power and shipping facilities, A question has been raised as to cost of coal. Coal is out, of the question for power. It is only used for heat. If the Quaker Oats Company used coal for power they would require 200 tons per day. But coal is not needed here. There is water power. Ontario will always be the manufacturing center, and he wanted to see Peterborough take its place in the front ranks.

T. F. MATTHEWS.

Mr. T. F. Matthews was the second speaker, and said he could not add much to what Mr Denham had said. But he knew that Peterborough was very well situated and we have a great advantage in service over other cities. There is very seldom a car shortage here. There are more loaded cars come into the city than go out, especially in the fall.

Industries will flock to cities where there are other factories. Brantford is the largest plow manufacturing city in Canada, and they recently got a very large factory from the States, secured by the plow concerns in Brantford. That is the spirit Peterborough manufacturers should assume.

B.F. ACKERMAN.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman said he could bear out what Mr. Matthews had said in reference to the railway service. Last winter he sent a car load to Edmonton, which arrived there in eight days and ten days to Latchford. That is good service. What we want here is lots of cheap power and light.

W. H. BRADBURN.

Ald. W. H. Bradburn said that the power question was a big one. Peterborough must get it and get it at a price. His experience was that manufacturers thought that Peterborough should get a lower rate than at present. In Hamilton the price is $21, but we have got to beat those prices. Ald. Bradburn then referred to the work which had been done by the Power Committee. An effort had been made to buy Burleigh Falls, but Mr. Culverwell asked $120,000, and when it was delivered here it would cost about $20 and that is too much. Then Healey Falls, where there are 8,000 horse power, is tied up and the city cannot get it. He thought if the city appointed a commissioner at the new year, the power question should be turned over to him. We must get power here and get it at a price so we can offer inducements over other places.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER.

ALD. R. HICKS.

Ald. R. Hicks was the next speaker, and in opening he extended congratulations to those who had instigated this meeting which was a great success. He thoufht the citizens should take a greater interest in municipal affairs, and to harness up with the Board of Trade and help advertise the city. We need more factories and we must have them. There are one or two places which have some advantages over Peterborough. But there are such cities as Guelph which cannot compare with Peterborough, who are getting industries.

We must believe, therefore, that our goods are not being properly shown to the world. We want one man to take control of this branch of the city's work. and be placed in such a position that he could act atonce. go and see the prospective factories without consulting anyone.

Peterborough possesses great advantages over the majorities of cities and towns and we only need to have our goods presented. We now need an industrial commissioner to do that and the citizens should back him up and place a liberal sum at his disposal, The city needs advertising.

Ald. Hicks said that if the citizens displayed as much interest during the year as they do now, it would be a great benedit to thecity.

Before the council went into anything of the kind he has outlined, he would first insist upon the council making a proper provision in the estimates and he would next year support such a move.

D. W. DUMBLE.

Mr. Dumble said he was pleased to see this meeting called to give the council the cue and the backbone to carry out the city's wishes at the present time. For years we have boasted about our water powers, but now we have to work and fight for what we get as there are other cities which have power to spare. If we want industries we have to put out our hands and grasp it. Our council is composed of ordinary citizens who have not very large ideas and who have not handled propositions running into thousands or millions of dollars. What we want is a man appointed especially to get industries. He must go out and get them, and when he makes a promise the people must be behind him and back him up. It will cost the city about a half a mill on the dollar, which is a mere bagatele. The agricultural interests are now settled and if we want to grow we must get industries.

DR. MORRISON.

Dr. Morrison said this question of an industrial commissioner was threshed out about a year ago in the Board of Trade and the matter was impressed upon the council. Whatever is done at this meeting should be sent to the council and that body given to understand that the wishes of the people must be carried out. The speaker criticized the Power Committee in not calling in citizens to discuss the power question. As to an industrial commisioner he said a small committee should thresh that out to see if the conditions will warrant this meeting in recommending the council to act.

T. E. BRADBURN, M.P.P.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn said that the Power Committee had consulted with the members of the legislation and that the Hydro-Electric Commission had made reports on local water powers. He believed that we needed a man to get industries for the city.

HON. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.

Hon. Mr. Stratton said that he came as a listener to learn the wishes of the people and thus enable him to assist in carrying out the wishes of the people. So far as the power question is concerned Peterborough need have no fear as the government is taking steps to control all the powers on the Trent waterway, and Peterborough will get them as reasonably as any other place. Peterborough has many advantages which should get many industries. It was two years since the industrial commissioner was advocated and it was now absolutely necessary to have one. As the business that is everybody's business is nobody's business. He spoke of several dams that Peterborough was now after and that he had been assured that this city would have the first chance to secure. There was one dam with a 36-foot head which would supply sufficient power for Peterborough for many years.

So far as he was concerned he was heartily in favor of appointing a permanent position. If we only got one or two industries a year the commissioner's expenses would be well repaid. He lookens for Peterborough well repaid. He looked for Peterborough to have a population of from 30,000 to 40,000 people.

MEETING OPEN.

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion. Mr. D. O'Connell was called upon. He thought the key note lay in the present fact that Canada was growing faster today than at any time in its history and faster than the United States at any time in its history. This was of great importance to Ontario, which was naturally the manufacturing portion of the Dominion for all time to come. For this reason Ontario must have spring up many important manufacturing centers. In Toronto during the last ten or fifteen years has added many thousands of new citizens. So has Hamilton. Guelph, Brantford, and the little town of Welland, which a few years ago was unknown. We have not been making the progress the last few years we should have made. We have here everything to make us a great manufacturing center and we must get busy and interest outside capital to come in. So far as power was concerned the Niagara Falls power cannot be and is not being supplied at a price very much lower than Peterborough, and there is no town or city away from the Niagara river that can touch this city for cheap power rates. In conclusion the speaker strongly advocated the appointment of an industrial commissioner.

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles in rising to second the resolution, congratulated the chairman upon what he termed the largest and most representative meeting he had seen since he came to Peterborough seven years ago. He expressed belief in this city and hoped to see it advance in future.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams agreed with what had been said by other speakers. He said that there was something lacking here now, so that we will have to get out and hustle and go after new enterprises. The aldermen had done and are doing a great deal that is not known to the people

Many other speakers voiced their opinion.

The meeting adjourned by singing "God Save the King," in honor of His Majesty's birthday.

We Want More Industries

The following is a copy of the resolution which was unanimously carried by the large and representative citizens' meeting last night:—

Moved by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, seconded by Mr. D. Hughes Charles:—

Whereas the present rapid development of Canada must necessarily result in increasing the number and magnitude of the manufacturing industries of the Province of Ontario.

And whereas it is apparent that only such municipalities, as adopt energetic and effective means of bringing their advantages to the notice of the manufacturing public, that are likely to procure their proper share of such industries.

And whereas the City of Peterborough possesses, in an exceptionally high degree, local and natural advantages, resulting from its geographical position, railway facilities and water power.

And whereas it is imperative, in the best interests of the city, and necessary for its future progress, that proper and effective means be adopted, at once, to lead to a comprehensive and clear understanding of the extent and value of these advantages, and to have them utilized in such a way, as will tend to promote the future industrial development of the city.

Therefore be it resolved, at this meeting of the citizens of Peterborough, called at the instance of the Board of Trade, that it is the opion of this meeting, that effective and energetic means should be forthwith taken by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough to promote the industrial interests of this city, and that the services of a competent and efficient officer be procured, who will devote his whole time and energy, in acquiring knowledge of the peculiar advantages possessed by this city in consulting and advising with the Municipal Council, respecting the same, and in promoting and in advancing the industrial welfare and interests of the city generally, and that proper funds be placed at his disposal for efficiently carrying out the objects of his appointment and for the purpose of defraying his salary and expense, provision be made by such additional levy as may be necessary, which in our opinion would be covered by half a mill on the dollar.

Prepared to Make Contract with City to Reserve Power for Manufacturers

Mr. J H Larmonth took up the power question in Peterborough at the citizens' meeting last night. He had not had much time to gather as much information as he would like. He thought freight rates and service was more important than power. The ordinary factory used not more than $100 horse power, and one using that much would employ from 100 to 200 hands. He did not think power prices in Peterborough were high when compared with other towns. The companies he represented were more interested in the advancement of the city than any other concern. His company have made plans for securing more power. Their business has doubled within the last few years and they have to get more. They are prepared to make a contract with the city for a block of power to be heldfor manufacturers. They will undertake to supply all the power this city will ever need. There are only a few places that pay less for power than Peterborough pays. The price here is $20 per h.p.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission reports on the delivery of power shows that not one city in a long list he had in his hand got power as cheap as Peterborough. Belleville came nearest and they were $1.66 per h.p. higher. Peterborough can give cheap power and every citizen should talk that.

What Peterborough wants is a commissioner of industries who has full authority to negotiate with new concerns and tell them at once when and what he can do. It will be more more beneficial to the city.

Says Bedfort was Insane when He Confessed to Murder

London, Nov. 9.—Bedford, who confessed to the Kinrade murder, was today remanded until Thursday. The prison doctor says that he was insane but is not insane now.

Asked by the magistrate if he still stuck to his confession, Bedfort replied: "I do not remember ever having made such confession."

Still Loyal to Leader, Says Mr. F. D. Monk

Montreal, Nov. 9.—"I wish to go on record as being solid for Mr. Borden. I know of no movement to oust him from the leadership of the Conservative party.

"I am strongly against any such movement, if there be any, but this is the first I have heard of it.

"I am absolutely loyal to the leader of the Conservative Opposition, and the fact that I differ with him on an important question of policy does not signify anything more.

"I shall be extremely glad to have an opportunity of declaring my loyalty to Mr. Borden.

Mr. F. D. Monk, leader of the Quebec Conservatives, found time this morning to make the above statements to a press representative who called upon him to enquire if his divergence from the policy of Mr. R. L. Borden on the question of Canada's navy meant a split in the ranks.

Mr. Monk had many callers today. his strong speech of last night having created no little sensation in local Conservative circles.

The probability of a division in the Opposition ranks was hinted to Mr. Monk, but he did not discuss it directly.

"Don't you think that there will be just as big a split in the Liberal party on the question ofCanada's naval policy?" was his way of evading the point. "I think you know that as well as I do.

"The fact that I differ from Mr. Borden on a vital question of policy does not signify that I am no longer a follower of his," he added. "I look up to him as theConservative leader,and should be sorry if anybody got any other idea into their heads.

EXPECT LIBERALS TO JOIN.

Local Conservatives are divided between admiration for Mr. Borden's candid expression of his convictions and fear lest his frank utterances may tend to weaken rather than to strengthen Conservative ranks locally by supplying creed for party dissentation.

Mr. Monk will certainly pull away from his leader on the navy policy at least. He expects to get considerable backing from Quebec Liberals and also, he expects, from Ontario.

While Mr. Monk is reluctant to make the statement that he has cut away from Borden, he states emphatically that his policy is as announced, and that he will follow it right through. So far Mr. Monk stands alone, but since his speech he seems to have made many friends

Pope May Some Day move Over to Canada

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Is there a likelihood of his Holiness the Pope some day making his headquarters in Canada?

Dr. Sproule, M.P., Sovereign Grand Master of the Orange Lodge of British North America, said last night that he saw the power of Rome steadily diminishing in Europe and gaining in Britain, Canada and the United States, and he would not be surprised, if spared a few years longer, to see the Pope move from Rome to Canada or the United States. He had been told that no measure affecting personal liberty was introduced into the Parliament of Canada without having the approval of the Papal Ablegate. Sometimes he felt he was not welcome in the party caucuses because of his Orange principles.

Presbyterian Church Evangelistic Meetings

There was a very large attendance at St. Paul's church last night. Rev. Mr. Abraham of the Presbyterian church of Port Hope, was present and took part in the meeting.

Rev. Mr. MacBeth took as his subject "The Trial of Jesus Christ." Pilate's position was discussed and his question asked "What shall I do with Jesus which is called Christ." He saw that Jesus was inndcent,but he gave him over to be crucified and has been pilloried in the creeds of christendom which contained the phrase "Suffered under Pontius Pilate." Let us be careful less in judging him we condemn ourselves. Every heart is a court room in which Jesus Christ is standing on trial. Shall we accept His claims or cast them out as an impositer? The speaker then aduced lines of evidence to show that Christ was what He claimed to be, and appealed to all to accept him as Lord.

ST. ANDREW'S.

Mr. Atkinson took for his subject the words "The handwriting against us; that was contrary to us," (Colossians 2vs. 14). A man is always making a record. He is his own recording angel. What we do and say becomes a record that is ineffaceable. Every idle word we must give account of.

A man's record can be against him in many ways. Against his material interests, against our characters, against our moral purposes and aspirations, against our hopes for a better life. Things that should be our friends are by the record turned into foes.

We may by the record be brought to despair of ourselves. But then comes the message of grace "O grace thou has destroyed thyself but in Me is thine help."

This record against us Christ has taken out of the way. He bare our sins and became sin for us. He nailed it to the cross andhas made it a dead issue between us and God. It is at the cross that hope revives and despair flees.

The address was amply illustrated by incidents that had come within the speaker's knowledge. The practical power of the cross in men's lives today was the truth brought home.

Tonight Mr. Atkinson will speak about "Those over forty years of age.

A male choir will conduct the praise service tonight. ...

AT KNOX CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. Farquharson spoke on "Seeing and Believing." So many people want to see before they believe, but the divine order is reversed, and we must believe before we see. He referred to the incident of Mary and Martha at the grave of Lazarus, in which Jesus said to them, "If thou believest this thou shall see the glory of God." Our feelings in our religious experience must come as a result of our believing and not the reverse.

After a few remarks by Rev. Mr. Keith the meeting was closed. There is great expectation at tonight's meeting.

The Threatened Extermination of Deer

Advices from Ottawa say—Owing to the great scarcity of deer that has been found to exist in the forests of Ontario and Quebec, a move is on foot to have petitions sent in by the gunning clans to the provincial governments of these two provinces calling for some action to meet the threatened extermination.

The open season for deer in Ontario started last Monday and lasts until the 15th. In Quebec it began on September 1 and lasts until December 3, but dog-running may be carried on only between October 20 and November 1. Dog-running may be carried on throughout the open season in Ontario.

Local hunters who have returned from searching for the elusive bucks express great surprise at the few deer they encountered. Residents of the different districts say that the wolves killed them off in great numbers last winter.

The bags have been so much smaller than last year—so much so that it has aroused considerable comment

According to the Ottawa Journal the huntsmen say the governments of Ontario and Quebec should raise the bounty on wolves, which were very thick last winter and at times threatened the lives of travelers and residents in the country districts. Also it is suggested that the sale of venison in Ontario and Quebec be prohibited for a few years until the deer become more plentiful and the danger of extermination be passed.

SOME HARD KNOCKS.

Woman Gets Rid of "Coffee Heart."

The injurious action of Coffee on the heart of many persons is well known by physicians to be caused by caffeine. This is the drug found by chemists in coffee and tea.

A woman suffered a long time with severe heart trouble and finally her doctor told her she must give up coffee as that was the principal cause of the trouble. She writes:

"My heart was so weak it could not do its work properly. My husband would sometimes have to carry me from the table, and it would seem that I would never breathe again.

"The doctor told me that coffee was causing the weakness of my heart. He said I must stop it, but it seemed I could not give it up until I was down in bed with nervous prostration.

"For eleven weeks I lay there and suffered. Finally Husband brought home some Postum and I quit coffee and started new and right. Slowly I got well. Now I do not have any headaches, nor those spells with weak heart. We know it is Postum that helped me. The Dr. said the other day, "I never thought you would be what you are.' I used to weigh 92 pounds and now I weigh 158.

"Postum has done much for me and I would not go back to coffee again for any money, for I believe it would kill me if I kept at it. Postum must be well boiled according to directions on pkg., then it has a rich flavour and with cream is fine."

TRIAL BY JURY.

The question as to the benefit to be derived from a trial by jury, which sounds so unconstitutional, so anti-British in its nature, is being seriously and rationally discussed on all sides today. For the doubt now so prevalent on the score of the efficacy of trial by jury, several recent cases are to blame.

First, there is the Robinson murder trial. A woman, self confessed murderess of the illegitimate children of her own daughters, was in the dock. There were extenuating circumstances which do not require recapitulation. The jury desired to reach some finding which would not condemn the miserable prisoner to the fullest penalty of the law. The judge refused to accept any verdict but "guilty of murder," and such ultimately was the finding rendered. Mrs. Robinson is now under sentence of death. In this instance of ten years. In this instance, the jurors were were made automatons, registering a verdict which the judge instructed them to find, willy nilly. Mrs. Robinson could have been tried without jury with the identical result.

Then came the Blythe and Turner cases. The former who foully murdered his wife while in a drunken rage, beating her to death with a poker, was found guilty of manslaughter. The latter, who received money to adopt an infant, did away with the poor little waif by strangulation. The lame verdict was rendered in her case. Both were convicted on evidence of the strongest nature, and the juries do not seem to have entertained any serious doubts on the score of their guilt. A sentimental dislike to having a woman die on the gallows was the reason for the one verdict, and in the case of Blythe the belief that his numerous reprieves had been undue torture saved the wife murderer from the gallows. But neither verdict helped to strengthen the trust reposed in juries in trying cases of a sensational nature.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as to the certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are loud at times in their frank of mouth having, then, been brought up to assuming modesty in language, I suppose—but that this pathway was ably indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that hangs its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that one may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the loveliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realise that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you're found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

What "Grass Widow" Means.

Your note on the Australian grasshopper suggests his relationship to the grass widow, writes a correspondent to the London Chronicle, who goes on to demand the derivation of this last expression. Some would merely have it as a slang expression, but its appearance in the marriage register of Halstead, Essex, as early as 1654 suggests a less vulgar origin. It is said to be a corruption of grace widow and dates from the days when divorces were granted only by the authority of the church. The woman who was so empowered to separate from her husband was commonly called a grace widow, and from this the expression gradually gained its present meaning and spelling.

The Man Chaperon.

London mothers are said to be trying the experiment of the man chaperon on the occasions upon which they are not able to take charge of their daughters. There are always a number of old bachelors or widowers ready to dance attendance upon young girls, and they would be much more satisfactory to the girl as a general thing than the elderly woman chaperon.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attheat sixth might be added for the accommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from slits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I'm bad to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

And I mean just exactly that.

I am the one physician who says to the sick "I will, out of my own pocket, pay for your medicine if it fails to bring you help!"

And for 39 years Dr Shoop's medicines have been used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere.

Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and uncertain medicines?

Thousands upon thousands have in the past gratefully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

When the Stomach nerves, or the Heart or Kidney nerves fail, these sick ones know how quickly Dr Shoop's Restorative will bring them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever. They know that when health fails to return, Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

But write me first for an order

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line please for I have appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, everywhere, to pay the druggist for that test. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

Then Pay For

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write me, while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

A COBBLER SHAKESPEARE.

Hans Sachs Is the Great German Dramatic Genius.

The stage in Germany is as much indebted to Hans Sachs as the English stage is to Shakespeare. This immortal was born in the year 1494, of lowly parentage, being the son of a tailor and apprenticed to a shoemaker.

In those days apprentices and masters of the craft wandered through the country, going from town to town, and were classed under the title of trade companies. On his journeys through the country he combined with cobbling the art of song, which was cultivated by these itinerant artisans, especially in South Germany and the Rhinelands.

Returning to Neuremberg, he threw himself heart and soul into the art of song, poetry and dramatic production, but at the same time continuing at his trade. Sachs had in his travels visited Frankfort, Wurzburg, Cologne, Munich, Vienna, Lubeck and many other places, and he learned things new, not only about boots and shoes, but about poetry, and when, at the age of twenty-two, he settled down in Neuremberg, he was able to stand up as a reformer of the German drama.

Sachs' life covered a period of eighty-two years, and his ability as a writer was nothing short of marvelous. It is said that there were years in which he wrote as many as eighteen plays. In fact, in 1556, he wrote eight tragedies and ten comedies.

As a heritage to posterity he left 198 dramatic works, 59 tragedies, 85 comedies, 64 Shrove-tide plays and 10 dramatic works, which the author termed "plays." Not alone was he famous as a dramatic writer, but 4,000 master songs were composed by him, besides an immense number of fables and epoch poems. Sachs got his subjects everywhere. The Biblical motives furnished him with such plays as "The Passion," "The Sacrifice of Isaac," "The Childhood of Moses," etc. The legends of the middle ages furnished him with "Tristan and Isolde," "Siegfried the Horny," "Oliver and Artus," and he also introduced a large number of classical subjects, including "Clytemnestra," "Alcestis," "The Destruction of Troy," "Ulysses," "Perseus," "Andromeda," and many others. Sachs particularly excelled with his Shrove-tide plays, the best known of which were, "The Wandering Scholar" and "The Exorcist." It was no doubt due to Hans Sachs that the first theatre of Germany was built in 1550 in Neuremberg.

Molten Wood.

"Molten Wood" is the latest production of the German chemical industry. The new substance seems almost as paradoxical as "wooden iron." Wood that can be melted is obtained by subjecting it to a special process of distillation at a temperature of 140 degrees Cel. in vacuum. The process eliminates all organic acids, phosphates, and the like, nothing remaining except the skeleton fibres of the wood that can be melted down at a temperature of 800 degrees.

The new product is said to possess exceptionally valuable qualities; it is very fine grained, especially adapted to polishing, extraordinarily hard and durable. Printers' ink and dyes make splendid impressions on the new substance.

A great future is claimed for "molten wood," more especially in the printing and engraving trades, as its qualities for reproduction are unsurpassed. During the process of distillation it can be impregnated with antiseptic material, thus being rendered proof against decay or the attacks of insects. Experiments are being made with it in the buildings trades, and it is generally believed that it will soon become a staple article of commerce.

Arming the Yeomanry.

I understand that Mr. Haldane and the Army Council are seriously considering the question of rearming the Yeomanry. One of the many unwise deductions drawn from the South African war was that the sword as a weapon for cavalry was no longer useful. Since then the Yeomanry have been armed with rifles. Military experts are now returning to the "white weapon." During the recent manoeuvres the Yeomanry were more than once placed in a position when "the charge" was the only way out of an awkward and dangerous predicament. The fact that they had no weapon with which to charge naturally forbade "the order." I am assured the wise men of the War Office contemplate restoring the sabre to the Yeomanry cavalry.—Dundee Courier.

Shortest Street in London.

There can hardly be a shorter street in London than the one connecting Pall Mall with the southeastern corner of St. James' Square, from which the name John street has just been removed. It has only one house, which is No. 1; for, though there are two other doors in the street, one is numbered as belonging to Pall Mall and the other is the side-entrance of a public house. Presumably, therefore, the single house is now to be absorbed in St. James' Square, and the London Directory is to lose yet another of the slowly-diminishing total of John streets.

Get Rid of Smoke.

There is no need of smoke-belching chimneys. How to make a fire of bituminous coal consume its own smoke has been amply demonstrated by engineering science. The owners of mills are slow to adopt the improved furnaces and rational stacking. They need to be educated up to them, and where should they get their education more appropriately than from the universities;—Vancouver Daily Province.

Distance of the Pleiades.

It was calculated some years ago by the leading astronomers of Europe that Alcyone, the star in the Pleiades around which the sun and the whole solar system are thought to be revolving, was about 944,000,000,000,000 miles from us, a distance that it would take light about 163 years to travel, going at the rate of 186 miles a second.

Must Lie Still.

Every soldier knows that a horse will not step on a man intentionally. It is a standing order in the British cavalry that if a trooper should be dismounted he must lie still. If he does this the whole squadron is likely to pass over him without doing him injury.

PRODUCING GOLD

On a Business Basis

When you eat pie you want a substantial slice and not a mere sliver.

The same idea governs in the purchase of mining stock.

Any share of mining company stock may be represented by a simple fraction.

The numerator is the mine.

The denominator is the capitalization.

The bigger the numerator the more valuable the share.

The bigger the denominator the less valuable the share.

10-3 is a good deal better than 3-10

Shares in the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company have a big numerator and a small denominator.

The company has a large acreage—19 claims, a tunnel location, mill site and water, surrounded by some of the great mines of Cripple Creek county. It is absolute owner of 16 of the claims, and holds a bond and lease on two.

It has nearly $100,000 worth of ore developed and ready to break down. Some of the ore runs better than $100 a ton, and careful sampling by a competent engineer gives an average of $24 a ton.

Mill tests have proved that half of the values can be saved on the plates, and the remainder concentrate readily into a smelting product.

The capitalization of the company is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each.

Only 300,000 shares have been issued, and of this amount 200,000 represent the property, and the proceeds of 100,000 shares have been used in the development now in progress. The monthly pay roll amounts to $500. The money goes into the ground.

Of the 200,000 shares still in the treasury, a portion is now offered to build the first unit of a mill.

This is the last opportunity for the investor to get an interest in this safe and conservative mining venture.

The mill will complete the equipment for the production of gold at a low cost and large profits.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY PERSON WHO IS THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The application must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of an intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him, or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader quarter-section may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Cosgrave's Beer

Words of praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered,

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attribute that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

Cultivate the "Cosgrave Habit"— Watch for the name—ask for any of these brands: Half-and-Half, Pale Ale. XXX Porter.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products,also breeders of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many sweet and valuable formulas for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1200 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, on the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES ARE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economical and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all its cases in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuous and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other careful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevalence proves the inability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other companies, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 35 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first to paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to office, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

WE CONFIDENTLY ADVISE PURCHASE, CLIENTS AND INVESTORS TO PURCHASE THESE SECURITIES.

Trent Canal.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheques thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The Board of Health held a meeting yesterday morning when business of importance was taken up. Among other matters were the ice supply and the Gas Company's refuse:—

The question of cutting ice from the Little Lake was introduced. It was felt that steps should be taken to prevent that ice being used for drinking purposes, as the water was contaminated. It could be used for cooling purposes, but other wise it should be restricted.

On motion of Messrs. Edgar and Marty the question was left with Dr. McPherson to bring in a report. The board had not a clear idea of how the matter could be dealt with. It may be that two grades of ice will be required, one of which may be used for drinking purposes and the other for cooling only.

The board is also in arms against the refuse oil from the gas company's establishment, and the M.H.O., has been asked to investigate this condition as well as that of ice in Little Lake.

Canoeists, it is said, have complained of the oily scum emanating from the gas works, and the Board is of opinion that it might be disposed of in some other manner.

Interesting Address.

The Toronto News a week ago said:

"Captain Farrell, widely experienced as a seaman on salt and fresh water, spoke to R.C.Y.C. members and their friends on 'The Lead and the Chart,'" in the Traders Bank board room last night. This was the first of a series of lectures the club has organised for the benefit of its members. Coming speakers are Skipper Aemilus Jarvis, H. C. McLeod and Commander Spain.

Captain Farrell is a friend of Mr. Sam Pearson of this city, and he is well known here.

Tom Marks at the Grand.

Last night the Tom Marks Company played "The Hypocrite" to a large and delighted audience. The Marks Bros. have for years been favorites in Peterborough, and last night the applause which greeted that clever play "The Hypocrite," showed that Mr. Tom Marks still holds a warm spot in the hearts of a local audience. Mr. Marks last night demonstrated that he had lost none of his old time efficiency and power in producing laughter. This talented comedian seems to know intuitively when and how to "spring" local gags. Tom Marks is one of the cleverest comedians now on the Canadian stage. The vaudeville specialities given during the performance are the cleverest seen in this city in a decade. The genial Tom Marks need never wonder whether his company will have a "house" in Peterborough. Tom Marks' name is a guarantee of a pleased audience.

CITY HOCKEY.

League's Annual Meeting Will Be Held Early Next Week.

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League will be held early next week, as provided by the constitution. The prospects before this most successful organization are as bright as they have ever been, and there is every reason to expect a successful league with keen competition all the way. Already the teams are beginning their campaign after players and the star puck chasers of the city are in demand.

It is a little early to say just what teams will be represented in the league this season. The Strathconas, winners for two years and runners up last season will be in line again, stronger than ever, the Commissioners say. The West Ends, who made a creditable showing with a young team last year may also be regarded as a certainty, and the 57th Bugle Band will be represented by a team. It is not known what the Belmonts or the T.A.S. are going to do. It is hardly probable that Lakefield will be in, although last year's champions may get the fever and build up a team. Quinn and Simpson the mainstays of the champions last year are away from Lakefield and their places will be hard to fill. Keene is anxious to get a place in the league, it is said, and if so they will be accommodated with a place in the schedule.

The date of the annual meeting will be announced in a day or two.

ILL HEALTH ITS CAUSE.

Sluggishness of Liver and Bowels.

It took me a long time to learn, and big doctors' bills in the bargain writes Mr. Ogilby, of Winnipeg, that the disturbance of my system was due simply to liver and bowel inactivity. A sleepiness and languor extinguished my old time ambition. I fear irritability of temper added little to the comfort of my family, yet the headaches, general misery and melancholy forebodings that weighed me down ought to be considered. Tonics, electric treatment and mineral waters in turn failing to cure me, the advertising of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the testimonials supporting the claim of great medicinal virtue induced me to try them. The result of even the first box made clear that my own body was making its own poison, that by driving it from the system and removing the cause which undoubtedly resided in the liver and bowels, by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, my health would be as good as ever.

It seems certain to me that more than half the sickness we see about us is caused by carelessness in keeping the bowels open and the liver active. Dr. Hamilton's Pills I found do both, and do it better than other remedies. 25c per box, at all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

WORKER'S HAND SAVED

Mr. Wm. Burdett, of 198 Simcoe St., East, Hamilton, Ont., is employed at the works of the Canadian Westinghouse Co. He says:—"A heavy mould was being rolled over when it caught my hand. The result was a terrible crush, and by next morning my hand was black, and so stiffened, swollen and painful I could not use it. We applied liniment, and bandaged it, thinking it would soon be all right again—but it wasn't! For some time it showed no sign of getting better but on the contrary looked like turning to a very ugly injury.

"My wife persuaded me that Zam-Buk would do me more good than anything else, and I began to try it. Zam-Buk seemed to penetrate to the very core of the injured muscles and ligaments, taking healing and ease with it. It soothed the pain, reduced the swelling and removed the discoloration. In a week's time it had so acted on the injury that the hand was nearly normal again and I could go to work once more. It is now quite cured."

HIS WIFE CURED OF DISFIGURING ECZEMA!

The above case is only one instance of the benefit which the Burdett family has reaped from Zam-Buk. Mr. Burdett's wife owes her cure of eczema to the same healing balm. She says: "The disease broke out on my face in the form of red pimples and blotches which itched terribly, and when rubbed, burned and smarted very much. The pustules then spread and formed sores. These were at times very painful, they itched until I could hardly bear, and when touched turned sore. I tried various things, one after another, as they were recommended to me, but seemed unable to get any relief. Ordinary ointments and salves were quite unequal to my case.

Then I tried Zam-Buk although at the time I hardly thought it could cure me. I thought it was just an ordinary balm. To my delight I was soon convinced otherwise. A few applications gave me considerable ease, and the burning, smarting pains grew less acute. As I persevered with the treatment the patches grew less in extent and the sores ceased to be so painful. In a week's time the eczema was well under control and healing splendidly, and to-day I am free from it entirely. Zam-Buk has effected a permanent cure, I feel sure, and I am very grateful for it."

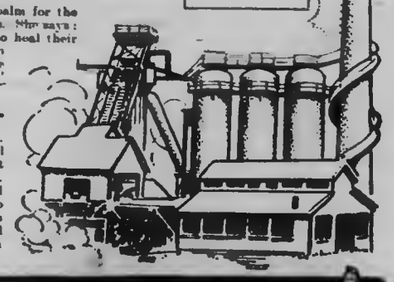
ZAM-BUK FOR CHILDREN'S HURTS.

Mrs. Burdett has a word to say on the value of Zam-Buk as a balm for the delicate and tender skin of children. Every mother should note this. She says: "Zam-Buk is especially useful where there are children. It seems to heal their cuts and wounds and scratches in wonderful form. Almost as soon as applied, it ends the pain and smarting and gives the little ones ease. I would not like to be without it in the house."



WHAT ZAM-BUK IS AND WHAT IT CURES.

Zam-Buk is a balm composed entirely of healing herbal essences. It is free from the rancid animal fats and poisonous mineral substances found in ordinary salves and ointments. Unlike these it never goes rancid, never stains, but is always sweet, pure and fresh. It cures cuts, burns and scalds; heals ulcers, abscesses, poisoned wounds, chapped hands, frost bite, cold sores, etc. Rubbed on to the chest in cases of cold it ends the feeling of tightness and aching. It is also a cure for piles. All stores and druggists sell at 50c a box or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

THE TIMES BOOKSTORE

Hunter Street - Nearly Opposite Post Office

In speaking of this coming "gold" a journal devoted to gold production, published in Denver, Colo., says:—

With a large acreage of some of the best territory in the Yankee Hill Portion of Clear Creek county, with nearly $100,000 worth of ore blocked and ready to break down and mill, with a deep tunnel driving to open a practically unlimited supply of this ore, the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company is now in a position to take front rank among profitable gold-producing enterprises.

This company owes to the investor the important advantage of a low capitalization. While short represents a substantial interest in the capitalization is 500,000 shares of a enterprise. The capitalization is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1 a share. The proceeds of 300,000 shares have been used in securing ownership of the property and developing it into a shipping mine, and 200,000 shares remain in the treasury to provide for the erection of a mill that will complete the company's equipment for producing gold on a manufacturing basis.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak stomach if one goes at it rationally, and that is just what the fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak, or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is being recognized everywhere by thousands who recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A free sample test will convince you. Duncan Ross Elected for West Middlesex

(Special to The Times.)

Strathroy, Nov. 10.—Duncan C. Ross, Liberal, was elected today to represent West Middlesex in the House of Commons, over McLaughlin, the Conservative candidate, by a majority of 124. The election early in the day was conceded to the Liberals, even by the Conservatives, and the result was no surprise.

Six Canadian Seamen were Drowned

New York, Nov. 10— News was brought here today by the schooner William Jones of the loss at sea of two sailing vessels, the barkentine Bennett of Liverpool, N.S., with six Canadian seamen, and the big four-masted schooner Merrill C. Mart, of Thomaston, Maine, with five of her crew.

The accident was a collision between the two vessels early on Monday morning off Buck Island.

The sole survivors of the Canadian vessels are believed to be two Filipino sailors. These were picked up by Capt. Bullock of the William Jones. He says he hailed the Bennett when he saw her lights, and the latter asked for assistance, saying his vessel was sinking. Before a boat could be got over the side, however, the barkentine vanished below the water. A few bits of wreckage and the two men clinging to a small boat were all that could be found. The survivors could speak no English, but told an interpreter that the four-master had also gone to the bottom. Wreckage belonging to the Merrill C. Hart has since been found.

The Bennett was owned by A. W. Hendry and Son, Liverpool, N.S. She carried a cargo of coal.

WHAT SHALL WE DO?

Was the Subject of Rev. Mr. MacBeth's Sermon in St. Paul's.

A very large congregation attended St. Paul's church last night to hear Rev. Mr. MacBeth deliver his sermon on "What Shall We Do?" The Day of Pentecost had just passed and Peter had preached his memorable sermon, forcing home upon the people the truth concerning their crucifixion of Christ. He explained to them all that God had done and was willing to still do to bring them into the new life, and when it closed the people cried out, "What shall we do?" In unfolding the subject the speaker outlined what God had done for men. He had revealed himself. The fact of sin and the atonement opening the way back. He had made the offer to all to return. God had done His part and the question for us was what shall we do? Peter's answer still stands. Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins. Repentance involved conviction of sin and a purpose to lead a new life, and uniting with the church and the ordinances of grace is a means of strength to all who will accept Christ.

American Vessels Must Use Canadian Locks

Soo, Mich., Nov. 10.— The steamer Isaac L. Ellwood rammed the upper gates of the Soo lock this morning, demolishing the south leaf of the gate and putting the big American lock out of commission for the balance of the season. A repetition of the Canadian lock disaster was only prevented by a fortunate circumstances, the lower gates of the lock being closed. Consequently beyond the injury to the upper gate no damage was done.

At the time of the accident, 7.30 this morning four vessels were in the lock chamber, locking down. They were the steamers Becker and Lycoming and the largest Sweetheart and Mary L. Burke.

All but the barge Sweetheart had tied up to the lock wall, and the latter was almost wholly within the lock, and the south leaf of the upper gates was closed, when the Ellwood, which was approaching from above, swept down, jamming into the gate in place and injuring the mechanism so badly as to preclude further use of the lock until next season.

Captain Cummings of the Ellwood declares the accident due to the failure on the part of the engineer to obey orders. He says he signalled to back up in the boom near the gates but instead of reversing the engines they were set full speed ahead.

The captain's statement that he signalled to back up is corroborated by Frank Dixon of the Government tug Mobile, which was close to the Ellwood when the accident happened.

Until navigation closes the Canadian locks will have to be closed.

CONFESSING CHRIST.

Subject at Knox Church by Rev. Dr. Farquharson.

There was a large congregation at Knox church last night and a very impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. Farquharson.

Dr. Farquharson spoke on "Confessing Christ." He spoke of the severity of every building and that it has to keep to the plumb line. The prophets illustrated this, the ravenous and sometimes sternness in present truth. The sorrows is also some-

Peterborough's Advantages

PETERBOROUGH has the best shipping facilities furnished any city or town in Canada. This is no idle dream. The manufacturers are united on that point and they should know for they alone pay out over $750,000 per year for freight charges. That amount of money represents a good many thousand car loads, and gives the manufacturers authority to speak.

There is never a car shortage in Peterborough and especially at this time of the year, while nearly all other cities and towns are suffering all kinds of inconveniences. One reason for this is because Peterborough is on the main line of the C. P. R. and have direct connection with the main lines of the Grand Trunk, and of the many thousands of cars passing through, a large number are stopped here.

Another cause is that the number of carloads brought into the city in the fall is greater than the number sent out. For this the Quaker Oats Co. are largely responsible. In the fall hundreds of cars of grain are brought in and the grain is stored in the elevator for winter use. That gives a surplus supply of empty box cars for other manufacturers.

Mr. W. H. Denham, superintendant of the Quaker Oats Mills stated that on the C.P.R. alone there were in one year 100,000 loaded cars pass through Peterborough for the east and 70,000 loaded cars for the west. The figures from the Grand Trunk could not be obtained at the time, but they will no doubt be quite as large. This would mean that nearly 340,000 loaded freight cars pass through Peterborough in one year, which shows the importance of Peterborough in the freight traffic world. Then when the new Seaboard and Victoria Harbor Railway is completed the traffic through this city will be vaster by far.

As to the speed with which freight cars loaded in Peterborough are dispatched Mr. T.F. Matthews and Mr. B. F. Ackerman, two large manufacturers and shippers, both testified. Mr. Matthews said Peterborough service was ahead of Ottawa and Brantford, and he knows because his firm has factories in both places. Mr. Ackerman said that he has loaded a car here for Edmonton and it has reached its destination in eight days or nearly as fast as the express service.

These are features which are of first importance and consideration by manufacturing concerns. Peterborough has them and there is no reason why the world should not be told all about them.

times stern in making his deep incisions into the heart of the disease, so Jesus seems severe in his statement of "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall I confess before my father which is in heaven." We rightly look upon Jesus as compassionate and infinite in love, yet He cuts to the quick. He asks from each of us a confession of sin. He also requires a confession of Himself.

It is not possible to save this life and keep it hidden. The influence goes out from the life to other lives and life that is unexpressed dies. The soul that is sealed up must shrivel up, so Jesus requires confession of Himself in whatever way we have the opportunity.

At the close of this impressive address Rev. Mr. Keith made a few remarks. Cards were passed by elders and most of those present signed them either as an indication of dedication or consecration.

The women's prayer meeting will be held this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, a large congregation is expected in the evening.

SERMON TO MEN.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson Delivered a Powerful Sermon at St. Andrew's.

There was a very large meeting at St. Andrew's church last night to hear Rev. Mr. Atkinson deliver his special sermon to men in middle life. The male choir was present again, and rendered an excellent program of music.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson spoke from Acts 4.22. A man was about 40 years old on whom this miracle of healing was wrought. The speaker described the middle as being the plateau of life. Youth was the ascent, old age the descent. Between these extremes the level of the years.

This period was characterized by fixity of habit, monotony of habit, monotony of past and a decline of spiritual vision. The danger of this period lay in the immobility of character. Men were not moved by passion or devotion. The sins of middle life were not those of passion but of deliberation. Along with this was often found a decline of faith. The things that are temporal and material submerge the eternal and spiritual. The remedy for these subtle and quiet dangers is the friendship of Jesus Christ, whose spirit keeps alive and increases the sense of faith and hope and love.

Many a man has been wrecked on the reef at forty. A hidden danger unseen beneath the surface of the quiet seas of middle. Then as at every other time the controlling influence of Christ is needed in the life.

On Friday afternoon at 1.15 o'clock a meeting for children will be held in St. Paul's church.

The closing meetings in all the churches will be held on Friday night.

MR. GREENE RESIGNED.

As Conductor of the Salvation Army Band on Account of Health and Business.

At a recent meeting of the Salvation Army Band a change was made in the officers, the most important being the retirement of Mr. Greene from the position of bandmaster. This was brought about at his personal request on account of his increasing business duties, which demand more of his time, and also because of his health beginning to fail him. The officers of the band are as follows:

Band Master—Mr. Wm. H. Perrier.

Band Sergeant—Mr. Jos. Thomas.

Deputy Band Master — Mr. Will Ford.

Band Secretary—Mr. Wm. Payton.

At the meeting held recently Mr. Greene introduced the new bandmaster, and expressed the hope that the band would make good progress under him. Mr. Greene's leadership and his services have been fully appreciated and a vote of thanks was tendered him. Mr. Greene replying explained his reasons for retiring from the position of conductor. He will still play an instrument as a bandsman, and will not have the same demand on his time as in the past.

THE WEATHER.

Strong winds and showers.

Has a Great Disaster Visited Jamaica Island?

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 10.—There is grave anxiety here about the Island of Jamaica.

Communication with Kingston has been cut off since Saturday, and the last word received was that a hurricane of unprecedented severity was then sweeping over the island.

The cable companies in the last message received, reported that all land lines had been destroyed. Since then the cables have refused to work.

There is a possibility that an earthquake has shaken the island, as it is not considered likely here that a mere hurrican, no matter how severe, would have put the cable out of commission.

The steamer Amanda, from Halifax, which was aground on the west end of the island Friday, got off that night, and must have encountered the hurricane, but has not since been heard from.

The hurricane is believed to have destroyed all of the early crops.

CAN'T LOCATE TROUBLE.

New York, Nov. 10.—The cable offices here today announced that their West Indian cables are working only so far as Santiago de Cuba. They are accepting messages for Porto Rico and the Danish West Indies, subject to forwarding by mail from Santiago via the steamer that sails from that port this afternoon.

The companies have no knowledge of conditions in the islands, or whether the interruption is due to the hurricane or to an earthquake.

At the offices of the Western Union Cable Company it was stated that their cables have not been working properly since Monday, and the trouble is believed to be due to the Jamaica hurricane. Communication beyond Santiago ceased completely last night and all efforts to locate the cause of the trouble has so far failed.

Expect Mr. Monk to Break Away

Montreal, Nov. 10.—The Quebec view of the situation in the Conservative camp seems to be that Mr. Monk and Mr. Borden cannot stay together very much longer and that from now on there will be a marked division between them.

While Mr. Monk professes loyalty to the navy question, local Conservatives cannot see how Monk can recognise Borden's leadership after breaking away from him on such an important matter. Since yesterday Mr. Monk has got a lot of followers to his policy of "No Navy," and his mail today contained quite a few hundred letters from all quarts in Ontario and Quebec from people who wanted to give him their support.

Members Arriving for Opening of Parliament

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—Members of Parliament and senators are beginning to arrive for the session in small numbers. Probably twenty-five or thirty are in the capital this morning, but the number will be largely augmented by the evening and Thursday morning trains. The early arrivals include Mr. Kyte of Richmond, who will second the address in reply to speech from the throne, Martin Burrill of Yale Cariboo, and a group of Ontario Conservatives including Dr. Reid of Grenville, Major Currie, and Mr. Wright of Muskoka.

Quite a number of Western Liberals have arrived and the Conservative delegation is expected this afternoon.

There is little disposition on the part of the members to commit themselves definitely on the naval question. An Ontario member summed up the attitude of many members this morning with the remark that he was like the man who said: "Day before yesterday I was in favor of a Canadian navy. Yesterday I was against it, and today I have not made up my mind."

It is quite apparent that the air will not be cleared away until party caucuses have been held and the government's policy has been announced in all it's details.

WHY MANY A MAN MAKES A FAILURE OF LIFE.

Not Because He Lacks Brains or Ability But Because His Liver is Slow.

An inactive (lazy) liver makes plenty of men and women seem intellectually dull. They really have the "go," but are weighed down, pulled down by a sluggish condition of the system. In consequence lots of good chances are lost, enjoyment missed and pleasures refused—all because of a poor working stomach and disordered liver.

Men and women, wake up your livers, give relief to sluggish kidneys—they are working hard, but can't keep on forever doing duty for both the kidneys and liver.

Let Dr. Hamilton's Pills help you—let them drive those poisons from the blood that depress your mind and brain.

Let Dr. Hamilton's Pills give you such inward wholesomeness that body and spirit will tingle and glow with health and ambition.

You can depend on this—that Dr. Hamilton's Pills clear the skin, brighten the eyes, purifying the blood, send energy, vim, and good spirits circulating to every part of the body.

No other medicine makes people so healthy or keeps you always at your best like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are mild, sure-active and safe. 25c per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

15 Killed and 20 Injured in a Trolley Wreck

Terrible Tragedy Reported to Have Occurred Between Vancouver and New Westminster Yesterday

Vancouver, Nov. 10.—A terrible accident, by which 15 lost their lives occurred on the interurban train line to New Westminster this morning. The first passenger car from Vancouver had just got outside the city limits when a freight car, which had broken away from an electric train ahead of it, came crashing down the hill with the motorman. He jumped, but the majority of the passengers had no time to save themselves before the crash came.

The freight car was loaded with heavy timber and broke away from a freight train which was being switched near Lake View, ten miles from here. The passenger car was ascending at the time.

REVERSED THE CONTROLLER.

Seeing the freight car approaching, the motorman on the passenger car shouted to his passengers to jump. After reversing the controller, the motorman jumped. Few of the passengers had time and most of them were injured. Fifteen bodies are laid out at the Lake View station.

The injured passengers are being cared for at private residences awaiting the arrival of a special train, bearing doctors and nurses, which has been sent to the scene.

JEFF AND SOCIETY.

Two Big Men Mix on the Mat for a Workout.

New York, November 9.—Jim Jeffries had the unusual pleasure of working out in the gym yesterday with a giant society man taller and larger in many respects than himself. Warren Barbour, the son of Colonel Barbour, the millionaire thread man of Franklin street, and standing six feet three and a half inches in his stocking feet, came into the gym just about the time Jeff was stripping for his daily two-hour grind. Barbour, who has seriously challenged Tony Biddle to box him for the championship of the "Four Hundred," has been working quietly at Cooper's gymnasium in West Forty-seventh street, in preparation for the impending struggle with Philadelphia's famous society man of action.

Jeff soon wore young Barbour out on the wrestling mat. Jeffries' muscles were harder and a bit better trained than society's representative. They tossed the medicine ball back and forth, then jumped the double bounding balls spiritedly across the sawdust bag between them until the anchor rope was all but torn out.

ART ASSOCIATION.

Were Addressed By Miss McCrae on Tuesday Afternoon.

A most interesting and enjoyable meeting of the Peterborough Art Association was held Tuesday afternoon in the Bank of Montreal board room when a large number were present. The feature of the afternoon was the address by Miss McCrae of the Normal School staff, on "Why Art is Taught in Our Schools." She spoke for about half an hour and proved very interesting. A number of exhibitions of drawings were shown, including some representing a child's conception of celebrating the King's birthday. Miss McCrae explained that she had told the scholars that yesterday was the King's birthday, and for them to draw a picture representing the same. The pupils were those who had been at school since September last.

The speaker then laid special stress upon the lecture to be given by Miss Antoine Stolle, of Boston, on Nov. 26th, in the Collegiate Assembly Hall. This lecture will be illustrated by a number of colored lantern slides.

Britain will Build Two more Dreadnoughts

London, Nov. 8.—The newest British Dreadnought cruiser Lion and her sister ship, for which contracts have just been let, will, according to a high authority, be remarkable for their formidable tonnage of 26,350 and speed of 28 knots.

These vessels will be 700 feet long, only 62 feet shorter than the Cunard Line steamer Lusitania, and will carry eight 12 inch guns. The big warships will cost over $10,000,000 each.

The latest British battleship, the Orion, which is about to be laid down at Portsmouth, will be of 22,500 tons.

FOWL SUPPER.

All Saints' Ladies' Aid Achieve a Big Success.

A huge success greeted the ladies of All Saints' church at their annual fowl supper which was held in Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, last night. Tables were laid to seat a hundred people and these were filled several times. A big crowd gathered and enjoyed a good meal. After supper a splendid program was run off in the lodge room to which most of the guests remained. The program was as follows:—

Chairman—Rev. Mr. Trumpour.
Vocal Solo—Miss Ruth Dawson.
Reading—Mr. J. Johns.
Instrumental—Misses Dawson.
Vocal—Mr. K. Shook.
Instrumental—Miss Sisson.
Banjo Selection—Mr. F. R. Clarke.
Address—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.
Vocal—Mr. Lee.
Address—Rev. J. R. Lynch, of Toronto.

HOCKEY SMOKER.

Meet the Boys in the Oriental Tonight at Eight O'clock.

The hockey season is here. The first steps to gather the teams to represent Peterborough will be taken this evening when the hockey enthusiasts and their friends will meet at the Hotel Oriental. The proceedings of the evening will be of an informal nature. In fact it will be a "smoker," and everyone will kindly bring their own clay dab and see that their chum has tobbaco as it is better than your own. There will be an informal musical program, spasmodic as it were, and you will be free to do pretty nearly as you please except to put your feet on the table or expectorate on the ceiling.

At this smoking meeting the club will be re-organized for the season of 1909-10. The officers will be elected and as the show will last for a couple of hours you need not be in a hurry choosing a man, but sit and think for a few moments, while the band plays "Whose Little Girl are you," and pick out the best sports with the most executive ability and nominate them.

There is also a big attraction for the boys who will ride on their skates. They cannot smoke or have any of the fun the rest will have, but each, and every one who will belong to the teams will receive a sweater. The juniors will get just the ordinary sweater, but the seniors, in order to distinguish them from the younger boys, and in recognition of their superior (prowess) will get a boat sweater that buttons down the front with large pearl buttons.

There will be something for everyone tonight and you are all invited. Do not stay at home because your ideas and your enthusiasm are needed. Come early and stay late.

A BLACKSMITH'S ESCAPE.

Fallen Horse on Hunter Street Causes Quite a Commotion.

Yesterday morning a few minutes before the noon hour, some excitement was created at 53 Hunter St. Most of our readers will remember that just to the south of the blacksmith at 51 Hunter street, is a low lying but most prolific garden. At the time mentioned one of the city's licensed carters was hauling a cartload of carrots up the somewhat steep hill leading to the Hunter street pavement. The mud was deep and the haul was a hard one. Every time the good little horse, standing on the pavement put her shoulder to the work, and slipping fell each time she tugged. A crowd gathered and, as is usual in such cases, all sort of advice was offered gratis. "Sit on her head," "Look out for her heels," "block that wagon," etc., were the pieces of advise proffered. The advice as to "look out for her heels," soon however, proved to be good, as the horse's north feet narrowly missed one man's head as the animal struggled to arise. After a time the cart stuck firm in the deep mud and the horse lay on the pavement in a seemingly comatose state. Another struggle as the horse strove to rise and two iron shoes from her hind feet flew like a comet through the air. One of these horse shoes came near putting the "coup de grace" to a blacksmith whose head the iron missed by possibly 1-16 of an inch. At last the recumbent animal was shucked of its harness and enabled to arise. Then with use of planks over the mud the wagon load of carrots was brought successfully to the level of Hunter St. That blacksmith whose head was missed by the horse shoe had better take out an accident policy or practise playing a harp as he will never have a closer call by the fell destroyer.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Another Enoch Arden.

Fargo N.D., Nov. 10.—William Murton, after a long absence, returned to Cortland, N.Y., to find his wife married to another man, W. S. Dudley. The latter came here and got a decree of divorce. Murton was married near Port Hope, Ont., in 1885, and in 1890 disappeared from New York. In 1899 Mrs. Murton was married to W. S. Dudley. Mr. Murton was believed to be dead.

THURSDAY, [illegible]—TEMBER [illegible], 1909

A FARM PROBLEM.

A French-Canadian contemporary predicts that if the present rate of increase continues the French-Canadians will be twenty per cent. of the population of Ontario in 1935, and the Montreal Witness thinks that, guessing roughly on the basis of present and past conditions, the French-Canadian paper has, if anything, understated the probabilities.

There are many influences at work in Ontario that tell in favor of the French-Canadian tendencies to cling and to increase. Of the total increase in population, in the rural districts especially, a large numbers of the brightest boys and girls which the farms produce are educated for the professions, and many of these so educated are attracted out of the province altogether. Many others not attracted to the professions, are drawn to the Northwest or elsewhere in the hope of improving their conditions. Thus the Province is constantly losing largely of its own best blood and brains. Immigration, of course, does something to make good the loss; but as the Witness points out, Ontario is known to be up in arms against the inflow of mechanic immigrants.

A remedy will come in time, no doubt; but there will need to be some changes in methods and conditions. The land of Ontario is not beginning to support the population it is capable of supporting. There are farmers all through the country with large and fertile farms, complaining that they cannot work their places to the best of advantage for want of help, and in the meantime the sons and daughters of these farmers are scattered throughout the Northwest and the United States. Why are so many of the sons and daughters of Ontario leaving the old homesteads, when there is such a demand for farm help? This is a problem which farmers must assist in solving. Perhaps if there was a more general disposition on the part of farmers to take their was a more general disposition on the part of farmers to take their boys and girls into partnership there would be less of a disposition on the part of the boys and girls to leave the old homes. It is unreasonable to expect a young man or a young woman with any spirit to give the best part of his or her life to the improvement of a farm and the making of a home without some certain hope of adequate reward. Through sheer unwillingness to relax their hold while they have any life left, many farmers see the old homesteads deserted by those who helped to secure them and who naturally valong there. The children have exhausted their patience on the farm, go off to the cities or to the Northwest or the United States, leaving the homesteads to the mercy of hired help, which, often enough, is quite as unsatisfactory as it is difficult to secure.

WAR SCARES.

The Ease With Which They Develop in European Nations.

Germany has just had a scare, and it appears that a British cruiser is the innocent cause. During the recent Baltic cruise of the Cornwall the captain intimated his intention of paying a visit to Kiel.

A dense mist prevailed at the time, and the harbor authorities did not expect her to put in an appearance before morning. When day broke, however, the official world of Kiel was staggered to find the Cornwall moored in her assigned position and apparently quite at home.

She had navigated the difficult Kiel fiord in the darkness and mist without a pilot on board, and not only that, but investigation showed that she had done the same thing at Danzig and Swinemunde.

A German newspaper immediately lashed its readers into a panic. "What would happen in the event of a sudden outbreak of war with England?" it screamed. "They would not have the slightest difficulty in bottling up the high seas in Kiel or elsewhere!"

One Belgian newspaper kept its readers awake for several nights on account of a discovery it made in a German geography book. The book, the use of which was said to be obligatory in most schools, contained this passage: "Belgium, Switzerland, Lichtenstein, Holland, Luxemburg and Denmark are considered as forming part of Germany, because they are mostly situated inside her natural boundaries." Then Denmark and Switzerland and the others began to scream.

Switzerland had another "scare" all on its own account. Not very long ago several battalions of Italian Alpine troops on skees appeared on the Theodule pass, above Zermatt, and had the town practically at their mercy.

The incident raised a storm of excitement in the Swiss press. Where, they demanded, were the twelve battalions of mountain troops and artillery for which money was voted in the Swiss parliament?

A few weeks ago the Parisian boulevard press bubbled over with excitement. Four German balloons had descended in France within forty-eight hours, and one of the papers complained, "It is raining German balloons."

One little country mayor wrote up in a state of great agitation. He had seen a balloon driven over his village by a violent wind, and he had mounted his horse and pursued it till it came to earth.

The occupants, he reported, three men and two ladies, had with them "elaborate photographic apparatus of military appearance." The minister of war received a string of frantic telegrams from various parts of the country.

Russian newspapers have been pouring oil on the troubled waters of England's German "scare" by getting up some excitement over the Austro-German entente. In some quarters it has actually been advocated that the official archives should be removed from St. Petersburg because the capital is too much exposed to the possibility of capture by the armies of her western neighbors.—Pearson's Weekly.

Courage.

For cool courage the deed of a Bendigo gold miner named Davis would be hard to beat. He and two others were sinking a shaft, and after putting in two charges of blasting powder they ascended to the plat above. One of them, Allen, slipped as he came to the surface and fell to the bottom. Instantly Davis rushed down after him, disregarding the fact that the charges were due to explode. He had dragged Allen about five feet before the first shot came. The debris luckily was carried in the opposite direction. Then he struggled on again and managed to reach a comparatively safe place for the second explosion. The two were found little the worse for their closeness to the bursting mass of rock, but Allen's leg had been broken by the fall. The Victorian government has recommended that Davis be awarded the Prince Albert medal for gallantry.—Melbourne Cor. San Francisco Bulletin.

Schoolboy Suicides.

Writing from Berlin, a correspondent of the Chicago News discussed the alarming number of child suicides in Germany. "Investigation proves that every week a schoolboy kills himself in Germany and that this average has been maintained for the last twenty-six years," says the correspondent. "Opinion is divided as to whether blame rests upon home conditions, such as the harshness and ambition of parents, or upon the school management. A case is cited in which a father said to his son on the eve of an examination, 'If you don't bring me your certificate of promotion I will not speak to you again.' The boy went into the examination more dead than alive and luckily got his certificate, but one investigator asks, 'What if he hadn't?'"

Kangaroo Money For Australians.

Sixpences and shillings displaying a kangaroo on one side are a probability of the early future. For a long time Australia has been clamoring for the right to coin silver, and the imperial mint authorities have at last consented. Sir John Forrest, the commonwealth treasurer, says the London Globe, will supervise the new departure, and he says it is likely the coins will have a kangaroo on one side and some other typical Australian device on the other. There are three branches of the royal mint in Australia—Sydney Melbourne and Perth—but hitherto their operation has been restricted to gold.

EAR NEVER STOPS GROWING.

A Few Facts With Which Most People Are Unacquainted.

The systematic examination of more than 40,000 pairs of human ears in England and France has proved that the ear continues to grow in the later decades of life, in fact, it appears never to stop growing until death. If one will take the trouble to look around in any assemblage of people as at church, he will discover that the old folks have ears considerably larger than those of the middle aged. A woman who at 20 has small shell-like ears will be very apt to possess medium ears at 40 years and large ears at 60.

There is probably nobody in the world who has a pair of ears perfectly matched; in most people the two differ perceptibly, not only in shape, but also in size. Frequently they are not placed precisely alike on the head.

Near the top of each ear, just within the down-turned edge and slightly toward the back, will be found, if one feels for it, a small lump of cartilage. This is a remnant of what was originally the tip of the ear, when, ever so long ago, that organ in our remote ancestors had a point to it. Most of the apes to day have pointed ears, but in human beings the upper edge of the organ has, in the course of ages, been folded over so as to cover the real tip.

There is an unsolved mystery in the construction of the human ear, the functions of certain portions of the inner ear not being completely understood. Within the ear are three small globe-shaped protuberances. These have all their inner sides covered with small cells, each of which contains a tiny hair surrounded by a fluid. When you move sharply the hairs follow the motion, while the lymph naturally moves less rapidly. Thus the hairs are bent in a direction opposite to that of the movement, and by means of delicate nerves the irritation thus produced is telegraphed direct to the brain. It is supposed that by means of these hairs swimming in lymph the sensation we call dizziness is caused when we rotate rapidly, as in dancing. It is also believed that seasickness has something to do with the same phenomenon. It has been noticed that some persons, when suffering from ear diseases that have destroyed parts of the inner ear, have found it difficult or impossible to maintain their balance when standing upright with eyes closed. It is therefore possible that these peculiar ear organs contain some inexplicable sense not generally classified as such—the static sense, or sense of balance.

Iron Shavings For Paving.

A recent French invention in paving consists of embedding in concrete fine iron shavings, or iron excelsior. The metallic shavings ordinarily come in sheets or masses, which can be broken apart with difficulty owing to the intertwining of the filaments and which are sometimes elastic. In constructing paving blocks, a mold is filled with these iron shavings and the interstices filled with cement sufficiently fine to penetrate the entire mass. The blocks thus formed are said to possess great strength and resistance to abrasion and also (what seems less credible) elasticity under blows or jarring.

According to Cement Age, tests made of such blocks are said to have shown a resistance to compression of about 150,000 pounds to the square inch and in tensile strength four times that of neat cement. One advantage claimed for this paving is that joints may be almost eliminated, thus doing away with the points where greatest destruction generally occurs. Nothing is said of the opinion which would probably be entertained of this pavement by a contractor who might be required to cut a trench through it. The cost of construction is said to be the same as that of ordinary macadam, but this would depend largely upon the cost of iron shavings.

Menelik's Lions.

A Paris newspaper prints the following story of Menelik, King of Abyssinia, pleading that it is as credible as most news that reaches us of the Ethiopian monarch: "It is said that lions walk about the palace and injure no one, and are docile at the least sign from their master. A Russian visitor demanded of Menelik how it was that his gentle pets respected such and such a visitor.

"'They have scent,' replied the Emperor. 'They know the smell of an ambassador. They know they must not cause trouble between me and the foreign powers. They are diplomatic lions.'

"The Queen added: They once devoured before me an Italian consul. It was afterward found that he had not his letters of credence. He was not in order, and I excused the lions'."

Old Time Butterscotch.

Put three pounds of light brown sugar in an enameled kettle with three-fourths of a pound of butter. Place over a moderate fire to melt; let it boil until thick, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Take the kettle from the fire and pour the boiling hot liquid into buttered tins or upon a large flat meat platter. When stiff enough mark off into big squares, and when cold break these apart and wrap each square in wax paper. Butterscotch carefully made will keep for months. It improves with age.

"Peace-at-Any-Price" Writer.

Maurice Hewlett, the novelist, is a warm advocate of peace. "I am a peace-at-any-price man," he recently wrote. "The use of murder and homicide is a means of deciding international difficulties seems to me inconceivable. I do not, however, believe that we shall make any real advance until war is commonly spoken of in the terms we now apply to drunkenness or gluttony, as degrading and disgusting.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do an act of Humanity?

Will you tell some sick friend of this, my remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that its maker dare say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's alterative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments every where in America.

When the [illegible] or controlling nerves of these vital organs become ill, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that brings back vitality. It strengthens, tones, and brings these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the cause of these ailments—the failing, fitful organ, feeble or controlling nerves. And herein lies the keynote to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such sickness.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician alive to say to a suffering one, "Take my prescription for full 21 days and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "no help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book I have are yours—and will cost you nothing.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some of your ailments. I am the last of many specialists by my present prescription or personal advice plan. My best efforts is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the matter to your best friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and frank say. Any druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 21 day test.

But first ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 21 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember I'll tomorrow never comes. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

A COBBLER SHAKESPEARE.

Hans Sachs Is the Great German Dramatic Genius.

The stage in Germany is as much indebted to Hans Sachs as the English stage is to Shakespeare. This immortal was born in the year 1494, of lowly parentage, being the son of a tailor and apprenticed to a shoemaker.

In those days apprentices and masters of the craft wandered through the country, going from town to town, and were classed under the title of trade companies. On his journeys through the country he combined with cobbling the art of song, which was cultivated by these itinerant artisans, especially in South Germany and the Rhinelands.

Returning to Neuremberg, he threw himself heart and soul into the art of song, poetry and dramatic production, but at the same time continuing at his trade. Sachs had in his travels visited Frankfort, Wurzburg, Cologne, Munich, Vienna, Lubeck and many other places, and he learned things new, not only about boots and shoes, but about poetry, and when, at the age of twenty-two, he settled down in Neuremberg, he was able to stand up as a reformer of the German drama.

Sachs' life covered a period of eighty-two years, and his ability as a writer was nothing short of marvelous. It is said that there were years in which he wrote as many as eighteen plays. In fact, in 1556, he wrote eight tragedies and ten comedies.

As a heritage to posterity he left 198 dramatic works, 59 tragedies, 65 comedies, 64 Shrove-tide plays and 10 dramatic works, which the author termed "plays." Not alone was he famous as a dramatic writer, but 4,000 master songs were composed by him, besides an immense number of fables and epoch poems. Sachs got his subjects everywhere. The Biblical motives furnished him with such plays as "The Passion," "The Sacrifice of Isaac," "The Childhood of Moses," etc. The legends of the middle ages furnished him with "Tristan and Isolde," "Siegfried the Horny," "Oliver and Artus," and he also introduced a large number of classical subjects, including "Clytemnestra," "Alcestis," "The Destruction of Troy," "Ulysses," "Perseus," "Andromeda," and many others. Sachs particularly excelled with his Shrovetide plays, the best known of which were, "The Wandering Scholar" and "The Exorcist." It was no doubt due to Hans Sachs that the first theatre of Germany was built in 1550 in Neuremberg.

Molten Wood.

"Molten Wood" is the latest production of the German chemical industry. The new substance seems almost as paradoxical as "wood in iron." Wood that can be melted is obtained by subjecting it to a special process of distillation at a temperature of 140 degrees Cel. in vacuum. The process eliminates all organic acids, phosphates, and the like, nothing remaining except the skeleton fibres of the wood that can be melted down at a temperature of 800 degrees.

The new product is said to possess exceptionally valuable qualities; it is very fine grained, especially adapted to polishing, extraordinarily hard and durable. Printers' ink and dyes make splendid impressions on the new substance.

A great future is claimed for "molten wood," more especially in the printing and engraving trades, as its qualities for reproduction are unsurpassed. During the process of distillation it can be impregnated with antiseptic material, thus being rendered proof against decay or the attacks of insects. Experiments are being made with it in the buildings trades, and it is generally believed that it will soon become a staple article of commerce.

Arming the Yeomanry.

I understand that Mr. Haldane and the Army Council are seriously considering the question of rearming the Yeomanry. One of the many unwise deductions drawn from the South African war was that the sword as a weapon for cavalry was no longer useful. Since then the Yeomanry have been armed with rifles. Military experts are now returning to the "white weapon." During the recent manoeuvres the Yeomanry were more than once placed in a position when "the charge" was the only way out of an awkward and dangerous predicament. The fact that they had no weapon with which to charge naturally forbade "the order." I am assured the wise men of the War Office contemplate restoring the sabre to the Yeomanry cavalry.—Dundee Courier.

Shortest Street in London.

There can hardly be a shorter street in London than the one connecting Pall Mall with the southeastern corner of St. James' Square, from which the name John street has just been removed. It has only one house, which is No. 1; for, though there are two other doors in the street, one is numbered as belonging to Pall Mall and the other is the side-entrance of a public house. Presumably, therefore, the single house is now to be absorbed in St. James' Square, and the London Directory is to lose yet another of the slowly-diminishing total of John streets.

Get Rid of Smoke.

There is no need of smoke-belching chimneys. How to make a fire of bituminous coal consume its own smoke has been amply demonstrated by engineering science. The owners of mills are slow to adopt the improved furnaces and rational stoking. They need to be educated up to them, and where should they get their education more appropriately than from the universities;—Vancouver Daily Province.

Distance of the Pleiades.

It was calculated some years ago by the leading astronomers of Europe that Alcyone, the star in the Pleiades around which the sun and the whole solar system are thought to be revolving, was about 344,000,000,000,000 miles from us, a distance that it would take light about 161 years to travel, going at the rate of 186 miles a second.

Must Lie Still.

Every soldier knows that a horse will not step on a man intentionally. It is a standing order in the British cavalry that if a trooper should be dismounted he must lie still. If he does this the whole squadron is likely to pass over him without doing him injury.

HAS BRITAIN ONE, TOO?

RUBBER OUTRAGES ARE BEING TRACED TO LONDON.

"Truth" Publishes Charges Against Peruvian Amazon Rubber Co. With Headquarters In England — Tells Tales of Ghastly Cruelty to Indians In South America—Native Children Buried Alive Beside Graves.

London "Truth" is publishing a narrative of the horrible atrocities which are said to have been practiced on the defenceless Indians in the Putumayo rubber country in Peru.

The rubber collecting business is carried on by the Peruvian Amazon Co., of Salisbury House, London Wall, registered at Somerset House. The secretary of the company, Mr. A. V. Smith, has written as follows in regard to the terrible allegations made against their employes:

"The directors have no reason to believe that the atrocities referred to have in fact taken place, and, indeed, have grounds for considering that they have been purposely mistated for indirect object. Whatever the facts, however, may be, the board of this company are under no responsibility for them, as they were not in office at the time of the alleged occurrences."

Then follows a series of formal statements made by people who declare they have seen the inhumanities practiced on the natives. Extracts are given below, though it should be borne in mind in view of the terrible nature of the allegations that this evidence may yet be controverted.

From a declaration made by a Brazilian citizen, Joao Baptista Braga, before a commandant of the Brazilian army: It would be an endless task to relate the innumerable crimes that I have seen committed during my stay in this section. Here, recently, in the month of July the tuchaua known as Tirucahuaca and his wife were held prisoners in chains.

When Jimenez — who had been temporarily absent—arrived, he had them brought into his presence, and told them that if their tribe did not appear within the space of eight days he would show them what he would do with them.

The eight days passed, and as the tribe did not come he ordered a can of kerosene to be poured over them, and then, striking a match, he set fire to these unfortunates, who fled to the forest, uttering the most desperate cries.

Naturally, upon seeing such an awful crime committed, I expressed my horror at it to Jimenez, who replied that if there were anybody who wished to protest against the orders he gave he would be served in the same manner, and that if the company kept him as chief it was because he knew how to do his duty.

From a statement declared before a notary at Iquitos by Daniel Collantes: Martinengui ordered a commission to set out for the houses of some neighboring Indians and exterminate them, with their women and children, as they had not brought in the amount of rubber that he had ordered.

This order was strictly carried out, for the commission returned in four days, bringing along with them fingers, ears, and several heads of the unfortunate victims to prove to the chief that they had carried out his orders.

A Brazilian paper, The Journal do Commercio, published at Manaos, printed an account of a "barbarous deed" close to the Brazilian frontier. This was a narrative of a butchery of inoffensive Indians by a band of Peruvian rubber collectors.

Having killed twenty-five, they discharged their weapons at the Indians who were constructing the roof of the h[illegible] poor unfortunates, p[illegible] bullets, some dead, oth[illegible], rolled off the roof and fell to the ground.

Not content with these cowardly murders, they took the Indian women of advanced age, threw them into the canoes of the Colombians, and conducted them to the middle of the river, and then discharged their rifles at them, killing them all.

What they did with the children was still more barbarous, for they jammed them head downwards into the holes that had been dug to receive the posts that were to support the house.

The Peruvians, after taking possession of the merchandise, conducted the Colombians, the tuchaua (Indian chief) of the Andoques, two Indians, and an Indian woman to Matanzas, the dwelling-place of Norman, the journey taking two days.

Here the prisoners were tied up with cords, and afterwards shut up in one of the houses, where they passed a night of torture. In the morning the tuchaua and the two Indians were taken out to a near-by knoll and clubbed to death.

These outrages took place prior to the formation of the Peruvian Amazon Co. "Truth" remarks that the company "only comes into the case as being responsible for the way the business is conducted at the present moment."

In reply to questions in the House of Commons concerning the alleged atrocities, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said he had asked for a report on the subject. He would inquire if the Belgian consul had made a report to his Government. The shareholders in the Peruvian Amazon Co. had made no request to the Foreign Office for an inquiry.

Must Be Careful.

One of the undeniable marks of a genius is the mark he leaves as a result of infinite labor on themes he loves. No famous poet was ever so great that he could neglect to leave one word that made his whole effort inharmonious. If Canadian writers are to reach the highest peaks in literature they must learn this lesson. They must free themselves from the criticism that attaches to hurriedly done work and to reckless versification.—Sunday World, Toronto.

Attendance at Seattle Exhibition.

The Advertising Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are now in receipt of complete figures as to the general attendance at the Alaska — Yukon — Pacific Exposition at Seattle the past Summer. The total number of people who visit ed the Grand Trunk building was 238,237. The exhibit is now on its way to Canada and the Company are preparing their plans and exhibits for the international Exhibition at Brussels which will be held next year. The Grand Trunk will erect a handsome building at this exhibition which will be equal to any they have constructed for the exhibitions in the past.

THE SUPREME TEST.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the pazzle? Is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," replied softly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously. "Is there any other guy that's got the inside track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snoozer with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Then why the Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego are you stalling me off? I may not be a pampered child of fashion, but I'm on the dead lev. I've never been caught with the goods Girlie, ever since I was a kid you've been my one best bet, and you know it. I'm Old Faithful from Kleengonville. I've trailed along in your wake like a night police reporter on the track of a lovely holdup or a bug collector after a gorgeous butterfly. All my life I've been building bungalows in the air for you to move into some day. I'd rather look at your tintype than to eat four square meals. You are the niftiest, peachiest dream that ever"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not fully mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

"Geoffrey," she said, recovering herself, "we must not make a mistake that will wreck our whole lives! I must ask you one question."

"Well?"

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was hurled, dishevelled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Sah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Sketchy Bits.

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your six pence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy boeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for boeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' ef I do," said the boy, "and hell ef I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Grouchor, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

Insuring Respect.

"Do you think a diamond engagement ring really makes a girl more thought of by her chums?"

"Well, it certainly is a good thing to have on hand."

Romance in Real Life.

"Was your first meeting with your wife romantic?"

"Extremely so. It occurred at a picnic. I was eating a very ripe tomato, and some of it squirted into her eye."—Kansas City Journal.

CHARGES FELL FLAT.

St. Catharines had a small-sized sensation caused by an irresponsible citizen charging graft on the part of the aldermen. The charges were made through the press of that city in letters signed by the citizen. An investigation was ordered but it fell flat and now the Star-Journal expresses the hope that the city's fair name will not be shamed by such charges again.

Would it not be better for the St. Catharines' press to investigate charges of that nature before they publish letters from irresponsible citizens? That is the easiest way to protect the good name of the city.

FIFTY YEARS A WRITER

HOW MISS BRADDON CAME TO WRITE NOVELS.

As a Girl, Popular Authoress Was Always Scribbling—Was Offered $50 For First Novel—Wrote First Instalment of Lady Audley's Secret Overnight — Has Retained First Rank Ever Since.

To have delighted the world for half a century with an unceasing stream of fiction; to have published a novel for every year of her long life; and to be able to entrance the readers of to-day as she entranced their grandparents in the middle of last century is the proud record of Miss Braddon, who at seventy-two seems still to possess the secret of perennial youth.

Much water has run under the bridges of her beloved Thames since Mary Elizabeth Braddon laboriously wrote her first story by its banks at Chiswick in a child's round hand and between pencilled lines. The love of the pen was in the little one's blood; for her father, a London solicitor, had made "Rough Robin" famous in the world of sportsmen, and her mother was saturated with a passion for literature. And so Mary Elizabeth took to writing as naturally as a duck to the water.

As a schoolgirl, with her home still by the Thames at Barnes, she was always scribbling in her exercise books; and, under the eyes of her teachers, she furtively pencilled quite a long story, "The Old Armchair," which made her famous among her schoolfellows. But alas! for years she could not thaw the hard hearts of the editors. All the literary doves she sent out to them came back to her ark with the exasperating regularity of clockwork.

One day, however, when she was emancipated from the schoolroom, she awoke to find a letter awaiting her which revolutionised her world. It was from a Beverley printer, who had seen a sketch by her in a Yorkshire paper, and who offered her the sum of $50 to write a story for him, which should "combine the humor of Dickens with the plot-construction of G. W. M. Reynolds." It was a large order and a small guerdon, but the girl was transported with delight.

Before she was many days older she had transported herself and her mother to a Beverley farmhouse, and was reeling off the masterpiece of Dickens cum Reynolds at a thousand words an hour, weaving her plot as she rode about the Yorkshire lanes. She boldly christened her story, "Three Times Dead; or The Secret of the Heath"; and it was a very proud moment in her life when she handed the last sheets of the manuscript to the printer's boy. The book certainly did not make the printer's fortune, but renamed "The Trail of the Serpent," it had a new and vigorous lease of life.

Still fame refused to knock at her door, but not for long. A little later Mr. Maxwell, a publisher, projected a new magazine, the great feature of which was to be a serial for a famous writer. To his dismay, however, the serial, which had been extensively advertised, was not forthcoming at the proper time. Mr. Maxwell was in despair, until a letter came, signed "M. E. Braddon," offering to write a serial. "Too late," was his answer to the young authoress when she called on him. "But what is the latest day you can give me?" she persisted. "Well," said Mr. Maxwell, "if the manuscript of the opening chapters is on my breakfast-table to-morrow morning that would be in time."

Next morning Mr. Maxwell found the first chapters of "Lady Audley's Secret" among his correspondence; his venture was saved, and Miss Braddon was on the high road to fame and fortune. Such was the romantic genesis of one of the most popular books ever written.

Then followed in quick succession "Aurora Floyd," "Eleanor's Victory," and "Henry Dunbar," all eagerly welcomed by thousands of admiring readers; and Miss Braddon took her place, which she has ever since retained, in the foremost rank of the writers of fiction. Since these early triumphs there has been scarcely a year when she has not given the world at least one of her fascinating novels; in some years she has published two and in others three; until her fiction-children now number more than her own years.

And Miss Braddon's life has been as happy as it has been busy. For nearly forty years her home has been in a fine old Georgian house, once the abode of the Bishop of Lichfield, at Richmond—for nothing can wean her from the river she loves so well. Here, surrounded by her birds and dogs, and her wonderful collection of china and books, she has led an ideal life, writing her books in the peace of her beautiful garden or in her study, entertaining her friends with a charming hospitality, and devoted to her home and her three sons, all of whom have made a name in the world of letters.

In her younger days she might be seen almost every morning cantering in Richmond Park on Kaiser, her white-footed bay, her eyes sparkling and face flushed with health and exercise; and even to-day there are few horsewomen in England more graceful or expert. For the rest, she spends her leisure in gardening, music, and study, of all of which she is passionately fond. A simple, gracious life, spent in womanly ways remote from the glare of the limelight—that is what Miss Braddon loves, and it is this that has preserved her youth and powers unimpaired into the 'seventies.

As for her methods of work, she carefully maps out her books to the smallest details before putting pen to paper; then, with her writing-pad on her knees, she fills sheet after sheet with her small handwriting, clear as print, with a wonderful rapidity, never pausing for a word and rarely making a correction. From a thousand to fifteen hundred words an hour is her normal rate of production. She stops work at luncheon-time.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products,also handlers of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many recent and valuable formulas for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1000 acres of land, well wooded and suited to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, pro vided as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unsurpassed for its magnificent crops, and one of the valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economics and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard work of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. Plus this reason, and other careful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and be shown in its further success.

PROFITS

The company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailand govern the liability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient earnings on hand to warrant the distribution of a 50 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 32 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

Famous French Dressmakers Who Think Good Sewing Beneath Them.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of reputes. It used to be said that the hurry of most Americans made it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that this defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far away from the haunts of the strangers are more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American dressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to their own maids to have their neat fingers repair the damage that the first wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show him or her the poor sewing. There is the perfunctory expression of regret and surprise, and the dress is sent to the workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment.

Wise women take them as they are, are thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her ambition is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to the outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The sirup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A sprinkling of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Here is another lesson for the nagging woman. Nagging never accomplished anything either in domestic life or in politics.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging.

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse that futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! THE BLACK DIAMOND.

Ranks Among the Curiosities of the Mineral Kingdom.

The term "black diamonds" is sometimes jokingly applied to ordinary coal which we burn in our furnaces, but the real black diamonds of commerce are among the most unique mineral products of the world, and they serve a purpose in the industrial world [illegible] them of great value. [illegible] are pure carbon, and set in the emerald [illegible] resemble the diamonds which we are accustomed to wear as ornaments, writes George E. Walsh in Scientific American. They are slightly harder than the crystal or gem diamonds and, in fact, about the hardest substance known.

Black diamonds or carbons are among the greatest curiosities of the mineral kingdom. They are without crystalline form and are found in irregular pieces ranging in size from half a carat up to three, four and five hundred carats. They are dark gray, black or brownish in color and opaque. The real diamond of the jewelry trade is also pure carbon, but translucent and crystalline in form. Two objects so alike in composition could not be found so opposite in appearance as these two forms of carbon.

Another peculiar thing about the black diamonds is that they are found only in one locality in the world. They come from a very small section in Brazil not more than 225 miles square in area. Outside of this limited territory no pure black diamonds have ever been found. In the Brazilian black diamonds fields the natives dive in the river beds for them and recover them from the gravel and washings of the rivers.

What peculiar freak of nature caused the deposition of the black diamonds in this section of the world and nowhere else is one of the mysteries which science has failed to explain. None of them has been found in the great Kimberley diamond regions, where the crystal form of diamonds have for so long been mined, and likewise no fine specimens of the gem diamond have been found in the Brazilian black diamond fields. The whole origin of the black diamonds is therefore a scientific enigma.

Stingy Man Take Heed!

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said: "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish, too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or—

Are Tall Men Stupid?

Dr. I. Popper, an eminent German physician, has been making some interesting observations regarding the stature of individuals and the relation that exists between height and talent and genius. The doctor finds that not only persons with considerable talent but the geniuses of the world have all been and are of medium size or less.

Among statesmen he points out Attila, Cromwell, Frederick II., Napoleon, Gambetta, Thiers—all of whom were of very small stature. Jesus Christ, too, the doctor says, according to the Talmud, was built in small proportions; so was Paul. Among the great artists the short men were Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, Leonardo da Vinci, and Menzel.

Wills In Ancient Greece.

Wills were introduced into Athens by Solon, though in many other parts of Greece they were discountenanced. Diogenes Laertius gives copies of the wills of several celebrated men, such as Plato, Aristotle and others. Before Solon's law no man was allowed to make a will, the wealth of the deceased belonging in certain proportion to the members of his family, and even after Solon only an Athenian citizen had the privilege of bequest, the estates of both slaves and foreigners being confiscated for the use of the public.

A Queer Wooden Flower.

A queer wooden flower is to be found in Guatemala. This flower is called the rose of hell from the fact that it grows on the sides of Mount Agua and round the seared edges of the volcano of Fuego. It has four distinct petals, the outsides of which are covered with bark like that of a tree. The stem, usually about a foot high, is of solid wood covered with bark. The flower measures nearly a foot across.

There Only by Inference.

An Englishman coming by train to Glasgow for the first time and passing Motherwell Junction said to a gentleman opposite, with whom he had been chatting:

"Queer name, 'Motherwell. Is there a 'Fatherwell' next?"

"No," was the reply, 'but we come immediately to Bothwell."—London Tit-Bits.

Superintends a Railroad.

Mrs. Asher Richardson of Ashertown, Tex., holds the post of general superintendent of the Ashertown and Gulf railroad. This is a new line, about sixty miles long, that Mr. Richardson has built in connection with the development of his large land holdings. The new superintendent gives her personal attention to the construction of the road and has a large force of men under her.

Mrs. W. R. Gerrie of Toronto, is in the city the guest of Mrs. W. Fowler, Rubidge street.

CARE OF GLOVES.

How to Keep Them and Lengthen Their Lives.

Snugly fitting gloves unless properly cared for and with a view to let a stitch in time save nine generally begin to show gaps at the seams, particularly between and at the tips of the fingers, in a short time. As glove seams are invariably sewed with an external buttonhole stitch they should be mended with the same stitch and a corresponding quality of thread or silk.

When such mending is done it is best to strip the glove on your hand, while wearing the right hand glove, let some one ply the needle for you. With the glove stretched snugly on your hand, uneven drawing or ruffling of the kid is not possible.

Should the kid split in the palm of your hand because of too much tension, instead of sewing up the rent seamwise insert an angle of kid from some other glove of which you may have lost the mate. Fold under the ends of the rent above the patch about one-sixteenth of an inch, and sew down close to the edge at least two times with the machine.

When kid gloves begin to wear out uniformly, growing thin and tattered through much contact, it doesn't pay to waste time or thread in improving them. But where the thumb or forefinger wears out ahead of the rest one may prolong their use by cutting out the worn portion, turning the finger inside out and setting a small piece of kid against the gap with liquid glue.

Most housekeepers discover a handy article in a soft, worn and weathered glove as a protection for the hands on cleaning day or in overnight cures of tan and freckles.

When kid gloves begin to look shabby an application of glycerine or the thinned part of the white of an egg rubbed on sparsely and allowed to dry without wiping will revive a certain luster.

Silk gloves, unless they are getting threadbare, should be submitted to some one who has special skill with a darning needle. Suede and chamois gloves are more durable than kid and get shabby before they show holes. They must be sent to the cleaners frequently, but if you would avoid the expense you will find this simple method most effective:

Saturate thoroughly with gasoline, rub until stains and soiled spots disappear, then put them on and allow fifteen minutes to evaporate. When thoroughly dry brush vigorously with cornmeal if your gloves are of a light shade. Use an unused brush when you are ready to completely brush off the powder. The cornmeal adds freshness and eliminates odor.

Poetry and Parents.

"You never can tell whether poetry is loaded or not," said a professor, descanting upon the Muse, "and what a poet writes in the moments of his fine frenzy rolling may be susceptible of changes which would make him curse the pen did he but know whence it pointed. Now, listen to this couplet:

"'Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves whose gospel is their maw.'

"It sounds like some kind of a family poem, doesn't it, with paw and maw coming in to make the rhyme? Do you imagine the poet when he wrote the lines ever thought of the parents represented in such a homely way, and how the meaning of the whole thing could be changed by changing the meaning of the end words of the two lines? Was he a beginner? Oh, no, he was not a beginner. He had written several very classy things. He was John Milton. You remember he wrote 'Paradise Lost' and two or three other pieces of considerable merit, though he never quite got into the 'six best sellers' list, and these two lines I have quoted close his sonnet to Lord Protector Cromwell, written in 1652."

Hedgehogs For Pets.

Women of fashion in England have taken to hedgehogs as pets. The hedgehogs is common to Europe and western Asia and is easily tamed. The Countess of Craven, who was Miss Bradley-Martin, of New York, has a dozen pet hedgehogs in her country place in England, and the queer little animals answer her call and eat from her hand. She has five young hedgehogs, hardly bigger than mice. These animals roll in a ball, showing nothing except their spines, when strangers cross their path, but they are quick to make friends. One of the daughters of Premier Asquith has two pet hedgehogs. The girl the other day ruffled the dignity of a visiting diplomat by walking into the drawing-room of the official residence in Downing street with the two bristling little fellows at her heels.

Telling the Age of a Fish.

The age of a fish can be determined with accuracy by inspection of the otoliths, or bony concretions which are found in the auditory apparatus. These otoliths increase in size during the entire life of the fish, each year adding two layers, a light colored layer formed in summer and a dark layer formed in autumn and winter. The alternate layers are sharply contrasted and very distinct, so that there is no difficulty in counting them. The number of pairs of layers is equal to the number of years the fish has lived.

Grim Wit of London Suffragettes.

The London suffragettes are becoming humorously militant. When Herbert Gladstone entered the Cabinet the other day he brought with him a suitcase marked "bomb." It had been thrown at him while he was addressing a meeting. Naturally it caused anxiety. But the "bomb" proved to be only a sample of suffragette wit. It was just a common stick of wood, ominously labeled.

No Chance to Learn.

"It's no use for me to go to school any more," said little Elmer. "I'll never be able to learn how to spell."

"Why not?" asked his mother.

"Because," answered Elmer, "the teacher keeps changing words on me all the time."

Attendance at Seattle Exhibition.

The Advertising Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are now in receipt of complete figures as to the general attendance at the Alaska — Yukon — Pacific Exposition at Seattle the past Summer. The total number of people who visited the Grand Trunk building was 265,827. The exhibit is now on its way to Canada and the Company are preparing their plans and exhibit for the International Exhibition at Brussels which will be held next year. The Grand Trunk will erect a handsome building at this exhibition which will be equal to any they have constructed for the exhibitions in the past.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER.

The Secret of a Famous Healing Balm.

The re-discovery of a secret that has lain hidden in the dust of 20 centuries is an event full of fascinating interest, and the story of Zam-Buk, the world-famed first-aid and skin-cure will always enlist attention. Zam-Buk is the virtual descendant of those wonderful and mysterious herbal balms by the use of which the manly athletes of Ancient Greece and the stalwart gladiators of Rome ensured the healthiness and ready-healing of their skin.

Many are the attempts that were made to produce a perfect balm for the skin, but only in Zam-Buk has the ideal been realised. Since its discovery Zam-Buk has been welcomed in mansion and cottage, and the people of two hemispheres realised that they have been placed in possession of an absolutely unique cure for skin complaints.

The reasons for this triumph of science are simple and few. Taking a lesson from the Ancients, the proprietors of Zam-Buk first of all wisely decided that the ideal balm must be purely herbal and contain not the slightest trace of rancid animal fats or poisonous minerals. Thus Zam-Buk is made solely from rich and pure essences obtained from certain rare medicinal herbs. These juices and extracts are prepared and refined by ingenious scientific processes and then so skilfully blended that a unique, effective, and yet perfectly natural preparation for dispelling skin-disease is secured.

Zam-Buk has an affinity for the human skin such as no ordinary ointment or liniment can possibly possess. Besides soothing pain and allaying irritation, it possesses unique unique antiseptic and germicidal qualities which virtually chase disease germs out of their hiding-places in the skin tissues; at the same time it purifies the pores and invigorates the natural functions of the skin in a way that no other preparation can.

Zam-Buk solves in a perfect manner the problem of always having handy at home or at one's work an ever ready and reliable first-aid for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, lacerations, scratches, etc. Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ulcers, piles bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering sores, sprains, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, face sores chafing chapped hands, cold-sores, frost-bites, sore feet, diseased ankles and all itching, irritation, and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is a daily need in every household and is sold by all druggists and stores at fifty cents a box. Refuse harmful and dangerous substitutes sometimes "pushed" as being "just as good."

MILLIONS OF FLOWERS.

Bloom on C.P.R. Property—Thousands of Bulbs Being Distributed.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has long been recognized as one of the leading railway systems of the world. The Canadian Pacific Railway does not devote its entire time to building cars and making money. It looks to the pleasure and comforts of its patrons and employes, and devotes time and money to the artistic. Some years ago this railway company conceived the idea of beautifying its property with lawns and flower beds. Believing the scheme to be feasible and of an uplifting and beneficial tendency upon its employes a floral department was established and given full control of this work.

As a result of the work of the floral department during the past thirteen years the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has practically a flower bed and lawn at every station and stopping point. These to the traveler appear as an oasis in the desert and they are just as welcome and as much appreciated. In a travel over the C.P.R. lines in the Dominion of Canada one will find over 1500 of these beauty spots and each year sees an increase in the number.

During 13 years of labor the floral department has worked up an enthusiasm among its employes that is good to see. Hundreds of barren and waste patches have been converted into grass plots and flower beds and a big improvement in these is noticed each year.

This beautifying plan is general and it is participated in by all classes of employes, agents, section men, round house men, and clerks. Anyone who will plant, cultivate and care for flowers are furnished with the material by the company. Last spring alone 50,000 packages of seeds, including 29 varieties, were distributed, and there were planted and they bloomed on the C.P.R. property all over the country.

The object of this work is to induce employes to beautify station grounds, round houses, office buildings, and to improve the surroundings of the employes themselves. The influence is tenfold for it spreads to whole communities and is an education itself. The C.P.R. furnishes an object lesson which is being acted upon by many large manufacturing concerns and business houses in the country and they are doing much to make Canada the ideal country in which to live and labor.

DUST

Is a General Nuisance. Causes Sickness

Dusty Friday No More

is agreen coloured powder, packed in tin cans ready for use. In sweeping a carpet, take one or two handfuls, according to the dust. Sprinkle where you are to begin (not all over the carpet), then sweep as you always do. The powder is swept ahead of the broom and falling on the carpet absorbs the dust, leaving the carpet clean and bright. The dust is not thrown into the air to settle back on the carpet and furniture.

DUSTBANE should be used in sweeping carpets rugs, straw mattings and bare floors.

WHY YOU SHOULD USE DUSTBANE
IT SAVES LABOUR IN SWEEPING.
IT SAVES ONE-HALF YOUR DUSTING.
IT SAVES YOUR CARPETS AND RUGS.
IT SAVES DAMAGE BY MOTHS.
IT SAVES TAKING UP CARPETS.
IT SAVES YOUR HEALTH.
IT SAVES YOUR MONEY.

SANITARY POINTS

SICKNESS AND DISEASE are often contracted by breathing into the lungs germ-laden dust. DUSTBANE contains an antiseptic fluid which kills germs. The evaporation of this fluid while sweeping thoroughly disinfects the room. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pounh of cure."

It Costs Nothing to Try

PETERBOROUGH GROCERS are authorized by the manufacturers of DUSTBANE to send you a 35c can of their Sweeping Compound. They want you to use this on trial for one week. At the end of this period if not found satisfactory we will take it back and there will be no charge for quantity used.

If it does away with dust on sweeping day you want it.

PRINCESS ALICE GOLD.

Mining and Milling Company are Making a Profitable Offer.

In another space in this issue will be seen a cut of one of the best gold mining propositions before the public. It is the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company, and they are offering 200,000 shares of their stock for sale at $1 par value. In speaking of this coming "gold" a journal devoted th gold production, published in Denver, Colo., says:—

With a large acreage of some of the best territory in the Yankee Hill Portion of Clear Creek county, with nearly $100,000 worth of ore blocked and ready to break down and mill, with a deep tunnel driving to open a practically unlimited supply of this ore, the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company is now in a position to take front rank among profitable gold-producing enterprises.

This company offers to the investor the important advantage of a low capitalization. Each share represents a substantial interest in the capitalization is 500,000 shares of a enterprise. The capitalization is 500,000 shares of a par value of $1 a share. The proceeds of 300,000 shares have been used in securing ownership of the property and developing it into a shipping mine, and 200,000 shares remain in the treasury to provide for the erection of a mill that will complete the company's equipment for producing gold on a manufacturing basis.

VOL. XXXII NO. 426 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO. FRIDAY NOVEMBER 12, 1909 PRICE TWO CENTS

Presentations were Made to Church of The Sacred Heart

One of the most interesting evenings that have been spent for a long time was spent at St. Peter's School Assembly Hall last night when the several Catholic societies presented cheques to his lordship as contributions towards the new church of the Sacred Heart. The assembly hall was crowded to its fullest capacity with a greatly interested people. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was presented as was also Father McColl and several other representatives of the clergy.

The proceedings were opened with an instrumental duett by Misses Gorman and Hatrick, and Miss Hallihan favored the gathering with a couple of vocal selections.

The first presentation was a check for $1100 from the T.A.S. to pay for the high altar in the new church.

The Young Ladies' Sodality presented a cheque for $150 for a stained glass window.

The C.M.B.A., the Catholic Order of Foresters, the Ancient Order of Hibernians, each presented a check for $150 for stained windows they had put in.

His lordship thanked the various societies for their gifts and referred to their generosity and kindness.

The gathering was dispersed by singing God Save the King.

ROAD ALLOWANCE.

Will Deprive Mr. Ed. Green of a Lot of Property.

When the question of the C.P.R. getting what is known as the water front property was first mentioned, Mr. Ed. Green, a property owner on Water street, wrote the council, asking that the boundary line of the water front be settled before any deeds of the land were made out.

There is a government reserve for a roadway which runs at an angle from the corner of Water and Charlotte street in an north-easterly direction until it strikes the river at Hunter street. This road allowance cuts off the corner of Mr. Green's brick terrace and nearly all his back yard property including the grass plot under the willows which used to border on the old frog pond, and which Mr. Green has kept up as a lawn for his tenants. He has made use of it for many years and has paid taxes upon it as if it were his own property and to be deprived of it now would be a great loss to him. The Property Committee will meet there today to look over the land and to decide what to do about it

JUDGE'S CHAMBERS.

Have Been Refurnished and Refitted by the County Council.

His Honor Judge Huycke is now settled in his handsome new chambers in the Peterborough Court House The word handsome is used advisedly for the County Council, through Warden R. N. Scott, has had the judge's chambers thoroughly overhauled and fitted up so that now they present a very cosy and comfortable appearance. His honor's private room has had a new hardwood floor put in and covered with a hand some rug, a new desk and chair and new electrical fixtures were also put in. The walls have been repapered and the woodwork repainted. The other room has also been repapered and painted and a new hardwood floor and electrical fixtures have been installed. The work was done by Mr. Archie Morton, and is a credit to him.

His honor is very well pleased with this new quarters and appreciates the kindness and thoughtfulness of warden and County Council.

Will Chinamen Get the Old Hall-Block?

There are doings in the restaurant business in Peterborough, Messrs. Geo. Thomas, recently returned from a trip to China, and Harry Hamilton, proprietor of the Dominion Cafe, are negotiating with the Property Committee of the City Council for a lease of the old Hall store on Simcoe street, or for the purchase of it. They propose to open up a large and handsomely furnished restaurant where they will be in a position to handle their trade and also the banquet business. These Chinese are enterprising and they will establish in Peterborough one of the finest restaurants in Ontario.

The Property Committee considered the application yesterday afternoon and decided to sell the premises outright for $12,000 or to rent on as short a lease as possible at $800 per year. The matter was left in the chairman's hands to interview the promoters and make the best arrangements possible and report back to the committee this afternoon.

The committee decided to rent the place or sell it at the price named as it has been in the council's hands for the past two years and there is no buyers in sight and it was also thought that if it was rented it might be an easier matter to rent it. At any rate the rent will pay the expenses and the city is now loosing money on it. The lessees will also pay the taxes and put in their own fittings and improvements

Two Small Boys burned to Death

Berlin, Ont., Nov. 11.—Two small boys, aged three and four years, were burned to death, and another aged six years, is lying in a critical condition at the hospital, as the result of a fire which started in a mysterious manner at the house of a Russian Jew, named George Uttick, employed at Forwell Bros.

Mrs. Uttick had left the house, which is located on Strange street, and was searching for coal along the G.T.R. tracks in the vicinity, when neighbors discovered the house in flames. The three boys had been locked in, and when the firemen arrived, they found the youngest lad lying on the floor in the kitchen, burned to death. The other two boys were found lying on the ground outside, severely burned about the lower limbs and face, and were removed to the hospital, where the second young set died about an hour afterwards.

The house was a frame cottage, and was totally destroyed, together with its contents. The parents are distracted over the loss of their children.

A man who owns a fine coffee plantation in Jamaica said:

"Four years ago I discovered that coffee was ruining my health and I quit and have been using Postum ever since."

Experience taught this man that he could not drink his own high-grade coffee.

Its active drug — caffeine — irritates the nervous system, interferes with digestion, and trouble is sure to follow.

Some folks may take the hint and change to Postum.

It is absolutely free from drugs, and when well made, that is, boiled 15 minutes, it has a delicious taste similar to the mild, high-grade Javas, with the natural vital food elements of the field grains that repair the damage done by coffee.

PETERBOROUGH HOCKEY CLUB ORGANIZED FOR COMING SEASON

Mr. Ernie Wasson Was Elected President— Dr. McPherson for O.H.A. Executive.

HAVE A SURPLUS OF $125 ON HAND

Large Turnout of Players and Supporters for the Year—Officers Elected.

The Peterborough Hockey Club never got off to a better start than it has this season. The boys met in the parlors of the Oriental Hotel last night in large numbers and organized for the season. A great many of last year's players were on hand along with such old war horses as R. M. Glover, Ernie Wasson, Chris Graham and Dr. A. W. McPherson.

The business of the meeting was put through with despatch and with perfect harmony. The boys are this year united and the beginning promises big success to record at the close.

The new list of officers are all good men and men who will take an active part in the game andin the management. They start off with a good surplus on hand which is always an important featuee and then the club has been assured that a better arrangement, financially, will be made with the rink people this year, although everyone was satisfied with what was done last year when it is remembered that the club was financially embarrassed.

The reports were all most encouraging and the members already possess a lot of enthusiasm and are anxious for the cold weather and ice.

President Dr. A. W. McPherson occupied the chair, and he called upon Secretary R. M. Glover to read the minutes of the last annual meeting. The minutes were read and adopted.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

President Dr. McPherson reported verbally. Last year he said the club got off to a bad start, it being late in the season. That was one cause of the failure to secure a championship. Another was because there was some little division among the players so that it was impossible to get a good city team. A bigeffort had been made but without success. In spite of these, however, fairly good intermediate and junior teams were put in the O.H.A. The first team made a fairly creditable showing. The juniors, however, were inexperienced but should be better this year. He hoped this year that the City League would work in harmony with the O.H.A. teams, and that there would not be any disagreements as to players. He spoke of the finances Last year the club started with nothing and finished the year with a tidy little surplus as well as buying a little souvenir for the players, and the club started off this year with things in pretty good shape.

The president referred to several important matters to be taken up this year. Among them were a member for the O.H.A. executive and a delegateto the annual meeting in Toronto; the question of club rooms and membership tickets.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Secretary-treasurer Glover read his report which showed a surplus on hand of $124.70. The total receipts were $1242.40, and the disbursements $1238.70.

The experience of last year showed that Peterborough with a winning team could carry itself through and there was no need to hesitate in entering the O.H.A.

The junior team last year was expensive but it is necessary as a feeder for the senior team, as good players cannot be developed otherwise.

The traveling expenses for a Peterborough team are very heavy on account of the distances to be covered. Thisthe Rink Company's share of the gates is also heavy, but the club cannot complain of the treatment received last year. He hoped this year a better arrangement could be made. The report was adopted.

SWEATERS PRESENTED.

The sweaters were then presented to the members of both the junior and senior teams who played last year. The seniors got blue coat sweaters with white trimmings. The junior sweaters were of good heavy grey wool.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A telegram was received from Mr. Jakie Moore of Toronto, wishing the club every success this year.

In response to a communication from the secretary of the Rugby Club, the Hockey Club voted the sum of $24.70, to assist them in meeting their expense in sending a team to Toronto on Saturday to finish up the O.R.F.U. season. The Rugby Club did not have a very good season in Peterborough this year and as sports in Peterborough are so interwoven it was felt that the different clubs should help one another.

President Dr. McPherson referred in appreciative terms to this action, as its showed the right spirit of sportsmanship. It was practically the same crowd that supported all the clubs of the city. It was also a much more satisfactory way of conducting the sporting business and did away with the necessity of making a canvass on the outside.

DELEGATE TO O.H.A.

A week from tomorrow the annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be held in Toronto, and Dr. A. W. McPherson will represent the Peterborough Club, and will also be the local candidate for the O.H.A. executive.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

Patrons and Patronesses—Hon. J. R. Strarton, M.P. and Mrs. Stratton, T. E. Bradbirn, M.P., W. H. Denham and Mrs. Denham, T. H. G. Denne and Mrs. Denne, R. A. Morrow and Mrs. Morrow, J. H. Burnham.

Hon. President—Mr. H. R. H. Keenar.

President—Mr. E. Wasson.

1st Vice—Mr. Sam Ray.

2nd Vice—Mr. Harry Morgan.

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. R. M. Glover, with power to select an assistant.

Executive Committee—Messrs. Joe Picard, C. G. Graham, Chas. Ray, Wm. Metherel.

Mr. Fred Darcy was asked to make a few remarks, extended congratulations to the Peterborough Hockey Club and tendered a box of 50 cent cigars to the first local player that scored the first goal in the O.H.A. series.

Mr. McDougal, an ex-member of the Eureaka Hockey Club, but who is now residing here, was present at the meeting, and was introduced to the boys. He was given a cordial invitation to turn out to practice with the boys.

The meeting was then closed with several vocal selections and choruses.

Cow Takes Rabies

Walland, Nov. 11.—A month ago a mad dog ran about Wainlet township all day before it was killed, and on Saturday a cow that was bitten by it developed rabies.

The cow was ordered to be killed yesterday by Government Inspector Shount of Toronto.

It is feared that other cases will develop.

SERIOUSNESS OF THOUGHT.

The Press of Business and Society is Killing the Art of Thinking.

St. Paul's church was again crowded last night. The evangelistic meetings are rapidly drawing to a close. In fact tonight is the last of the series and undoubtedly the seating capacity will be taxed to the limit.

Rev. Mr. MacBeth took as his subject Psalm 119.59. "I thought on my ways, I turned my feet onto thy testimonies; I made haste and delayed not to keep thy commandments." This is evidently a recollection on the part of one who is looking back over his past life. He dwells upon the importance of serious thinking. Thinking in our day is said to be a danger of becoming a lost art. The pressure of business and social life prevents that solitariness that conduces to thought. But we should remember that it is important to give ourselves opportunity to think seriously on our relations to God. The Psalmist says that he thought on his ways and evidently discovered them to be ruinous and unsatisfying and he resolved to change.

It is instructive to notice that once he had come to this conclusion he acted for himself and having acted he made haste to enter a new life. He had wasted much time and enemies were still about and there was much work remaining to be done. These thoughts call upon us all for an immediate decision.

Jamaica Island Has Evidently been badly Devastated by Floods

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 11.—There is no communication yet with Kingston, Jamaica, the cable company is at present even unable to get the landing station at Holland's Bay, and it is thought that there must have been heavy damage thereabouts by hurricanes and floods.

PEOPLE ARE ANXIOUS.

New York, Nov. 11.—Great concern is felt in shipping circles here today over the continued absence of definite information concerning the hurricane which cut off communication with West Indian points south of Santiago, Cuba.

Companies with ships plyish West Indian waters have been unable to communicate with them by wireless. This is declared to be due to the severe rain storm which was reported before the cable companies announced that they were unable to reach Jamaica.

The Commercial Cable Company today issued the following notice:

"All points beyond Santiago, Cuba are cut off.

The Western Union Cable Company is accepting messages for point beyond Santiago subject to forwarding by mail from that point.

It is generally believed that no hurricane, however, could have seriously impaired the cable service and it is accepted as the general theory that an earthquake or some volcanic disturabce under the sea willbe reported when communication is restored.

Red Widow Will Know Fate Soon

Paris, Nov. 11.—With a flood of invective directed against Madame Steinheil, her parents and her associates, the prosecutor-general began his summarizing speech in the trial of Mme. Steinheil for the murder of her husband and mother. The summary was wordy, emotional, and vituperative, but it contained little that to the ordinary mind would justify the sending of the "Red Widow" to the guillotine. All of the shame of Mme. Steinheil's life was detailed, but no legal facts were shown to prove her guilty of the crime.

The witnesses for the defence, 25 in number, were sworn today, and their testimony was brief, consisting in showing that Mme. Steinheil could have no motive for killing her husband and mother. The last one left the stand late this afternoon, and presiding Judge De Valles signalled the prosecutor-general to begin his concluding speech.

ARE YOU IN DANGER?

You May Be Neglecting a Small Ailment and Thereby Inviting Serious Disease.

That little maiadies grow into serious diseases we all know. Upon the stomach, liver and kidneys rest mainly the work of maintaining health. Most of your little setbacks come from derangement of these organs. Experience proves they are very frequently out of order, not badly perhaps, but even if only slightly out of order, it acts upon the mind and the spirits and upon the strength and regularity of the system.

It won't pay you to neglect your health; at the first sign of headache or languor take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and note how bright you feel next morning. You'll have a grand appetite, enjoy your breakfast and feel full of energy to go to work upon.

Your food soon tastes so good that you eat more than ever before and, of course, you grow stronger, ruddy, vivacious, just sparkling with energy and good health.

Soon your friends will notice the improvement, and by continuing to tone up your system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills you lay the sound foundation of permanent good health.

There is no medicine better for men, women or children, nothing for family use half so beneficial as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. To look well, and feel well, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

DR. GRENFELL'S BRIDE

The hundreds of admirers, friends and supporters in Peterborough who have hear Dr. Grenfell's lecture and who have read his writing, will read with the utmost interest the following reference from a Chicago exchange to this wonderful and courageous man :—

3cento the frozen north, where the sun casts stingy rays over a barrfn landscape, where mail is not delivered for months in the winter and where the department store and "bargain counter" are unheard of, a Chicago girl will travel as the bride of Dr. Wilfrid T. Grenfell, the famous Labrador missionary.

The young woman who has elected to give up the luxuries of a modern home and the conveniences of a metropolitan city to brave the hardships of the snow field and the dangers of the ice floe, is Miss Anna MacClannahan, 2121 Calumet avenue.

Her fiance, Dr. Grenfell who is a guest at the MacClannahan residence will lecture tonight before the Sunday Evening Club at Orchestra Hall. Plans for the wedding, to be held Nov. 18, are being made by the bride-elect.

READY FOR ARDOUS TRIP.

Although Miss MacClannahan is averse to discussing her domestic arrangements in the far north, her friends declare she is an enthusiastic champion of Dr. Grenfell's work. She is prepared to face the changed conditions and expects to accompany her husband on cross-country sledge rides and "hikes" up snowy hills.

To be sure, the missionary's bride may have to bump over the ice, 5 hundred miles or so, whenever there is any shopping to be done. But the village stores are well stocked with earmuffs, sealskin coats and other wearing apparel. And then, too, the ride over the ice, behind the swift sledge dogs, is in some respects as exhilarating as a spin over Chicago's boulevards in a six-cylinder auto.

Dr. Grenfell and his bride expect to leave Chicago soon after the ceremony, but the missionary probably will deliver a number of lectures before they begin their journey to the land of snow.

KNIGHTED BY KING EDWARD.

In England Dr. Grenfell is characterized as a "perambulating providence" and he recently was knighted by King Edward. For years the physician has devoted much of his time in caring for the hardy fishermen of icebound Labrador. During the summer months he cruises the northern coast in the Strathcona, a hospital ship, and in the winter he is among the snow drifts of St. Anthony, toiling among the natives.

The explorer is a close friend of Commander Peary and enjoys the personal friendship of Dr. Cook. He entertained the former at Indian Harbor, while Peary was on his way back to civilization, and at that time examined some of the commander's records.

"I am satisfied that Peary reached the pole," declared Dr. Grenfell, "and from a conversation I had with Harry Whitney I know he believes Dr. Cook also found the top of the world."

Dominion Parliament Opened Yesterday

Second Session of the Eleventh Parliament Opened with Greater Crowd in Attendance than Usual

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Mild, hazy November weather conditions attended the opening of the second session of the eleventh Canadian Parliament this afternoon.

As a result of the nice weather conditions an even greater crowd of citizens than usual gathered on Parliament Hill to witness the military pageant and the arrival of his excellency from Rideau Hall.

His excellency was accompanied from the vice-regal residence by the usual escort, furnished by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, and as the cavalcade approached the Buildings the guns of the Second Ottawa Field Battery boomed the usual salute from Nepean Point. His excellency was received by the bodyguard provided for the openibg day of the session.

The attendance in both Houses was large. In the Upper House the usual crush occurred, the number of people of social position and fashion being larger and more representative of Canadian social life, on a whole, than ever before.

Shortly after three o'clock the gentleman usher of the black rod tapped on the door of the House of Commons, and with the customary obeisances to the Speaker summoned the Commons to the Upper House, where his excellency read the speech from the throne in both English and French.

Bedford Violently Assaulted the Warden

London, Nov. 11.—Sergeant Cruchett informed the magistrate today that no word had been received from Canada in connection with the Kinrade case. So Bedfort was remanded until Monday. He asked for bail, but it was refused. Bedfort violently assaulted the warden at the Brixton Prison a few days ago. Bedfort now denies that he had ever been to Hamilton.

URGENCY AND ENTREATY.

The Two Main Features of Rev. Mr. Atkinson's Address.

There was a good meeting in St. Andrew's church last night and Mr. Atkinson spoke with vigor on the text, "Today, if ye will, hear His voice: harden not your heart," (Psalm 95, vs. 7.

The two notes here were urgency and entreaty. God's invitations are always joined with an imperative. It is today that is the measure of our opportunity. Tomorrow no man can call his own.

There is in every character a capability of hearing the Divine appeals. That appeal is concentrated in Jesus Christ. He is the voice of God, the Word made flesh. Just as the trees bend to the breeze so our spirits can bend to the spirit of God. The spirit of man is the candle of the Lord and is able to receive the Divine fire.

This power to respond to God is more alert at some times than at others. When we are young, when we experience affliction, when the tides of Divine grace are flowing full and strong.

But we can harden this power, we can wither this faculty by misuse and disuse. To disregard the appeal of God, the urgings of His spirit, the influence of Christ is the sure way to destroy our power of response to the eternal and spiritual. To do this is to enter a hell of godlessness.

In this matter we have a grave responsibility, "If we will," we can harden our hearts. The crisis lies here. Our characters and our destiny are all involved in what we will do in relation to Jesus Christ.

Tonight Mr. Atkinson will speak on "What they missed." All are invited to this, the last meeting of the series.

No Liniment Like Nerviline

Fifty Years' Use Proves It the Strongest, Safest, Best.

1,000,000 Bottles Sold Annually.

The unexampled success of "Nerviline" is due to the fact that it is five times stronger, three times more penetrating, more pain-relieving than any other liniment.

One million bottles used every year—think what this means! Surely stronger proof is not possible that Nerviline is a trusty liniment, a household remedy upon which mothers can depend in case of accident or sudden sickness. Scarcely an ache or a pain that Nerviline won't cure—among the hundreds of ailments for which it is guaranteed are the following:

HEADACHE NEURALGIA
SCIATICA RHEUMATISM
LUMBAGO CHEST COLDS
SORE BACK TOOTHACHE
EARACHE CRAMPS
DIARRHOEA BOWEL DISORDERS

Doctors will tell you that nothing but the purest and most healing antiseptic drugs are used in Nerviline—that's why it's so safe for general family use, for the baby as well as the parent. If you haven't tried Nerviline, do so now—your neighbors are almost sure to know of its manifold merits and uses.

Refuse any substitute for Nerviline sold the world over in large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

FRIDAY NOVEMBER 12, 1909

FRANCE AND HER BIRTH RATE.

While Germany is going ahead by leaps and bounds her one time rival France is surely falling behind in many ways, not the least of these being in point of population. The excess of deaths over births for the first six months of the present year runs up to the total of no less than 28,205, a striking example of race suicide. Inasmuch as the French race is the only people of Europe that are experiencing a decrease in population it is not to be wondered at that it has been suggested to put a heavy tax upon families in which there are two children or less.

But this subject is a very involved one. Only too often poor families have too many children rather than too few—too many for their own sake and too many for the good of the children who cannot be properly maintained, nourished and educated—and to put a tax upon small families would be in effect to encourage child bearing where it were better foregone.

WEALTH AS A HANDICAP TO YOUTH.

President Taft of the United States, in his talk to the girls at the Columbus Industrial School expressed his satisfaction that he will have no property to leave his two sons, but "only good character and pride in themselves and a good education." That is a rich endowment for any boy, and of its three elements not the least valuable is pride in one's self, using the term in its best sense.

There is, nevertheless, something of a Roman parent's austerity in Mr. Taft's desire to start his boys poor, example, the "three generations between shirt-sleeves and shirt-sleeves' would be reduced to one, sons no longer beginning where the father left off. The plan might be expected to be generally beneficial to society. A boy can have no greater handicap to incentive and to real usefulness than an inherited fortune. And considering the quality of past achievepetus would be given to the development which has come from the farmhouse and the country parsonage, an lopment of the traits of character on which general greatness rests. There would be the additional advantage that wealth diverted from inheritance would revert to society in the scape of public benefactions.

The possibility of such conditions is qualified, however, by Mr. Taft's statement that though the boys must take care of themselves, he intends to "scrape together" all he can to give his daughter, so that she need marry only when she chooses to marry and not because of circumstances. This is in effect an advocacy of dowries for daughters. If the family fortune is to descend to the female line only, will not the ultimate possession of wealth rest with the women of the land? Is that event the advantage may suggest itself to fortune young men disinherited by their fathers of acquiring a fortune by marriage rather than by toil.

A RUSH OF BUSINESS.

It Came Just at the Time He Wanted to Sell His Place.

One of the leading men of Louisville, reported to be one of the richest, got a bad start in business. He began by being a photographer, but found that the business didn't come up to expectations. He therefore wisely decided to sell out and start at something else. He finally interested some people in the proposition and appointed a time when they should come and look things over.

He now has the reputation of being shrewd, and that this is not a complimentary designation only is indicated by what happened then. He inserted an advertisement in the daily papers in small enough type not to attract everybody's attention and yet conspicuously enough to win consideration from those who make a point of looking for bargains, announcing that on a certain day he would take pictures free of charge. By a coincidence the day he set was the day when the prospective purchasers of his business were to be there.

The ad., as usual, paid, and that afternoon his gallery was crowded with visitors. They thronged in and out, and he could not take care of them rapidly enough, even with the aid of several assistants. When the folks he intended to do business with came he greeted them with a crown of disappointment, explaining that he was simply so busy that he couldn't see them then and asked them to come back in the morning, when things would likely have slackened up. They agreed and went away duly impressed.

He sold out to them next day, and it is perhaps superfluous to add that he got more for his outfit than he would have done if it hadn't been for the modest little advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOW INSECTS BREATHE.

System of Tubes That Run the Length of Their Bodies.

Landlubber animals have lungs, and sea creatures have gills. But insects have neither one nor the other. They have a complex system of tubes running throughout the whole length of the body by means of which air is conveyed to every part of the system. As they are destined to contain nothing but air, they are strongly supported to guard against collapse from pressure.

This support is furnished by means of a fine thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, much in the same way that a garden hose is protected with wire. There are generally two of these tubes which run the whole length of the insect's body.

Many flies, as larvae, live in the water. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates act and absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends in three feather-like protections. By means of these the larva causes currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

The gnat also lives in the water as a larva. But it has no gills; therefore it cannot breathe the oxygen in the water, but must breathe air. This is done by means of a spicule situated at the tip of its tail. Indeed, the tail is prolonged into a little tube. The larva floats along head downward in the water with this tube just above the surface to enable it to breathe. After some time it is provided with two little tubes, which act in the same manner.—Chicago Tribune.

Breaking Them to the Yoke.

Edward Lisle, whose "Observations on Husbandry" was published in 1757, described the method employed by his "oxhind" or cattleman to break cattle to the yoke: "He yoked two of the steers, being two yearlings, together and so suffered them to walk about the ground where there were no pits or ditches for them to receive hurt by. He also tied together the bushy parts of their tails, the reason of which was because they should not be able to turn their heads to each other so as to strike one another with their horns or by bending their necks too much by endeavoring to face one another and then striving break their necks." In this condition the oxhind let them go on the ground, if without holes or ditches, all night or else turned them into an empty open barn so yoked and thus treated them two or three times before he worked them.

Consolation.

There was once a Billville citizen who could never rid himself of the hills, but went shivering through the hottest days of summer. When at last it seemed that all was up with him, his good wife to comfort him said:

"John, you've been a-shakin' an' a-shiverin' all yer life, but you'll get warm over there!"

"For the Lord's sake, Mary," said the shivering man, "don't talk so! Which way do you think I'm a-goin'?" Atlanta Constitution.

Music Hath Charms.

"So you are fond of music?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum; "I have the highest regard for it. When you go home and meet a crowd of constituents there is nothing like a brass band to take their minds off the explanations they have been looking for."—Washington Star.

An Instance.

Knicker—Time brings many strange changes. Bocker—Yes; the boy whose mother can't make him wash his neck grows up to be a rich man who goes abroad for baths.—Harper's Bazar.

It's folly to try deaf mutes as servants: they won't answer.

The public school board of Port Hope at its last meeting had presented to it a petition from eleven of the teachers in that town asking the Board to reconsider its action with regard to the salary system. No action was taken by the Board relative to this petition.

WAR SCARES.

The Ease With Which They Develop in European Nations.

Germany has just had a scare, and it appears that a British cruiser is the innocent cause. During the recent Baltic cruise of the Cornwall the captain intimated his intention of paying a visit to Kiel.

A dense mist prevailed at the time, and the harbor authorities did not expect her to put in an appearance before morning. When day broke, however, the official world of Kiel was staggered to find the Cornwall moored in her assigned position and apparently quite at home.

She had navigated the difficult Kiel fjord in the darkness and mist without a pilot on board, and not only that, but investigation showed that she had done the same thing at Danzig and Swinemunde.

A German newspaper immediately lashed its readers into a panic. "What would happen in the event of a sudden outbreak of war with England?" it screamed. "They would not have the slightest difficulty in bottling up the high seas in Kiel or elsewhere!"

One Belgian newspaper kept its readers awake for several nights on account of a discovery it made in a German geography book. The book, the use of which was said to be obligatory in most schools, contained this passage: "Belgium, Switzerland, Lichtenstein, Holland, Luxemburg and Denmark are considered as forming part of Germany, because they are mostly situated inside her natural boundaries." Then Denmark and Switzerland and the others began to scream.

Switzerland had another "scare" all on its own account. Not very long ago several battalions of Italian Alpine troops on skees appeared on the Theodule pass, above Zermatt, and had the town practically at their mercy.

The incident raised a storm of excitement in the Swiss press. Where, they demanded, were the twelve battalions of mountain troops and artillery for which money was voted in the Swiss parliament?

A few weeks ago the Parisian boulevard press bubbled over with excitement. Four German balloons had descended in France within forty-eight hours, and one of the papers complained, "It is raining German balloons."

One little country mayor wrote up in a state of great agitation. He had seen a balloon driven over his village by a violent wind, and he had mounted his horse and pursued it till it came to earth.

The occupants, he reported, three men and two ladies, had with them "elaborate photographic apparatus of military appearance." The minister of war received a string of frantic telegrams from various parts of the country.

Russian newspapers have been pouring oil on the troubled waters of England's German "scare" by getting up some excitement over the Austro-German entente. In some quarters it has actually been advocated that the official archives should be removed from St. Petersburg because the capital is too much exposed to the possibility of capture by the armies of her western neighbors.—Pearson's Weekly.

Courage.

For cool courage the deed of a Bendigo gold miner named Davis would be hard to beat. He and two others were sinking a shaft, and after putting in two charges of blasting powder they ascended to the plat above. One of them, Allen, slipped as he came to the surface and fell to the bottom. Instantly Davis rushed down after him, disregarding the fact that the charges were due to explode. He had dragged Allen about five feet before the first shot came. The debris luckily was carried in the opposite direction. Then he struggled on again and managed to reach a comparatively safe place for the second explosion. The two were found little the worse for their closeness to the bursting mass of rock, but Allen's leg had been broken by the fall. The Victorian government has recommended that Davis be awarded the Prince Albert medal for gallantry.—Melbourne Cor. San Francisco Bulletin.

Schoolboy Suicides.

Writing from Berlin, a correspondent of the Chicago News discussed the alarming number of child suicides in Germany. "Investigation proves that every week a schoolboy kills himself in Germany and that this average has been maintained for the last twenty-six years," says the correspondent. "Opinion is divided as to whether blame rests upon home conditions, such as the harshness and ambition of parents, or upon the school management. A case is cited in which a father said to his son on the eve of an examination, 'If you don't bring me your certificate of promotion I will not speak to you again.' The boy went into the examination more dead than alive and luckily got his certificate, but one investigator asks, 'What if he hadn't?'"

Kangaroo Money For Australians.

Sixpences and shillings displaying a kangaroo on one side are a probability of the early future. For a long time Australia has been clamoring for the right to coin silver, and the imperial mint authorities have at last consented. Sir John Forrest, the commonwealth treasurer, says the London Globe, will supervise the new departure, and he says it is likely the coins will have a kangaroo on one side and "some other typical Australian device on the other. There are three branches of the royal mint in Australia—Sydney Melbourne and Perth—but hitherto their operation has been restricted to gold.

both used and recommended in every city and hamlet in America. They are positively standard in every community—and everywhere.

Then why pay the cash, and at your risk, for other unwarranted and unproven medicines? Thousands upon thousands have in the past successfully used Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

When the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Heart or nerves fail, I know how Shoop's Restorative will help them back to health again. But best of all, they positively take no money risk whatever.

First

They know that when health fails to return Dr. Shoop will himself gladly pay the druggist for what I say. And for that test a full 30 day treatment is freely granted.

But write me first for an order.

This will save delay and disappointment.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative and Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Just remember to say to your druggist, "I prefer to buy from one who has appointed an honest and responsible druggist in almost every community, everywhere, to issue my 'no risk, no pay,' medicines to the sick."

HAS BRITAIN ONE, TOO?

RUBBER OUTRAGES ARE BEING TRACED TO LONDON.

"Truth" Publishes Charges Against Peruvian Amazon Rubber Co. With Headquarters In England — Tells Tales of Ghastly Cruelty to Indians In South America—Native Children Buried Alive Head Downward.

London "Truth" is publishing a narrative of the horrible atrocities which are said to have been practised on the defenceless Indians in the Putumayo rubber country in Peru.

This rubber collecting business is carried on by the Peruvian Amazon Co., of Salisbury House, London Wall, registered at Somerset House. The secretary of the company, Mr. A. V. Smith, has written as follows in regard to the terrible allegations made against their employes:

"The directors have no reason to believe that the atrocities referred to have in fact taken place, and, indeed, have grounds for considering that they have been purposely mistated for indirect object. Whatever the facts, however, may be, the board of this company are under no responsibility for them, as they were not in office at the time of the alleged occurrences."

Then follows a series of formal statements made by people who declare they have seen the inhumanities practiced on the natives. Extracts are given below, though it should be borne in mind in view of the terrible nature of the allegations that this evidence may yet be controverted.

From a declaration made by a Brazilian citizen, Joao Baptista Braga, before a commandant of the Brazilian army: It would be an endless task to relate the innumerable crimes that I have seen committed during my stay in this section. Here, recently, in the month of July the tuchaua known as Tiracahuaca and his wife were held prisoners in chains.

When Jimenes — who had been temporarily absent—arrived, he had them brought into his presence, and told them that if their tribe did not appear within the space of eight days he would show them what he would do with them.

The eight days passed, and as the tribe did not come he ordered a can of kerosene to be poured over them, and then, striking a match, he set fire to these unfortunates, who fled to the forest, uttering the most desperate cries.

Naturally, upon seeing such an awful crime committed, I expressed my horror at it to Jimenez, who replied that if there were anybody who wished to protest against the orders he gave he would be served in the same manner, and that if the company kept him as chief it was because he knew how to do his duty.

From a statement declared before a notary at Iquitos by Daniel Collantes: Martinengui ordered a commission to set out for the houses of some neighboring Indians and exterminate them, with their women and children, as they had not brought in the amount of rubber that he had ordered.

This order was strictly carried out, for the commission returned in four days, bringing along with them fingers, ears, and several heads of the unfortunate victims to prove to the chief that they had carried out his orders.

A Brazilian paper, The Journal do Commercio, published at Manaos, printed an account of a "barbarous deed" close to the Brazilian frontier. This was a narrative of a butchery of inoffensive Indians by a band of Peruvian rubber collectors.

Having killed twenty-five, they discharged their weapons at the Indians who were constructing the roof of the h[illegible] poor unfortunates, p[illegible] bullets, some dead, others wounded, rolled off the roof and fell to the ground.

Not content with these cowardly murders, they took the Indian women of advanced age, threw them into the canoes of the Colombians, and conducted them to the middle of the river, and then discharged their rifles at them, killing them all.

What they did with the children was still more barbarous, for they jammed them head downwards into the holes that had been dug to receive the posts that were to support the house.

The Peruvians, after taking possession of the merchandise, conducted the Colombians, the tuchaua (Indian chief) of the Andoques, two Indians, and an Indian woman to Matanzas, the dwelling-place of Norman, the journey taking two days.

Here the prisoners were tied up with cords, and afterwards shut up in one of the houses, where they passed a night of torture. In the morning the tuchaua and the two Indians were taken out to a near-by knoll and clubbed to death.

These outrages took place prior to the formation of the Peruvian Amazon Co. "Truth" remarks that the company "only comes into the case as being responsible for the way the business is conducted at the present moment."

In reply to questions in the House of Commons concerning the alleged atrocities, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said he had asked for a report on the subject. He would inquire if the Belgian consul had made a report to his Government. The shareholders in the Peruvian Amazon Co. had made no request to the Foreign Office for an inquiry.

Must Lie Still.

Every soldier knows that a horse will not step on a man intentionally. It is a standing order in the British cavalry that if a trooper should be dismounted he must lie still. If he does this the whole squadron is likely to pass over him without doing him injury.

Must Be Careful.

One of the undeniable marks of a genius is the mark he leaves as a result of infinite labor on themes he loves. No famous poet was ever so great that he could neglect to leave one word that made his whole effort inharmonious. If Canadian writers are to reach the highest peaks in literature they must learn this lesson. They must free themselves from the criticism that attaches to hurriedly done work and to reckless versification.—Sunday World, Toronto.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

All Probable Future Events Arranged For in Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an excellent dinner, at which all members of both families were present, we repaired to the great drawing room, where the chairs had been arranged in a semicircle about two small, round tables. Presently two grave old gentlemen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the tables, and when we were all assembled the elder commenced to read a long memoir, which he announced he had compiled with the help of his colleague. Then, to my utter amazement, he began to name all the possessions of the future bride and bridegroom—so many bonds and mortgages, so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, articles of personal adornment, furniture and jewels; the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de R——, whose great good sense has always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us marriage is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

A Story Illustrating the "Setness" of the Cornishman.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there to his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

"Do you mean that?" shouted Hook, pulling out his watch.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

Franklin as a Swimmer.

In 1726 Benjamin Franklin was working as a printer at Watts', near Lincoln Inn Fields, and taught two shopmates to swim "at twice going into the river." With them and some of their friends from the country he paid a visit by water to Chelsea, and "in our return," he recorded, "at the request of the company, whose curiosity Wygate had excited, I stripped and leaped into the river and swam from near Chelsea to Blackfriars, performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water, that surprised and pleased those to whom they were novelties."—London Tatler.

Her Housekeeping.

Growells—Smith's wife must be a poor housekeeper. Mrs. Growells—Why do you think so? Growells—He declares he's perfectly comfortable at home every day in the year.—Chicago News.

Tree and Sea.

"By the way, what is the tree most nearly related to the sea?"

"The beech, of course."

"Are you sure? Isn't the bay tree nearer?"—London Scraps.

A CHARMING PICTURE

Charming, indeed, is the beautiful picture entitled "The Soul's Awakening," given with the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, this season. It is difficult to find words to do the picture justice. It is an inspiration to look at. There is a beautiful lesson in this sweet picture, and every home would be the better of a copy adorning its walls. This picture is 19 x 24 inches ready for framing and is absolutely free to all who subscribe to that great family and farm paper the subscription price of which is only one dollar a year. A dollar could not be better spent. Either picture or paper alone is worth more. The Family Herald should be kept busy entering new subscribers this season.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the discommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from slits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I'm had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

Very Controversial.

They were very controversial in those days.

First.—Bowles wrote a book about Pope.

Second.—Campbell abused Bowles' book on Pope.

Third.—Bowles replied to Campbell's abuse of Bowles on Pope.

Fourth.—Byron wrote an answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Fifth.—John Bull wrote a letter to Byron about Byron's answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Sixth.—Dr. Garnet has a theory of the authorship of John Bull's letter to Byron about Byron's comments on Bowles' answer to—it is like "The House That Jack Built!"—Andrew Lang.

Bare Poles.

Purser—Don't go on deck, madam. It is stormy, and we are running her with bare poles.

CHARGES FELL FLAT.

St. Catharines had a small-sized sensation caused by an irresponsible citizen charging graft on the part of the aldermen. The charges were made through the press of that city in letters signed by the citizen. An investigation was ordered but it fell flat and now the Star-Journal expresses the hope that the city's fair name will not be shamed by such charges again.

Would it not be better for the St. Catharines' press to investigate charges of that nature before they publish letters from irresponsible citizens? That is the easiest way to protect the good name of the city.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realize that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

TO DISPOSE OF POSTCARDS.

A Decorative Use For These Souvenirs Which Is Exceedingly Attractive.

NOVEL WAY TO USE PICTURE POSTCARDS.

An ordinary soap box is used for the receptacle, and on the bottom corners small unfilled spools of cotton are glued in place for supports. The postcards are then pasted on the box, the finished product being edged with galmpe, put on with fancy tacks.

What "Grass Widow" Means.

Your note on the Australian grasshopper suggests his relationship to the grass widow, writes a correspondent to the London Chronicle, who goes on to demand the derivation of this last expression. Some would merely have it as a slang expression, but its appearance in the marriage register of Halstead, Essex, as early as 1654 suggests a less vulgar origin. It is said to be a corruption of grace widow and dates from the days when divorces were granted only by the authority of the church. The woman who was so empowered to separate from her husband was commonly called a grace widow, and from this the expression gradually gained its present meaning and spelling.

The Man Chaperon.

London mothers are said to be trying the experiment of the man chaperon on the occasions upon which they are not able to take charge of their daughters. There are always a number of old bachelors or widowers ready to dance attendance upon young girls, and they would be much more satisfactory to the girl as a general thing than the elderly woman chaperon.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to discover and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products,also Importers of staple fine exports.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a Director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many recent and valuable formulas for the Preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents some 1000 acres of land, well treated and added to the purposes of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings for manufacture and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, on the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the protected portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of the valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and has sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its necessities and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commended condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other careful considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices prevailing governs the liability of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consequently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient earnings on hand to warrant the distribution of a 10 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 30 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

ABE'S LITTLE FLIER.

The Result of His Desire to Learn a Few New Tricks.

By GRANT THORBURN.

For years he'd been a power in the Flatbrook meeting house—not during church time, to be sure, nor yet at Sunday school, nor week night meetings, nor Epworth league. It was at other times he shone—at the fairs and candy sales and donation parties and school commencements, for he was a prestidigitator, and he was the regular thing at the village entertainments.

But lately his popularity had begun to wane. The Flatbrookers became tired of the same old card and coin tricks, though Abe Hinchman, through long and careful practice, was an adept at them. They longed for the Indian box trick and the juggler's sword tricks of the metropolis. They did not know that down in the cities the blase members of society, if they ever did attend a sleight-of-hand performance, always came in when the card and coin tricks commenced and yawned and went out when the Indian box trick came on.

Abe realized that his popularity was on the wane. Even old Doc Clarkson's daughter had grown a bit distraught and cold. So Abe made up his mind. He drew about two-thirds of his bank deposit and started for New York. He was determined to learn a few new tricks, buy some new paraphernalia and come back and astonish the natives—and old Doc Clarkson's daughter. It was early winter, and there was no farming to be done, so there was no better time or opportunity, and he went.

He occupied a seat in the smoker. At a station near the metropolis a well dressed young man boarded the train, looked around for a seat and finally took the one next to Hinchman. He was a sociable sort of fellow and entered into conversation at once. Abe told him all he knew and many things that he didn't. The stranger was not so communicative and confined himself strictly to fiction, although Abe couldn't know that, of course.

"Now, look a-here," remarked this man. "Don't you go to any hotel. You go to a private boarding house. They won't skin you. I know a good one where they'll treat you right. You come with me." Abe went.

The place was situated in a rather obscure street, but the rates were cheap. Abe's companion, by a singular coincidence, boarded there himself.

After supper they went upstairs into the parlor. A caller was announced, a rather seedy personage. He wanted to see Abe's new companion. They talked together in one corner, while Abe sat in another. Then his friend came over to him.

"Say, Hinchman," he began, "do you know anything about diamonds? Any judge of them?" Abe glanced at the other man out of the corner of his eye.

"Somepin," he replied. "Was in a jewelry store up home fr awhile. Why? What's up?"

"Why, say," continued the other, "here's a friend of mine in a fix. He's got some good diamonds and wants me to loan about $200 on 'em. They're worth $900 anyway. I've seen 'em. Now, I ain't got $200 or I'd lend it to him. S'pose you do it. How much have you got?" This was a superfluous question, for he had discovered on the train that Hinchman had just $250.

"Well, now, here," went on the other; "he says if he don't pay up in a week you can keep the stones. See? He can't pay up, and the stones are the real thing. See? And you'll be in the difference between a couple of hundred and most a thousand. See?"

Hinchman saw. He thought it over and concluded that it was a sound proposition, provided the gems were genuine. He excused himself a moment, went to his room and put $200 in one envelope and something else in another envelope of similar appearance.

They had to go to the friend's room, a few blocks distant, up a dark, dingy staircase. The friend produced the jewels. Abe wouldn't touch them unless they went over to some Broadway jeweler and determined their worth and genuine character. This was fair, and they went. It was really superfluous, for Abe could tell by the merest examination that the stones were the real things. There were four of them. The Broadway jeweler looked at them, said they might sell for a couple of hundred apiece, but that he would give $150 spot cash for each of them. Then the three went back.

"Well, what do you think of it?" asked Hinchman's friend of Hinchman. "They ain't worth as much as we thought, but there's a good clear profit in it for you in case my friend here don't pay, and if he does you get your money back, with good big interest and a bonus besides at the end of a week."

The diamonds were again produced and once more examined. From that time on Abe Hinchman kept his eyes not on the faces of his friends, but on the diamonds.

"I'll do it," he finally announced. He slowly withdrew from his pocket the envelope containing the $250 and a small bag. He counted the money in front of the two men, and they put the diamonds in the bag at his request. After he had counted the money and replaced it in the envelope and once more examined the diamonds and replaced them in the bag, which he did more or less carelessly, keeping up a lively conversation all the time, he laid both upon the table.

"Now, gents," he concluded, "I'm a stranger here, and I rely on your honor not to do me. This here is a fair and square deal on my part, and I s'pose it is on yours. Now, there's your money, and here's"—

There was a loud rap on the door, and a man broke in. He was not in uniform, but he wore some kind of shield, which he exhibited. Behind him were two other men.

"Don't move!" he yelled to the three men around the table. "I arrest the whole gang for robbery!"

Hinchman's two companions sprang to the table, shoved Hinchman aside, grabbed the bag containing the jewels and the envelope containing the money and made for the door.

"Run for your life!" they yelled to Hinchman. "It's the cops! Those stones is stolen!" They waited not, but burst through the men at the door and leaped down the stairs. Hinchman was left to face the three men.

"Well, sir," said the leader severely, "we got you, anyways. What you got to say for yourself?"

Hinchman told the whole story from beginning to end. The three men evidently didn't believe it, but nevertheless they marched him to the corner of the street and there told him they would let him go provided he would appear at the police station in the morning to prosecute the others. He promised, and they left him. He took to his heels and sprinted for his boarding house. Once there, he gathered up his grip, paid his reckoning and jumped on the nearest trolley car. Eventually he fetched up at the Astor House. There he took a room.

Once in his room he slung his grip in a corner, took off his hat and wiped his brow with a bandanna kerchief. Then he drew carefully from his inside pocket first an envelope and then a small bag. In the envelope was Abe Hinchman's $200, and in the bag were four genuine stones. The other men, wherever they were, also had an envelope and a little bag, but in the one was simply a roll of green paper and in the other a few dried beans.

Abe Hinchman had merely played it as low down on 'em as he could, that's all. Legerdemain comes in handy once in awhile. He stopped around and sold two of the stones. The other two he kept.

A week later Abe Hinchman stepped off the train at Flatbrook and sauntered down the street. A diamond stud shone in his shirt bosom. He smoked a 20 cent cigar.

"Pretty flip, Abe," remarked a townsman—the jeweler, in fact—as he inspected the pin. "Where'd you get the dough?"

"Just been taking a little flier in Wall street with the boys," remarked Abe carelessly. Another hailed him.

"Well, Abe," said this one, "you look first rate. What you been doin' down there?"

"Well," returned Abe, "you can just bet that I stood on the steps in front of the Astor House along with the best of them. Yes, sir, I did."

"Here's a little thing for you, Millie," suggested Abe to Doc Clarkson's girl that day—"that is, if you'll say 'Yes.'" It was a magnificent solitaire ring. "Oh, Abe!" sighed the young lady in assent.

A week later Abe Hinchman entertained a select audience with the Indian box trick, the sword trick, the clothes basket trick, the cabinet trick and every trick in the business. It was simply great.

THE MAID OF HONOR.

What the Personal Attaches of Royalty Have to Do.

Probably the majority of those members of the general public who study the Court Circular and see noted therein that "the Hon. So-and-So was in attendance as amid of Honor," have a very hazy idea as to the duties discharged by a maid of honor, and may perhaps imagine that these are limited to looking charming and beautiful at the various state functions which her royal mistress graces with her presence.

As a matter of fact, however, maids of honor enjoy by no means a sinecure, and may certainly be said to fully earn the $1,500 per annum with which their services are rewarded.

Queen Alexandra, being a Queen Consort, has but three maids of honor, whereas Queen Victoria had eight, who were in attendance at court in couples for a month twice a year.

Aspirants for these coveted positions at court are selected in accordance with the personal wishes of Her Majesty, and, needless to say, must possess excellent qualifications for the post.

Good birth and breeding are, of course, essential, and daughters of well-known peers are frequently glad to secure so comfortable a post at court. The title of "Honorable," however, which is always prefixed to the names of Her Majesty's maids of honor is quite irrespective of birth, being purely an honorary title, which is retained even after the office has been relinquished.

But, though good birth is a sine qua non, it is by no means the only qualification which the would-be maid of honor must possess. No one, however exalted her station, would be selected who did not possess personal accomplishments considerably above the average. Thus, a knowledge of French and German is always required; while a thorough acquaintance with public affairs is also desirable for a maid of honor, as one in almost constant attendance on her royal mistress has naturally to mix with many distinguished guests, and her conversational powers have necessarily to be considerable. A talent for music and an ability to read aloud with clearness and expression are also qualities which are taken into account in filling up vacancies in the royal household. Most essential of all, perhaps, is it that a maid of honor should be guiltless of the essentially feminine vice of tittle-tattle, and any tendency to disclose court secrets would ensure severe rebuke and probable dismissal.

The everyday duties of a maid of honor are of such variety and multiplicity that any detailed enumeration of them would be impossible, but they may be described in general terms as those which in less exalted circles fall to the lot of "companions." Thus a maid of honor is expected to take an important part in helping to entertain the guests of her royal mistress, and at dinner she usually occupies a seat next to the gentleman who has the honor of sitting on the immediate right of the Queen. She has also to see that Her Majesty is provided with a bouquet, which is always placed at the right of her plate at dinner. Another duty which falls to her lot is that of accompanying the Queen when she walks or drives out and to assist her with some of her correspondence, although the bulk of this is, of course, turned over to other officials of the royal household.

The maids of honor are also expected, if called upon, to assist in amusing their Majesties' guests after dinner either by displaying their musical accomplishments or by taking a hand at cards.

Mr. Frank R. Wards of Trenton, is in the city.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

POSTMAN'S PUZZLES.

Ingenious Persons Manage to Give a Lot of Trouble.

Some folks appear to have a penchant for giving the postal officials unnecessary trouble, and among the worst in this category are those who delight in so addressing their letters that the sorters—who on all occasions have to work at high pressure—have to waste valuable time in trying to decipher the meaning of a none too clever verse, perhaps. It speaks volumes for the sorters and postmen that, with even the most attenuated clue to the addressee, the missive is almost sure of delivery.

From time to time the writer has noted these "curious" addresses, and gives here some of the most interesting examples from his collection.

This letter please take to the land of white ducks,
The beechy and beautiful county of Bucks;
And there, if your search on the map is most thorough,
You'll find a small township called Princes Risborough.
At the postoffice there will you there leave this letter,
My friends there are (W)right, so they couldn't be better.

Similar are the following examples. In February, 1880, "Uncle Toby," the conductor of the Children Corner of The Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, received a letter addressed:

To Uncle Toby this missive is sent,
And I'm sure the penny is very well spent.
The weekly newspaper, The Chronicle named,
Is in Newcastle and through England famed.
Mr. Editor this to my Uncle will give,
And heartily hope that both may long live.

In the same year a gentleman at Ayr duly received an envelope bearing this superscription:

Awa' to auld Scotland, and speer for John Graeme;
It's a wide direction, but a well-kent name.
In the new town o' Ayr, at the auld Brig-en,
He sells a drap whusky, but the postman will ken.
And if ye should fin' him, as I've nae doot you will,
Am sure he'll no grudge the postman a gill.

In 1881, Regent street, London, was known as Swallow street, and the following was sent to a lady there:

Dear honest postman, be so kind
To take this to a friend of mine.
She is a Fox—Lucy's her name,
In Swallow street you'll find the same;
She is a cruel little toad,
And lives not far from Oxford Road.

Here is another poetical effusion:

'Midst corn and clover, grain and grass,
There lives and laughs one Mr. Vasey
'Tis not from Barnet very far—
Stay on the left of Potter's Bar.
Should you arrive while he about is,
Pray stop and ask him how the gout is,
And beg him (mind, the postage paid is)
To give this letter to the ladies.

A Canadian Grub In London.

By a log of wood riddled with tiny tunnels, says a London correspondent, stands an ordinary-looking beetle in the insect house at the London Zoo. It has just been born as a beetle from the grub which drove those tunnels. It belong to the Longicorn family of beetles.

The grub was sent from Canada in a small log of Vancouver pine to a lady eighteen months ago. When recently it turned into a beetle she sent it to the Zoo, and it has just emerged in its final state, but it may have been anywhere between twenty and fifty years in the wood, boring the tunnels through the log.

An official at the Gardens says that naturalists have not yet settled how long it takes beetles to accomplish this work of boring. There is the historic case of the Natural History Museum grub of the same species. For fourteen years it lived undiscovered in the boot tree constantly used by an Indian military officer and probably had lived in the wood itself before it was made into a boot tree.

When the officer first discovered the grub he handed the boot tree, grub and all, over to the museum. It was placed in a show case, where it lived ten years. About once annually the grub used to poke its head out into the daylight, when the curator promptly pushed it back into the wood and plugged up the hole so that it could dig its way out.

"The Weeping Counsel."

It was on account of his earnest and emotional pleading for Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, that Lord Halsbury, who recently celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday, was so christened. If his lordship believes in lucky numbers, he has reason to regard "7" as his own. He was born in 1825; he began his career at the Bar in 1850; he was made a Q.C. in 1863; he was appointed Solicitor-General in 1875; he became Lord Chancellor in 1885; and he commenced his third term of office in 1895. An incident in his early days brought his career perilously near a close. While defending a prisoner at the Old Bailey he excited the animosity of an insane clergyman, who fired a revolver at him. This is the only instance on record of an attempt to assassinate an English advocate in the performance of his professional duties.

Keeping Busy.

Walking one day amongst his old parishioners in the East End of London, Dr. Lang (now Archbishop of York) stopped a parishioner who had married a man who enjoyed the reputation of being the laziest man in the East. "Well, Mrs. Brown," he said, "I hope your husband is proving a good provider." "Yes, sir, thank you, sir," she replied; "he's provided me with three new places to work at since we were married."

Superintends a Railroad.

Mrs. Asher Richardson of Ashertown, Tex., holds the post of general superintendent of the Ashertown and Gulf railroad. This is a new line, about sixty miles long, that Mr. Richardson has built in connection with the development of his large land holdings. The new superintendent gives her personal attention to the construction of the road and has a large force of men under her.

Mr. Joseph Bell is in Toronto today, attending a meeting of the Mission Board of the Anglican Church.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Property Committee.

A meeting of the Property Committee will be held this afternoon at five o'clock at which all members are urged to be present.

Property Committee.

A special meeting of the Property Committee will be held today at 5 o'clock at Mr. Ed. Green's property, to look over his claim of land.

Funeral Today.

The funeral of the late James Moore will be held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence and interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. 7

Elected Treasurer.

Mr. H. B. Cowan of Peterborough, was elected treasurer of the Ontario Horticultural Association this week at the annual meeting held in Toronto, and was also appointed to the Nomenclature Committee.

Off to Toronto.

The Peterborough Rugby Club will have to go to Toronto tomorrow to finish the O.R.F.U. season with the Parkdale Club. This is the last game and as Peterborough is out of the running for the championship they did not expect to have to play again However, a good aggregation will be sent up.

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. 8

Board of Trade.

Another meeting of the Board of Trade is being arranged for the 16th for the purpose of taking up the matter of an appropriation from the Dominion Government for the reservation of the waters to the north of the city.

Caught Fluffy Ruffles.

Mr. Jack Seymour won the five-dollar gold piece donated for the capture of Miss Fluffy Ruffles at the Brock street rink. She was caught just at a quarter to ten after several unsuccessful attempts had been made by a number of young men to catch her. Tonight five dollars will be donated to the one who catches Johnny Dollars.

Big Black List.

There are now 65 persons on the blacklist. Two names were added yesterday morning; one being that of an old man at his own request, and another, that of a farmer residing in Smith, at the request of his wife. This is about the largest number License Inspector Stewart has had to deal with. While new names are continually being added, others are taken off and there are very few cases where a second notice is required to be served.

Men in Demand.

Mr. W. J. Kearns was visiting in the city yesterday and gave The Times a call. He has been for some time hiring men for the lumber camps in North Bay, and finds some difficulty in securing good men. He says that there are plenty of men up there who will not work. They will engage to go to the camps and after having their fare paid to their destination frequently jump the job. Wages range from $28 to $32 per month in these camps.

Customs Returns.

The Customs returns for October were practically double last year's showing for the same month. The receipts for October, 1908, were $14,684.43, and at the end of October this year $28,797.73 was the grand total for the month. The figures give an idea of what the conditions were a year ago and the increase of nearly 100 per cent. will be an encouragement to everyone.

Oh, You Tax Bill!

Tax Collector Green has sounded a note of warning in regard to paying taxes, and hopes that the ratepayers will take notice of it and conduct themselves accordingly. The tax office will be open each day for the last payment of taxes from 9 a. m. until 4 p.m. After Monday, November 15th, 5 per cent. will be added to all unpaid taxes. Mr. Green suggests that the people come early and avoid unnecessary congestion on the last few days.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Lots of Deer.

Mr. R. J. Soden, received two deer this week from the hunting grounds near Midland, of the Buckhorn Hunt Club, of which he is a member and has but recently returned to the city. Both were shot by Mr. Soden, and will be sent on to Rochester to a gentleman, who wishes to have the heads mounted Their weight is close on to 400 lbs. The Buckhorn Club are having excellent luck and expect to secure their allowance by the end of the week.

New Bridge.

The new bridge built by the county of Peterborough over the Squaw river in Harvey township has been completed and was formally taken over this week, when it was inspected by Warden Scott, Reeve Fife, of Otonabee, chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee. Reeve Pardue of Eanismore, Reeve Coben of Galway and Reeve Shaw of Harvey. The structure was found perfectly satisfactory and Reeve Shaw, under whose supervision the bridge was built, was complimented on the good work that had been done. The contractor was Mr. Windover. The structure is a wooden one and the span between the piers is fifty-five feet in length. The approach on either side is sixty feet in length.

IN SOCIETY

The Times will be pleased to receive notices of Weddings, Social Events, Personal Announcements, which will be published in this column free of charge

Mr. W. C. Garbutt of Lakefield, spent Wednesday evening in town.

Mrs. Geo. Baptie of Lakefield, who has been the guest of Mrs. John Jayes for the past few days has returned to her home.

Mr. William Bourne, who has been the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Lightheart, 221 Park street, leaves for the West this week.

Rev. Dr. S. J. Shorey, Cobourg, is spending a couple of weeks with a party of sportsmen in the Parry Sound district.

Mrs. T. A. Brown of Orillia, Ont. who has been the guest of Mrs. Thos. Pratt, Water street, left yesterday morning to visit friends in Toronto.

Mr. Alfred B. Owen, general superintendent of Dr. Barnardo's Home, is in Peterborough, visiting his daughter, who is at the Margaret Cox Home.

Mrs. J. Bamfield, Niagara Falls, Ont., is in the city, visiting her son Mr. Jack Bamfield, of the Royal Bank, who has undergone an operation for an affection of the ear.

The many friends of Mr. Stanley Wade, will be pleased to hear that he has so far recovered from an attack of typhoid fever, that he was removed from Nicholls Hospital to his home yesterday afternoon.

Sexsmith—Buchanan.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Buchanan, on Wednesday, Nov. 3rd, when their daughter, Miss Bessie, became the wife of Mr. John A. Sexsmith, M.P., of Belmont township.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. A. Brown, M.A., B.D., in the presence of about fifty guests. Precisely at 11.30 the groom took his place in the spacious dining room which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. A few minutes later the bride, attended by her father, entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Mr. Val S. Collinson in his usual brilliant, masterly style. She wore an elegant princess gown of cream duchess satin, en train, richly trimmed with lace and pearls, also a bridal veil with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses.

After the usual congratulations the guests repaired to the dining room where the tables were decorated with carnations and chrysanthemums, and sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. After this had been partaken of, Rev. G. A. Brown rose and after speaking in the highest complimentary terms of the bride, proposed that all should rise and drink to her health. The groom, Mr. George McCartney of Bethany and Mr. Sharp of Westwood, responded to this toast, the two latter testifying to the manliness, integrity and high ability of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Sexsmith left by the 3.06 train for a short trip to some of the western cities. The bride's traveling dress was a bleu-gri chiffon broadcloth with smart tailored hat to match, and she wore a handsome set of mink furs.

Some of the guests from a distance were: Mr. and Mrs. G. McCartney of Bethany; Mr. and Mrs. McNeil and Miss McNelland Mrs. Anderson of Keene; Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Sexsmith of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Barton of Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Doupe of Trent Bridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Sharp of Westwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Sexsmith will reside in Ottawa during the session.

WHISTLING CEASES.

Great Improvement on the Grand Trunk Was Effected.

Mr. Tiffin, general superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway, has proved himself as good as his word. He promised Mayor Rush the other day that he would have the whistling of engines through the city curtailed. That night a great improvement was noticed and the improvement has continued since. Trains passing through the city at night give their signals in a very soft tone which sounds like a whistle away off. It is not expected that any further complaints will be heard.

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. A Question of Age.

The great Napoleon, as you know, began his wonderful career when he was little more than a youth. When he was offered the command of the troops in Paris during the troubles that beset the directory some one objected to him on account of his youth. His answer to that objection is famous. "One grows old quickly on the field of battle." A ready witted lawyer made good use of that age question once after Napoleon became emperor. The lawyer had been recommended for appointment as the first judge of appeals, and some one presented him to the emperor. Napoleon seemed surprised at his youthful appearance and said: "You look quite young for such an office, monsieur. May I ask how old you are?" "The same age as that of your majesty when you won the battle of Marengo," answered the lawyer, and he got the appointment.—Chicago News.

The Game of Twilight.

To play the game called twilight each child takes the name of a flower, and seats are provided for all but one, who stands in the center and slowly spins a wooden plate, calling the name of a flower at the same time. The girl whose flower name is called leaps up to catch the plate before it falls, and the vacant chair is taken by the spinner. If the plate is not caught before it falls a forfeit is required from the one who fails to catch, unless it is plainly the fault of the spinner in not giving it a sufficient impetus, in which case she must try it over again.

If, instead of a flower, "twilight" is called, all change places and the one who fails to secure a seat becomes spinner. If "moonlight" is called all must sit still, and any one who jumps up is liable to forfeit. If "double twilight" is called a double change of seats is made.

Brer Rabbit's Tail.

Have you ever noticed anything unusual about bunny's tail? Next time your mother is going to have rabbit for dinner if you will look you will discover on the end of bunny's very abbreviated brown tail a small tuft of white fur.

This white fur grows there, they say, so that when Mamma and Papa Rabbit are being pursued by hunters and are forced to run all the little bunnies can follow their elders by watching the little white spots. Most wild rabbits are a peculiar brown color, very near the color of the ground, and it is difficult to see them as they are being chased.

NOT EXACTLY THAT.

Famous Men Who Have Made Malapropos Remarks.

Most of us are acquainted with "Punch's" joke concerning the son of the house who, as he gallantly escorted the beauty of the evening to her carriage, gushingly remarked, "I have been waiting all the evening for this moment."

Twice in one evening the great novelist, Charles Dickens, was guilty of an embarrassing malapropism. "I have distinguished myself in two respects lately," he wrote to a friend, explaining the matter. "I took a young lady unknown down to dinner and talked to her about the Bishop of Durham's nepotism in the matter of Mr. Cheese. I found she was Mrs. Cheese. And I expatiated to the member for Marylebone, Lord Fermoy—generally conceiving him to be an Irish member—on the contemptible character of the Marylebone constituency and Marylebone representatives."

Even these situations, however, are not quite so embarrassing as that of a member of Parliament who, at a certain political reception, remarked to a neighbor, "I wonder who that homely old woman is over there?" pointing out a rather stout lady at the other end of the room.

"That, sir," was the reply, "is my wife!"

"Indeed! That is my daughter!"

The first Baron Kenyon was rather fond of telling the story of how, while on circuit with Justice Rook, they entered a village just in time to accompany the population to the little village church. The parish clerk, anxious to have the congregation show due appreciation of the honor conferred by the presence of the distinguished jurists, gave out two verses of one of the metrical Psalms: "Speak, O ye judges of the earth, if just your sentence be; or must not innocence appeal to Heaven from your decree? Your wicked hearts and judgments are alike by malice swayed; your griping hands by mighty bribes to violence betrayed."

By this time most of the adults had woke up to the application of the Psalm and remained silent, allowing the children and a few women to continue the second verse.

PRINCESS ALICE GOLD.

Mining and Milling Company are Making a Profitable Offer.

In another space in this issue will be seen a cut of one of the best gold mining propositions before the public. It is the Princess Alice Gold Mining and Milling Company, and they are offering 200,000 shares of their stock for sale at $1 per value. In speaking of this coming gold a journal devoted to gold productions, published in Denver, Colo., says:—

With a large acreage of some of the best territory in the Yankee Fork portion of Custer County, with [illegible] which is the headwaters and ready to hand down and mill, with a deep tunnel driving to open a [illegible] and [illegible] the Princess Alice [illegible] Gold Mining and Milling Company is now in a position to take rank among profitable gold producing enterprises.

This company offers to the investor the important advantage of a low capitalization. Each share represents a substantial interest in the capitalization is 500,000 shares at a enterprise. The capitalization is 500, 000 shares of $1 par value of $1 a share. The proceeds of 300,000 shares have been used in securing ownership of the property and developing it into shipping mine, and 200,000 shares remain in the treasury to provide for the erection of a mill that will complete the company's equipment for producing gold on a manufacturing basis.

Knock Down Furniture and Boat Company is Looking for Location

Desires to Locate in Canada and Particularly in Peterborough—Representatives in the City Yesterday

A knock-down furniture and boat manufacturing company from the United States desires to locate in Canada and particularly in Peterborough. Representatives were in the city yesterday and met the council last night when the proposition was placed before the aldermen and quite a number of the leading citizens who had been invited to be presented.

The company in the States has made a great success. In nine years they have grown from a $3,000 investment to a quarter of a million. The business was built up from profits and no new capital has been added. The turn-over last year was $300,000.

The proposition is that the American company furnish their patents, patterns and business experience, lithographs, etc., and get one-half interest or $50,000 in stock and that Canadian capitalists put up $50,000 in cash to establish the factory, machinery, raw material, etc., a local board of directors to control the management.

The representative of the company was asked to secure a lot of information in reference to the business which he did not have at hand. This he will do and will return to Peterborough in a few days, and interview a number of the financial citizens.

Peterborough Leads Population Increases the Past Four Years

To the Editor of the Times,

Dear Sir:— In the present timely discussions on the steps that should be taken to advance the interests of Ptterborough remarks have been made that indicate that other cities have advanced in recent years faster than this city. Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford and Welland have been referred to as having rapidly developed while Peterborough is practically standing still. Here are some facts:—

	Popul. 1905	Popul. 1909.	Per cent Increase
Brantford	19,602	20,711	8.5
Kingston	16,209	19,193	5.4
London	43,154	49,507	14.6
Hamilton	59,543	67,268	12.9
Windsor	14,007	16,192	15.5
Peterborough	14,391	16,907	17.4

I have not the returns for Guelph for this year, but the population of that city in 1905 was 12,950 and in 1908 14,000, an increase at the rate of 8.5 per cent. Welland is exceptional. Toronto, counting the additions of territory with the present population, has increased at a faster rate by a small percentage than Peterborough but if these additions by annexation were substracted I would not be surprised to see it about the same.

Peterborough is advancing faster than any other city in Ontario, with the possible exceptional of Toronto and Ottawa.

This is not an argument against greater efforts to advance the interests of this city. Let these efforts and the enthusiasm behind them be an outgrowth of the encouragement that comes from great things that have been done, and the promise they give of better things that may be accomplished by a united effort.

Yours truly,

G. A. GILLESPIE.

HUNTERS RETURNING.

Many Camps Have Broken Up and the Sports are Heading for Home.

Ald. Jos. Duffus made a flying visit to the back part of Harvey township yesterday, interviewing some of the farmers of the district. He reports the roads in very bad condition owing to the rain they have had for some time. On the way home he passed Ald. Morrow driving in after the hunt. He had no deer with him. Two big loads of hunters and baggage were also passed, but the flying alderman in the "red devil," could see no deer, although he would not say but what they had a lot. The hunters are allbreaking up camp and heading for home and although they have had ideal weather, for some purposes, there is better weather for deer hunting. The sports got some venison, however, and they are all well pleased with their outing.

AN OLD RELIC.

Of the First Years of Peterborough and Colborne District.

An interesting souvenir of the days of the early settlement of this district will be presented to the Peterborough Museum by Mr. D. Hughes-Charles. It is an engraved brass plate which was used to make five shilling notes to raise money for the erection of the jail and court house "for the intended district of Colborne." Mr. Charles secured the plate from a Mr. Armstrong of Toronto, who had been given it by his father. It was dug up in Toronto many years agowhen excavating was being done for the Garrison Creek sewer.

The plate is about six inches in length and four inches in width and the engraving is done very artistically. The design is somewhat unique in the center a deer is shown standing by the side of a stream, and on either side there is a figure of a man.

As is generally known the Colborne district included Peterborough when this part of Ontario was first settled. The inscription on the plate is as follows:

"The Building Committee appointed to superintend the erection of the jail and court house in the intended district of Colborne, promise to pay the bearer at the treasurer's office in Peterborough, the sum of five shillings currency, twelve months after date with interest, for value received. By order of the committee.

CANADIAN EATABLES.

One of the best propositions ever submitted to the investing public is undoubtedly that of Canadian Eatables Limited. The very face of their offer is attractive and as one goes through their prospectus one becomes more convinced of its genuineness and its honest straightforward policy. THE DAIRY WEALTH.

Of Ontario Amounted to Many Millions Last Year.

According to the last annual report of the Dairymen's Association in Ontario there were 41 cheese factories in Peterborough County and in operation during the summer of 1909. There were 117 cheese factories and 97 creameries in operation in the Province this summer. During the season of 1908, 1,661,039,751 pounds of milk were delivered to the factories, from which 120,624,436 pounds of cheese were manufactured with a total value of $13,106,919.95. The creameries of the Province manufactured 9,895,109 pounds of butter worth $2,355,170.43.

MR. GREEN'S PROPERTY.

Property Committee Looked Over the Public Road in Dispute.

A number of members of the Property Committee met at Mr. Ed. Green's property on Water street, and looked over the land. Mr. Green has been using city property and the public roadway ever since he got hold of that property about half a century ago. He has made certain improvements upon the property but the city owes him nothing as he has had the free use of it. There are several other properties affected also as they encroach upon the roadway. The committee will, however, take it up within the next few days.

YOU HAVE POSSIBILITIES FOR A GOOD FIGURE UNDER YOUR FAT.

From 30 years onward people grow fatter. So many do so it seems the natural thing. Instead of that, getting fat is a bad sign. From that moment one's tissues are going to get gradually weaker.

It is easy to correct the trouble, however. One teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of the following pleasant mixture: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4½ oz. Peppermint Water will put back into your stomach that youthful energy which prevented you getting fat before 30. The old figure is still there under your fat, remember. Dig it out with this harmless receipt. It will take off 12 to 14 ounces a day without any help from exercise or diet.

"Mercury Charmed with His Own Invention," for the Public Library

Peterborough's new public library will contain the original and only plaster paris form of "Mercury charmed by his own invention," by Miss Katherine E. Wallis, who is now in Paris. This bust is a magnificent work of art and the Ontario Government owns the stone execution.

His Worship Mayor Rush received a letter from Miss Wallis the other day making the offer to the city and he presented it to the Committee of the whole council last night. The members of the council and the citizens who were present were all delighted, and no time was lost in accepting the offer. The bust when it arrives will be placed in the new public library.

Paris, France.

Mayor Rush,—I have made up my mind to offer to the town of Peterborough the original and only plaster cast of my statute, "Mercury charmed by his own invention," of which the execution in stone is now the property of the Ontario Government. Thus my native city and Province will be in sole possession of the work which cost me the greatest effort of my life, and which obtained for me such success here in Paris. It is a great pleasure to be able to offer it to Peterborough, and the only condition imposed is that the city pay the expenses of packing and transportation, amounting to perhaps about $30. I would beg you to give me an answer to this before the first of January, 1910.

I have sent Miss Hatton an Indian ink drawing of the proposed Nicholls monument to be exhibited and placed before the city authorities. I have in this drawing carefully avoided all attempt at likeness or detail, that attention might be concentrated solely upon the mass of the monument in its place. I trust that this may fully decide the authorities to entrust me with this work on which I am earnestly resolved to bestow all my experience and ability. Believe me,

Yours very sincerely,

KATHERINE E. WALLIS.

It was moved by Ald. Buller and seconded by Ald. Phelan, that the mayor be instructed to accept Miss Wallis' very kind and generous offer, and to convey to her the sincere thanks of the council and the city. The motion was carried unanimously.

INWARD CLEANING.

Assures Outward Beauty.

No greater mistake than to imagine that regularity is a sign of good health—it is an advantage, but if your spirits dull, it is the surest sign that nature is lagging a little, lazy—the kidneys weak—the stomach failing just a little in its work. It may be a little of all three.

Just one remedy—inward cleansing with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. This removes so to speak, a copweb here and there, a visible sign of careless inward house-cleaning.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills insure beauty give a dainty complexion, act upon the skin, upon your spirits. Some will ask, How do Dr. Hamilton's Pills act? Why midly, of course, but very effectively upon that great trio of health, the stomach, liver and kidneys.

To get that robust, hearty health, to have the sparkle of vigor, to look and feel always at your best, tone and regulate your system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Successful Candidates For the Boys' Cabinet

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the boys was held last evening at the Y.M.C.A. The returns of the election for the Boys' Cabinet for 1910, which was held in the afternoon, was given, and reports of the conferences at which five attended, were read by W. Armstrong and B. Hunter, and from the Toronto Conference at which five attended, were read by G. Potter, H. Lees and R. Langford. Those who were elected for the cabinet were in order of standing:—H. Hill, G. Potter, R. Scott, R. Langford, H. Lees, H. Matthews, W. Armstrong, B. Hunter, M. Pearson, and R. Howden.

Twelve Persons All Lived in Two Rooms

Belleville, Nov. 12.— Representatives of the Children's Aid Society here have unearthed a terrible state of affairs at a home near Frankford, about fifteen miles from this city. In a hovel consisting of two rooms a family of twelve persons were living, namely, the father and mother, named McDonald; five sons, three daughters and an unole eighty years old. The eldest daughter, Sarah, unmarried, was brought to the Shelter here with her two children. It is likely that criminal proceedings will be instituted.

LADIES' AID CONCERT.

In Murray Street Church Was a Most Gratifying Success.

A thoroughly enjoyable entertainment was given by the Ladies' Aid of the Murray street Baptist church last night. A large audience was present and the program was thoroughly appreciated. POWERFUL ADDRESSES.

Were Delivered in Knox Church Last Night.

Knox church was crowded to its utmost capacity last night. Great difficulty was experienced in seating the congregation. The service was most impressive and everyone was greatly interested. The speakers were Rev. Dr. Farquharson and Rev. Mr. Morrow of Toronto.

Rev. Dr. Farquharson spoke on the need of living a true and noble life and he pointed out that it was not an easy task to be a christian. It is not easy to overcome drunkness, or vice or meaness, and it is much more difficult to overcome the world.

It is not the making of money, or pleasure or amusement, it is the attitude of the soul to God in all things, the giving up of one's self to right and to Jesus Christ. He appealed to all to put their faith in Christ to make them strong and urged them to exercise that faith in overcoming the world.

Rev. Mr. Morrow of Toronto, followed and made a powerful and intense appeal for a decision for Christ. He spoke for nearly an hour and held his audience as in aspell. Many were deeply moved and a considerable number responded to the invitation to make a confession of Jesus Christ. The spirit of the meeting was very intense and sincere.

After the addresses many gathered around the two speakers and expressed their thanks for the help they had received during the campaign. On all hands it was recognized that the success of the meetings depended largely upon the pastor Rev. Mr. Keith whose earnest preparation for it and whose guiding hand throughout had been the real moving power that led to such happy results.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Address on the Words of the Saviour Over the Children of Jerusalem.

One of the most pleasing features of the evangelistic service last night was the presence and help of the children in the service of song.

The Rev. Robt. Atkinson's last message to St. Andrew's people will not soon be forgotten here.

The words of the Saviour over the City of Jerusalem, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem how often would I have gathered thy children together as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings." Mr. Atkinson portrayed the anxiety of God for the salvation of men and how Christ expressed in His great life's work the broken heart of the Father. A man once said to the preacher "If I were God the woes of the world would break my heart," and he spoke better than he knew. Christ advent expressed the great joy and love of God, and Christ's sacrifice expressed the sorrow of God. At the conclusion of the service Mr. Rich. Lees and Mr. J. S. Ferguson expressed their heartfelt interest in and appreciation of the services of Mr. Atkinson, and also expressed the assurance that the services would continue to be a rich blessing to the congregation.

PETERBOROUGH'S CHEAP POWER

ELECTRIC power cheaply developed from a water fall is what every manufacturer in the civilized world is looking for. They will find it in the city of Peterborough where the present population is not using one half of the available supply. All the power is not used because the population is not nearly large enough, and for no other reason.

THE price charged for electric light and for power is within the reach of all and it is a much cheaper than any other known light or power, and all the advantages are thrown in. So general is the use of electricity in Peterborough that every wheel that turns round is propelled by electricity that is developed from the Otonabee river. Every factory uses it and they could not get along without it, unless great additional expense was added to the yearly account. Practically every house, office or room in the city is lighted by electricity. A great many people are using electric cookers, etc., while electric irons are about as common as the old flat irons. Wash tubs and other household machines are run by electricity. The jewellers, grocers and every other merchant or business man uses electricity to drive their machines. Truely, Peterborough is the Electric City. If the price of power was not very low it would not and could not be so generally used. The fact that it is used is greater proof that it is cheap than a whole volume of figures.

A GREAT deal has been heard about the Niagara power, which has been developed, or partially so, and which is being distributed in Western Ontario. The announcement of 100,000 or 200,000 horse power naturally causes a flutter and a rush, just like a new discovery in a mining camp. But when one sits down and figures the tremendous cost of development and transportation of the Niagara Power, along with the additional cost of distribution it will be found that Peterborough, with its home developed power, is still in the lead and has lots of Power to spare for many more industries.

THE City council now has at its disposal for manufacturing purposes 1000 horse power, and just the minute that power has been disposed of there will be several more thousand horse power developed. The Peterborough Light and Power Co., stand prepared to meet all demands for electric power and they will supply it at a price which will compete with Niagara power or any other power in the province. That is no idle boast for the Peterborough Light and Power Co. are one of the strongest concerns financially in the country and they have the capital develop four or five times the amount of power now used in the city.

THE supply of electric power from the Otonabee river, and the chain of lakes and rivers in the immediate neighborhood has not been half used. There are in sight and within a short distance of the city from 12,000 to 20,000 horse power still undeveloped. The manufacturers committee and the city council need have no fear to state that the city can supply all the power that will be needed for manufacturing purposes.

A Detroit Woman Shot London Man

London, Ont., Nov. 12.—Great mystery attends the shooting last night of Samuel C. Morley of this city, at the Cranbrook model farm, in the suburbs of Detroit.

Morley, who is 30 years old, was found on the farm, of which he was manager, and all that can be learned is that the shooting was done by a woman named Bertha, who has disappeared.

Morley is in a dying condition. His brother and sister in this city were notified by long distance telephone, and took an early morning train to his bedside. They know nothing of the woman said to be implicated.

FOUND ON THE ROAD.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 12.—Samuel F. Morley, aged thirty years, manager of the Cranbrook Farm, near Birmingham, twenty miles from Detroit, was found lying on the road near the farm last night, shot through the side of the neck and abdomen. The latter wound is a serious one, and Morley's death is looked for at any minute. When found he was so weak he could only say "Bertha shot me."

Bertha is supposed to be the cook of that name on the farm. She has disappeared, and the sheriff is looking for her. Her surname is not known. She is about 25 years of age and during the five years she and Morley were together on the farm the latter was very attentive to her, and they were believed to be engaged. Morley is said to have been going with another young woman recently.

Morley has an excellent character. He has seven brothers and two sisters living in different parts of Ontario.

INS AND OUTS.

Mr. Harry Morgan is said to be out hot after the mayor's chair. Apart from that everything seems to be in his favor.

Floods Sequestered Jamaica Island

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 12.—The cable companies here are not able to get into communication with Kingston, Jamaica.

A despatch from Santiago, Cuba, says:

The weather is moderating today, and it is believed that communication with Kingston and Holland Bay, Jamaica, will be restored soon. Efforts to reach these points were made again this morning, but without success.

There has been no communication now for a whole week and everyone is mystified.

The general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Toronto, got a cable message today via New York from Holland Bay, where the cable touches land near Kingston, saying floods had interrupted the land lines but the weather was clearing.

Liver or Roast of Beef

It was Saturday in a village when three working men stepped into a butcher's shop and asked for liver for Sunday dinner. As they stood chatting the saloon keeper walked in and ordered a roast of beef. The men at once saw that things ought to be turned around, and they made up their minds that before long they would make it so. Their resolution was carried into effect for it was not long before each man walked proudly in and ordered his small roast of beef for Sunday dinner. That night they had considerable satisfaction in seeing the saloon keeper walk in, and as he sauntered up to the counter say, "Well, Joe, I've had a poor week of it I guess I'll have to content myself with liver."

IMMENSE CROWD.

Heard Rev. Mr. MacBeth's Last Address of the Series.

The largest congregation that ever gathered in St. Paul's church for a week night service was present last night to hear Rev. Mr. MacBeth's closing address in the two weeks' evangelistic campaign. That large church was well filled with a congregation that received a great deal of assistance from the meetings of the past two weeks. Rev. Mr. MacBeth's sermon was one of the most powerful and effective of the series and the people were greatly moved.

At the close of the sermon Rev. Mr. Pogue on behalf of himself and the congregation extended to Rev. Mr. MacBeth their hearty appreciation and thanks for the services. He is a very busy pastor and that he gave up his own work to help the movement here was a sacrifice few men would willingly make. Then both Rev. Mr. Pogue and Rev. Mr. MacBeth referred in gratified terms to the press of the city which had been of so much assistance to them during the campaign.

Rev. Mr. MacBeth spoke on the words, "He that is not with us is against us" These words are those of the most loving of men thus words meant for our own heart. The Lord Himself He declares the impossibility of our being neutral in matters relating to Himself. He that is with Christ builds and gathers, but he that is against Christ scatters and dystroys. This was applied to the individual and to society. Are you a builder or a destroyer? Indifference to Christ deepens into enmity and enmity towards Him will mean our death. Let us not harden our hearts against the spirit or reject the spirit of His power but let us decide for Christ.

Gas Distended His Stomach

Caused Palpitation and Prevented Sleep. When Health Was Gone, Cure Followed Use of Nerviline.

"My last word will be," writes Henry P. Pollard a well-known boot and shoe traveller of Hartford. "that everyone with a bad stomach must make an end, before it is too late, that Nerviline is the one remedy to cure. Why, I was in misery and about to consult a doctor, when I got a sample and found relief. I kept on and found that I could eat a hearty meal and find no gas distending my heart jumping.

TESTIMONIAL. Like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better mighty fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the travelling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

For general household use Nerviline has no equal; it will cure the aches and ailments of the entire family—refuse anything but Nerviline. 25c. per bottle, five for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OLD AGE ANNUITIES.

In the various post offices of the Dominion a placard is displayed announcing that the question of old age pensions is solved. The solution offered is the purchase of annuities under the Dominion Government's plan. No doubt if any Canadian citizen takes advantage of the facilities offered to secure immunity from want of old age the problem, for him, would be solved. But no matter how perfect the plans for doing so may be they would avail little if no effort were made to induce the people to take advantage of them. People do not always know what is best for them.

At a recent convention of insurance agents many of the speakers dwelt upon the public good that was being done by the insurance companies in persuading the people to provide for those dependent upon them in their riper years. Despite the manifold advantages of life insurance it is safe to say that few people would avail themselves of it but for the persistency of the agent. In the aggregate, therefore, the efforts of the too-often abused life insurance agent have been a most important factor in making Canadian citizens more capable of taking care of themselves and of their families.

Apparently the Dominion Government has realized that if the people of Canada are to provide for themselves in old age, are to be able to say during the closing days of their active lives that they are not public pensioners, but to the last independent, self-supporting and self-respecting citizens, there is need of education, hence the employment of men like Dr. Samson to act as missionaries in the cause of thrift. Instructing the public as to the wisdom of putting aside "something" for a "rainy day" in the form of a Government annuity under the plans thought out by Sir Richard Cartwright is essentially a work of thrift and if pursued with the same energy and perseverance shown by life assurance agents will accomplish a great deal in advertising the conditions that have made public pensions necessary in other countries than Canada. When Canada has attained to greater maturity, when its industries and population are vastly greater than at present it ought to be the proud boast of Canadian citizens in the eventide of their lives that they are able to take care of themselves as a result of their taking advantage of the facilities offered by the Canadian Government annuities. If the Canadians of the present generation can be induced to do so it will have the effect of making the average Canadian citizen more independent. When the the units of the state but when the units depend on the state who will take care of them?

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hoists, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the discommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from "elits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine.

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I'm mad to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs be that wild it is too hard for to be a-pamplin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

All Probable Future Events Arranged For in Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an excellent dinner, at which all members of both families were present, we repaired to the great drawing room, where the chairs had been arranged in a semicircle about two small, round tables. Presently two grave old gentlemen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the tables, and when we were all assembled the elder commenced to read a long memoir, which he announced he had compiled with the help of his colleague. Then, to my utter amazement, he began to name all the possessions of the future bride and bridegroom—so many bonds and mortgages, so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, articles of personal adornment, furniture and jewels; the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de R——, whose great good sense has always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us marriage is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

A Story Illustrating the "Setness" of the Cornishman.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there to his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

"Do you mean that?" shouted Hook, pulling out his watch.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

Franklin as a Swimmer.

In 1726 Benjamin Franklin was working as a printer at Watts', near Lincoln Inn Fields, and taught two shopmates to swim "at twice going into the river." With them and some of their friends from the country he paid a visit by water to Chelsea, and "in our return," he recorded, "at the request of the company, whose curiosity Wygate had excited, I stripped and leaped into the river and swam from near Chelsea to Blackfriars, performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water, that surprised and pleased those to whom they were novelties."—London Tatler.

IF SICK--WHY PAY

Unless Health First Returns.

Here is what should and can be done!

Now you would not willingly pay for food that was worthless—would you?

Then why pay for medicine until that medicine first proves to you its actual worth?

Positively knowing what Dr. Shoop's Restorative can do for the sick, I say to all "don't pay unless health first returns". And I back my Restorative with a signed and sealed 30 day "No Help, No pay" contract.

I positively point to the sick everywhere that "Dr. Shoop's Restorative is absolutely free if it fails". Let others do the same—or else point their prescriptions by.

If you need more strength, more vitality, more vigor or more vim, use my Restorative a few days and note the immediate improvement.

When the stomach, Heart, or Kidneys go wrong, then test Dr. Shoop's Restorative. If it does the Stomach nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys, for that is wrong. You are go I say that plainly in the meantime. The books below will best tell you how I am succeeding.

These books also tell of a tiny hidden "inside nerve," no larger than a silken thread. They tell how that nerve, until it fails, actually gives to the heart its power, its tone, its never-ending action or impulse.

These books will open up new and helpful ideas to those who are not well. They tell how the stomach, and Kidneys reach have their "inside" or power nerves. They tell how the Restorative was especially made to reach and revitalize these weak or failing inside nerves. All of these facts tell why I am able to say, "It is free if it fails".

This is why I say "take no chance on a medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer".

So write me today for the order.

I have appointed honest and responsible druggists in nearly every community to issue my medicines to the sick.

But write me first for the order.

All druggists sell Dr. Shoop's Restorative, but all are not authorized to give the 30 day test. So drop me a line please—and thus save disappointment and delays. Tell me also which book you need.

A postal will do.

Besides, you are free to consult me as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailments. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now while you have it fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box H, Racine, Wis.

HAS BRITAIN ONE, TOO?

RUBBER OUTRAGES ARE BEING TRACED TO LONDON.

"Truth" Publishes Charges Against Peruvian Amazon Rubber Co. With Headquarters in England — Tells Tales of Ghastly Cruelty to Indians in South America—Native Children Buried Alive Head Downward.

London "Truth" is publishing a narrative of the horrible atrocities which are said to have been practised on the defenceless Indians in the Putumayo rubber country in Peru.

This rubber collecting business is carried on by the Peruvian Amazon Co., of Salisbury House, London Wall, registered at Somerset House. The secretary of the company, Mr. A. V. Smith, has written as follows in regard to the terrible allegations made against their employes:

"The directors have no reason to believe that the atrocities referred to have in fact taken place, and, indeed, have grounds for considering that they have been purposely mistated for indirect object. Whatever the facts, however, may be, the board of this company are under no responsibility for them, as they were not in office at the time of the alleged occurrences."

Then follows a series of formal statements made by people who declare they have seen the inhumanities practiced on the natives. Extracts are given below, though it should be borne in mind in view of the terrible nature of the allegations that this evidence may yet be controverted.

From a declaration made by a Brazilian citizen, Joao Baptista Braga, before a commandant of the Brazilian army: It would be an endless task to relate the innumerable crimes that I have seen committed during my stay in this section. Here, recently, in the month of July the tuchaua known as Tiracahuaca and his wife were held prisoners in chains.

When Jimenez — who had been temporarily absent—arrived, he had them brought into his presence, and told them that if their tribe did not appear within the space of eight days he would show them what he would do with them.

The eight days passed, and as the tribe did not come he ordered a can of kerosene to be poured over them, and then, striking a match, he set fire to these unfortunates, who fled to the forest, uttering the most desperate cries.

Naturally, upon seeing such an awful crime committed, I expressed my horror at it to Jimenez, who replied that if there were anybody who wished to protest against the orders he gave he would be served in the same manner, and that if the company kept him as chief it was because he knew how to do his duty.

From a statement declared before a notary at Iquitos by Daniel Collantes: Martinengui ordered a commission to set out for the houses of some neighboring Indians and exterminate them, with their women and children, as they had not brought in the amount of rubber that he had ordered.

This order was strictly carried out, for the commission returned in four days, bringing along with them fingers, ears, and several heads of the unfortunate victims to prove to the chief that they had carried out his orders.

A Brazilian paper, The Journal do Commercio, published at Manaos, printed an account of a "barbarous deed" close to the Brazilian frontier. This was a narrative of a butchery of inoffensive Indians by a band of Peruvian rubber collectors.

Having killed twenty-five, they discharged their weapons at the Indians who were constructing the roof of the h[illegible] poor unfortunates, p[illegible] bullets, some dead, others w[illegible] rolled off the roof and fell to the ground.

Not content with these cowardly murders, they took the Indian women of advanced age, threw them into the canoes of the Colombians, and conducted them to the middle of the river, and then discharged their rifles at them, killing them all.

What they did with the children was still more barbarous, for they jammed them head downwards into the holes that had been dug to receive the posts that were to support the house.

The Peruvians, after taking possession of the merchandise, conducted the Colombians, the tuchaua (Indian chief) of the Andoques, two Indians, and an Indian woman to Matanaza, the dwelling-place of Normam, the journey taking two days.

Here the prisoners were tied up with cords, and afterwards shut up in one of the houses, where they passed a night of torture. In the morning the tuchaua and the two Indians were taken out to a near-by knoll and clubbed to death.

These outrages took place prior to the formation of the Peruvian Amazon Co. "Truth" remarks that the company "only comes into the case as being responsible for the way the business is conducted at the present moment."

In reply to questions in the House of Commons concerning the alleged atrocities, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs said he had asked for a report on the subject. He would inquire if the Belgian consul had made a report to his Government. The shareholders in the Peruvian Amazon Co. had made no request to the Foreign Office for an inquiry.

Must Lie Still.

Every soldier knows that a horse will not step on a man intentionally. It is a standing order in the British cavalry that if a trooper should be dismounted he must lie still. If he does this the whole squadron is likely to pass over him without doing him injury.

Must Be Careful.

One of the undeniable marks of a genius is the mark he leaves as a result of infinite labor on themes he loves. No famous poet was ever so great that he could neglect to leave one word that made his whole effort inharmonious. If Canadian writers are to reach the highest peaks in literature they must learn this lesson. They must free themselves from the criticism that attaches to hurriedly done work and to reckless versification.—Sunday World, Toronto.

FRENCH MARRIAGES.

All Probable Future Events Arranged For In Advance.

On the appointed evening I arrived at the given time, and after an excellent dinner, at which all members of both families were present, we repaired to the great drawing room, where the chairs had been arranged in a semicircle about two small, round tables. Presently two grave old gentlemen, the family notaries, who had not been seen to smile during the whole dinner, took their seats in front of the tables, and when we were all assembled the elder commenced to read a long memoir, which he announced he had compiled with the help of his colleague. Then, to my utter amazement, he began to name all the possessions of the future bride and bridegroom—so many bonds and mortgages, so many houses, farms, woodlands, prairies, articles of personal adornment, furniture and jewels; the ways in which they might be used or disposed of, what would happen in case no children were born of the marriage, in case of death of one or the other of the parties. In fact, all the misfortunes, all the most terrible and saddest events, had been foreseen, and cold chills began running down my back as I heard each new case mentioned. I was indignant. I positively revolted. Why were miserable questions of business allowed to foreshadow the charming union of these two young people, who had known and loved each other since childhood and whose true and pure affection was innocent of all monetary interests? Could not all have been spared them?

The next day I frankly opened my heart to Jeanne and her mother, explaining the sensations I had experienced the previous evening and saying that in my country, when two persons were about to marry, as long as there was love on both sides and the man was able to support his wife all such questions were usually left undiscussed.

They both listened to me somewhat astonished, and then Mme. de R——, whose great good sense has always convinced me, replied smilingly:

"But, my dear, for us marriage is not only the joining of two young and loving hearts. We go further and consider the generations to come, the founding of a new family—a home. As every one knows, the first years are often the most difficult, and we therefore take precautions to smooth the paths of our children by settling in their presence all business matters, once and forever, and arranging things so that the new life may develop under the best of circumstances."—Scribner's Magazine.

THEY WERE STUBBORN.

A Story Illustrating the "Setness" of the Cornishman.

Your Cornishman can be very "set" and stubborn. His determination of spirit is more remarkable than admirable at times, though it may be amusing.

Mr. Hook, the late royal academician, was once, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his book on the "Land's End," on the sands at Whitesand bay, working at a marine picture, when two natives came up and planted themselves just behind him. There was nothing the artist hated more than to be watched by strangers over his shoulders in this way, and pretty soon he wheeled around on them and angrily asked them how long they were going to stand there.

His manner served to arouse their spirit, and they replied brusquely that they were going to stay as long as they thought proper.

He insisted on knowing just how long they were going to stay there in his annoyance, and by and by, after some more loud and angry discussion, one of them incautiously declared they would stand at that very spot for an hour.

"Do you mean that?" shouted Hook, pulling out his watch.

Yes, they returned, they would not stir one inch from that spot for an hour.

"Very well," he said and pulled up his easel; then, marching off to a distance of thirty yards, he set it up again and resumed his painting.

And there, within thirty yards of his back, the two men stood for one hour and a quarter, for, as they did not have a watch, they were afraid of going away before the hour had expired. Then they marched off.

Franklin as a Swimmer.

In 1726 Benjamin Franklin was working as a printer at Watts', near Lincoln Inn Fields, and taught two shopmates to swim "at twice going into the river." With them and some of their friends from the country he paid a visit by water to Chelsea, and "in our return," he recorded, "at the request of the company, whose curiosity Wygate had excited, I stripped and leaped into the river and swam from near Chelsea to Blackfriars, performing on the way many feats of activity, both upon and under the water, that surprised and pleased those to whom they were novelties."—London Tatler.

A CHARMING PICTURE

Charming, indeed, is the beautiful picture entitled "The Soul's Awakening," given with the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal, this season: It is difficult to find words to do the picture justice. It is an inspiration to look at. There is a beautiful lesson in this sweet picture, and every home would be the better of a copy adorning its walls. This picture is 19 x 24 inches ready for framing and is absolutely free to all who subscribe to that great family and farm paper the subscription price of which is only one dollar a year. A dollar could not be better spent. Either picture or paper alone is worth more. The Family Herald should be kept busy entering new subscribers this season.

PASSENGER ELEVATORS.

Their Invention Made the Modern Skyscraper Possible.

It is certain that the earliest and the most indispensable of the factors which have enabled the construction of the mighty skyscrapers of today was the passenger elevator and that this was brought into use during the sixties of the last century, its first appearance in New York being in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was at about the same time introduced into the Astor House, then already a generation old. So obvious was the utility of this device that the wonder again is that it had not been brought into practice long before. Hoists are, of course, as old as the Dutch warehouses, of which the picturesqueness is enhanced by the projecting cranes that worked the hoists, doubtless as old as Archimedes. But hotels, even when the Fifth Avenue was built, were conditioned in altitude, as were all other buildings not exclusively monumental, by the powers of ascension of the unassisted human leg. Five stories was the maximum for commercial buildings, except that an attical sixth might be added for the discommodation of the janitor, whose name was Hobson and who had to go where he was sent, which, naturally, was where no "paying guest" could be induced to go. He and his may have taken their outlook on life from slits or bullseyes just under the roof. In the cases of hotels the sixth story was assigned to servants and storerooms. Tenants or inmates could not be induced to climb more than four flights of stairs and grumbled grievously in the case of inmates of hotels and accused the hotel clerk of perfidy when they had to climb so many. A device which would make all the floors, even of a five story hotel, equally accessible, and so equally desirable, was a device very sure of immediate adoption, so sure that the only wonder was that the supply of it should have so lagged behind the demand. The beginnings of the elevators were, it is quite true, the beginnings also of what in their earlier stages were known as the "elevator buildings."—Scribner's Magazine

EXHILARATING SPORT.

Dog Driving Over the Ice and Snow of Labrador.

Winter driving with a team of a dozen dogs is declared by Dr. Grenfell of Labrador to be the most fascinating sport ever enjoyed by man. His description of it as quoted by James Johnstone in his book, "Grenfell of Labrador," is as follows:

Although there is no harder work when driving over a rough country, yet the bracing cold, the exhilarating brightness of the reflected light from the snow, the difficulty of getting badly hurt, however sharply one shoots a mountain side or even tumbles over a cliff, the absence of damp or moisture, the fact that one can travel anywhere in soft, light moccasins and in such clothing as is most conducive to agility, without any reference to conventionality, all help to vanquish any realization of labor on a long trip.

There is infinite scope for skill in choosing, tending and training your dogs, also for both pluck and physical strength in driving, and all the craft of the woodsman is called for in crossing miles of virgin country, where at any time any wrong turn will surely mean a night in the open and perhaps a temperature of 40 degrees of frost.

Dog driving also teaches one what boxing is said to teach, self control, for of all the trials of temper one can be called on to endure the worst is, given a glorious day for traveling and when one is in a hurry, to have one's dogs run wild, listening to nothing, not watching anything, but tangling with every stump and tree and biting at everything that comes in the way.

As one man told me when I asked him what kind of a team he had: "I's had to give 'em up, sir, though I loved they well enough. Good dogs for that wild it is too hard for to be a-handlin' of 'em and be a Christian, too, sir."

Very Controversial.

They were very controversial in those days.

First.—Bowles wrote a book about Pope.

Second.—Campbell abused Bowles' book on Pope.

Third.—Bowles replied to Campbell's abuse of Bowles on Pope.

Fourth.—Byron wrote an answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Fifth.—John Bull wrote a letter to Byron about Byron's answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Sixth.—Dr. Garnet has a theory of the authorship of John Bull's letter to Byron about Byron's comments on Bowles' answer to—it is like "The House That Jack Built!"—Andrew Lang.

CHARGES FELL FLAT.

St. Catharines had a small-sized sensation caused by an irresponsible citizen charging graft on the part of the aldermen. The charges were made through the press of that city in letters signed by the citizen. An investigation was ordered but it fell flat and now the Star-Journal expresses the hope that the city's fair name will not be stained by such charges again.

Would it not be better for the St. Catharines' press to investigate charges of that nature before they publish letters from irresponsible citizens? That is the easiest way to protect the good name of the city.

ROAD TO MAN'S HEART.

Confidences of a Pessimistic Spinster "Who's Had Experience."

Of course the moment one talks of the way to a man's heart one immediately thinks of the time worn saw as the most certain pathway, says a pessimistic spinster.

Not being quite Elizabethan or French—for our Gallic friends are indeed at times distressingly frank of speech—having, then, been brought up to a becoming modesty in language, I will merely say that this pathway was tersely indicated by the dear old lady who said:

"Feed the brute!"

As a matter of fact that road has been quite absurdly overrated.

As a means of keeping a man in a good temper there is truly nothing more powerful than a good dinner. But until you are married to him what chance, I ask, have you of feeding him?

Yet he falls in love with you!

Therefore must there be other ways to his wayward heart. And now I'll tell you some of them.

There are some men whose hearts are like a railway junction. You simply can't avoid the lines! And the moment you step on one—hey, presto—you're into the junction—I mean the heart.

No fun. No excitement. No nothing worth having. The only thing to be said for the whole business is that, being a junction, one can get out of it as easily as one gets in!

The quickest way to a man's heart—I mean a heart worth while, you know, not a boarding house that changes its lodgers every twenty-four hours—the very shortest road, is that you may bring him if you only make it almost but by no means quite impassable.

You see, if a man is any good he's a sportsman above everything. The things that give him most trouble to get are the things he wants. If the homeliest girl in America were only perched on a high tower, surrounded by a wall that was spiked all over, pretty nearly every man would be staring at her through telescopes and devising means for scaling the wall.

You've got to be as sweet and pretty and "come hitherish" as your type will admit. Yet make him realize that you are a dreadfully long way away and very swift of foot. That's the way to a man's heart.

Another thing men are—I don't wish to be rude, but really men are like sheep.

In their likes and dislikes, their habits and methods of thought, they follow one another in an absolutely farmyard manner.

So once you've found your way to one heart you can find your way to as many others as you like.

TO DISPOSE OF POSTCARDS.

A Decorative Use For These Souvenirs Which Is Exceedingly Attractive.

NOVEL WAY TO USE PICTURE POSTCARDS.

An ordinary soap box is used for the receptacle, and on the bottom corners small unfilled spools of cotton are glued in place for supports. The postcards are then pasted on the box, the finished product being edged with guimpe, put on with fancy tacks.

What "Grass Widow" Means.

Your note on the Australian grasshopper suggests his relationship to the grass widow," writes a correspondent to the London Chronicle, who goes on to demand the derivation of this last expression. Some would merely have it as a slang expression, but its appearance in the marriage register of Halstead, Essex, as early as 1654 suggests a less vulgar origin. It is said to be a corruption of grace widow and dates from the days when divorces were granted only by the authority of the church. The woman who was so empowered to separate from her husband was commonly called a grace widow, and from this the expression gradually gained its present meaning and spelling.

The Man Chaperon.

London mothers are said to be trying the experiment of the man chaperon on the occasions upon which they are not able to take charge of their daughters. There are always a number of old bachelors or widowers ready to dance attendance upon young girls, and they would be much more satisfactory to the girl as a general thing than the elderly woman chaperon.

THE LAWS OF CASTE

Purification of a Hindu Who Went Abroad.

The complexities of caste in India are well illustrated by a remarkable correspondence published in The Behar, a Bankipore paper. A certain young Hindu was selected by the Behar Industrial Association at Bankipore for education in agriculture in England and in other parts of Europe. In notifying this fact to the Kayastha Brothers in Behar, the student's father gave the text of letters exchanged between himself and his son, by which the latter bound himself to fulfill certain conditions in order that on his return he might be taken back into the Society of Karan Kayasthas. Among the conditions imposed were the following:

That you will go to the foreign countries with no other object than education, that you shall abstain from politics, and that you shall not attend any political meetings whatever.

You will take no prohibited food as understood by enlightened people in Behar and as forbidden by the sect of Hindus to which we belong, in your journey to and fro on board the steamer and in your sojourn in foreign countries.

On your return to India you will cease to dine with people other than Kayasthas received in Society.

That immediately on your return you will do the necessary "Prayaschitt" as inculcated by the Brahmins of the country.

You shall have, till then, to remain separate and have no access to your family and the family goddess.

You shall not eat and drink without invoking the Supreme Being as inculcated by your spiritual preceptor.

You will conform to all the customs of the society and their mode of living after your return home, and in your private life you will live as you are doing now.

In case of breach of any of the above conditions you shall not be able to remarry, and shall have to incur the expenses of your present family and be liable to be debarred from inheriting your father's and ancestral property.

A HUNGRY TIGER.

Persistent Attack on a Camp Reported From India.

The Indian mail brings the story of an exciting adventure which befell a surveying party in Assam. They were attacked by a tiger. The party were working in the Lushai hills adjoining the Cachar district of Assam, and the tiger appeared at the camp of surveyor Gopal Singh. It sprang at the surveyor and one of his khalasis, but fortunately touched neither of them, and disappeared as suddenly as it had come. Three days later the tiger returned, and seized a khalasi, who was washing his cooking pots in a stream 20 yards from the camp. A native armed with a stick, rushed to the rescue, and tried to beat the tiger off. When other men arrived the brute dropped its prey and disappeared again. In a few minutes it was back again. In spite of the shouts of the natives it seized the plucky native who had gone to the rescue of the first man. Once more it was driven off, and again it returned, this time to seize a third khalasi.

Frightened away again, the beast left the camp, but the party sat up all night surrounded by a chain of fires. At daybreak they proceeded to a Lushai village. An armed party set off for the abandoned camp to collect the goods left behind. They found that the tents, bedding, blankets, and bags of rice had been dragged about by the tiger, and on a sight-rule and plane-table were marks of the brute's fangs. When Mr. Williams, the camp officer, met the party all the men were so profoundly affected that not one of them could speak above a whisper. They begged not to be sent back to the same locality, but to be allowed to work for the rest of the field season in the open cultivated country. The first man seized by the beast died four days afterwards.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A FAMOUS SENTENCE.

Steele's "To Love Her Was a Liberal Education."

The remark which Steele made in reference, as is generally supposed, to Lady Elizabeth Hastings has often been quoted and almost as often quoted incorrectly. Steele wrote, "Though her mien carries much more invitation than command, to behold her is an immediate check to loose behavior; to love her was a liberal education." There are two curious misquotations of this bright and famous sentence, which Thackeray declared to be "the finest compliment to a woman that perhaps ever was offered." One is in the essay on Pope contained in James Russell Lowell's "My Study Windows." "Was it not in this age," says Mr. Lowell, "that loose Dick Steele paid to his wife the finest compliment ever paid to woman when he said 'that to know her was a liberal education?'" Here are two distinct errors committed by so careful a writer as Mr. Lowell. Yet he is not alone in this. Arthur Helps in his romance of "Realmah" has this sentence: "Steele also did not ill describe, though briefly, the charm of being with a woman whom he greatly admired when he said 'that to be much with her was in itself a liberal education.'" We are also told that Leigh Hunt once in quoting the remark incorrectly ascribed it to Congreve. Here, then, are three distinct writers of high rank who have shown how in a moment of careless composition they were led astray by an inaccurate remembrance. They had no desire to misquote their author, and they gave the substance. But they grievously failed in the words themselves and one of them at least in their application.—Argonaut.

A LESSON IN LOGIC.

Lord Erskine's Way With a Ruffianly Horse Beater.

It is only within the memory of living men that legislation has undertaken to protect domestic animals from the cruelty of their owners. Ownership was held to be absolute by most, but there was one man in England a hundred years ago who could demonstrate the untenable nature of this theory. This man was Thomas Erskine, one of the greatest lawyers and advocates of his age. A tradition survives at Hampstead, the residence of Lord Erskine, which Charles G. Harper has put into his book, "Rural Nooks Round London," and which shows how this legal authority would have administered more recent laws.

It is related that the celebrated Lord Erskine, walking one day on Hampstead heath, saw a ruffianly driver shamefully thrashing a miserably ill cared for horse.

My lord remonstrated with the driver on the cruelty of it, whereupon the fellow retorted: "It's my own. Mayn't I use it as I please?" Then he started whacking the wretched animal worse than ever.

Erskine, greatly annoyed, laid his walking stick over the shoulders of the offender, who, crouching and grumbling, asked my lord—this is the drawing room version, not a verbatim report, which would read rather differently—what business he had to touch him with the stick.

The Village Romancer.

"Has that feller Pinkley returned home yet?"

"Nope. He's been gone two years now, and nobody knows a blessed thing about him."

"Well, derned if I shouldn't think you'd be afraid he'd come home some day an' claim he found the south pole."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bravery Its Own Reward.

The Lady (to hero who had risked his life to save her little dog from a watery grave and looks for some reward)—Poor fellow, how wet and cold you are! You must be soaked through to the skin. Here! I'll give you some quinine pills. Take a couple now and two more in an hour's time.—Throne and Country.

No Worry.

"We have a strike in our factory every day, off and on."

"Why, I thought you had no labor troubles there at all?"

"No more we have."

"But how, then, can all this striking be going on?"

"The clocks do it."—Baltimore American.

ADVICE BEGGARS.

New Kind of Mendicants That Are Most Annoying.

"There is one class of individuals to whom no amount of philosophic reasoning on my part can ever reconcile me," said a charity worker the other day—"namely, the advice beggars. In the whole range of human inconsistency, there is nothing else quite so irritating in the long run."

"Advice beggars?" queried a member of the group. "That is a new brand of mendicant to me."

"In name, yes; in reality, probably familiar," was the reply. "The term is one I have coined to express the large class of persons who absorb your time asking advice or information which they never under any circumstances make use of.

"My profession is one which tends naturally to a thorough acquaintance with the city. I know perforce the nature of the different public institutions, their scope and qualifications necessary to avail oneself of what they offer. I have also become acquainted in the course of my work with car routes, out of the way streets, squares, etc.

"Now, there is a class of persons among my social acquaintances who seem to think that, having acquired this knowledge, I am a kind of bureau of information, to be drawn upon at all times and seasons, and who act upon the theory to the extent of absorbing hours of my time.

"Don't mistake me. I am not one of the self centered beings who count any hour lost that is not devoted to money getting of personal pleasure. To assist the friend who comes in sincerity to, ask for information with the only thing I have to give is real pleasure. But I have observed that nine out of every ten persons who seek advice never make use of it at all. These are the advice beggars. One can't quite believe that they firmly purpose the movements they are so eager to talk over.

"A shining example of this class of mendicant is an elderly friend of my mother. She has of late years been in somewhat reduced circumstances, and there is hardly a fortnight in which she does not hold us up to discuss at great length her affairs—business and personal. Some months ago there was talk in her family of obtaining a young girl from one of the orphan asylums to assist in the household in consideration of a good home. I spent two precious hours telling Mrs. S. how and where to go. I learned from another member of the family that the plan ended in vapor—as it began.

"Another time it was a question of free instruction for a young nephew of Mrs. G. in a craft for which he seemed to have talent. He seemed a good cause. I threw myself into it with enthusiasm. I advised, discussed, wrote letters of introduction. No motion was ever undertaken in the matter.

Must Be Careful.

One of the undeniable marks of a genius is the mark he leaves as a result of infinite labor on themes he loves. No famous poet was ever so great that he could neglect to leave one word that made his whole effort inharmonious. If Canadian writers are to reach the highest peaks in literature they must learn this lesson. They must free themselves from the criticism that attaches to hurriedly done work and to reckless versification.—Sunday World, Toronto.

BEAUTY AND HEALTH.

Salt as a gargle will cure sore throat.

Tight clothes and indigestion cause red noses.

A hot bath taken at night affords refreshing sleep.

A little salt under the tongue will stop nose bleeding.

A raw egg swallowed will detach a fishbone in the throat.

High heeled boots are known to cause spinal complaints.

Sleep with the window well open and you will awake brisk.

The yoke of an egg broken up in rosewater is a trusty shampoo.

Salt on fingers when cleaning fowls, meat or fish will prevent slipping.

Headache will often yield to a foot bath without other treatment. Try it.

A little vinegar added to butter and sugar is an excellent remedy for hoarseness.

Too much food of any kind is never good for the complexion. Fruit is good, but it should be eaten in moderation.

Every night the housewife should rub cold cream into the base of her nails. To avoid the injurious effects of sweeping and dusting she should always wear gloves.

Wash the face in tepid water, rub the skin thoroughly with a Turkish towel and apply a solution of three ounces of cologne and half an ounce of liquor of potash. Follow this with a tepid soap bath.

The three "R's" of the worker should be regularity, rest and recreation. Spasmodic habits, never letting up and not knowing how and when to play have killed more business women than all their hard work.

THE JONESES' VACATION.

Game Full of Bustle and Mirth Provoking Movement.

A game that children of any age will enjoy and which takes little preparation is the Joues' vacation. One of the girls is selected as Mrs. Jones and one of the boys as Mr. Jones. You have ready a suit case, and at a given signal Mr. and Mrs. Jones must unlock it and put on the things they find inside. It is a good idea to have a hat, a long coat, a veil, scarf, gloves and pocketbook for Mrs. Jones and a coat, hat, collar (a large one), necktie and gloves for Mr. Jones. They must dress in these as quickly as possible, for some one is timing them, and then they must lock the suit case and rush off with it to the train. That must be the farthest point you can select, usually the front door. After they have hit the front door a good hard thump they must rush back again, take off the things and pack them again. Now it is the turn of another couple to be Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and when they all have tried the couple who made the trip in the shortest time are judged the winners.

It is well to use coats and hats that you do not need to treat carefully, for naturally they are apt to get rumpled in the excitement of the game. Don't forget the collar, in which you should put a large stud, for it always is interesting to see any one in a hurry struggle with a collar button.

Can't Be Cut Off With a Shilling.

French parents (or, at all events, those with more than 2 shillings to dispose of by will) are precluded from the gratification of cutting a mutinous child off with a shilling. A reserve is established by law which no testator can bequeath away from his offspring. A Frenchman with one child can dispose of half his property according to his pleasure; the other half must inevitably pass to the child. Those with two children can dispose of only one-third of their property, those with three children of one-fourth, and so on according to the size of the family. Stern parents occasionally seek to evade the law by subterfuge, but the disposal of property in France is hedged round with so many restrictions that family black sheep are rarely mulcted of their legal inheritance.—London Mail.

Not the Same.

The new minister was making a duty call at the home of one of his flock, and, taking a little six-year-old miss upon his knee, he said, "Now, my dear, you want to be a Christian, like mamma, don't you?"

"No, sir," was the unexpected reply "I would rather sing in the choir."—Chicago News.

"Her husband is very good to her."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; he does everything to please her, even to talking back when she's looking for an argument."—Detroit Free Press.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Local Events Gathered by Times' Reporters.

Servant Girl Wanted.

General servant wanted; an experienced girl for general housework—good plain cook—small family. Apply 526 Water street.

Baxter in Trouble.

Arthur Baxter of Cobourg, formerly of this city, has been arrested on a charge of theft from the Union Life Insurance Company. The charge was laid by Inspector Heath, and one of the local police went to Cobourg last night to get the prisoner. He will arrive here this morning.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. 12

An At Home.

The Young men's Guild of St. Andrew's church will entertain the men of the church to a social evening in the lecture room on Tuesday evening next, Nov. 16th.

Two New Instruments.

Mr. Browett, Optical Specialists, has just added two large new instruments to his examination room. One of these came from Chicago and the other from New York. These instruments are invaluable in estimating certain difficulties of the eye.

Block Party.

A novel attraction will be put on at the Brock street roller rink this evening known as a block party. The object is that the last couple left on the floor out of the block, will receive two dollars in gold. Can you stand the test?

Got Six Deer.

Messrs. R. A. Elliott and J. A. Storey have returned from Rock Lake, where they have been hunting for the past ten days. Rock Lake is in the vicinity of Sudbury. Mr. Elliott's party was composed of ten men. They secured six fine deer, and had a splendid ten days' sport, the weather being ideal for such an outing. The local men were well pleased with the results of their hunt.

Wm. Tiffin.

Dr. Wm. Tiffin of Millbrook, an uncle of Mr. W. R. Tiffin, superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway died on Tuesday, November 9th, at the age of 89 years. He was the oldest citizen of Millbrook. He was a native of England, and has been a respected citizen of Millbrook for half a century. The funeral took place on Wednesday and was largely attended. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. C. Kells, W. Walsh, John Dawson, Fred Dawson, John Allen and T. B. Collins.

A Celebration.

The Conservatives met in the club rooms last night and celebrated the victory won in North Essex by the Tory candidate this week. Several addresses were delivered by prominent Conservatives and a jolly evening was spent. Peterborough Tories are bound to celebrate. If they can not throw up their hats over their own contest they will over some other.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health—There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. 10.

BIG CONTRACT.

Awarded to Collier-Cunningham Co., for New Invention.

Mr. Willie H. Coon of Rochester, N.Y., the inventor of the famous invention "De Marvel," and Mr. W. H. Burrow's of the Coon's De Marvel Co., Limited, of Toronto, have been in the city during the past few days closing a contract with the Collier-Cunningham Co., Limited, for the manufacture of this unique invention.

The initial order calls for a quantity of 5,000 so that the sales of this article are evidently in excellent condition.

This electrical device is very unique, indeed, consisting of a hollow cylindtical shell in which is placed a radioactive fluid. This cylinder is covered with rubber. The heating coil is inserted in this cylinder and in five minutes places the De Marvel at working temperature. There is also provision made for heating by gas stove or lamp.

The De Marvel is designed for the treatment of rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, nervous and muscular troubles, sprains, etc., and is endorsed by physicians, nurses and athletic associations, etc.

NO PROPERTY FOR SONS.

Only Good Character and Pride in Themselves.

An invitation was extended to President Taft by the girls of the Columbus Industrial School to be their guests. During the evening in his talk to the girls the president expressed his satisfaction that he will have no property to leave his two sons, but "only good character and pride in themselves and a good education." That is a rich endowment for any boy, and of its three elements not the least valuable is pride in one's self, using the term in its best sense.

There is, nevertheless, something of a Roman parent's austerity in Mr. Taft's desire to start his boys poor. example, the "three generations between shirt-sleeves and shirt-sleeves" would be reduced to one, sons no longer beginning where the father left off. The plan might be expected to be generally beneficial to society. A boy can have no greater handicap than an inherited fortune. And considering the quality of past achievementhe would be given to the development which has come from the farmhouse and the country parsonage, an impetus would be given to the development of the traits of character on which general greatness rests. There would be the additional advantage that wealth diverted from inheritance would revert to society in the scape of public benefactions.

The possibility of such conditions is qualified, however, by Mr. Taft's statement that though the boys must take care of themselves, he intends to "scrape together" all he can to give his daughter, so that she need narry only when she chooses to marry and not because of circumstances. This is in effect an advocacy of dowries for daughters. If the family fortune is to descend to the female line only, will not the ultimate possession of wealth rest with the women of the land? In that event the advantage may suggest itself to aspiring young men disinherited by their fathers of acquiring a fortune by marriage rather than by toil.

Ticklimg, tight Coughs, can be than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. Disease of The Kidneys Brought on By Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Made a Well Man of Me.

I Cannot Speak Too Highly of It.

Mr. George King, 426 St. Denis St., Montreal, Canada, a well-known business man of that city, writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's disease, and after you have gone through the suffering that I have with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble, and have been cured you are pretty apt to remember the medicine that did the work.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me well and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since. Every spring and fall I take a bottle of it and it keeps me well."

MR. GEORGE KING

CATARRH of the kidneys is a very much neglected disease.

It is not until the disease has a firm hold upon the kidneys that the patient begins to realize that there is some derangement of these organs.

The slight backaches, the feelings of lassitude, and other warning symptoms of kidney disease are overlooked.

They are not serious enough to detain the patient from his regular work.

Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected, he does not recognize the difficulty as being caused catarrh.

INTERNAL CATARRH REACHED THE KIDNEYS.

PE-RU-NA AN INTERNAL CATARRH REMEDY.

Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms cause such slight discomfort that it is not noticed.

However, when it is once firmly seated in the kidneys it becomes a difficult disease to exterminate.

Indeed, catarrh of the kidneys is more serious than catarrh affecting some of the other organs of the body.

In the kidneys it is liable to terminate in Bright's disease or diabetes, both of which are recognized as very serious ailments, if not fatal.

The thing to be done, when catarrh of the kidneys is discovered, is to take some internal, systemic catarrh remedy, one that reaches the very source of the disease and removes the cause of the difficulty.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It reaches catarrh, no matter where it may be located in the body—whether in the more exposed membranes of the nose and throat, or whether in the remotest part of the kidneys.

That Peruna is at once the safest and most reliable remedy for catarrh of the kidneys is proven by the many testimonials written by those who have experienced its benefits.

The testimonials given here are only specimens of the many testimonials on our records, pertaining to the relief afforded by Peruna in severe cases of kidney trouble.

Kidney Disease of Long Standing.

Mr. Samuel A. Paxton, 1113 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo., member L. O. O. F. and I National Annuity Association, writes:

"I am a well man to-day, thanks to your splendid medicine, Peruna. I was troubled with catarrh and kidney disease of long standing when I first began using Peruna. I soon found I was getting better and continued taking it for four months. It cleaned out the system, leaving me well and strong and feeling better than I have in years."

"A JOY RIDE ON THE WATER WAGON," BY C. N. HOWARD

Large Crowd of Men Turned Out to Hear the Address Delivered In the Opera House.

Dealt With Many Reasons Why the Citizens Should Support Local Option.

"A Joy Ride on the Water Wagon," the subject of Rev. Clinton N. Howard's address to the people of Peterborough, was heard yesterday afternoon and evening by crowded houses. The Grand Opera House was, in the afternoon, filled from the ground to the garrett with an audience of men who followed closely every word that was spoken, and in the evening by a mixed audience of men and women.

The speaker is truly a clever man who presents the strongest of arguments in the most convincing manner. He illustrates all his points in in a witty and humorous way and thus holds fast his audience and and drives his arguments home.

At the opening a short song service was held led by the Salvation Army band, and a male quartette also sang several selections.

Rev. Clinton N. Howard of Rochester in opening his address paid a great tribute to the Canadian people of which there are a great many in the United States and who are accepted there with open arms wherever they wish to go. He paid a great tribute to Canada which he considered one of the greatest countries in the world. He then pointed out a great many advantages which Canada had over the United States and said that Canada is bound to become in time one of the greatest powers the world has ever known. He prophesized that Canada would be the world's grainary and that Canadian railways and transportation companies will carry the great bulk of the traffic to Europe and to the Orient. He then paid a tribute to the Canadian people who enforce their laws and who observe the Sabbath as no other people in the world do. The very best the people of Peterborough can do to assist this great Dominion towards the ideal is to vote Peterborough dry. It is the unusual that newspapers want and it is the unusal that the people want to learn. Now, then, this is the greatest opportunity that Peterborough has ever had to advance the kingdom of God in Canada. This is the largest city in the country that has yet been attacked by the local option fever, and if Peterborough carries it, the news will be flashed from one end of the Dominion to the other, and ina short time all the other big cities will catch the germ and Canada will soon be dry. There are seventeen thousand reasons why Peterborough should vote dry. Those seventeen thousand reasons are the seventeen thousand people in the city. There should not be any stumbling block on the street to entrap the boys, or the girls, and drive them down to the depths of hell.

Mr. Howard gave a long account of his experiences in the local option campaigns in the South, and in other States of the Union. He referred at length to the most important part the women and children play in all temperance fights.

The speaker then went on to show how much better off the business men in the dry towns, where there lived a sober people were, than the men in towns where liquor was sold.

Another great feature of the liquor trade was that not one of the dealers, wholesale, retail, or manufacturer, will stand up and defend his business. They cannot, and they will not defend it.

The speaker then closed by promising to give at night the rest of the 20,000 reasons why Peterborough should go dry and he hoped the house would be filled.

A collection was then taken up and the quartette sang and the benediction was pronounced.

CLINTON N. HOWARD
Who Spoke in the Opera House Yesterday afternoon and evening.

NIGHT MEETING.

Mr. Clinton N. Howard in the evening took as his text: "Fear not for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy." His message, he said was good news for men, women and children, for the dumb brutes, for the factory and the farm. It was, however, bad news for the (alloons, the gambling dens, politicians and houses of questionable repute.

MISTAKEN IDEA.

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles Does Not Give Copper Plate to the Museum.

An error was made in an article referring to the original brass plate which Mr. D. Hughes- Charles is to present to the Peterborough museum.

Mr. Hughes-Charles has in his possession the original engraved copper plate which he secured from a man in Toronto, and the Peterborough museum will have the first opportunity to purchase it. Mr. Charles does not own the plate and could not donate it to the museum.

The plate is a very old relic. It was gotten up for the purpose of issuing five shilling notes for the district of Colborne to enable the district to erect the present court house and jail in the city of Peterborough. Those notes were sold according to tradition but unfortunate ly for many citizens, now dead and gone, the notes were never redeemed and the Peterborough court house and jail were largely built through private subscriptions (it would not be nice to say that these pioneers were skinned by the district or government or county officials. It was simply a case of the people loaning money on the certificates which the county did not redeem.

The copper plate, however, in Mr. Charles' possession is a beautiful piece of work and is in a good state of preservation. In fact it is perfect, and it is not of so much value to any individual or society as to the Peterborough museum.

Convenor's Impressions of Evangelistic Campaign

The convenor of the Committee on Evangelistic services has been asked to give his impression of the meetings which have been held in eleven congregations throughout the Presbytery of Peterborough, and which have just closed. Reports from every congregation have not yet reached the convenor. Then of course it is a mere truism in all kinds of spiritual effort that results cannot always be tabulated. Indeed, the Presbyterian Evangelistic Committee, discourages the habit of counting heads at such meetings and estimating the value of evangelistic effort by the number who have signed decision cards. The results of the meetings, eternity alone will reveal.

The word repival can only be properly applied to those who are Christians. A revival is the quickening of believers into newness of life. It is the fanning into a flame of the flax which has been smoking only. The reports would all indicate that a genuine revival in this sense tian people are taking a new delight in the preaching of the Cross. They of the word has taken place. Chris- are finding a new joy in prayer. They are experiencing a new passion for souls. All this is sure to result in a continued ingathering of the lost during the weeks and months that are to come. There have been a great number of decisions for Christ on the part of the unsaved particularly in St. Paul's Peterborough. But we are sure the number will greatly increase during the coming weeks and months, as pastors and their helpers continue the work begun.

The meetings in Springville (Dr. Mr. Craig of Quebec, have resulted in great good. Some are taking an interest in church work who have not done so for years. The exact number who have expressed a desire to live for the higher things has not been reported; but there were many who expressed such a desire. The work in this charge is in a flourishing condition. The gifts for mission in many cases are five times what they formerly were. "A religion that reaches the pocket is genuine."—is an old saying, but it is a true one.

Rev. D. D. MacDonald is minister at Keene. He was assisted in this effort by Rev. H. J. Prichard of Galt. This congregation is one of the most conservative in the Church and has not been favorable in the past to such effort. Whatever prejudice has existed against it has been completely broken down, and there is nothing but praise for the meetings and the methods employed. One old lady remarked that it was a pity that the meetings could not go onall winter. The report of Thursday night says: "The meeting was in many ways the most remarkable of the whole campaign. The congregation was moved in a most wonderful way, many hard hearts were melted, wills were broken, and souls quickened. There were several conversions. One young lady who had faced the problem for a whole week finally surrendered this afternoon. A mother, though a member of the Church said she saw Christ as her Saviour for the first time, and a man who had driven six miles said he had found the Saviour tonight."

The meetings in Campbellford, which commenced a week later than elsewhere are a united effort of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches The missioner is Rev. Alex. MacGillivray of Toronto. Already a deep interest is being felt and the spirit of brotherly fellowship which has been brought about is a good thing not only for the churches, but for the community.

The special feature of the services in Omemee has been an earnest effort to reach the boys and girls with the message of the Gospel. Indeed in no field has the work for the young been neglected. Ministers and others are sufficiently well acquainted with the investigations of experts in the study of child life to know that if the life is not given a bent Godward in the tender years of youth, the chances that it will ever yield to good influences, grow less with the passing years.

Speaking of the work in Hastings, the pastor says: "The services have been a rich blessing to the entire community. It now remains for pastor and Christian workers to follow up the advantages gained." The missioner here was the Rev. A. W. Winchester of Toronto, and his preaching was eloquent, heart searching and powerful. The interest grew night by night until the meeting became the one topic of conversation in the homes, stores and other places of business. There have been many conversions here also.

Writing from Millbrook the pastor states: "Never in the history of his pastorate of fifteen years has such intense interest been manifest in the message of the Gospel as has been apparent during the meetings. One hears everywhere expressions of appreciation of the missioner, Rev. J. A. Brown of Fergus, and many a man and woman, boy and girl, will in days to come, look back upon this week as the beginning of better things for them, and thank God that He put it into the hearts of the men of our Presbytery to plan and carry out this campaign.

The Rev. Mr. McIntosh of Flora, has been in charge of the work at Lakefield. One evidence of the deep impression which the meetings are making upon the entire community, was seen in the action of a prominent business man who has not been able to attend the meetings often in sending a cheque to the pastor of thirty dollars, to be devoted to the work as an expression of his belief in such effort and of his thankfulness to God for it.

Your readers are already familiar with the work as carried on in the three city congregations. It is too soon to write the history of this movement, but in looking over the reports a few things may be noted.

1. The simultaneous idea in evangelism has been demonstrated to be far superior to any other method! The fact that the evangelists are prominent ministers in the Presbyterian Church, and that this movement has on it the imprimatur of the whole Church, at once disarms prejudice and leads congregations to, at once throw themselves into the movement heart and soul, and not sit back in a critical spirit as is so often the case when the professional evangelist is the preacher.

2. These meetings have been a rebuke to the materialistic tendencies of our age. The fact that large congregations have assembled in eleven churches in our Presbytery to worship God night after night for two weeks, laying aside social engagements, business engagements, and interests that are in themselves legitimate, is an eloquent testimony to the value that men set on the things of the Spirit and to the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ to interest of the individual.

AFTER 27 YEARS.

Mr. H. Brenton, an Old Peterborough Boy is Back to Town.

The Times had a call on Saturday from Mr. H. Brenton, who left Peterborough 27 years ago for the West. He is spending a few days visiting friends in this city, among whom are his cousin, Mr. John Kerr of Ashburnham, an uhis uncle Mr. John Kerr of Bensfort, the latter gentleman being in poor health.

Mr. Brenton attended the Peterborough High School g or nearly five years after which he entered the drug store of Messrs. F. Lane & Co. whose place of business was situated on George street in the store at present occupied by Mr. Cressman as a men's furnishing department. Mr. Brenton is now carrying on a large drug business in Winnipeg, where he has met with much success. He was naturally much surprised at the changed and improved appearance that has come over the old town and thinks we have made splendid progress.

ACCIDENT WITH A GUN.

Young Man's Life in Peril Through the Recklessness of His Friend.

Warsaw, Nov. 13.—Messrs. F. McClure and Roland Pearson of this village had an experience at Stony Lake this week, which gave one of them a good wetting and both had to pay for a damaged canoe. They were shooting near the late A. L. Davis' cottage, having gone up on Tuesday, and found the luck much to their liking. Yesterday McClure went out in the canoe and anchored behind a rather narrow expanse of marsh to wait the arrival of game birds. He was about two hundred yards from shore, where his companion, Pearson, was sitting with a gun across his knee, gazing across the water. Above the marsh was visible a water-worn snag at a distance from McClure, and Pearson for the want of something to shoot at, fired several shots at the top of it. He could see McClure motionless beyond the marsh but could not see the canoe.

The gun was charged with buck shot and some of the shot splintered the canoe which rapidly filled with water. McClure had to upset the boat and then climb in and paddle to shore. He was nearly frozen when he got there.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH.

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pains After Meals, Stomach Disorders and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very midly, seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. Today I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

No Corruption in West Peterboro' Election

The final gun has been fired in the West Peterborough election trial. It was the report of Messrs. Justices MacMahon and McGee to the House of Commons that they could not find that either candidate in the West Peterborough election contest had used improuer or corrupt practices. The report of the judges is in part:

(a) That no corrupt practice has been proved to have been committed by or with the knowledge or consent of either of the candidates in the said election.

(b) Evidence was given on only 20 charges of the 26 in the petition and no evidence was given the cross petition.

The judges were therefore, unable to form any belief as to whether corrupt practices did or did not exist at the said election. They did not believe that any further inquiry was necessary into the charges.

OBITUARY.

Thos. S. Quincy.

Mr. W. J. Green has received a letter announcing the death of Thomas S. Quincy, a former resident of this city, who died in California on July 1, 1909. Mr. Quincy had been ailing for some months with cancer, at the root of the tongue, caused by his horse throwing up his head, which came in contact with Mr. Quincy's head. Mr. Quincy came to the city in 1870 and was in the hardware business first with Stethem & Co., and later McKee & Davidson. He will be remembered by a good many as a genial citizen of unusual popularity in the early seventies. Quite an all-round athlete, he was a playing member in the old Maple Leaf Cricket Club, and helped to win laurels for the club. Also was goal keeper for the first lacrosse club organized in the city, known as the Red Stockings; also captain of the then volunteer fire brigade, and a member of the Charlotte street choir at its opening. He was also a charter member of Peterborough Lodge, 111, I. O.O.F., and on the lodge attaining its 21st year, Mr. Quincy presented the lodge with a complete set of lodge jewels. In fact he was well known as a most genial, good natured, wholesouled fellow. His many friends and acquaintances will extend sympathy to his widow. He was buried in California.

Minnie Greer.

After a very short illness, Minnie Greer, relict of the late Nathan Nicholls, corner McDonnell and Aylmer streets, passed away Sunday morning about half-past seven. The deceased suffered from heart trouble and that was the cause of her death. She was a daughter of the late SamuelGreer, and was born in Cavan 54 years ago. She has resided in Peterborough for many years where she was well known and very highly respected. She was a member of the George street Methodist church, and was a very active member in the several societies in connection therewith, and her familiar figure will be much missed. The late Mrs. Nicholls is survived by two daughters and two sons, Wilbert S. and Chalmer, and Miss Ada E. of Peterborough, and Miss Bertha L. of Toronto, and four sisters, Mrs. Edward Price, Mrs. Anthony Taylor, Mrs. John Ball and Miss Jennie Greer, who lived with her sister. To them is extended the heartfelt sympathy of the community. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, with services at the house. Interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

PETERBORO' CITY HALL VISITED BY FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT

About $3,000 Damage Done to the Building—Started on the Third Floor East of the Band Hall and was Confined to a Small Section

Peterborough's City Hall had a very close shave on Saturday and it was only through the good work of the firemen that the city did not suffer heavy loss. As it was the fire did about $500 to $1000 worth of damage, and the water did about $1000 more. It was just seven o'clock when the alarm was received at the fire hall from box 22 at the corner of Simcoe and Queen streets in fact the alarm sounded on the big bell while the hour of seven was being struck. The fire brigade arrived on the scene in good time and thanks to their thorough training and drill Deputy Chief Grange was enabled to direct affairs very satisfactorily. The men went to work calmly but quickly and soon had a couple of lines of hose up the stairs and water pouring in one the flames. Like all the recent fires the smoke poured out of the building in volumes, and made it all the more difficult to get at the seat of the blaze.

The fire was started on the third floor either in the lavatory to the east of the band hall or in the hallway. There are four small rooms east of the band hall. One is used for storing the smallpox tents and furniture, one as a lavatory and the other two were vacant. A pile of rubbish had accumulated in the some one had been using the lavahallway and it is supposed that tory and threw either a cigar stub or a lighted match into the rubbish. A peculiar thing was that the door leading into the room where the fire was, was closed and locked, and the bandsmen who were seen said they never knew of the door having been closed before. It was Deputy Chief Grange who led the way up the stairs and broke the door in and found the inside a roaring furnance. Then the hose was turned on and it required a large quantity of water to extinguish the flames which had eaten their way into the joist and were having a merry time. The fire, however, was confined to the four small rooms although the heat in other parts of the top flat was immense. The band hall escaped all damage and none of the instruments were injured although the music, which is valued at from $500 to $1000 and which is fire section, may have been slightly stored in a little room adjoing the damaged by water. The water also soaked through to the assessors' room, the chief of police's room, and down to the city treasurer's office were the walls were damaged and the furnith the furniture slightly damaged. The council chamber and the clerk's office underneath were not damaged, although some water leaked through to the committee room.

Fortunately all papers and documents and records in all the offices down stairs are stored every night in the several vaults so that no damage was done in that way.

The fire was not a spectactular one by any means. About the only thing that could be seen was smoke. The flames were confined to the one section and thus the damage was light. It was thought yesterday that $3,000 at most would cover everything.

All the city fathers and city officials and a large number of citizens were at the fire and were greatly concerned. Chief Howard was at supper when the alarm was sent in and was late in arriving, but after he got there he handled the thing in his usual capable manner. Just who sent in the alarm could not be learned up to last night. The person evidently made no noise about it afterward. Tax Collector Green was in his office working at the time but he knew nothing of the fire.

The insurance carried on the building is sufficient to cover all loss. The Times called up Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., chairman of the City Trust Commission, who said that the building was insured, but the amount and the companies he could not give without looking up the policies. The contents were not insured but the damage to them is very slight.

FRANCE AND HER BIRTH RATE

An Alarming Falling Off in the Number of Births.

While Germany is going ahead by leaps and bounds her one time rival France is surely falling behind in many ways, not the least of these being in point of population. The excess of deaths over births for the first six months of the present year runs up to the total of no less than 28,205, a striking example of race suicide. Inasmuch as the French race is the only people of Europe that are experiencing a decrease in population it is not to be wondered at that it has been suggested to put a heavy tax upon families in which there are two children or less.

But this subject is a very involved one. Only too often poor families have too many children rather than too few—too many for their own sake and too many for the good of the children who cannot be properly maintained, nourished and educated —and to put a tax upon small families would be in effect to encourage child bearing where it were better foregone.

Farmers Pursue Highwaymen with Shotguns and Pitchforks

Hamilton, Nov. 16.—Two daring highwaymen made their escape through a cordon of farmers armed with shot guns and pitchforks on Thursday night after making an unsuccessful attempt to hold up Frederick Kelt, 36 Wilson street, a driver for the Hamilton Brewery Company, who was returning from Burlington, with a large sum of money, which he had collected for the company in the village. For some reason the police did not make public the report of the affair.

Kelt was driving along a dark stretch on the Plains road when two men passed him in a buggy. They stopped in the shadows half a mile ahead of him and Kelt became suspicious. As he approached he noticed one of them standing on the road and the other grabbing the horse by the bridle. "Throw up your hands and fork over the money."

"Do you want a lift?" he asked.

"Yes," said the robber, as the horse by the bridle. "Throw up

As the other man approached from the thicket Kelt made a quick motion towards his hip pocket and the shot, which caused Kelt's horse to rear and throw the other highwayman to the ground. As the frightened horse raced down the road another shot came whizzing after Kelt.

County Constable Sinclair promptly organized an armed posse which started out in pursuit of the robbers Dr. McGregor of Waterdown, was among those who took part in the chase. Farmers all over the section loaded their shot guns and stood behind fences waiting for the men to appear.

One squad shadowed Hielt to the city limits hoping that the robbers might attack him again but no trace was seheured of the men.

PETERBOROUGH LOST.

T.A.A.C. Won by a Score of 40 to 9—A Scrub Team.

Peterborough received a very bad trimming in the last of the senior O.R.F.U. series on Saturday afternoon in Toronto when the T.A.A.C. fourteen scored 40 points to the Peterborough boys' 9. The locals went up with a scratch team gathered together in a day or so, and without any practice. The boys went up more to reatin their reputation of finishing a season than anything else. They had no thoughts of winning and they did wo,l to score the 9 points. But Peterborough's Rugby team has never been known to default a game and the club managers did not want to establish a precedent this year, so when orders came to play in Toronto on Saturday they got together a bunch and went up.

MILLIONS FOR CHARITY.

John Stewart Kennedy, a New York financier, who had scarcely been heard of outside of Wall Street, died the other day, leaving a fortune of $60,000,000. He left $25,000,000 to charity, $16,000,000 to his widow, and the rest to relatives and servants. His bequest to charities is said to be the largest ever made. Mr. Kennedy was Scotch by birth, was very retiring in his habits, and managed to give away several millions during life in so quite a way as to avoid notoriety.

A Question of Age.

The great Napoleon, as you know, began his wonderful career when he was little more than a youth. When he was offered the command of the troops in Paris during the troubles that beset the directory some one objected to him on account of his youth. His answer to that objection is famous, "One grows old quickly on the field of battle." A ready witted lawyer made good use of that age question once after Napoleon became emperor. The lawyer had been recommended for appointment as the first judge of appeals, and some one presented him to the emperor. Napoleon seemed surprised at his youthful appearance and said: "You look quite young for such an office, monsieur. May I ask how old you are?" "The same age as that of your majesty when you won the battle of Marengo," answered the lawyer, and he got the appointment.—Chicago News.

The Game of Twilight.

To play the game called twilight each child takes the name of a flower, and seats are provided for all but one, who stands in the center and slowly spins a wooden plate, calling the name of a flower at the same time. The girl whose flower name is called leaps up to catch the plate before it falls, and the vacant chair is taken by the spinner. If the plate is not caught before it falls a forfeit is required from the one who fails to catch, unless it is plainly the fault of the spinner in not giving it a sufficient impetus, in which case she must try it over again.

If, instead of a flower, "twilight" is called, all change places and the one who fails to secure a seat becomes spinner. If "moonlight" is called all must sit still, and any one who jumps up is liable to forfeit. If "double twilight" is called a double change of seats is made.

Br'er Rabbit's Tail.

Have you ever noticed anything unusual about bunny's tail? Next time your mother is going to have rabbit for dinner if you will look you will discover on the end of bunny's very abbreviated brown tail a small tuft of white fur.

This white fur grows there, they say, so that when Mamma and Papa Rabbit are being pursued by hunters and are forced to run all the little bunnies can follow their elders by watching the little white spots. Most wild rabbits are a peculiar brown color, very near the color of the ground, and it is difficult to see them as they are being chased.

BADLY MADE GOWNS.

Famous French Dressmakers Who Think Good Sewing Beneath Them.

The decision of a French court that an American must pay $5,000 for gowns she ordered in spite of her protest that they were badly made will afford some satisfaction to other American women who have had the same experience. They may not have refused to pay, and they may not have been ordered to do so by a court of justice. But how many of them have protested in vain against the badly made, poorly sewed and ill fitting gowns that have been made for them by Paris dressmakers of repute? It used to be said that the hurry of most American trade it necessary for the women to put the gowns together as best they could, but there is no longer any validity in that excuse. Gowns are just as sketchily put together as they ever were. American women who are buying for the first time in Paris are astonished at the careless sewing which is accepted as a matter of course. And it is in the expensive shops along the Rue de la Paix that his defect is most likely to exist. The smaller couturieres in the streets far way from the haunts of the strangers re more careful about their work, although in neatness and thoroughness they stand far behind the American ressmaker.

Most Americans in the habit of having gowns made in Europe are accustomed to the methods in the sewing rooms and hand over their gowns to heir own maids to have their neat ingers repair the damage that the irst wearing is sure to produce. It is the inexperienced alone that go rushing back to the dressmaker to show im or her the poor sewing. There is he perfunctory expression of regret ind surprise, and the dress is sent to he workroom to be repaired and is delivered the next day—in precisely the same condition. No amount of complaining will have the least effect on the garment

Wise women take them as they are, ire thankful for the smartness in the general design, which is all that even the Frenchwomen are able to get out of their seamstresses.

"It is not only the Americans that suffer from the ill made clothes," said one of the buyers for a dressmaker when she came back from Paris the other day. "The Frenchwomen have just as thoroughly ceased to expect well made dresses. They have their maids sew them up after the first few wearings just as a matter of course. The average Paris dressmaker considers it beneath her dignity to look after such unimportant things as whether the stitches will hold or not. Her ambition is to supply something smart, something that will look well as to be outside on the woman she has made it for. She has no time to bother her head as to whether the seams are holding inside or not."

HINTS WORTH KNOWING.

Five cents' worth of whiting kept in a bathroom closet is a cheap and quick polisher of nickel fixings.

Add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to the water in which prunes are cooked. The sirup will be much improved in flavor.

If oilcloth is given a coat of varnish twice a year it wears longer, is more easily kept clean and does not lose the pattern.

Parmesan cheese sprinkled thickly over stewed tomatoes that are later browned in a baking dish gives them an added zest.

When chopping suet add a little flour. The suet will separate better and the work be done much more quickly and easily.

To secure the meat from pecan nuts, it is claimed they will break and the kernels will come out easier if the nuts are soaked in water overnight.

Just for a change try filling apples which have been cored ready for baking with orange marmalade or raisins and a little butter and sugar. The result is delicious.

A saucerful of lime placed in a damp closet will act as a disinfectant and absorb dampness. The lime should be renewed once in two weeks or as often as it slakes.

Discolored ivory knife handles should be cleaned with lemon juice and salt. Cut a lemon in half, dip it in salt and with it rub the ivory. Wash off immediately with warm water and wipe dry.

Nagging a Poor Policy.

Here is another lesson for the nagging woman. Nagging never accomplished anything either in domestic life or in politics.

Sarah Grand, the author of the "Heavenly Twins," claims that nagging is the curse of the suffragette cause. She herself is a suffragist, but not a suffragette—note the distinction—and she thinks that the suffragettes have made a fatal mistake where they might have made a brilliant stroke. When they first broke out and startled the world by their militant tactics they did a brilliant thing and made a brilliant political play. But they failed stupidly when they kept it up, for, as she expresses it, they exhibitited themselves in the most offensive of human relationships, that of nagging

Nobody ever had any sympathy or toleration for a nagging man or woman. The policy of a nag is worse that futile; it is disastrous. It has alienated friends and converted the indifferent into enemies.

That is the way a bright woman has summed up the nagging habit, and, whether the practice is applied to politics or neglectful husbands, her estimation of it is wholly true.

The public school board of Port Hope at its last meeting had presented to it a petition from eleven of the teachers in that town asking the Board to reconsider its action with regard to the salary system. No action was taken by the Board relative to this petition.

Find Out Whether This Malady Is Inevitable In Your Case.

You all know the woman who seems to think that she acquires merit by having a headache.

A headache is her constant companion, and, what's more, if she doesn't actually pride herself in it she cherishes much the same feeling toward it that a martyr does toward her martyr's crown. Martyrdom is not without its compensation of glory, you know, unless it chances to be a self imposed martyrdom or at least a martyrdom to an empty cause

And there are such among the head ache martyrs. The headache martyr is the one who has had headaches so often that she has a headache smile.

"It's just a headache," she says, with a wan smile, as if headaches with her were as much a part of the program as her meals.

If that is the case with this poor sufferer she is greatly to be pitied. There are numberless cases on record where people have had persistent headaches the cause of which has stubbornly baffled the physicians. Such a state of affairs is highly regrettable. But how many women have taken the pains to assure themselves that their headaches are inevitable? This spirit of meek submission to the inevitable, it must be remembered, is only commendable when the inevitable is actually not to be avoided, and a lot of things are called inevitable that have simply never been questioned.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, writing in the Delineator, says:

"Pain wherever found is nature's abrupt command 'Halt!'—her imperative order to stop. When you have taken that step you have taken the most important single step toward a cure.

"A headache always means something"—now mark some of the things he says it may mean—"overwork, underventilation, eye strain, underfeeding. Some error," he adds, "is being committed; some bad physical habit is being dropped into."

So what's the use of pitying the woman with the headache smile if she hasn't at least gone over this simple list of causes and made an effort to adjust the trouble?

"There are a dozen different remedies that will stop pain," says this author, "from opium and chloroform down to the coal tar remedies, but not one of them cures in the sense of doing anything toward removing the cause."

WISE MAN UNDERSTOOD.

Saw Through the Trickery of the People in the Market Place.

A wise man once went to the market place of a town, where a lot of people were buying and selling things, and he called out in a loud voice: "Ho, ho, listen to me, all you people! I have been ordered by the king to collect all the clever people and take them to him, because he wishes to reward them."

All that heard him said they were clever, and they all gathered round, when he called out in a loud voice:

"Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! The king has just sent me word that he means to reward only those who are fools, so only those who are not clever must go with me to the palace."

All the people of the town looked at the wise man, and then one by one they joined him again because, so they said, they were fools.

The wise man shook his head sadly, and he sighed as he said: "Ah, the world goes as the wind blows! Ho, ho, you people, listen to me! You can all go back to the market place as quick as you can, for you first said you were clever and then you said you were not, and you can't be both."

The wise man knew quite well that he people only wanted the reward.

How Sarah Bernhardt Rests.

In a letter to a friend Sarah Bernhardt tells how she spends the days of her vacation in Belle-Isle-en-Mer. The actress says she "rests" by tiring herself. There is a daily schedule At 5 in the morning she is awakened. After a cup of coffee she takes her gun and goes hunting for birds. At 8 she returns to the house, has a light breakfast and goes to the shore to fish for shrimps. This occupies two hours. At 11 she takes her bath, makes her toilet and is ready for luncheon at 12:30. After luncheon comes the hour for the siesta. This, she observes, is a sacred institution in the routine of her household. One need not necessarily sleep, but the command is to keep still for two hours. At 2:30 she goes to her studio, where she reads manuscripts, looks over her parts or works at her sculpture. The tennis hour is 5 o'clock. Dinner follows the game. After dinner there is music, and by 9 o'clock every one is in bed. In ending her letter Mme. Bernhardt says: "Thus pass my days in Belle Isle. They all are alike. They are charming and splendid. I have a divine sensation of being alive these days more than all the rest of the days of the year."

A Woman's Queer Will.

Dame Margaret Morell Mackenzie, widow of the English throat specialist, has forbidden her children by will to be dismal because she is dead "When I die," she says in her will, which was recently proved, "I hope my children will wear as little black for mourning as possible. White or mauve I like, but not black. And I hope they will not abut themselves up, but go out among their friends and to places of amusement. I am not afraid of them forgetting me, and I want them to be happy."

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. 11

If Sick

Don't risk even one single penny!

And I will tell you why I say this.

It is because every package of Dr. Shoop's medicine is absolutely free if it fails.

No one need risk even one single penny.

Just think what this means to the suffering sick!

No risk, no expense, nothing whatever unless health returns. For 30 full days, and without the risk of a single penny, you can use either of my two famous remedies—Dr. Shoop's Restorative or Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy.

Thus why take any chance whatever?

Why purchase any medicine whose maker dare not back it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

And besides, I am no stranger to you.

My "Restorative" [illegible] has made Dr. Shoop's Restorative a household word in every drug store in the land. The public knows, they said, "We take no chance whatever here."

For twenty years Dr. Shoop's medicines have become thoroughly established all over America.

And I have [illegible] honest and responsible druggists in [illegible] village everywhere to act as my [illegible]. These selected druggists are placed by my medicines with the sick—and the entire risk is mine alone.

But write me first for an order.

I have an agent in almost every community—but all druggists are not authorized to grant the 30 day test.

So drop me a line, please—and thus save all disappointments and delays.

Besides, you are free to consult me by letter as you would your home physician. Do so freely and fully—if you desire. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost. Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan.

Besides, the books will open up new and helpful ideas to you. They tell of my 30 years experience at the bedside in homes and in Hospitals. All phases of [illegible] and relief are told of here. They tell [illegible] "inside nerve" no larger than a silken thread that gives to the Heart its impulse. How the Stomach and Kidneys each have their inside or power nerve. How these organs acutely falter when these controlling or master nerves begin to fail. How Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to these failing nerves, and rebuilds, and [illegible] restores the lost tone and power. I can start to help you—if it is within the power of medicine to do so. My best effort is surely worth your simple request. So write now, while it is fresh in mind, for tomorrow never comes. Dr. Shoop, Box 12, Racine, Wis.

Which Book Shall I Send You?

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products, also breeders of stock for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many recent and valuable formulas for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents about 1000 acres of land, well wooded and added to the property of the Company, the title land to said lots clear for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will extensively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, on the banks of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for the magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions, must in the course of its development, reach a point when its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its extension and greater profitableness. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the men who has built up a business by hard efforts of years, and by all he owns in the world, furnishes the best guarantee for a continuance and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sufficient considerations, it has been decided to offer to the public an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and to share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices purchased proves the flexibility of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are enormously high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 25 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will pro-rably pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, as if convenient, being in no others, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

WE CONFIDENTLY ADVISE FRIENDS, CLIENTS AND STOCKHOLDERS TO PURCHASE THESE SECURITIES.

Cosgrave's Beer

Wordsof praise have ever prevailed in advertising "copy." That a producer should wax enthusiastic over his own wares is but human. But it's the praise of the consumer that counts—and it is to a discriminating and critical public that "Cosgrave's" refers you

It is safe to say that no product, of any kind, enjoys a more enviable reputation than does this same Cosgrave Beer of Toronto in markets where it is offered.

Its self-evidenthonesty of purpose, purity, brilliancy, body, and every other attributes that goes to make a perfect beer are ever in evidence.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the pazzle? Is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," reluctantly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously, "is there any other guy that's got the inside track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snoozer with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Then why the Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego are you stalling me off? I may not be a pampered child of fashion, but I'm on the dead lev. I've never been caught with the goods Girlie, ever since I was a kid you've been my one best bet, and you know it. I'm Old Faithful from Kleengonville. I've trailed along in your wake like a night police reporter on the track of a lovely holdup or a bug collector after a gorgeous butterfly. All my life I've been building bungalows in the air for you to move into some day. I'd rather look at your tintype than to eat four square meals. You are the niftiest, peachiest dream that ever"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not truly mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

"Geoffrey," she said, recovering herself, "we must not make a mistake that will wreck our whole lives! I must ask you one question."

"Well?"

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was hurled, dishevelled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Sah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Sketchy Bits.

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy boeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for hoeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' of I do," said the boy, "and hell of I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Groucher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

Insuring Respect.

"Do you think a diamond engagement ring really makes a girl more thought of by her chums?"

"Well, it certainly is a good thing to have on hand."

POSTMAN'S PUZZLES.

Ingenious Persons Manage to Give a Lot of Trouble.

Some folks appear to have a penchant for giving the postal officials unnecessary trouble, and among the worst in this category are those who delight in so addressing their letters that the sorters—who on all occasions have to work at high pressure—have to waste valuable time in trying to decipher the meaning of a none too clever verse, perhaps. It speaks volumes for the sorters and postmen that, with even the most attenuated clue to the addressee, the missive is almost sure of delivery.

From time to time the writer has noted these "curious" addresses, and gives here some of the most interesting examples from his collection.

This letter please take to the land of white ducks,
The beechy and beautiful county of Bucks;
And there, if your search on the map is most thorough,
You'll find a small township called Princes Risborough.
At the postoffice there will you them leave this letter,
My friends there are (W)right, so they couldn't be better.

Similar are the following examples. In February, 1899, "Uncle Toby," the conductor of the Children Corner of The Newcastle Weekly Chronicle, received a letter addressed:

To Uncle Toby this missive in sent,
And I'm sure the penny is very well spent.
The weekly newspaper, The Chronicle named,
Is in Newcastle and through England famed.
Mr. Editor this to my Uncle will give,
And heartily hope that both may long live.

In the same year a gentleman at Ayr duly received an envelope bearing this superscription:

Awa' to auld Scotland, and speer for John Graeme;
It's a wide direction, but a well-kent name.
In the new town o' Ayr, at the auld Brig-een,
He sells a drap whusky, but the postman will ken.
And if ye should fin' him, as I've nae doot you will,
Ass sure he'll no grudge the postmen a gill.

In 1893, Regent street, London, was known as Swallow street, and the following was sent to a lady there:

Dear honest postman, be so kind
To take this to a friend of mine.
She is a Fox—Lucy's her name,
In Swallow street you'll find the same;
She is a cruel little toad,
And lives not far from Oxford Road.

Here is another postal effusion:

'Midst corn and clover, grain and grass,
There lives and laughs one Mr. Vass
He not from Barnet very far—
Bar on the left of Potter's Bar.

A Canadian Grub in London.

By a log of wood riddled with tiny tunnels, says a London correspondent, stands an ordinary-looking beetle in the insect house at the London Zoo. It has just been born as a beetle from the grub which drove those tunnels. It belong to the Longicorn family of beetles.

The grub was sent from Canada in a small log of Vancouver pine to a lady eighteen months ago. When recently it turned into a beetle she sent it to the Zoo, and it has just emerged in its final state, but it may have been anywhere between twenty and fifty years in the wood, boring the tunnels through the log.

An official at the Gardens says that naturalists have not yet settled how long it takes beetles to accomplish this work of boring. There is the historic case of the Natural History Museum grub of the same species. For fourteen years it lived undiscovered in the boot tree constantly used by an Indian military officer and probably had lived in the wood itself before it was made into a boot tree.

When the officer first discovered the grub he handed the boot tree, grub and all, over to the museum. It was placed in a show case, where it lived ten years. About once annually the grub used to poke its head out into the daylight, when the curator promptly pushed it back into the wood and plugged up the hole so that it could dig its way out.

"The Weeping Counsel."

It was on account of his earnest and emotional pleading for Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, that Lord Halsbury, who recently celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday, was so christened. If his lordship believes in lucky numbers, he has reason to regard "5" as his own. He was born in 1825; he began his career at the Bar in 1850; he was made a Q.C. in 1865; he was appointed Solicitor-General in 1875; he became Lord Chancellor in 1885; and he commenced his third term of office in 1895. An incident in his early days brought his career perilously near a close. While defending a prisoner at the Old Bailey he excited the animosity of an insane clergyman, who fired a revolver at him. This is the only instance on record of an attempt to assassinate an English advocate in the performance of his professional duties.

Keeping Busy.

Walking one day amongst his old parishioners in the East End of London, Dr. Lang (now Archbishop of York) stopped a parishioner who had married a man who enjoyed the reputation of being the laziest man in the East. "Well, Mrs. Brown," he said, "I hope your husband is proving a good provider." "Yes, sir, thank you, sir," she replied; "he's provided me with three new places to work at since we were married."

Indulgent.

"Her husband is very good to her."

"Is that so?"

"Yes; he does everything to please her, even to talking back when she's looking for an argument."—Detroit Free Press.

ABE'S LITTLE FLIER.

The Result of His Desire to Learn a Few New Tricks.

By GRANT THORBURN.

For years he'd been a power in the Flatbrook meeting house—not during church time, to be sure, nor yet at Sunday school, nor week night meetings, nor Epworth league. It was at other times he shone—at the fairs and candy sales and donation parties and school commencements, for he was a prestidigitator, and he was the regular thing at the village entertainments.

But lately his popularity had begun to wane. The Flatbrookers became tired of the same old card and coin tricks, though Abe Hinchman, through long and careful practice, was an adept at them. They longed for the Indian box trick and the juggler's sword tricks of the metropolis. They did not know that down in the cities the blase members of society, if they ever did attend a sleight-of-hand performance, always came in when the card and coin tricks commenced and yawned and went out when the Indian box trick came on.

Abe realized that his popularity was on the wane. Even old Doc Clarkson's daughter had grown a bit distraught and cold. So Abe made up his mind. He drew about two-thirds of his bank deposit and started for New York. He was determined to learn a few new tricks, buy some new paraphernalia and come back and astonish the natives and old Doc Clarkson's daughter. It was early winter, and there was no farming to be done, so there was no better time or opportunity, and he went.

He occupied a seat in the smoker. At a station near the metropolis a well dressed young man boarded the train, looked around for a seat and finally took the one next to Hinchman. He was a sociable sort of fellow and entered into conversation at once. Abe told him all he knew and many things that he didn't. The stranger was not so communicative and confined himself strictly to fiction, although Abe couldn't know that, of course.

"Now, look a-here," remarked this man. "Don't you go to any hotel. You go to a private boarding house. They won't skin you. I know a good one where they'll treat you right. You come with me." Abe went.

The place was situated in a rather obscure street, but the rates were cheap. Abe's companion, by a singular coincidence, boarded there himself.

After supper they went upstairs into the parlor. A caller was announced, a rather seedy personage. He wanted to see Abe's new companion. They talked together in one corner, while Abe sat in another. Then his friend came over to him.

"Say, Hinchman," he began, "do you know anything about diamonds? Any judge of them?" Abe glanced at the other man out of the corner of his eye.

"Somepin," he replied. "Was in a jewelry store up home fr awhile. Why? What's up?"

"Why, say," continued the other, "here's a friend of mine in a fix. He's got some good diamonds and wants me to loan about $200 on 'em. They're worth $900 anyway. I've seen 'em. Now, I ain't got $200 or I'd lend it to him. S'pose you do it. How much have you got?" This was a superfluous question, for he had discovered on the train that Hinchman had just $250.

"Well, now, here," went on the other; "he says if he don't pay up in a week you can keep the stones. See? He can't pay up, and the stones are the real thing. See? And you'll be in the difference between a couple of hundred and most a thousand. See?"

Hinchman saw. He thought it over and concluded that it was a sound proposition, provided the gems were genuine. He excused himself a moment, went to his room and put $200 in one envelope and something else in another envelope of similar appearance.

They had to go to the friend's room, a few blocks distant, up a dark, dingy staircase. The friend produced the jewels. Abe wouldn't touch them unless they went over to some Broadway jeweler and determined their worth and genuine character. This was fair, and they went. It was really superfluous, for Abe could tell by the merest examination that the stones were the real things. There were four of them. The Broadway jeweler looked at them, said they might sell for a couple of hundred apiece, but that he would give $150 spot cash for each of them. Then the three went back.

"Well, what do you think of it?" asked Hinchman's friend of Hinchman. "They ain't worth as much as we thought, but there's a good clear profit in it for you in case my friend here don't pay, and if he does you get your money back, with good big interest and a bonus besides at the end of a week."

The diamonds were again produced and once more examined. From that time on Abe Hinchman kept his eyes not on the faces of his friends, but on the diamonds.

"Run for your life!" they yelled to Hinchman. "It's the cops! Those stones is stolen!" They waited not, but burst through the men at the door and leaped down the flights. Hinchman was left to face the three men.

"Well, sir," said the leader severely, "we got you, anyways. What you got to say for yourself?"

Hinchman told the whole story from beginning to end. The three men evidently didn't believe it, but nevertheless they marched him to the corner of the street and there told him they would let him go provided he would appear at the police station in the morning to prosecute the others. He promised, and they left him. He took to his heels and sprinted for his boarding house. Once there, he gathered up his grip, paid his reckoning and jumped on the nearest trolley car. Eventually he fetched up at the Astor House. There he took a room.

Once in his room he slung his grip in a corner, took off his hat and wiped his brow with a bandanna kerchief. Then he drew carefully from his inside pocket first an envelope and then a small bag. In the envelope was Abe Hinchman's $200, and in the bag were four genuine stones. The other men, wherever they were, also had an envelope and a little bag, but in the one was simply a roll of green paper and in the other a few dried beans.

Abe Hinchman had merely played it as low down on 'em as he could, that's all. Legerdemain comes in handy once in awhile. He stopped around and sold two of the stones. The other two he kept.

A week later Abe Hinchman stepped off the train at Flatbrook and sauntered down the street. A diamond stud shone in his shirt bosom. He smoked a 20 cent cigar.

"Pretty flip, Abe," remarked a townsman—the jeweler, in fact—as he inspected the pin. "Where'd you get the dough?"

"Just been taking a little flier in Wall street with the boys," remarked Abe carelessly. Another hailed him.

"Well, Abe," said this one, "you look first rate. What you been doin' down there?"

"Well," returned Abe, "you can just bet that I stood on the steps in front of the Astor House along with the best of them. Yes, sir, I did."

"Here's a little thing for you, Mollie," suggested Abe to Doc Clarkson's girl that day—"that is, if you'll say 'Yes.'" It was a magnificent solitaire ring. "Oh, Abe!" sighed the young lady in assent.

A week later Abe Hinchman entertained a select audience with the Indian box trick, the sword trick, the clothes basket trick, the cabinet trick and every trick in the business. It was simply great.

THE JONESES' VACATION.

Game Full of Bustle and Mirth Provoking Movement.

A game that children of any age will enjoy and which takes little preparation is the Jones' vacation. One of the girls is selected as Mrs. Jones and one of the boys as Mr. Jones. You have ready a suit case, and at a given signal Mr. and Mrs. Jones must unlock it and put on the things they find inside. It is a good idea to have a hat, a long coat, a veil, scarf, gloves and pocketbook for Mrs. Jones and a coat, hat, collar (a large one), necktie and gloves for Mr. Jones. They must dress in these as quickly as possible, for some one is timing them, and then they must lock the suit case and rush off with it to the train. That must be the farthest point you can select, usually the front door. After they have hit the front door a good hard thump they must rush back again, take off the things and pack them again. Now it is the turn of another couple to be Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and when they all have tried the couple who made the trip in the shortest time are judged the winners.

It is well to use coats and hats that you do not need to treat carefully, for naturally they are apt to get rumpled in the excitement of the game. Don't forget the collar, in which you should put a large stud, for it always is interesting to see any one in a hurry struggle with a collar button.

The Hat Trick.

Practical joking, as a rule, is objectionable and not to be encouraged, but in the following no evil results can possibly happen, and the "victim" often enjoys the joke as much as those who planned it.

Take an old brush and saw off six inches of its handle. Into the shorter piece insert a needle headforemost and, placing your friend's hat centrally between the two pieces, press the needle well home. Now apparently the handle passes through the crown of the hat, the needle keeping all securely in position. Place the hat in a corner or elsewhere and wait results.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs," said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail them those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,

L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

Annual Conference.

The 13th annual conference of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough, will be held in Port Hope on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week with Ven. Archdeacon Warren, M.A., presiding. Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Rev. Mr. Trumuour of Peterborough, will attend.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. 15

Escaping Steam.

A commercial traveller passing down George street yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, saw what appeared to be a fire in the Singer Sewing Machine Co.'s store next to Messrs. E. F. Mason & Co.'s lower store. He telephoned the fire department from the Snowden House and the brigade responded promptly. It was found that steam was escaping from the pipes and had filled the place, but there was no fire. Some damage, however, was done.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card, send to Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. 14

Eight Fine Deer.

Two bucks and six does were the allotment of deer that the Bottle Lake party returned home with Friday night. This party was composed of Dr. C. H. Amys, Messrs. Gus. Corcoran, M. O'Brien, Arthur Head, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, M. Blewett, W. Weatherlake and J. Stabler. They all report a very enjoyable time and although they did not receive as many deer as in former years they are well satisfied with their hunt, considering that the weather was not the most favorable for deer hunting. One member of the party stated that the partridge were very plentiful in their hunting grounds. The deer brought back by these men are fine ones, and were admired by many on Saturday, as they lay in front of Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald's on Brock street.

CANADIAN FISHERIES.

Total Value of Fish Caught Last Year Was $25,451,088.

It must make the average Canadian sit up to hear that the total value of fish caught in Canadian waters last year was $25,451,088. These are the figures as set out in the blue book of the Fisheries Branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries. The superintendent of the branch, Mr. R. H. Venning, supplements the statement of value of cash by the reasoned assertion that the fisheries of Canada are by far the most extensive in the world, and that the water in and around Canada contain the principal commercial food fishes in greater abundance than the waters of any other part of the world. The value of the fish taken, then, in a single year equalled more than a fifth of the entire Dominion outlay, and it is as well that we inland folk, given to consideration of products of farm and factory only, should be reminded occasionally of the value of the other industries within the far-flung boundaries of the country.

It is worth noting, in passing, says the Ottawa Journal, that the fisheries blue book, which formerly made practically unintelligible reading for the outsider, has been rearranged under Mr. Venning's superintendency, and now presents a clearly analyzed, tabulated and indexed form, which enables even the casual reader to obtain with the least unnecessary labor the information he seeks. The department is to be congratulated upon the improvement which Mr. Venning has made in this regard. Other blue book might be similarly simplified.

OLD AGE PENSION.

People Don't Always Know What is Best for Them.

In the various post offices of the Dominion a placard is displayed announcing that the question of old age pensions is solved. The solution offered is the purchase of annuities under the Dominion Government's plan. No doubt if any Canadian citizen takes advantage of the facilities offered to secure immunity from want of old age the problem, for him, would be solved. But no matter how perfect the plans for doing so may be they would avail little if no effort were made to induce the people to take advantage of them. People do not always know what is best for them.

At a recent convention of insurance agents many of the speakers dwelt upon the public good that was being done by the insurance companies in persuading the people to them in their riper years. Despite the manifold advantages of life insurance it is safe to say that few people would avail themselves of it but for the persistency of the agent. In the aggregate, therefore, the efforts of the too-often abused life insurance agent have been a most improvide for those dependent upon portant factor in making Canadian citizens more capable of taking care of themselves and of their families.

Apparently the Dominion Government has realized that if the people of Canada are to provide for themselves in old age, are to be able to say during the closing days of their active lives that they are not public pensioners, but to the last independent, self-supporting and self-respecting citizens, there is need of education, hence the employment of men like Dr. Samson to act as missionaries in the cause of thrift. Instructing the public as to the wisdom of putting aside "something" for a "rainy day" in the form of a Government annuity under the plans thought out by Sir Richard Cartwright is essentially a work of thrift and if pursued with the same energy and persistency shown by life assurance agents will accomplish a great deal in advertising the conditions that have made public pensions necessary in other countries than Canada. When Canada has attained to greater maturity, when its industries and population are vastly greater than at present it ought to be the proud boast of Canadian citizens in the eventide of their lives that they are able to take care of themselves as a result of their taking advantage of the facilities offered by the Canadian Government annuities. If the Canadians of the present generation can be induced to do so it will have the effect of making the average Canadian citzen more independent. When the the units of the state but when the units depend on the state who will take care of them?

THE MARIENBAD WORLD.

Taking the Cure at the Salt Springs of Bohemia.

"Half past 5! Time to get up!"

"All right!" you growl in reply, railing while you slowly get out of bed against the absurd tyranny of medicinal waters that insist on being taken so early in the day.

Sallying forth, you find the Marienbad world already astir. Water drinkers are converging from all sides to the spring. Each one on arrival provides himself with a glass and goes forward to receive his daily dose. You join the waiting file. Soon it is your turn, and the attendant maiden for a modest coin fills you a bumper. You take it aside and eye it keenly, holding it to the light. Then, surreptitiously sniffing, you taste it cautiously. The flavor, it appears, is not unpleasant. You are reassured, and, assuming a resigned air, you drain the glass.

Elated by this proof of your courage, you walk out. The band is playing, the promenade crowded. Here you may see the crowned heads, millionaires, great singers and all the other celebrities who frequent Marienbad.

There is a peculiarity of the place that will quickly strike you—the stoutness of many of the visitors. As the baron von Seidsplitz, himself a man of girth, remarked to an English friend, "There are many thick people in Marienbad."

Hunger by this time probably possesses you, for it is 8 o'clock, but do not expect a hearty breakfast. Crisp rolls or toast and fragrant coffee will be enough, served in the open air. To a favored few an egg or a small plate of cold meat is permitted.

Curious morning tasks are prescribed for some of the patients. Mr. X., for instance, is ordered a piping hot mud bath, while Mr. Z. follows the "terrain" cure. This consists in walking an increased distance each day, so as gradually to strengthen the organs of which the functions are impaired. Most people, however, spend their time in reading, writing or lounging.

The welcome call to dinner draws all together about 1 o'clock. Again the fare is simple, the motto being "Nothing very sour, nothing very sweet, nothing very salt, nothing very fat." Even the restaurants are not allowed to provide dishes harmful to the "cure." So you make yourself content with fish, roast meat or chicken, green vegetables and stewed fruit, and, as for drink, water, diluted claret or Pilsener beer must suffice. Woe to him whose choice strays to made dishes, pastry, cheese or spirits, for these he must abjure as long as he stays at Marienbad.

To rest awhile without taking "forty winks" is the patient's next problem, and when he has worked through it he will probably stroll along to a concert or make an excursion among the delightful pine clad hills that inclose the Marienbad valley.

When evening approaches the garden and promenade fill with people. They sit about at small tables and sip their coffee while listening to the band.

Your last meal is a light supper at 7 o'clock, and by 9 you should be in bed.

The normal length of the "cure" is four weeks. It is said, however, that Americans, with characteristic energy, have been known to compress it into something like half that time.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"There's a Reason"

Disease of The Kidneys Brought on By Catarrh.

Pe-ru-na Made a Well Man of Me.

I Cannot Speak Too Highly of It.

Mr. George King, 488 St. Denis St., Montreal, Canada, a well-known business man of that city, writes:

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's disease, and after you have gone through the suffering that I have with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble, and have been cured you are pretty apt to remember the medicine that did the work.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me well and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me. I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since. Every spring and fall I take a bottle of it and it keeps me well."

MR. GEORGE KING

CATARRH of the kidneys is a very much neglected disease.

It is not until the disease has a firm hold upon the kidneys that the patient begins to realize that there is some derangement of these organs.

The slight backaches, the feelings of lassitude, and other warning symptoms of kidney disease are overlooked.

They are not serious enough to detain the patient from his regular work.

Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected, he does not recognize the difficulty as being caused by catarrh.

INTERNAL CATARRH REACHES THE KIDNEYS.

PE-RU-NA AN INTERNAL CATARRH REMEDY.

Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms cause such slight discomfort that it is not noticed.

However, when it is once firmly seated in the kidneys it becomes a difficult disease to exterminate.

Indeed, catarrh of the kidneys is more serious than catarrh affecting some of the other organs of the body.

In the kidneys it is liable to terminate in Bright's disease or diabetes, both of which are recognized as very serious ailments, if not fatal.

The thing to be done, when catarrh of the kidneys is discovered, is to take some internal, systemic catarrh remedy, one that reaches the very source of the catarrh and removes the cause of the difficulty.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna. It reaches catarrh, no matter where it may be located in the body—whether in the more exposed membranes of the nose and throat, or whether in the remotest part of the kidneys.

That Peruna is at once the safest and most reliable remedy for catarrh of the kidneys is proven by the many testimonials written by those who have experienced its benefits.

The testimonials given here are only specimens of the many testimonials on our records, pertaining to the relief afforded by Peruna in severe cases of kidney trouble.

Kidney Disease of Long Standing.

Mr. Samuel A. Paxton, 1115 Troost Ave., Kansas City, Mo., member I. O. O. F. and National Annuity Association, writes:

"I am a well man to-day, thanks to your splendid medicine, Peruna. I was troubled with catarrh and kidney disease of long standing when I first began using Peruna. I soon found I was getting better and continued taking it for four months. It cleansed out the system, leaving me well and strong and feeling better than I have in years."

Unlimited Power for the Whole of Eastern Ontario

Will Utilize the Long Sault Rapids as a Head-Race for Three Large Power Houses

Brockville, Nov. 15.— The Long Sault Development Co., on the American Side and the St. Lawrence River Company on the Canadian side have developed a scheme whereby they will unite in developing the Long Sault rapids.

The latter company already has a power house at Mill Roches, which furnishes light and power for the locks, and power and light for Cornwall, but in order to develop more power the two companies have designed a scheme which, when carried out, will be able with ease to furnish unlimited power to the whole of east ern Ontario at a reasonable cost. The plan, in a nutshell, is to utilize the Long Sault Rapids as a head-race for three large power houses. The scheme involves the building of a huge dam over 4,000 feet in length, from the lower part of the Long Sault Rapids to the upper end of Barnhart's Island to steer the waters of the Sault in the right direction to the power houses, the construction of three power houses, a lift-lock, the straightening of the course of various channels of the river, and many other feats of engineering, which will probably involve an expediture of some $20,000,000 during the period of constructive work.

In three or four years from the start of operations the first power should be ready for use, though the entire work would take some time longer to complete. It is expected that fully 100,000 horse-power can be developed. The companies are seeking a charter from the Canadian Parliament and the United States Congress, and have made a vast quantity of plans and computations for the details.

Work on Smith St. Bridge will Cease Until the Spring

The Times communicated with Mr. Ed. Conroy last night in reference to the construction of the Smith street bridge. That gentleman stated that the water is unusually high and that they have been greatly handicapped. They expected that the Hydraulic Power Company would have lowered the water temporarily to allow them to get the foundation work in. This, however, is not possible now, according to Mr. J. H. Larmonth, manager of the company, so Mr. Conroy said that they would shut down the work in a few days and wait until spring. He said that Mr. Larmonth had promised him to let the water down in the spring when they would not need so much. At present the water is six feet above the foundation work and it is impossible to do anything until the water is drawn off or a cofer dam built. The later procedure is too expensive to consider. In the meantime the bridge will remain at a standstill.

Madame Steinheil Found Not Guilty

Paris, Nov. 15.—Madame Steinheil was found not guilty at an early hour Sunday morning of the murder of her husband, Adolph Steinheil, an artist, and her stepmother, Madame Japy. The verdict was reached after two and a half hours' deliberation, during which the jury thrice summoned the president of the court for explanations. It is believed that the original majority was for conviction. It is said the jury finally divided 9 to 3.

With the first appearance of the jury, several of whom were smiling, [illegible] was flashed through the court room. A dramatic scene followed. The red-robed judges and counsel filed in and took their places. Every eye was riveted on the door through which the prisoner should enter, but she did not appear. Mr. Devalles, the presiding judge, turned to the jury and said: "Have you reached a verdict?"

The foreman arose and replied: "On our conscience we answer No to every question."

A salvo of "bravos" followed, and a perfect bedlam broke loose. M. Aubin, counsel for Mme Steinheil, embraced his colleagues. Men and women in the rear of the hall jumped and screamed for joy. The judge threatened to clear the court room, and when a semblance of order was restored, he called; "Bring in the accused."

THE PRISONER DROPS.

Fully two minutes passed before the black-robed figure, with a white face drooping on her breast, appeared in the doorway, supported on either side by a gendarme. The woman swayed and seemed to be fainting, but in response to a wild outburst of cheers, she lifted her head and looked about, smiling faintly in acknowledgment. Then she tottered forward and sank on the floor beside the rail.

When the judge pronounced the verdict, her faint murmur of thanks was hardly heard. An instant later, M. Aubin was over the rail, lifting her in his arms. The crowd surged forward in a solid wall, making the rafters ring with their cheers.

Outside the gloomy court house tens of thousands who had been waiting for hours, took up the cry. Special editions of the papers spread the news like wildfire through the boulevards where thousands more were waiting in front of the cafes, and the same scenes of rejoicing were witnessed there.

Madame Steinheil was conducted from the building by one of the subterranean passages. She was escorted back to St. Lazare Prison, as the French procedure requires the formality of "lifting the bolts" before the definite release of the prisoner. This ceremony was performed at once, and madame was whisked away in an auto.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN A COAL MINE IN ILLINOIS---OVER 300 MINERS MET AWFUL DEATH

A Rescueing Party Went Fearlessly to Their Death

The Mine is Still on Fire and it Is Certain that the Three Hundred Miners are Dead—Mine is Caving in Cherry, Ill., Nov. 15.—Officers of the local miners' union today notified President Lewis, of the Mine Workers' Union that 310 lives had been lost in the St. Paul Coal Company mine district.

A report of the owners of the mine today declared that the loss of life will be 300.

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 15.—Hope has been all but abandoned by the relatives of the three hundred or more men now numbered as victims in the greatest mine disaster in the history ol Illinois.

That not one of the hundreds entombed in the St. Paul Coal Company's mine will be taken from it alive, is the almost unanimous opinion of those on the scene.

Men equipped with oxygen helmets and other paraphernalia used in mine rescue work entered the mine today, and added to the general horror of the situation by declaring that the mine was still on fire and caving in at many places. They were unable to penetrate more than a few feet from the main shaft in the second vein. Their equipment was useless in the smoke and gas-choked chambers.

That every bit of life-giving air had been exhausted many hours ago was declared certain.

Three descents were made, but no sign of life was seen, and the rescuers declared that no life could exist for hundreds of feet below the shaft entrance. A few miners' caps and lamps were seen, tragic tokens of the first mad rush for safety by the miners who escaped, but no bodies were found.

RUSHED TO OTHER END.

This indicated to the rescuers that when the miners realized they were hopelessly penned, they rushed to th hopelessly penned, they rushed to the furthermost end of the vein, in the hope of finding air to sustain life till help came.

Frantic protests were made against the action of the State Commission in ordering the sealing up of the entrance, but experienced mine workers asserted this was the only way to end the fire. To the throngs about the entrance today, Mine Inspector Taylor said that a small supply of air still exists in the mine, and that it was a fighting chance for those within. This was denied by miners who inspected the openings yesterday.

FOOLISH BRAVERY.

"If we had been here Saturday we would have prevented the death of the men who bravely but foolishly, and, as it turned out, futilely went down the shaft in an effort to save the miners," declared President Richard Newham of the State Mining Commission today. "I and the other members would have known rescue under the circumstances was impossible, and that it would have been a most needless risk of life to attempt it.

"Our object in sealing the entrances of the mine last night was to end the fire, thus making it possible for a party to enter the mine and pierce the lower levels practically assured of safety."

The party selected to make the first descent today included James Taylor, State Mine Inspector, R. Y. Williams, of the United States Rescue Station at Urbania, and James Hand and Henry Smith, both of whom were among the men who escaped Saturday.

NO SHOTS WERE FIRED.

Neither the miners nor officials think there is a chance that the men below are alive. Rumor that shots were heard beneath the surface, and that rappings on pipes had been used to indicate the entombed miners were living, were declared absurd.

C. P. Buck, chief clerk of the St. Paul Coal Company, employed about the mine for 30 years, asserted no revolver shots could have been heard or felt upon the surface. Other officials declare that the explosion of a stick of dynamite would serve, if it occurred, to lessen the chances of the men entombed.

CASH FOR THE WIDOWS.

President Lewis of the Mine Workers has advised the local union that $5,000, the subscription of the national body, will immediately be placed at the disposal of the widows and orphans of the mine victims.

Celebrated Her Acquittal in Champagne and Lunch

Paris, Nov. 15.—The "Red Widow" Mme. Marguerite Steinheil, became a "merry widow" it was learned today, following her release from the Conciergerie St. Lazaire after she had been acquitted of the murder of her husband and mother. The sombre prisoner of the Palais Justice became once more the fascinating charmer of the Villa Vert Legis.

Mme. Steinheil's first request upon reaching the Hotel Terminus, where she spent the night, was for champagne and sandwiches. Mme. Dranger, the close friend of the released widow, immediately despatched an automobile to her home. It brought back three bottles of rare wine, and the verdict of the Steinheil jury was thereupon celebrated at a joyous feast.

"Oh dear, how happy and contented I am," was the way Mme. Steinheil summed up her feelings on the verdict.

Meanwhile Paris is awaiting new sensations in the Steinheil affair. The suit of Remy Souillard M. Steinheil's valet against Mme. Steinheil, is soon to be tried, and startling revelations are expected. Couillard is suing for 25,000 francs damages for Mme. Steinheil's charge that he committed the murders.

Negro Killed White Men for Entering Car First

Memphis, Tenn, Nov. 15.—Because Ed. Cardwell and Ed. Koonts, two young white men, crowded on a car ahead of him, William Smith, a negro, resented the act, and killed the two, who were on a rear platform, with a revolver. Smith escaped from the car, but later gave himself up.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

New Epoch Begins in the Administration of India

Simla, British India, Nov. 15. — The plan for the reform of the British administration of India, which was outlined by Lord Morley, secretary of state for India, in the House of Lords last December, and which is designed to give India an embryo constitution admitting the natives to an independent share in the legislation of the country, came into effect today. Thus begins a new and striking epoch in the history of British rule in India.

For more than three years the Imperial Government and the Indian Administration have wrestled with the details of the plan recently consummated. Under the program adopted all religious and special interests may elect representatives to the viceroy's and provincial councils but, in view of recent anarchistic outbreaks, a safeguard is provided in a qualification which empowers the Imperial and Provincial Governments to declare ineligible those persons whose election is considered contrary to public interests.

The viceroy's council in the future will have 370 members instead of 126 as formerly, of whom a total of 135 will be elected as against 30 elected heretofore. The functions of the council will be considerably enlarged and it will be enabled to take an active part in the making of the budget and all legislation. The new councils will assemble in January.

Labor Leaders Declare Against the Saloon

Toronto, Nov. 15.—For the first time in the history of the American Federation of Labor some of its officers and leaders took part in a public meeting held during the annual convention to declare against the saloon as an institution in the name of organized labor.

The Federation Labor leaders who took part were Rev. Charles Steizle, secretary of the Department of Labor for the Presbyterian Church of America; Mr. John Mitchell, whose name became a household word in the United States as the trusted leader of the miners in the big coal strike some seven years ago; Mr. John B. Lennon, treasurer for nearly twenty years of the American Federation of Labor; and Mr. Tom Lewis, who succeeded Mr. Mitchell as head of the largest labor organization in a single industry in the world; while Mr. James Simpson spoke as a local labor man.

Behind the chairman, Mr. Steizle, was massed the Alexander choir, who once more made the hall resound with the stirring "Glory Song," and were assisted by Mr. Donald MacGregor and the Dorie Quartette.

"Some two years ago I discovered that the only local labor union that regularly opened and closed its meeting with prayer was a bar tenders' union," said Mr. Steizle in calling on Rev. Dr. Shearer to open the meeting with prayer.

"The time has now come when the saloon and labor have to be divorced," said Mr. Steizle. "This is not the statement of a professional temperance agitation, but has been officially made by President Gompers. He has declared that the meetings of labor bodies should be disconnected from the saloon and the evening ones held in school houses.

"There was a time when the sentiment was general that if more money was given to the laboring men they would buy more beer, and if the hours of labor were reduced there would be only more opportunity for greater dissipation," said John Mitchell.

"It has been the proud boast of the labor movement that it has contributed more to the material, moral and intellectual uplift of humanity than anything else on earth. Organized labor has done more to promote temperance than any other organization on earth.

"As to the relation between poverty and drink it is safe to say that poverty has driven many a strong man to drink, and drink has driven many a strong man to poverty.

"I am not at all impressed with the statement often made that if you close down the liquor industry you bring a calamity to the community. Quite the contrary. If through temuerance a distillery is closed, in its place will be built a store. It is simply a readjustment of industry.

Strong Protest Made Against the Trust Idea

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Considerable interest is taken in the announcement in the speech from the throne respecting legislation as to combinations in restraint of trade. In view of the number of mergers being effected, the utterance is significant. No hint of the form of the proposed legislation has yet been given, but two courses are available, one is to remove the protection duty on the products of such a merger, and the other is to render more effective the statute making the individual members of such combinations criminally responsible. It is understood that strong representations are being made to the government against the trust idea.

Intermediate O.H.A. Championship Says One of the Players.

One of last year's intermediate team made the remark yesterday that Peterborough was going to win the O.H.A. championship this year and that when the season closed the cup would be lifted out of the Scugog mud and brought to Peterborough, the city of light. He claimed that nearly all, if not all, of last year's team was still in the city and would be in the game, and there are a few new ones here too. The boys have got the right spirit to start with, but they will need speed and science to finish with.

70 YEARS OLD.

Grateful for Medical Aid.

"Though I had passed by seventieth birthday," writes R. A. Silvera from Duncan P.O., "I am painfully aware that one of the penalties of old age is the slowing down of the activities of the system. One of the most dangerous conditions of old age is constipation, an indirect cause of many sudden deaths. I have used many medicines, but none so suited to old age as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are wonderful regulators—keep the stomach and bowels in perfect condition, prevent indigestion, biliousness, liver complaint and constipation. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills because they never grip nor cause distress — just a mild tonic laxative."

By using Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly you have a guarantee of good health, 25c per box, at all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

BIG FIRE SALE.

The Property Committee of the city council, it is understood, are busy preparing the fire, smoke and water, damaged goods for the big fire sale to be held shortly. No doubt the committee will advertise "A lot of either totally destroyed or badly damaged smallpox tents, camp beds, chairs, tables, bedding, etc., at greatly reduced prices. If not sold they will be confined to the rubbish heap. Also a lot of paper that has been on the walls in the various offices for many years. There is some partly built wool and some water soaked plaster which any good carter who has a license to use the carters shelter and who is a property owner and voter may have for taking it away. The third floor of the building will be closed for a few days until the insurance adjusters get through and the debris is marked down. Watch the daily press for the big announcement."

ALL CHARLIE'S FAULT.

Was Produced in St. Peter's Hall Before a Crowded House Last Night.

A farce comedy entitled "All Charlie's Fault," was produced in St. Peter's Assembly Hall last night for the benefit of the school children. The play which was under the direction of Mr. George Lynch, was a big success and was greatly enjoyed by the large number present. It will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night. The cast of characters is as follows:

Gen. Waldo Blake, a retired merchant ..... Jas. Dorris
Charley Blake, his son .... Jas. M. ..... O'Brien
Harry Dodsworth, a friend of Charley's ..... Herb. Callaghan
Jimmie Hughes, No. 1999 W.U.T. Co ..... Egbert Kelly
Professor Strieger, a professor of Music ..... Leo Derocher
Margaret Blake, Eleanor Blake, daughters of the general ..... Miss Margaret Derocher, Miss Gertie Clancy.
Chippe, a colored butler..Stan Lewis
Kitty, in the general's employ ... . Miss Carrie White

A clergyman writes: "Preventics, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventics surely will check a cold, or the Grippe, in a very few hours. And Preventics are so safe and harmless. No Quinine, nothing harsh nor sickening. Fine for feverish restless children. Box of 48 at 25c. Sold by all dealers.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE.

Will Reorganise for the Season on Wednesday Night.

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League will be held in the Oriental parlors on Wednesday night when the league will be reorganized for the season. There will be a good bunch of teams entered this year, including one from Keene, and there will be much faster hockey played as the intermedigte O.H.A. players will be eligible. A full turnout of all interested is requested.

BILLIONS FOR CHARITY.

John Stewart Kennedy, a New York financier, who had scarcely been heard of outside of Wall Street, died the other day, leaving a fortune of $90,000,000. He left $25,000,000 to charity, $16,000,000 to his widow, and the rest to relatives and servants. His bequest to charities is said to be the largest ever made. Mr. Kennedy was Scotch by birth, was very retiring in his habits, and managed to give away several millions during life in so quite a way as to avoid notoriety.

INSPECTED TELEPHONES.

English Expert Visited Peterborough to See the Telephone Exchange.

Major O'Mara of London, Englaah, chief engineer of the telephone and telegraph system of London, Eng., was in the city recently on a visit of inspection to the plants of the Bell and Machine telephone companies of this city. Major O'Mara is on a tour of Canada and the United States for the purpose of getting ideas from the telephone systems of Canada and the United States and introducing them into England. The method of operation in the countries of this continent are considerably in advance of those employed in the old country.

Mr. E. W. Doan, the local manager of the Bell Telephone Co., took the major to see the lift lock which he inspected with a great deal of pleasure, being a man with a wide education along mechanical and engineering lines.

He only remained in the city on Saturday, going from here to Brantford. After his inspection in Canada he will return to the States for some time. He inspected the United States system before coming to Canada.

DENIED APPLICATION.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 15. —The Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia today, denied an application made by counsel for Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, sentenced to jail for contempt, for a stay in the issuance of the mandate to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia until January 2, 1910. Unless notice of an appeal is given before next Friday night, the mandate will be handed down next Saturday.

Gas Distended His Stomach

"My last case will be," writes Henry E. Sellard, a well-known resident of Chatham, "a letter to tell you what Nerviline has done for me. I was in a terribly bad shape, my condition was all wrong and every hour I would wake with a start and feel my heart jumping TESTIMONIAL like a threshing machine. This was caused by gas on my stomach, pressing against my heart. When I started to use Nerviline I got better nightly fast. It is certainly a grand remedy for the traveling man, keeps your stomach in order, cures cramps, prevents lumbago or rheumatism, breaks up chest colds and sore throat—in fact there hasn't been an ache or pain inside or outside for the past two years that I haven't cured with Nerviline. Do you wonder I recommend it?"

For general household use Nerviline has no equal; it will cure the aches and ailments of the entire family—refuse anything but Nerviline, 25c. per bottle, five for $1.00, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE GOSPEL OF WORK.

The Duchess of Marlborough, who has become tired of fashion and frivolity to the point of nausea tion, has joined the ranks of workers, and is preaching some good doctrine. She believes in work for everybody, the rich as well as the poor, and in this view she will be supported by the sober, sound judgment of experience. She has been addressing the Forest Gate and Stratford Amateur Chrysanthemum Society, and taking the love of flowers as emblematical of that striving after ideals which is somewhere in every nature, has declared that it is only by hard work in every one's garden, rooting up the weeds of envy, malice and distrust, and growing flowers of idealism, strength purpose and good will that the millennium of which so many talk can be brought about. As for reformation, she thinks that it is men themselves that will bring it about, and not politics. Presumably, she does not intend to ignore the necessity of politics entirely, which in its broad sense implies the science of government. She probably meant, as one critic suggests, that "politics will only be effective for good when the people behind it are in earnest for the people's good." Reflecting people will agree that the noisy, frothy type of politics does not accomplish much whatever views those who have such politics profess. It is only genuine deep-seated conviction that can accomplish anything in the realm of politics or any other.

The British government has just let contracts for two super-Dreadnoughts which are to have a tonnage of 26,350 each and a speed of 26 knots. This will make it necessary for Germany to immediately begin building a couple of super-super Dreadnoughts of about 30,000 tons each, with a speed of not less than 31 knots. Fortunately the size of the super-Dreadnoughts has not as yet made it necessary to enlarge the oceans.

Of the Original Members of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government.

The Ottawa journal says:

One of the most interesting studies at the beginning of every Parliament is to discover who the oldest members are, for the number of those who were returned to Parliament in 1896, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to power, is now very rapidly diminishing. The following is the list of the thirty who remain:

Conservatives—Major Thomas Beattie, London; R. L. Borden, Halifax; Andrew Broder, Dundas; Hon. Geo. E. Foster, North Toronto; Hon. John G. Haggart, South Lanark; David Henderson, Halton; Col. Samuel Hughes, Victoria and Haliburton; F. D. Monk, Jacques Cartier; William B. Northrup, East Hastings; E. B. Osler, West Toronto; Dr. John D. Reid, Grenville; Dr. W. J. Roche, Marquette; Dr. T. S. Sproule, East Grey; George Taylor, Leeds; Uriah Wilson, Lambton; Andrew W. F. Maclaren, South York—15.

Liberals—Sir Frederick Borden, King's; Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Rouville; James P. Brown, Chateauguay; Jos. Hon. W. S. Fielding, Shelburne and Queen's; Hon. Sydney A. Fisher, Brome; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Quebec East; Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux; George D. B. Maugle, Mississippi; Hon. Frank Pedersen Blake; Hon. Clifford Sifton, Brandon; O. E. Talbot, Bellechasse; Com. PUBLIC SERVICE.

Commission Being Asked for to Handle Stratford's Public Utilities.

Stratford has caught the true spirit of municipal government as will be seen by the following which is taken from an exchange:—

The finance committee of the City Council has passed a resolution asking for the submission of a by-law providing for the creation and election simultaneously of a light and heat commission, composed of the mayor and two elected members, to have charge of the service of electricity to be established under the city's contract for Niagara power; also that the city solicitor take steps to procure legislation to amalgamate said commission with the water commission, under the title of the public service commission; and that the city may in future require the public service commission; and that the city may in future require the public service commission to be composed of the mayor and four commissioners, two of the latter to have two terms and two to be elected annually.

Tickling, tight Coughs, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Coug Remedy. And it is so very different than common cough medicines. No Opium, no Chloroform, absolutely nothing harsh or unsafe. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, gives the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. These leaves have the power to calm the most distressing Cough and to soothe and heal the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Mothers should, for safety's sake alone, always demand Dr. Shoop's. It can with perfect freedom be given to even the youngest babes. Test it yourself and see. Sold byall deale—

For the Babies.

Although this advice is more direct ly for babies during the first year of life, the sense of it applies quite as well to other children.

Don't overfeed them and don't let them overfeed themselves.

Don't give them rich foods—meats gravies, pastries, cake, etc.—nor a great variety. The simpler and plainer the better—plenty of milk, whole wheat bread, oatmeal, baked potatoes, baked apples and fresh fruits of all kinds, except bananas, in season, but be sure the fruit is ripe and fresh.

Keep them out in the open air as much as possible the whole year around and send them into the country whenever you can do so, but only to places where the water is pure.

Keep them cool.

Don't overdress them. The lighter and simpler the clothing the better.

A Bavarian Apple Pie.

One of the most delicious ways to use apples in cookery is in a Bavarian pie: Line a deep dish with pastry. Fill it with breadcrumbs and bake it until the pastry is done. Then remove the crumbs and fill the cavity with chopped apples and nuts and some stoned raisins. Sweeten with sugar and flavor with nutmeg and cinnamon. Sprinkle with cake crumbs and bake till it is brown on top and the fruit within is thoroughly cooked. Spread over the top a lemon flavored meringue and let it become a light brown in the oven. Set the pie away to cool before serving.—New York Tribune.

Tell Some Sick One

It Is Free If It Fails.

Will you do me out of Humanity? Will you tell some sick friend of this remarkable offer?

Tell him or her, that you have learned of a medicine so certain that it makes does say to the sick, "It is absolutely and unconditionally free if it fails."

And you, no doubt, already know of Dr. Shoop's Restorative and its popularity.

For 20 years it has been the standard remedy for Stomach, Kidney and Heart ailments every where in America.

When the "inside" or controlling nerves of these vital organs begin to fail, it is Dr. Shoop's Restorative that has quickly vitalized, and strengthened, and brought these nerves and organs back to health again.

I do not dose the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys—for that is all wrong.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes direct to the center of these ailments—the failing, faltering, feeble or controlling nerves. And herein lies the secrets to my success.

When these nerves are again made well and strong, then that is the certain end of all such ailments.

To me it is a great satisfaction that I am the only physician able to say to the faltering sick: "Take my prescription for full 30 days, and if it fails to help you, the entire expense is mine—not yours."

Then why should the sick take any chance on any other medicine, when mother dare not look it just as I do by this remarkable offer?

I also have a Rheumatic Remedy—and that remedy is covered by the same identical "No help, no pay" protective plan.

Besides, you are free to consult me just as you would your home physician. My advice and the book below are yours—and without cost.

Perhaps a word or two from me will clear up some serious ailment. I have helped thousands upon thousands by my private prescription or personal advice plan. My best effort is surely worth your simple request.

So let me send you an order at once. Take the message to some sick friend.

A postal will bring the opportunity.

I will have an honest and trustworthy druggist to whom you can conveniently go for the 30 day test.

But first, ask me for the order, for all druggists are not authorized to give the 30 day test.

So write me now and save all delays. Remember your inquiry never comes back. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 21, Racine, Wis.

Hidden Skin Troubles

Have you on some part of your body a sore, or eruption, or ulcer, or eczematous patch which is hidden from the gaze of others, yet causes you hours and hours of pain and inconvenience? Have you tried this and that, and this other remedy in vain, and are you feeling disheartened and discouraged? If so read the following instances of Zam-Buk's healing power, and apply it to your case:

"I had an inflamed leg for several years. The ulcers spread all round the limb, which was swollen to enormous size. Several doctors treated me. One suggested amputation. Nothing did me any good. Zam-Buk healed the sores!" Says Mrs. Osborne, of Primrose St., Hamilton. Or, read these:—

"My mother used many things for abscesses and eruptions, but in vain. In Zam-Buk she found a remedy at last." So says Miss A. Cargill, of Wapella (Sask.).

Sufferers from these "Hidden Skin Troubles" of any nature should profit by such experiences as this. Zam-Buk is seen at its best when applied to cases which have defied ordinary treatment. Write for trial box, and test it at our expense.

ZAM-BUK
THE GREAT SKIN-CURE.

ZAM-BUK AND A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Over and over again Zam-Buk has performed a miracle of healing when applied to sores and skin injuries which have refused to heal under any other form of treatment. Why not try it and cure your trouble? Immediately Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or wound the diseased portion of flesh it commences its work in two directions. It anoints the exterior, and its antiseptic properties prevent any germs and bacilli from creating trouble. From the herbal essences and juices so finely purified and concentrated, penetrate the subjacent layers and stimulate the weakened or diseased cells to active, healthy operation. These cells then put forth their "Building" products and replace the diseased outer layer with fresh and healthy tissue. By degrees the whole diseased surface is thus replaced by new healthy skin.

In this way Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, itch, eczema, eruptions, pustules, scurvy, salt rheum, blood poison, and other forms of skin trouble. Zam-Buk also cures piles, varicose ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes $2.50.

CANADIAN EATABLES LIMITED

Canadian Eatables, Limited, recently formed under the laws of the Province of Ontario, has acquired as of August 12th, 1909, the business of Milton Worth DeLhorbe, Manufacturer of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, are Manufacturers of Food Products, such as Canned Meats, Cheese, Canned Fruits, Confectionery, Biscuits, and kindred products,also brokers of cattle for export.

Mr. Milton Worth DeLhorbe, a director of this company, and whose experience will be valuable to it, has been a successful manufacturer of Food Products, has a thorough and practical understanding of this business, and is the inventor of many sound and valuable formulas for the preparation of Food Products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, owns its factories and farms in Toronto and Honora, Manitoulin Island. The property in Manitoulin Island represents many 1000 acres of land, well wooded and added to the property of the Company. On this land is bred live stock for the Canadian and European markets, the buildings are commodious and fully equipped for the economic manufacture of the Company's products.

Canadian Eatables, Limited, will market its output principally in Canada, but will conservatively commence building up a substantial European business by the export of live stock, as well as its manufactures.

The Island of Manitoulin, as the home of the Company's farms, is well chosen. It is located in the heart of the pastoral portion of the Dominion, and is unexcelled for its magnificent crops, and one of its valuable features is its water frontage, its excellent wharves, and shipping facilities, by the use of which we are enabled to ship live stock and goods to any point of importance.

WHY THESE SHARES A RE BEING OFFERED.

Every legitimate business founded on public necessity for a good low-priced article, and on sound, healthy conditions,must in the course of its development, reach a point where its expansion has outgrown its facilities, and call for additional capital to provide for its economies and greater possibilities. The foregoing information illustrates the commercial condition of this business. It has reached that point where more capital is necessary in order to do greater business, and to satisfy the urgent demand for its products.

PERMANENT INVESTMENTS CANNOT BE MADE BY MONEY ADVANCED BY BANKS, OR OBTAINED THROUGH ANY OTHER CHANNEL, EXCEPTING THE SALE OF SECURITIES.

In a large business this policy is always considered the best one, for investors have always found that the man who has built up a business by hard effort of years, and by all the cares in the world, finishes the task completes the new channels and further development of the methods that have brought success. For this reason, and other sound considerations, it has been decided to offer to the investor an opportunity to become interested in Canadian Eatables, Limited, and its share in its further success.

PROFITS

This company manufactures only necessary food products, for which the demand is permanent and staple, and supply dominates the market prices, and the high prices previously proves the flexibility of the manufacturer to satisfy the needs of the market. The profits earned are consistently high in comparison to other enterprises, and the company has sufficient contracts on hand to warrant the distribution of a 20 per cent. dividend on both Preference and Common Stock.

EQUAL SHARING OF PROFITS.

By-law 20 provides that a fixed 8 per cent. dividend will first be paid on the Preference Shares, and that balance of profits for distribution as dividends, in excess of that amount, will annually, pay all or part of an 8 per cent. dividend on the Common Stock, and the surplus shall be equally divided between Common and Preferred Stock.

TELEGRAPH YOUR SUBSCRIPTION AT OUR EXPENSE, or mail same by first post, or, if convenient, bring it to us at once, only do not delay your subscription, as late comers will positively have their money returned.

WE CONFIDENTLY ADVISE FRIENDS, CLIENTS AND INVESTORS TO PURCHASE THESE SECURITIES.

THE SUPREME TEST.

What the Lovely Maiden Feared the Most.

"Stillingia," said the young man, his voice tremulous with suppressed emotion, "are you going to put me on the parzia? Is this where I get off?"

Unshed tears were in the lovely maiden's eyes. If she had shed them they would not have been in her eyes. But let that pass.

"I have not said so, Geoffrey," reluctantly she answered, "in so many words. But"—

"Listen, Stillingia," he burst forth impetuously. "Is there any other guy that's got the inside track? Am I playing second fiddle to some snooser with plastered hair, an ingrowing chin and a pull at the bank? If so"—

"No, Geoffrey, but"—

"Then why the Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego are you stalling me off? I may not be a pampered child of fashion, but I'm on the dead lev. I've never been caught with the goods, Girlie, ever since I was a kid you've been my one best bet, and you know it. I'm Old Faithful from Kleengonville. I've trailed along in your wake like a night police reporter on the track of a lovely holdup or a bug collector after a gorgeous butterfly. All my life I've been building bungalows in the air for you to move into some day. I'd rather look at your tintype than to eat four square meals. You are the niftiest, peachiest dream that ever"—

"Geoffrey," interrupted the beautiful girl, standing erect before him, pale but calm and resolute, "I know you love me, and I am touched as never before by your devotion, but something seems to tell me that we are not truly mated"—

Here her voice faltered.

"Geoffrey," she said, recovering herself, "we must not make a mistake that will wreck our whole lives! I must ask you one question."

"Well?"

Pleased His Majesty.

The dark monarch from sunny Africa was being shown over an engineering place in Salford by the manager, who, in explaining the working of certain machinery, unfortunately got his coattails caught in it and in a moment was being whirled round at so many revolutions per minute. Luckily for the manager, his garments were unequal to the strain of more than a few revolutions, and he was hurled, dishevelled and dazed, at the feet of the visitor.

That exalted personage roared with laughter and said something to his interpreter.

"Sah," said that functionary to the manager, "his majesty say he am berry pleased with de trick an' will you please do it again."—Sketchy Bits.

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy boeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for hoeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' ef I do," said the boy, "and hell ef I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Groucher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

Inuring Respect.

"Do you think a diamond engagement ring really makes a girl more thought of by her chums?"

"Well, it certainly is a good thing to have on hand."

A Lucky Invalid.

It is sometimes extremely difficult for the patient to look at things from the same point of view as the doctor, as witness the following story of Lord Charles Beresford and Sir Frederick Treves. The former physician Lord Charles fell ill, and Sir Frederick was called to his bedside. "Tell me," said Sir Frederick, "your symptoms." The other said he had a pain here, an ache there, and a stiffness somewhere else. And to each of these announcements the physician exclaimed, almost delightedly, "Excellent! Charming! Splendid!" When Lord Charles had concluded the enumeration of his troubles Sir Frederick slapped him heartily upon the back and cried, in a bold gay voice, "My dear fellow, let me congratulate you! You have the rarest disease of the century. You have, you lucky dog, a disease that heretofore was thought to be extinct."

A PRELATE'S LOTTERY.

Archbishop of Canterbury Once Ran a Big Drawing.

A lottery run by an Archbishop of Canterbury is unthinkable at the present day, and yet in the reign of George II. the greatest lottery ever known in Britain was run by the Primate, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker of the House of Commons. The splendid library which that noted doctor and art collector, Sir Hans Sloane had gathered during his lifetime—Sloane street and Sloane square still keep his memory green—was offered by his executors to the nation for the nominal sum of £20,000. But the Treasury, as usual, pleaded poverty, and pretended it could not find that large sum! So the Archbishop of Canterbury, in conjunction with the two gentlemen named above, organized a state lottery, with the sanction of Parliament, in order to raise the required money.

A hundred thousand tickets at £3 each were issued, and no less than £200,000 was to be distributed in prizes to the lucky winners of the numbers drawn, the first being £10,000, and the lowest a £10 note. So successful was the venture that all the tickets were eagerly purchased by the public, and there was more than £100,000 left in the hands of the Archbishop, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker to dispose of. They made most excellent use of this money for the benefit of the nation, as the record of their expenditure easily proves. They built the first portion of the British Museum with it; they bought the Sloane collection mentioned above; they purchased those priceless treasures, the Harleian and Cottonian manuscripts; and they put by a goodly sum as an endowment fund for the new museum.

A lottery helped to beat the Spanish Armada in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It was the first state lottery to take place in this country, and it was arranged at the express desire of the astute Queen herself for a most noble purpose. Her order ran as follows: "Her Majesty wisheth it to the intente that such profits as may arise, after the charges borne, may be converted towards the repaire of havens and ships and strength of the Realme, and such other public good workes."

This lottery was a great success, and with its profits the very vessels with which Drake and Lord Howard beat the "Invincible Armada" were made seaworthy and fit; of that there can hardly be a doubt. In the year of Trafalgar a public lottery yielded over £300,000 to the state; and from 1709 to 1824 there was scarcely a single year in which the Government did not raise a large sum by lotteries sanctioned by Parliament.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Due to the weak or ailing organ of these organs," said he. Each individual organ has its controlling or "inside nerve." When these nerves fail then these organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by all dealers.

Crossing the Channel.

By what means will man next attempt to cross the Channel? The question naturally arises as one reads of the many curious and novel methods by which men have tried of late years to cross from Dover to Calais. It was only a day or two after Blériot's successful flight across the Channel that a man named Westlake announced his intention of crossing on a plank, two feet wide, 18 feet long, and two inches thick, fitted with a mast and sail and two empty oil-drums to give it buoyancy. Westlake, however, was picked up more dead than alive off the Belgian coast, but still hopes to accomplish the feat.

A few days later Thomas Wakerell set out to row across the Channel in a boat of his own construction, consisting of two planks, with sides a few inches high. He was ultimately picked up in the North Sea and landed at Rotterdam.

Some two or three years ago four old Etonians attempted to row from Dover to Calais in a four-oar sculling-boat, but before they got halfway across the Channel the boat was swamped and the crew nearly drowned.

Smuggling Opium.

All sorts of tricks and dodges are resorted to by the Chinese of Australia to evade the law prohibiting the importation of opium into the Commonwealth. At Sydney recently a Chinaman was noticed, when passing the customs officials, to save a very bulky pig-tail. On examination it was found to contain several pounds of the contraband drug. The profits from the traffic are so enormous as to encourage very desperate efforts to override the law, and the authorities believe that a regular system of importation is in operation, Europeans as well as Chinese being engaged in it. In fact, two custom officials and a water policeman are now awaiting trial in Sydney on a charge of conspiracy in smuggling. A coast line of 10,000 miles is all in favor of this nefarious traffic

Suiting Her Convenience.

Count D'Orsay, on his first visit to England, chanced to be seated at dinner next to Lady Holland. That remarkable and many-sided woman was in one of her imperious humors. She dropped her napkin; the count picked it up gallantly. Then her fan, then her fork, then her glass and, as often, her neighbor stooped and restored the lost article.

At last, however, the patience of the youth gave way and on her dropping her napkin again he turned and called one of the footmen behind him:

"Put my plate on the floor," said he; "I will finish my dinner there; it will be so much more convenient to Lady Holland."

They Pass It.

"I suppose the deacons in your church pass the plate?"

"Yes; they even go so far as to call it absolutely dead. I've never yet seen any of them put in a cent!"—Puck.

A COBBLER SHAKESPEARE.

The stage in Germany is as much indebted to Hans Sachs as the English stage is to Shakespeare. This immortal was born in the year 1494, of lowly parentage, being the son of a tailor and apprenticed to a shoemaker.

In those days apprentices and masters of the craft wandered through the country, going from town to town, and were classed under the title of trade companies. On his journeys through the country he combined with cobbling the art of song, which was cultivated by these itinerant artisans, especially in South Germany and the Rhinelands.

Returning to Neuremberg, he threw himself heart and soul into the art of song, poetry and dramatic production, but at the same time continuing at his trade. Sachs had in his travels visited Frankfort, Wurzburg, Cologne, Munich, Vienna, Lubeck and many other places, and he learned things new, not only about boots and shoes, but about poetry, and when, at the age of twenty-two, he settled down in Neuremberg, he was able to stand up as a reformer of the German drama.

Sachs' life covered a period of eighty-two years, and his ability as a writer was nothing short of marvelous. It is said that there were years in which he wrote as many as eighteen plays. In fact, in 1556, he wrote eight tragedies and ten comedies.

As a heritage to posterity he left 198 dramatic works, 59 tragedies, 85 comedies, 64 Shrove-tide plays and 10 dramatic works, which the author termed "plays." Not alone was he famous as a dramatic writer, but 4,000 master songs were composed by him, besides an immense number of fables and epoch poems. Sachs got his subjects everywhere. The Biblical motives furnished him with such plays as "The Passion," "The Sacrifice of Isaac," "The Childhood of Moses," etc. The legends of the middle ages furnished him with "Tristan and Isolde," "Siegfried the Horny," "Oliver and Artus," and he also introduced a large number of classical subjects, including "Clytemnestra," "Alcestis," "The Destruction of Troy," "Ulysses," "Perseus," "Andromeda," and many others. Sachs particularly excelled with his Shrovetide plays, the best known of which were, "The Wandering Scholar" and "The Exorcist." It was no doubt due to Hans Sachs that the first theatre of Germany was built in 1550 in Neuremberg.

Molten Wood.

"Molten Wood" is the latest production of the German chemical industry. The new substance seems almost as paradoxical as "wooden iron." Wood that can be melted is obtained by subjecting it to a special process of distillation at a temperature of 140 degrees Cel. in vacuum. The process eliminates all organic acids, phosphates, and the like, nothing remaining except the skeleton fibres of the wood that can be melted down at a temperature of 800 degrees.

The new product is said to possess exceptionally valuable qualities; it is very fine grained, especially adapted to polishing, extraordinarily hard and durable. Printers' ink and dyes make splendid impressions on the new substance.

A great future is claimed for "molten wood," more especially in the printing and engraving trades, as its qualities for reproduction are unsurpassed. During the process of distillation it can be impregnated with antiseptic material, thus being rendered proof against decay or the attacks of insects. Experiments are being made with it in the buildings trades, and it is generally believed that it will soon become a staple article of commerce.

Arming the Yeomanry.

I understand that Mr. Haldane and the Army Council are seriously considering the question of rearming the Yeomanry. One of the many unwise deductions drawn from the South African war was that the sword as a weapon for cavalry was no longer useful. Since then the Yeomanry have been armed with rifles. Military experts are now returning to the "white weapon." During the recent manoeuvres the Yeomanry were more than once placed in a position where "the charge" was the only way out of an awkward and dangerous predicament. The fact that they had no weapon with which to charge naturally forbade "the order." I am assured the wise men of the War Office contemplate restoring the sabre to the Yeomanry cavalry.—Dundee Courier.

Shortest Street in London.

There can hardly be a shorter street in London than the one connecting Pall Mall with the southeastern corner of St. James' Square, from which the name John street has just been removed. It has only one house, which is No. 1; for, though there are two other doors in the street, one is numbered as belonging to Pall Mall and the other is the side-entrance of a public house. Presumably, therefore, the single house is now to be absorbed in St. James' Square, and the London Directory is to lose yet another of the slowly-diminishing total of John streets.

Indulgent.

"Her husband is very good to her."

"Is that so?"

"Yes: he does everything to please her, even to talking back when she's looking for an argument."—Detroit Free Press.

Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Dam," will be received at this office up to 16 o'clock on Tuesday, the 16th of November, 1909, for the works connected with the construction of a Concrete Dam at Burleigh Falls, Ontario, on the Trent Canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after this date, at this office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $2,500.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Weather Changed.

The weather took a decided change for the better yesterday afternoon and the strong cold breezes made many a man and woman leap with joy as it were. The people are tired of the half summer weather and they want the cold blast of winter.

Bump for Preachers.

Recently Rev. J. D. Morrow, of Toronto, told a gathering of ministers that the golf clubs, to which a great many of them belonged, desecrated the Sabbath far more than the baseball, lacrosse, hockey and other clubs and athletics. To this all will answer hear! hear.

No Fund for Strikes.

The Trades Unions in session in Toronto decided on Saturday against the creation of a central fund for defending strikes. All help for this purpose must be voluntary. The labor men are truly progressing. Their action means that there will be fewer strikes in future, and that there must be a good and sufficient cause.

Asked to Stay.

At a meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the Mark street Methodist church on Saturday afternoon, Rev. C. H. Coon, the pastor, was extended an invitation to remain the fourth year of his pastorate, and a substantial increase was made in his salary. During Mr. Coon's stay at Mark street the church has made rapid progress and much good work has been done.

New City Hall.

Several people were heard to remark yesterday that it was too bad the fire Saturday night had not gutted the city hall building so that a new structure would be necessary. Perhaps the 'aldermen in their wisdom will make such repairs to the present building that a new one will not be necessary. The council chamber might be refurnished, papered and painted. It needs it all right.

The Carters' Shelter.

Not much has been heard about Ald. McIntyre's carters' shelter during the past few months. The shelter is still there and the carters are out on the streets. No doubt more will be heard now that the elections are drawing near, and the necessity of a city-paid telephone becomes more urgent.

Will Play Junior.

The Lindsay Hockey Club will play junior this year if they get the age limit raised to 19 years. They will not defend the intermediate championship.

Life Insurance.

Lindsay is getting ambitious. They want a Mutual Life Insurance Company to locate there, and thus have millions of dollars collected from the people of Canada brought to that town. No doubt to sink in their main streets.

Negro Prejudice.

The Times received a copy of a letter, from a Prince Edward Island paper, appealing to Canadians to remove the prejudice against negroes. This journal has not space to reprint the letter and the negro is not wanted in Canada anyway. The south is the place for him. Let him go back to the hot climate and the hook worm. It's too cold here and the people are too industrious. They have no time to waste watching the negro either.

Sinister—Shaw.

The marriage of Miss Irene Shaw, second daughter of Dr. Shaw of Regina, formerly of Keene, to Mr. W. A Sinister of Winnipeg, was celebrated in Regina on Wednesday, Nov 10th. The wedding was a quit one, only members of the family being present. Mrs. Simister was well known in Peterborough, having graduated from the Collegiate Institute here about four years ago.

York County Loan Cheques.

The Bank of Ottawa have now received the cheques in payment of the first dividend to those parties who left their books with that bank. There are over one thousand cheques and a large number of the claims have been transferred to third parties, which entails a lot of work for the bank officials. They hope, however, to have matters in such a position that they will be able to give these cheques out to the public on Tuesday. In reference to the amount of dividend represented by the cheques, the liquidators have published a statement in the newspapers as to how the amounts were arrived at, which no doubt everybody has read. It will be impossible for the bank to explain to each depositor just how the amount represented by each cheque was arrived at, and the public should take this into consideration and not take up the time of the bank officials by asking for special explanations in regard to their individual claims. A copy of the statement made by the liquidators is hung up in a prominent place in the bank and can be read by any person who desires.

BOUNDARY LINE

Between the Two Roman Catholic Congregations.

With the occupancy of the new Catholic church beginning with next Sunday, the parish will be divided into two parts. The boundary, as announced by Rev. Father McColl on Sunday is as follows: For the city the boundary begins at the Otonabee river, follows the C.P.R. to Townsend street, and west on Towns end street to the C.G.E. works. The former members of the cathedral congregation residing south of this line, will constitute the congregation of the new church. The boundary for people living in the country begins at the Locks bridge, and follows the road through Downer's Corners, running due east to the eastern boundary of the parish. Roman Catholics residing south of line will also be members of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Doomed Miners' Wives Hover Around Shaft

Cherry, Ill., Nov. 16.—Dawn today brought increased anxiety to the families of the 300 miners who are still entombed in the St. Paul coal mine as a result of last Saturday's disaster.

Despite the belief expressed by the State and Government officials that there is little or no possibility of any of the men ever being brought to the surface alive, scores of grief-stricken wives gather about the mouth of the hoisting shaft, which late yesterday had to be sealed on account of renewal of fire in the interior.

Haggard and almost worn into exhaustion by the terror of three sleepless nights, the women approached the officers imploring some glimmer of hope.

PITIFUL PLEAS.

"There is still a chance, ain't there, Mister," they pleaded.

"Don't say they are dead for certain."

The mine officers, assisted by the State and Government authorities, who had remained on the premises all night, began early to ascertain whether it would be practical again to send rescuers down the shaft.

It was decided that if the fire had been sufficiently smothered by the closing of the mine during the night descent would be possible, and no time would be lost. A number of water tanks were brought here from La Salle on flat cars before daylight and run on a switch ready to be poured into the pit. At the same time a supply of fire extinguishing chemicalswere on hand. Among them were chemicals intended to produce carbonic acid gas. If the fire is still raging in the timbers supports, it was proposed to bore holes through the lid, or seal at the mouth of the shaft, and by means of iron pipes force the gas to the bottom.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster Sees Blue Ruin

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, expressed the fear in Parliament yesterday that Canada's new commercial treaty with France would cause President Taft to tag a 25 per cent. ad valorem duty on to Canadian imports. How serious that would be he showed by stating that in the last three years imports from France were $34,708,756, and the imports from the United States $546,634,404 while exports to France were $6,352,400 and to the States $285,-146,367. Mr. Borden also thought the waterways treaty should have been ratified by Parliament.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that he considered that there was nothing in the French treaty or elsewhere that could be construed as discrimination against the United States.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster feared that the house could not rely on the hope that the French treaty would not be regarded by Washington as a basis for the imposition of the maximum American tariff against Canada. There was ample evidence in the new Payne tariff that the intention of the American legislators was to place themselves in a position to force the hand of Canada in the matter of fiscal relations. He argued that not only would the extra twenty-five per cent. duty apply to all dutiable goods entering the United States from Canada, but it might also apply to all Canadian exports now entering the States free of duty. A tremendous dislocation of the present trade relations was pending.

The Young Men's Guild Reception a Splendid Success

The Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church scored a big success in their reception to the men of the church. In spite of the badnight a large number assembled in the lecture hall and enjoyed a good program.

Mr. Ernest Reid occupied the chair and after one or two items of necessary business called upon Misses Tully and Dawson to render an instrumental duett which was well rendered. The musical numbers were all of a very high order as follows:

Miss Olive Howell—"When May Comes in."

Mr. Gordon Wright—"Promise Me.

Mr Lewis Acheson—"Skippers of St. Ives."

Rev. J. G. Potter—"Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

These numbers were all encored with the greatest enthusiasm.

The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Riddiford of Park street Baptist church, who complimented the Guild on the successful event and eulogized their object in taking such a deep interest in the practical work of the church as well as in the measure of sport in which they had indulged. He held before them the highest wisdom by which the life of young men was made strong and highly successful.

The Rev. J. G. Potter, Richard Lees and Andrew McFarlane, honorary members of the Guild, gave words of encouragement.

The thanks of the Guild was tendered all who took part by neat speeches from Messrs. Cornish and Rutherford.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served and a very interesting and delightful meeting was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

BROKE HIS LEG.

Frenchman Met With a Nasty Accident at the New Dam.

A Frenchman, whose home is in Montreal, and who was employed on the new dam for the water works, got a nasty bump yesterday afternoon, while at work. On account of the ice condition of the cable wires and ropes a rope slipped and allowed the big bucket which carries the cement, to drop suddenly and it bit the Frenchman and broke his leg. Dr. Frederick was called and the man hurried to Nicholls hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance. This is the first accident of a serious nature that has occurred on the construction of the dam, and it speaks well for the Bishop Construction Company, who have the contract.

PUBLIC SERVICE.

Commission Being Asked for to Handle Stratford's Public Utilities.

Stratford has caught the true spirit of municipal government as will be seen by the following which is taken from an exchange:—

The finance committee of the City Council has passed a resolution asking for the submission of a by-law providing for the creation and election simultaneously of a light and heat commission, composed of the mayor and two elected members, to have charge of the service of electricity to be established under the city's contract for Niagara power; also that the city solicitor take steps to procure legislation to amalgamate said commission with the water commissioners, under the title of the public service commission; and that the city may in future require the public service commission to be composed of the mayor and four commissioners, two of the latter to have two terms and two to be elected annually.

Board of Trade Endorses Policy of Conserving the Back Waters

A Fair Sized Crowd Present for a Bad Night--Several Speakers Refer to the Great Benefits of Conserving the Waters in the Back Lakes—Other Business Transacted

A lively meeting of the Board of Trade was held last night when the members discussed the advantages of conserving the waters in the back lakes. The board endorsed the policy of the government in the past and expressed the hope that the policy would be continued.

A communication was received from the secretary of the Hamilton Board of Trade asking the Peterborough Board to support the movement for civic holiday all over the country to be on the same Monday.

In reference to the above Mr. D. Hughes-Charles said that he was satisfied that the railways would object on the grounds that they could not handle the crowds.

Mr. Dodd said he did not think the railways could possibly give a satisfactory passenger service. He also pointed out that the city would lose money by such a move and he did not think the railways would give a reduced rate.

Mr. Hughes-Charles and Mr. J. H. Larmonth moved that this board do not approve of this move.—Carried.

Lakefield Board of Trade asked Peterborough's Board to write the Minister of Railways and Canals and and ask them to extend the Lakefield wharf.

Mr. J. H. McClellan said that charity begins at home. Lakefield has 538 feet of wharf and Peterborough has 200 feet. This city will have enough to do to get a wharf itself.

The board decided to take no action in connection with the above communication.

WATER CONSERVATION.

The chairman said that the business of the meeting was an appropriation for the conservation of the waters on the Trent waters to the north.

Mr. J. H. McClellan referred to the policy of the government for the past five years towards conservation of the water. Every year they have been building dams and holding the water back in the Gull, Burnt and other back streams. This costs about $20,000 a year, but we are now receiving a great deal of benefit from these expenditures. He thought that if the Board of Trade felt that the policy should be continued, the board should pass a resolution endorsing the policy of the minister and deputy minister.

Mr. E. G. Patterson referred to the very great shortage of water that was experienced here last winter when the factories ran on short time and when everything was kept back on account of the water shortage. He favored that every effort be made to induce the minister to increase the appropriations for the conservation of waters.

Mr. W. H. Denham said that by the conservation of water would mean that the water supply on this river would be increased 40 per cent. Already a great deal has been done and we want more power. This year he said his company had not been inconvenienced at all. But we need more power and in time we will have a great power center right here in Peterborough.

Mr. W. H. Moore said that he considered that at least 25 per cent. more of the spring water could be held back than is at present, and until all the water possible was conserved. He paid a high tribute to Mr. McClellan, superintendent of the Trent Canal, for the great improvement in the flow of the water in the Otonabee river since he became head of the canal. Mr. Moore also strongly endorsed the idea of the motion referred to.

Mr. J. H. Larmouth endorsed all that had been said by the previous speakers. There were 2760 square miles of land drained into the Otonabee. If you take the average rainfall for the past 30 years and allow 50 per cent. for evaporation, and bring it down gradually the power at their dam would be nearly doubled and they would get 6000 effective horse power. This increase would apply to every dam along the river.

Mr. D. O'Connell said that as this was a very important question the Board of Trade should make the strongest possible representation to the government. He thought a committee should be appointed to go into this question thoroughly and get all the information possible and make a brief summary and a proper resolution and forward it to the minister. He moved that such a committee be appointed.

Mr. McClellan said he did not think it was necessary to go that far as the minister and deputy minister had all the information and data before them now. What is wanted is an endorsation of their policy.

Mr. O'Connell thought, however, that this Board of Trade should go further.

Ald. Jos. Duffus said he thought this meeting had struck the key note, viz., to get increased power supply and at a lower price than other towns. He seconded Mr. O'Connell's resolution. The motion carried.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was then passed:

Moved by Mr. J. H. Larmonth, seconded by Mr. W. H. Denham;—

That the members of the Board of Trade of the City of Peterborough, desire to place on record their sincere appreciation of the manner in which the water on the Trent canal above Peterborough, has been regulated and conserved under the direction of the capable deputy minister and chief engineer, Mr. M. J. Butler, C.E., affording as it has, a regular flow at all times during the year, thereby enabling the various companies to supply electrical energy to the manufacturers in such a satisfactory manner as to enable them to operate their factories and mills without interruption for want of power.

We also approve of the policy of the department in building new dams and renewing old dams on the Gull River, Burnt river, Nissiasaugua Gull river, Burnt river, Nissiasaugua creek, and other tributary waters recently taken over from the Ontario Government by the Dominion Government, and we hope that it may be the determination of the government to continue this satisfactory policy of conserving the waters.

We wish to thank Hon. G. P. Graham and also Mr. Butler for the great interest they have taken in pushing to completion the Trent canal, and also in conserving the back waters, for purposes of navigation, power and the lumber interest, and also for improving and beautifying the canal, and we hope that they may long be spared to fill the positions they now occupy, which we consider will not only be for the welfare of the Trent Canal and this section generally, but will be for the benefit of the whole Dominion at large.—Carried.

The following committee was appointed to gather information to submit to the minister, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, in reference to the Trent canal:—D. O'Connell, chairman; D. Hughes-Charles, Mr. Travers, J. H. Larmonth and Mr. W. H. Moore with power to add to their numbers.

It was moved by Mr. E. G. Patterson that this board express its very great satisfaction with the very efficient manner in which Mr. C. H. McClellan has controlled and handled the waters of the Trent canal.—Carried.

WAIT ON THE COUNCIL.

Mr. D. O'Connell said that the Board of Trade held a very successful meeting a week ago and that a new impetus had been given to the trade of Peterborough but the board cannot sit down now and rest satisfied. The board must keep busy and take that resolution passed by the citizens' meeting and present it to the Committee of the Whole Council and impress upon that body the urgent necessity of carrying out the wish of the people. The same committee appointed to look after the conservation of the water will look after this matter.

MORE WHARFAGE.

Mr. W. H. Denham suggested that a petition be sent to the Hon. Mr. Pugsley, minister of public works, urging him to go on with the plans prepared a year or two ago for a wharf opposite the filled ground on the water front. The Wolfe street wharf is no longer efficient to meet the demands of the city. This matter will also be taken up by the committee and presented to the council.

Feared that the Freighter Ionic Has Been Wrecked and Crew Drowned

A Despatch From Fort William Speaks of Wreckage Found Off Passage Island.

All the Canadian Boats Accounted for With the Exception of the Ionic.

Fort William, Nov. 16.—The steamer Ionic, a Northern Navigation Co. freighter, with Capt. Ironside in command, and a crew of about twenty, is believed to have been wrecked early Monday morning near Passage Island, and all on board lost.

All of the Canadian boats that sailed from Sault Ste. Marie for Fort William, and those that sailed from here for the North have been accounted for, with the exception of the Ionic, which left here early on Sunday evening. The fact that leads local marine men to believe that the Ionic has been wrecked is that yesterday afternoon the crew and passengers of the C.P.R. steamer Assiniboia reported that they had sighted considerable wreckage close to Passage Island, and several members of the crew, stated that, in their opinion, it was that of the Ionic.

Capt. Pyatt of the Assiniboia, stated that he was astonished to see wreckage close to Passage Island about eight o'clock yesterday morning. At the time a blinding snow storm was raging, and although the Assiniboia was only two hundred yards away from the floating wreckage, the captain was unable to make out the name on the cabin.

"I did everything possible to make out the name, but, owing to the heavy fall of snow and the rough sea, the name was hidden from view," stated Capt. Pyatt.

The steamer Ionic cleared from Fort William between five and six o'clock Sunday night. She had a cargo of 55,642 bushels of wheat for Tiffin. The vessel finished loading about four o'clock, but Capt. Ironside did not like leaving that then, as he had a hard trip up from the Soo. However, he changed his mind, and cleared shortly before six o'clock. The Ionic is a steel hull, and was used for both freight and passenger trade during the season of navigation.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. George Whibbs.

One of the oldest and most esteemed residents of Douro, passed away Monday evening about eight o'clock in St. Joseph's hospital, in the person of Mrs. George Whibbs, she having reached the ripe old age of 75 years. Her maiden name was Annie Cuff, and she was born in Ireland, but came to this country with her parents when only three years of age, settling in Douro, which has been her home ever since. She was married to George Whibbs, who predeceased her 41 years ago, and those left to mourn her loss are five sons, Rev. Father Whibbs of Campbellford, Messrs. Gustus, of Indian River Station; Thomas, at home; John, of Lakefield, and Patrick of Douro. One sister, Mrs. Catharine O'Leary, of Emily, and one brother, John Cuff, of St. Louis, also survive.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at nine o'clock from the homestead, lot 10, in the 6th concession of Douro, to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

Hoarseness in a child subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given at once or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. Contains no poison. 3

FARMER TELLS INTERESTING STORY

Whether Sick or Well, in Good Weather or Stormy Weather or in Stormy, He is Obliged to Work Always.

Market people complain about prices they have to pay for farm produce. They forget that rain or shine, warm or cold, the farmer must keep at it or else the narrow profit, his bare living, will be lost to him.

A well-known Haldimand farmer, Mr. J. P. Pelletier, writes: "For nearly three years I was in poor health. A drenching storm caught me in the fields and wet me to the skin. I got home only to find I was threatened with inflammation of the bowels. I never got over it and felt weak and heavy and my system never worked quite right. But a farmer has to work—and I found myself going down hill with stomach, liver and kidney troubles. Failure seemed to follow everything. I remained wretched and sick until advised to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. It is not easy to describe the sort of feeling a sick man gets when he strikes a medicine that he can see is doing him a lot of good. I was overjoyed—Hamilton's Pills put new life into me and everything worked right. Since cured with Dr. Hamilton's Pills I haven't had a single symptom of stomach, liver or kidney trouble. I am free from headaches, languor and weakness, as strong, robust as a man could be." No better medicine for general family use than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They are mild, healthful and certain to cure. Sold in yellow 50c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Board of Managers.

A meeting of the Board of Managers of the Y.M.C.A. was held last night when routine business was transacted.

Canada's Credit Almost too Good

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Mr. Byron G. Walker, president of the Bank of Commerce, who has just returned to Toronto after five months' absence in England and on the continent, spoke optimistically to a newspaper man this morning, on the financial outlook in England, so far as Canadian interests there are concerned.

"There never was a time when the English investor was so ready to consider favorably Canadian investments," Mr. Walker said. "As a matter of fact there never was a time when Canadian credit was so good. It is so good that we Canadians must be careful. I think I can truthfully say that we have never sold the English investor bad securities. We have given him good value for his money, and we must continue to do so.

"The reasons for the English investor's interest in Canada are I think, two fold. In the first place there is the natural improvement following the recovery from the money stringency that swept all over the world two years ago, and in the second place there is the English budget. Now, I do not wish to be drawn into any controversy on the budget question, but this condition has undoubtedly arisen: In former times the Englishman of capital was willing to accept a somewhat smaller return in order to keep his capital in England. Today he regards us as the lucky fellow who is outside the influence of all the strife that is disturbing him at home. He does not know what the budget will do to him. He sees that we are going ahead, and he is quite willing to send his money to us to be invested."

"The budget question is such a tremendously big one that one can not see just where it is going to end. Old age pensions is the focussing in one point of an agitation which has been going on for years, and is, if I may say so, an attempt to work from the top down, rather than from the bottom up. It is all very well to say that those who have money should pay taxes, but the working man should not forget that the obstruction of commercial enterprise means something very serious for him. All classes are interested, and vitally interested in the budget, although it has been so hacked up that I do not think that anyone knows just what it really is."

LEARNING MORE OF CANADA

Speaking of the Englishman's knowledge of Canada, Mr. Walker said that it was materially increasing. There was much less excuse for an investor in England who put his money in bad investments today than was some years ago. Two of the biggest Canadian banks now had branches in London, where information on Canada could be obtained, and English newspapers were devoting much space to Canadian affairs. He hoped to see a time when Canadian offices would be enlarged and improved in the very heart of London. The city was anxious to have a certain part of the Strand the headquarters of all the colonial offices, and anything that Canada could do to bring herself before the eyes of the English public must inevitably do her good.

THE TAX ON LAND.

"There is one result which the budget may have," Mr. Walker said, "which I consider a most serious one. And that is one which may arise from the land taxation proposals. We know the unfortunate tendency in all countries for the great mass of the population to crowd into the cities. How are they to be housed. Simply by the buying up of great spaces in the suburbs, and by the erection on them of houses. The proposal to tax the land increment means the erection of another barrier in the way of the real estate man, the obstruction of the work of housing which is today so pressing a need. The German war talk is another disturbing element which is to be taken in account of in England today, and which finds its reflection in the financial situation."

Made an Attempt to Liberate Prisoners in the Cobalt Jail

Cobalt, Nov. 16.—Two men whose identity is unknown, tried at one o'clock this morning to break into the Provincial jail, where 16 prisoners are confined, including fourteen blind pig keepers, and Xicario Scalso, the the Italian, who so murderously assaulted and stabbed James Stevens on Sunday. Provincial Constable MacKay and Constable Johnson have slept at the jail since the arrest of the blind piggers, and were awakened by attempts of the two men to gain entrance through court room windows. They fired at fleeing men, but apparently neither was hurt. It is believed that they were friends of some of the prisoners who were aware that cell room keys recently hung in the court room.

"CHANGE THE NAME," BY BILL BAILEY.

Mr. Wm. A. Baily, writer, gentleman, and all round athlete, sent the following communication to the Board of Trade and it was read last night:—

Box 701, Otonabee.

Sir,—Fortunately I am not a citizen so cannot attend the meeting, but I might be allowed to make a suggestion.

The name should be changed. "Peterborough" is associated with an old Conservative city in England.

After recent events here the name does not sound quite decent.

It is a beautiful district, and it is a pity to spoil it.

Yours truly,
W. A. BAILY.

BYLAW DEFEATED.

Trenton People Will Hold On To Their Power Rights.

Trenton, Nov. 15.—By a vote of 389 to 150 the power bylaw to ratify the agreement handling over the Trent River waterpowers to a company was defeated today. The bylaw was defeated in every polling subdivision and in every ward.

OVEREND WON.

Hamilton Manufacturing Company Must Pay Damages.

The Court of Appeal handed down the following decision on Monday:

Overend v. the Barrows, Stewart and Milne Company. This was an action by plaintiff, William J. Overend, of Peterborough, against defendants, a manufacturing company of Hamilton, for an injunction account, and $200 damages for infringement of plaintiff's patent No. 53,313, for certain improvements in carry combs, whereof Francis Henry Burke of Peterborough, horseman, was the first inventor. At the trial judgment was given for plaintiff for $20.00 for damages and an injunction restraining further manufacture by defendants during the currency of patent, with costs. Defendants appealed directly to the Court of Appeal.

A great treat is in store for you on Friday evening, November 26th, when Frankin Stelle will give an illustrated lecture—"Old Friends and New in the Realms of Art," in the Collegiate Institute Hall, under the auspices of the Women's Art Association. Tickets 35c, Students 25c. Tickets may be had at Mellwraith & Jury's Drug Store and all the Boarderers. 4tf

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Of the Original Members of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government.

The Ottawa journal says:

One of the most interesting studies at the beginning of every Parliament is to discover who the oldest members are, for the number of those who were returned to Parliament in 1896, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to power, is now very rapidly diminishing. The following is the list of the thirty who remain:

Conservatives—Major Thomas Beattie, London; R. L. Borden, Halifax; Andrew Broder, Dundas; Hon. Geo. E. Foster, North Toronto; Hon. John G. Haggart, South Lanark; David Henderson, Halton; Col. Samuel Hughes, Victoria and Haliburton; F. D. Monk, Jacques Cartier; William B. Northrup, East Hastings; E. B. Osler, West Toronto; Dr. John D. Reid, Grenville; Dr. W. J. Roche, Marquette; Dr. T. S. Sproule, East Grey; George Taylor, Leeds; Urbah Wilson, Lennox and Addington; W. F. Maclean, South York—12.

WILL GO BACK MONDAY.

Washington, Nop. 16.— President Samuel Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, who are under sentence on the charge of contempt of court, will not have to return to Washington from Toronto to appear before the District Court of Appeals to file notice of their appeal until next Monday. It is expected that they will then seek out a writ of habeas corpus before some judge of the District Supreme Court and should the judge refuse to discharge them under the writ, the next step would be an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Rheumatism promptly driven from the blood with Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy. Don't waste time with common remedies. A test will surely tell. In tablet or liquid form. Sold by all dealers.

No Liniment Like Nerviline

: 000,000 Bottles Sold Annually.

The unexampled success of "Nerviline" is due to the fact that it is five times stronger, three times morepenetrating, more pain-relieving than any other liniment.

One million bottles used every year— think what this means! Surely stronger proof is not possible that Nerviline is a trusty liniment, a household remedy upon which mothers can depend in case of accident or sudden sickness. Scarcely an ache or a pain that Nerviline won't cure—among the hundreds of ailments for which it is guaranteed are the following:

HEADACHE NEURALGIA
SCIATICA RHEUMATISM
LUMBAGO CHEST COLDS
SORE BACK TOOTHACHE
KARACHE CRAMPS
DIARRHOEA BOWEL DISORDERS

Doctors will tell you that nothing but the purest and most healing antiseptic drugs are used in Nerviline—that's why it is so safe for general family use, for the baby as well as the parent. If you haven't tried Nerviline, do so now—your neighbors are almost sure to know of its manifold merits and uses.

Refuse any substitute for Nerviline sold the world over in large 25c. bottles, five for $1.00, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont

A SAFE INVESTMENT

Canadian Investors Have a Chance to Get In on the Ground Floor.

A short description of the new Copper-Gold Camp of lake Creek Wyo. and one of its richest mines, the Kansas Property, Albany, Wyo., being the present nearest railroad station, only seven miles away; but the Laramie Hahn's Peak R. R. is rapidly building on south through this camp and will have regular freight traffic established to Lake Creek Station by January 1st 1910. The shipments of Ore now from Albany Station are only 200 to 350 tons per month, but within a few months it will be largely increased.

The Kansas Mine is situated only a short distance from the new station to be established on the railroad, 7 miles south of Albany, as soon as track is laid this far, and track will be laid and regular freight traffic established this far before January 1910, the officials of the railroad say. This station will be named Lake Creek, and is situated in southwest part of Albany county Wyoming, 9 miles north of the Colorado & Wyoming state line.

Lake Creek station will be the shipping point for the ores from the Topeka, Kansas, Pollyton and other properties, and the distributing for this this rich mining section.

The Lake Creek Gold Mining Company of Wyoming was organized in the early part of 1909, to develop the Kansas mining property into a commercial mine. The capital stock of the company is 1,000,000, shares of a par value of one dollar each, full paid and non-assessable or has no bonds, preferred stock or other indebtedness.

500,000 shares of the capital stock was placed in the treasury to be sold for funds to carry on the developments on the property until the sale of ores will provide money for this purpose and pay dividends.

The Kansas property comprises an area of 80 acres situated near the center of the ore bearing zone, and joins the Topeka Copper Co.'s famous ground on the east and south, and has 3,000 feet of the apex of the rich Joe Davis vein, in it the Topeka Co., has such rich ore bodies opened up, sampling $100 and more by Albert B. Sanford of Denver Colo., Assayer to U. S. Custm House, the ore-body opened nearest the Kansas line on the Topeka's ground, and sampled by Joseph F. Geisler, Ph.C. "Official Chemist of the New York Mercantile Exchange," samples from $70 to $165. per ton, in gold, silver and copper values. On this vein a few hundred feet east, and on the Kansas property, belonging to the Lake Creek G. M. Co. is the largest ore-body on this vein, being opened to a depth of 50 feet by several shaft and open cuts, this development work prove the ore body to be 5 ft. to 15ft. wide and more than 300 ft. long, and of a pure quarts-gossan ore, that samples as much as 24 per cent. copper and $60, in gold & silver values per ton, this ore will be at depth a Bornite and Yellow Copper ore carrying high values in gold, such is the ore proven at depth in this vein, by the 1000 foot tunnel driven on this vein, a short distance west, by the Topeka Copper Co.

Tunnel:

To economically open up and prove this large ore-body, of th Kansas mine at depth a tunnel is being driven from the north side of the Kansas property south towards the vein, and is now within 30 feet of the theore-body at or below permanent water level, effectively draining the vein of all surface water, very materially aiding deeper mining. All these plans are by, Henry C. Beeler E.M. State Geologist of Wyoming, for eight years: Who says of the Kansas property, in his report of Jan. 22nd. 1909: "The ore conditions in your property indicate the presence of large bodies of commercial ore, and there is every present indication that this property should make a mine when properly developed as above outlined."

Mr. Sidney E. Bartlett, E. M.one of the ablest engineers of the west, in great strength on the Kansas property, being six to ten feet wide, with a mud seam carrying copper carbonates on the hanging wall, and with proper developments large ore-shoots carrying high values in gold & copper will doubt.ess be disclosed."

Statement of the work done to date, and ore bodies exposed on the Kansas mining property, belonging to the Lake Creek G.M. Co. of Wyoming. Shaft No. 1 sunk on the ore-body near 50 feet deep, shaft No. 2 sunk on the ore-body, 130 feet west of shaft No. 1, shaft No. 3, sunk on ore-body 50 feet east of shaft No. 1, open cut, 100 feet east of shaft No. 1 opens the ore-body 15 feet wide, open cut 160 feet west of shaft No. 1 proves the ore 6 feet wide.

All these open up "gossan-quartz ore 5 ft. to 15 ft. wide that samples 5 to 20 per cent copper, and as much as $62. in gold and silver values.

Tunnel Development Work:- Plans by Henry C. Beeler E. M., as a consulting Engineer. A crosscut tunnel is being driven to tap the vein at depth, the breast of which is now nearing the vein, being within 25 ft., of it, by surely not to exceed 35 ft. to it. This tunnel starts down the hill, and on the north side of the Kansas lode claim, and is driven south towards the vein, the last 25 feet of this tunnel has been passing through a rock impregnated with some sulphides of copper and iron, proving an extensive mineralization as the vein is approached, this rock was pronounced Dioritic-Porphyry," by A. C. Dart, E.M., Prof. of Geologie and Mining of the University of Wyoming.

The vein is a true fissure with a strong selvege seam, and is the Soe Davis vein, on which an adit tunnel is driven near 1000 feet long, by the Topeka Copper Co. a short distance west of this property there the ore at depth is a high-grade copper ore carrying values as high as $200 in gold, per ton." Signed, William Benton, Secretary of Lake Creek G. M. Co. Report to company on October 1st1st. 1909.

Those conditions and Reports urove the large extent and richness of the ore-bodies exposed in the Kansas property, by men of National reputation.

The Company is financed right, by one-half of the capital stock being development stock, in its treasury, and all moneys paid for this stock goes towards developing and opening up the ores and shipping them to the smelters when the sale of same will provide money for future expenses and create a surplus fund for dividends, that we believe will soon be great enough to pay an annual dividend on the stock equal to the present price asked. for this stock. Then this stock will have an investment value above its par va,ue of one dollar per share.

No Free Admittance.

An aeronaut, leaning over the edge of his car as his balloon was slowly passing over a football field, overbalanced himself and fell plump among the players. When he recovered consciousness he found several of the club officials bending over him anxiously.

"Ah," said the treasurer in a tone of relief, "I'll trouble you for your sixpence now, old fellow."—Tit-Bits.

What He Got.

A good many years ago, in the state of Iowa, there was a small boy boeing potatoes in a farm lot by the roadside. A man came along in a fine buggy and driving a fine horse. He looked over the fence, stopped and said, "Bub, what do you get for boeing those potatoes?"

"Nothin' of I don't," said the boy, "and hell of I don't."—Saturday Evening Post.

Excusable Resentment.

"It's really provoking," said the fond mother, "baby always cries when we have company."

"Well," answered Mr. Groucher, "you can't blame children for disliking company. If it weren't for visitors they wouldn't have to recite or play pieces on the piano."—Washington Star.

A Canadian Grub in London.

By a log of wood riddled with tiny tunnels, says a London correspondent, stands an ordinary-looking beetle in the insect house at the London Zoo. It has just been born as a beetle from the grub which drove those tunnels. It belong to the Longicorn family of beetles.

The grub was sent from Canada in a small log of Vancouver pine to a lady eighteen months ago. When recently it turned into a beetle she sent it to the Zoo, and it has just emerged in its final state, but it may have been anywhere between twenty and fifty years in the wood, boring the tunnels through the log.

An official at the Gardens says that naturalists have not yet settled how long it takes beetles to accomplish this work of boring. There is the historic case of the Natural History Museum grub of the same species. For fourteen years it lived undiscovered in the boot tree constantly used by an Indian military officer and probably had lived in the wood itself before it was made into a boot tree.

When the officer first discovered the grub he handed the boot tree, grub and all, over to the museum. It was placed in a show case, where it lived ten years. About once annually the grub used to poke its head out into the daylight, when the curator promptly pushed it back into the wood and plugged up the hole so that it could dig its way out.

"The Weeping Counsel."

It was on account of his earnest and emotional pleading for Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, that Lord Halsbury, who recently celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday, was so christened. If his lordship believes in lucky numbers, he has reason to regard "5" as his own. He was born in 1825; he began his career at the Bar in 1850; he was made a Q.C. in 1865; he was appointed Solicitor-General in 1875; he became Lord Chancellor in 1885; and he commenced his third term of office in 1895. An incident in his early days brought his career perilously near a close. While defending a prisoner at the Old Bailey he excited the animosity of an insane clergyman, who fired a revolver at him. This is the only instance on record of an attempt to assassinate an English advocate in the performance of his professional duties.

Keeping Busy.

Walking one day amongst his old parishioners in the East End of London, Dr. Lang (now Archbishop of York) stopped a parishioner who had married a man who enjoyed the reputation of being the laziest man in the East. "Well, Mrs. Brown," he said, "I hope your husband is proving a good provider." "Yes, sir, thank you, sir," she replied; "he's provided me with three new places to work at since we were married."
